Worship Not Out-of-Date

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Has the modern world outgrown the need for worship? Many seem to think so. They never bow down in prayer before the Lord, their Maker. If they bow down before anything, it is to their television set. If they worship anything, it is their bankroll, and the pleasures their bankroll can provide.

When ancient man looked around him, he said, "O Lord, our Lord, how majestic is thy name, in all the earth . . . When I look at thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou hast established; what is man that thou art mindful of him?" (Psalm 8: 1, 3) When modern man looks around him, he says, "O man, scientific man, how clever you are in all the earth. When I look at the laboratories, the jet planes, the cyclatrons you have built, what is God that we need to be mindful of Him?"

Someone has said that when the ancients came up against something they could not explain, they turned to their gods, whereas modern men turn to their laboratories. In fact, some (not many of the great scientists) have made the test-tube their god. They look to it for the solution to everything. They cry out, "O Science, save us."

No right thinking person would want to take away one iota from the credit science deserves for the progress it has made, but are we willing to settle only for the answers science can give? Must we judge the value of a painting only by the amount of paint on the canvas? Do we want to judge a mother's love by the weight of her body? Some things, and they seem to be the very things that make life most worth-while, cannot be weighed on scales or measured by a tape-measure.

ISRAEL'S CONCEPT OF GOD

It is to the everlasting credit of the Jews that in a world where gods were a dime a dozen, they believed in only one God. And in a world where men believed the gods were capable of anything. Israel believes the true God was utterly righteous. "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" asked Abraham. (Genesis 18:25) This was a brand new concept to many of the people in his day. And yet out of this faith has come the concept of a moral universe with its consideration for justice and moral living.

> The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 17: "True Worship of God," Exodus 20: 4-6; 32: 1-24; I Chronicles 16:29; Isaiah 46: 1-4; John 4: 7-24.

Of course Israel had its throwbacks. One such incident occurred when, in Moses' absence, the people persuaded Aaron to make a golden calf. (Exodus 32) This chapter brings to light so many things. It is an excellent study in human nature. When Moses confronted Aaron with the evidece of idolatry, Aaron tried to play it coy. "I threw it (the gold) into the fire, and there came out this calf." It came out all right, because Aaron himself had "fashioned it with a graving tool, and made a molten calf."

When Moses offered to accept punishment for the people's sins, he was reminded of the personal nature of each person's responsibility for his own sins. "Whoever has sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book." (Exodus 32:33 RSV) The people did not get off scot-free. They were plagued because "they made the calf which Aaron made." The people cannot blame their leaders for the lack of integrity in which they themselves often connive.

WORSHIP NOT A SUBSTITUTE

Worship is never a substitute for moral living. (Amos 5:14-15; 21-24) It is a way of seeking God's help so we can "do justice," and "love kindness," and "walk humbly" with our God. (Micah 6:6-8)

The Apostle Paul gives an explanation. He says, "Whatever is true . . . honorable . . . just . . . pure . . . lovely . . . gracious . . think about these things" (Philippians 4:8) But he does not go on to say, "I can do all things through my thoughts which strengthen me." He knew that when men examined their thoughts and deeds, they are not as true, just and pure as they know they ought to be. They need help to make them more so. And so Paul said, "I can do all things in him who strengthens me." (Philippians 4:13 RSV)

Life is more than just the sum-total of molecules and protoplasm. Life must have a place for awe, and adoration, and prayer. A sunset can be described scientifically, but it takes deeper perception to appreciate its beauty. There is a spiritual dimension to life. This dimension is everywhere. This dimension is God. (John 4:20-24) Worship is still the best way to be reminded that "man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God." (Matthew 4:4) by the premier as special mediator.

Hospital

The 21 hospitals involved are in Montreal, Quebec City, Sherbrooke, Hull, Cartierville, Chicoutimi, Riviere du Loup, Alma, Rimouski and three smaller communities in northwestern Quebec.

The federation, which is affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, originally threatened a strike by all its 32,000 members against a total of 139 hospitals.

Then came a statement from the union Thursday threatening the strike against 21 of the institutions.

The employees include dietary, laundry, housekeeping and maintenance workers together with ward orderlies.

The federation and the hospitals have been described as in conflict over pay and also over the question of how employees should be classified and their competence measured.

WANT $8 MORE

The employees' average weekly wage has been $68.50. At one point in the negotiations it was disclosed that the union wanted increases of $8 in the workers' weekly pay as part of a one-year contract, with the hospitals offering between $4.60 and $6.60 in a two-year contract.

The hospitals have been braced for any walkout. Some of them by Thursday were half empty following discharge of all non-urgent cases.

Priority was being given to strictly emergency cases, including maternities. Admissions were reduced as much as possible.

Some outside organizations were volunteering to help the institutions, but there also were expressions of caution on the part of their spokesmen lest such help be classed as "strike-breaking."

There are some 50 hospitals in Quebec which are not involved in collective bargaining.

Those outside the bargaining were said to be ready to help any strike-bound hospitals with the care of emergency patients.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

This is an open letter to any hockey player who is single, in his early or mid-twenties and would like to see a large chunk of Europe via a Dutch hockey club.

The Den Bosch Hockey Club of Holland is looking for a Canadian player to round out its roster of five and offers an attractive proposition to a puckster who would like a change of scenery, travel, etc. and get paid for his experience.

The request comes from David Bedard, playing coach of the Den Bosch Club, through an uncle Mr. N. R. Elston of 16 Lemoine Street, Belleville. David's brother Rick also plays with the team.

It is, as Mr. Elston puts it, an opportunity for a young man with a sense of adventure to travel through an interesting part of the world, as well as to ply his trade of hockey which he might otherwise have to lay aside because of lack of opportunity.

Here is what the Dutch club requires in a player — and what it offers.

As was noted he must be single and in his early or mid-twenties.

He must be a forward preferably a rightwinger, a good playmaker and scorer with a winning attitude and good hockey experience.

The Dutch club will pay all expenses via plane to Holland and return.

The salary is $50 weekly (tax free) paid each week. This is said to be a good salary in Europe and the equivalent of $85 in Canada.

Room and board will be furnished and paid for. All medical expenses, including dental work resulting from hockey, will be paid.

The club will supply full equipment with the exception of skates.

Mr. Bedard states the club has a brand new enclosed arena which accommodates 3,500. The fans, he says, "are just great."

The player doesn't have to join the navy to see this part of the world.

The scheduled tour calls for games to be played in Austria, Yugoslavia, Germany, France, Belgium, Switzerland and possibly Sweden.

It is, as Mr. Elston states, a fine opportunity for an adventure-minded young player to see hockey Europe. And he should not worry about the language barrier. It even has an advantage for a hockey player. Until he gets used to it he won't know whether the fans are booing or cheering him. As a matter of fact European puck fans do not "boo". They whistle their criticism.

Any player desirous of applying for the position should leave his name and address with the sports department of this newspaper.

In September playing coach Bedard and his brother will spend some time in Belleville with Mr. and Mrs. Elston.

The coach will be available for interviews with applicants.

However he is anxious to know what the chances are and applicants should submit their names before August 2nd.

Forty-two harness nags go to the barrier at the Belleville Greenbine tomorrow night and it looks like some more records will go by the board.

And my favorite handicapper "Ole Sulky", who incidentally as some wiseacres have it, is NOT Jim "Snipe" Matthews, should have a field day.

"Sulky" picked nine "on the button" last week and 17 of his choices finished in the money. And on the strength of that I've got three shirts (worn), two second-hand girdles and one sarong riding on his selections.

Littler Still Leads Seniors

BRANTFORD (CP) — Jack Littler of Toronto, with a 36-hole total of 151, leads competitors today as the Royal Canadian Golf Association's senior championships begins its final round.

Littler, a 58-year-old stockbroker, carded a three-over-par 75 Thursday to go with a 76 in the opening round.

Two strokes back is Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria. He matched Littler's 75 round Thursday but took 78 strokes in the opening 18.

Alex Folk of Riverside, Sask., moved into third spot, three strokes off the pace. He shot a 73 Thursday, best round in the first two days of the 54-hole tournament, to go with an 81 Wednesday.

Tied at 156 are Hugh Borthwick of Toronto and C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont. Borthwick had a pair of 78s and Somerville rose to a 79 after a 77 in the opening round.

Ben Merwin of Sudbury carded a 79 Thursday to go with a 78 for a 157 total. Defending champion George Hevenor of Toronto soared out of contention with an 88 for 168.

Pirates Take Over * * * * * * * * * * Koufax Wins No. 16

Phillies Knock Giants Off Perch

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Last season was Sandy Koufax's best and since he's winning games at a faster rate this season he must be pitching the best baseball of his life, right?

Wrong.

He's having trouble with his control, he doesn't trust his curve and he's not throwing as hard as he used to. At least that's what he said Thursday night after he pitched the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 win over the New York Mets.

The Mets, victims of Koufax's 16th victory, were unimpressed. They managed eight hits off the Dodger lefty and though they loaded the bases in the fourth inning, Sandy bailed himself out by striking out Ed Bressoud.

Later, Bressoud homered, but there was nobody on then and the lead provided by Lou Johnson's three - run, first - inning homer stood up.

"The last two weeks I've had a little trouble with my control," Koufax moaned after the game. "Especially the curve ball. And it just seems to me I haven't thrown as hard as I have in the past." Ho hum.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia Phillies knocked San Francisco Giants loose from first place with a 5-0 victory, Pittsburgh Pirates became the new tenant of top spot by pasting Chicago Cubs 10-4, Cincinnati Reds split a pair with St. Louis Cardinals winning 9-2, then losing 7-9 and Atlanta Braves beat Houston Astros 7-6.

Koufax, making his second serious bid in as many years for a 30-win season, is two days ahead of last year's 26-win pace. Last season, he went three weeks in August without a victory.

Five-hit pitching by Larry Jackson gave the Phillies their win over the Giants. Gaylord Perry saw his seven-game win streak end as the All-Star game winner was shelled in the fourth inning on four Phillie runs.

The Pirates got into first place by two percentage points. Jose Pagan, with a bases-loaded triple, Roberto Clemente, with a three-run homer, and Donn Clendenon with a two-run shot provided the power. Bob Veale got his 11th victory.

Cincinnati won the first game played under the tutelage of interim manager Dave Bristol, who took over for the dismissed Don Heffner. Gordy Coleman drove in three runs and Jim Maloney picked up his 10th triumph. In the nightcap, Dal Maxvill drove in four runs and Lou Brock hit a two-run homer to give the Cards the edge.

Joe Torre hit a ninth-inning homer with Mike de la Hoz on first to give Atlanta the win. The Astros had gone ahead in the seventh on a three - run homer by pinch hitter Felix Mantilla.

Balazs 73, Bowerman 76 In Open

A couple of golfing pros well-known in the Quinte district turned in respectable scores in the opening round of the 44th Ontario Golf championship, at Cataraqui, yesterday.

George Balazs, Bay of Quinte Country Club pro, carded a 73 to trail leader Moe Normon by seven strokes. Norman set a blistering pace with 66.

Gary Bowerman, ex-Belleville boy who is now a pro at Richmond Hill, came in at 76. Bowerman had fired a 72 to tie for second in the qualifying round on Tuesday.

Another golfer well-known in this city was lefty Hub Macey who finished the round with 78.

Norman Grabs Lead With A 66

KINGSTON (CP)—Moe Norman, playing out of Gilford's Golf Haven, pieced together a four - under - par 66 Thursday to take a two - stroke lead in the first round of the annual Ontario open golf championship at Cataraqui Golf Club.

Norman starting as if he were intent upon tearing the course apart, bagged a two-under-par eagle on the 357-yard first hole then added a birdie two on the 210-yard second.

The two-time winner of the Ontario Open is after his third provincial title in as many weeks. He won the Manitoba Open last week and the Alberta Open the week before. His earnings on the Canadian pro circuits thus far exceed $6,100.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, defending Canadian Professional Golfers Association champion, toured the course in 68.

WESLOCK FALTERS

Nick Weslock, defending and six-time champion, had troubles with his driver. Even though he drove into the woods four times he recovered for a 73, seven shots off the pace.

Gerry Proulx of St. Eustache, Que., a three - time winner of the Quebec Open, was in third place with a one-under-par 69.

Five golfers shot even-par 70s to tie in fourth place. Bob Breen of Pine Valley and Bill Mawhinney of Willowdale played steady golf to lead the Toronto professional contingent.

Tied with them were amateurs Ron Brown, club champion at Catarqui, Doug Mossop pion at Cataraqui, Doug Mossop don, Ont.

Three pros tied at 71. Bob Rose of Richmond Hill, Johnny Hendrick of The Willows and Red Wing winger Andy Bathgate of Oakville all shot one-over-par.

Bob Bradley, 25-year-old law student at Queen's University who lead qualifiers Tuesday, shot a 73 Thursday.

Brewer Talks With Imlach

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations were reopened Thursday between Toronto Maple Leafs and Carl Brewer, National Hockey League all-star who walked out of the Leaf training camp last fall and announced he was quitting hockey.

General manager Punch Imlach and Brewer met Thursday but no announcement was made.

Brewer, who left hockey at the peak of his career as a defenceman, enrolled as a full-time student at the University of Toronto after leaving the training camp.

Mel Barriage smashed Mead Johnson 10-1 behind the three-hit pitching of Wayne Farrel in a BMBA bantam battle at Park Dale last night.

Farrel struck out 13 and did not walk a man in his winning effort.

Jib Potts and Gary Nesbitt allowed eight hits in defeat. They struck out seven and walked the same.

Wayne Farrel and Glen Carleton blasted doubles for the winners. Randy Burke, Brian Coughlin, Paul Hall, Moe Thompson, Bert Loveless and Richard Graham had base hits.

Don Bankey, Paul Muldoon and Gary Nesbitt hit for the Mead-men.

Cha-Chas Favored

LONDON (CP) — Brazil, favored to retain the World Soccer Cup for the third time, meets Hungary today in a game many are rating as a potential classic.

Brazil is out to prove it is still the team to hold the championship it last took in 1962 in Chile.

Hungary is Olympic champion and striving to prove itself equal to the great Hungarian team that beat England and narrowly missed the cup in 1954.

The sly British bookies still figure Brazil a 7-to-4 favorite, with England, Italy and West Germany the second choices at 6-to-1.

There also is some underlying tension in the Brazil-Hungary meeting. During the 1954 quarter-finals in Switzerland they had a monumental donnybrook that started on the field and ended with bottles thrown off the field.

Chile and Italy were involved in a similar incident in 1962.

In the eight games played so far this week, there has been no real incident to offend the sporting purists. No players have been banished from the field. Two players on each team have been tested for dope and none found.

Today's Schedule

(All starting times 2:30 p.m. EDT)

Uruguay vs. France
Switzerland vs. Spain
Brazil vs. Hungary
North Korea vs. Chile

The 16 teams are divided into four groups in the tournament that ends July 30. England, France, Mexico and Uruguay have a point each in Group One. West Germany and Argentina lead Group Two with two points. Spain and Switzerland have no points.

Brazil and Portugal lead Group Three with two points. Hungary and Bulgaria have no points. The Soviet Union and Italy have two points in Group Four with Chile and North Korea having none.

Brazil listed Pele as a starter despite a knee injury suffered in Tuesday's 2-0 victory over Bulgaria, which he scored the first goal.

But there was a chance they would rest him instead, saving the acknowledged master of the game for more crucial matches.

Pele—his real name, Edson Arantes Do Nasciemento, is never used—played only one full game in the last World Cup in 1962 before being sidelined with an injury.

Hungary held off naming its lineup after its disappointing 3-1 loss to Portugal Wednesday, in which it played well but suffered costly goaltending mistakes.

CHEER FOR URUGUAY

British fans were cheered when France managed only a 1-1 draw with Mexico. Most Britons will be rooting for Uruguay today, with the idea that it will put more pressure on France and Mexico, the other Group One teams.

The great Ferenc Puskas will be in the grandstand for today's Brazil-Hungary match, just as he was when the teams met in the 1954 series. Then he was captain of the Hungarian team, but injured. Now he is an exile and a Spanish citizen playing out his days with Real Madrid.

Hungary won the 1954 encounter 4-2. This was the notorious brawl. No one expects that slice of soccer history to be repeated.

Hungary needs at least a draw to hold any hope of staying alive in the competition, but it can expect no settling tactics from Brazil. Two points from this match will give the champions a guaranteed run into the competition's closing knockout games, and allow room for experiment with its team to meet Portugal next week.

Leafs Take Pair From Buffalo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs, who almost fell out the bottom of the International League during the opening weeks, continued their amazing comeback Thursday with a doubleheader sweep against Buffalo Bisons.

The Leafs moved into second place three games behind pace-setting Columbus Jets on the strength of 4-0 and 5-1 victories against Buffalo before 1,483 fans.

In other action, the Jets lost 3-1 to Richmond Braves, Jacksonville Suns nipped Toledo Mud Hens 4-3 and Syracuse Chiefs came from behind to edge Rochester Red Wings 7-5.

Toronto broke loose for four runs in the sixth inning of the opener, featured by Jim Russin's two-run homer. The victory went to Gayland Cisco, his fifth in seven decisions.

Take Four-Point Lead

Cats Clip Trudeaus 6-4

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Cutting short a Trudeau Rally in the eighth inning, the Bobcats clipped the Motormen 6-4 for an important Belleville and District Softball League win before a big crowd at Alemite Park last night.

Bobcats opened up a four-point lead with the win but have only one game left to play. They will watch after Saturday while the other clubs bid to catch them with their postponed games.

Temple's crew spotted Trudeaus a 2-0 lead before moving ahead 5-2 after four innings. The 'Cats Joe Barrons tossed strong ball, a one-hitter for six frames until Trudeaus got to him in the eighth.

Muirhead crashed a booming triple to the left field fence to ignite it with one out. Weston plated him with a ringing single and Mavety ripped out another.

Barrons was removed for Bob Lott but he walked Plane to load the bases. Wannamaker chopped a single past third for a 5-4 game with the sacks still full. Lott got Bennett and Baldwin to end it.

Bobcats came back for the insurance marked on Locke's double and T. LeSage's triple.

Trudeaus attempted to fight back in the ninth. Baker beat out a tap and Muirhead teed off again. Latchford pulled down his blast near the fence and Weston went down on strikes for the final out.

Plane squeezed home Trudeaus' initial run after a walk and error in the second. Mavety doubled home the second after a pair of passes in the third.

Walks were troublesome for both teams and Temple's Tabbies got three off loser Bob Green to help score four in the third. Barrons' pop single and two passes loaded them up and a two out error opened the door, scoring one. Green forced in another with his fifth free pass and McKibbon rapped a double to plate two. Bill Baldwin replaced Green.

Mowat singled the fifth run across in the fourth after infield taps by Meraw and Locke.

Winner Barrons fanned five and Lott two. Green whiffed two and Baldwin three.

Ricke Locke had a double and single to lead the winners' eight-hit attack. Paul Meraw beat out two infield hits, Terry LeSage tripled, John McKibbon doubled, Lem Mowat and Joe Barrons adding singles.

Larry Mavety stroked a double and single and Bob Wannamaker two singles for Trudeaus. Stu Muirhead's triple and singles by Pete Weston and John Baker completed the seven-hit total.

Trudeaus: Drake 1b, Baker 3b, Muirhead cf, Weston ss, Mavety c, Plane rf, Wannamaker 2b, Bennett 1f, Green p, Baldwin p.

Bobcats: Meraw 3b, Locke cf, T. LeSage ss, Mowat 2b, Zakos rf, Mitts 1f, McKibbon c, D. LeSage 1b, Barrons p, Lott p, Latchford 1f.

Hockey Fans Shouldn't Miss This

Hockey fans are in for a rare treat in this week's edition of The Intelligencer's Weekend Magazine.

Beautiful full - page colored pictures of the National Hockey League's first All-Star team will be featured in tomorrow's Weekend.

The pictures are replicas of the ones being hung in the Canadian National Exhibition's Hockey Hall of Fame next week. The pictures were taken by Weekend Magazine staff photographer Frank Prazak for the express purpose of the Hall of Fame hanging and their reproduction in Weekend is accompanied by a story by Sports Editor Andy O'Brien.

The team is headed by Point Anne's Bobby Hull. Other members of the All - Stars are Montreal's Jacques Laperriere, Detroit's great Gordie Howe, and Hull's teammates in Chicago, Glenn Hall, Pierre Pilote and Stan Mikita.

Weekend Magazine also includes a special limited offer for its readers to obtain full color reproductions, on heavy paper suitable for framing, at a very low cost.

This Saturday's Intelligencer Weekend Magazine is one sport fans cannot afford to miss.

Cheesemen Win Over Belvedere

Black Diamond Cheese joined the Hotelmen in the closely - packed Commercial Softball standings last night by tripping Belvedere 3-1.

Both City and and Belvedere Hotel teams, and now the Cheesemen, have 14 points to trail third-place Lightfoots by four.

Sonny Holoway pitched three-hit ball on the Black Diamond rubber. He struck out seven, walked six and received perfect support afield.

Larry McMasters gave up six hits in a losing effort for Belvedere. He fanned nine, walked four and also got good support.

The winners scored one in the first and Belvedere tied it in the second. Loners in the third and seventh decided the issue.

Ron Pointer poked a triple for the winners while other base knocks went to Ross Empey, J. Francis, G. Francis and B. Benn. Bob Cruickshank added a double to the cause.

Cliff Hineman banged out a pair of Belvedere singles and George Perry hit a double to complete the attack.

Each team stranded eight runners as the pitchers bore down in the tight spots.

SWIFT AILS

DETROIT (AP)—Acting Detroit Tiger manager Bob Swift was taken to hospital Thursday where doctors diagnosed his case as acute gastroenteritis, which they explained was a form of virus infection. Swift, expected to be out of action at least several days, took charge of the Tigers after manager Charlie Dressen suffered a second heart attack May 16.

Cementmen Pull Away From Pack

Point Anne are waving farewell to the rest of the Commercial Softball league, and every game they play, they get dimmer in the distance.

Last night, the league-leaders jumped eight points ahead of the pack with a 10-2 trouncing of City Hotel.

Ron Maracle got all the support he needed at the plate, and he took it from there. He sprinkled six hits while walking six and striking out five.

Larry Hull toiled all the way for the losers. He gave up 9 hits, walked nine, and managed a pair of strike outs.

Ron Maracle doubled and tripled to lead his own cause. Detlor slammed a triple, Eric Maker had a double, and Mike Cook, Jim Horwood, Rick Rosebush David Akey and Tom MacDonald had base hits.

Doug Hull stroked a double and single for City Hotel, Billy McGuire hit a two - baser, and Bucky Ethier, Larry Potter and Dave Feeney hit safeties.

Bucky Ethier was ejected from the game in the fourth when a close play at home was disputed.

Tigers Nip Birds; Yankees, Twins Win

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tommy John gave a boost to the Chicago White Sox, who have been having trouble getting off the ground, then left them up in the air for a week.

The 23-year-old, the big winner of manager Eddie Stanky's staff with an 8-5 record, was set today to spend a week with the Indiana Air National Guard.

Thursday night, he pitched the White Sox into a sixth-place tie with the Kansas City Athletics, firing a six-hitter in a 2-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians that snapped a five-game losing streak.

John was due to reoin the club next Friday, and Stanky said he plans to start him the next day.

The second-place Detroit Tigers upended Baltimore Orioles by nipping the league leaders 4-3.

In other AL games, the New York Yankees edged Kansas City Athletics 5-4, Minnesota Twins beat Washington Senators 3-1 and California Angels took Boston Red Sox 3-2 in 10 innings.

SET UP WINNING RUN

John also played an offensive role in the White Sox' victory. His sacrifice in the eighth inning moved Ken Berry to second, and Berry scored the winning run on Wayne Causey's double. Joe Azcue's sacrifice fly put the Indians ahead in the fourth, but the White Sox tied it in the seventh when Tommie Age doubled home Don Buford.

Don Wert's two - run single with the bases loaded in the fourth—his third straight hit—put Detroit ahead to stay, 3-1. Frank Robinson hit his 22nd homer for Baltimore, which had its lead trimmed to seven games.

Joe Pepitone's triple and 20th homer and thre unearned runs enabled the Yankees to beat Kansas City. The three unearned runs, set up by Campy Campaneris' error, came in the eighth and gave the Yankees a 5-3 lead. Relief pitcher Hal Reniff singled in the third run.

Don Mincher hit a two-run homer and Harmon Killebrew doubled home a run in Minnesota's victory over Washington. Frank Howard singled home the Senators' run.

California tied Boston with two runs in the eighth and then won it in the 10th when Rick Reichardt beat out an infield hit with two out and the bases loaded.

The Angels, shut out on one hit by Dennis Bennett and Don McMahon until the eighth, scored their first two runs on Ed Kirkpatrick's pinch double and Bob Rodgers' sacrifice fly. Doubles by Don Demeter and Mike Ryan produced the runs for the Red Sox' who had a five-game winning streak snapped.

Ottawa Nips Saskys

Argos Tank Tigers 41-27

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonaut fans today have reason to believe that coach Bob Shaw can take an untried quarterback and several Western Conference castoffs and make his Eastern Football Conference team a power.

The Argos, whipping boys for just about every Canadian Football League club the last few seasons, hammered the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats 41-27 Thursday night.

Wally Gabler, a 22-year-old Michigan quarterback who played under Shaw at New Mexico State Military Institute, directed a versatile Toronto attack. It gave Toronto a 34-0 halftime margin and room to experiment with various defensive units in the last half.

In Ottawa, the hometown Rough Riders held off Saskatchewan Roughriders for a 19-10 victory before about 14,000 fans in their initial exhibition game. A 50-yard pass play for an Ottawa touchdown stymied a late Saskatchewan charge.

Starring with Gabler against the Tiger Cats were end Pete Manning and flanker Bobby Taylor, former Calgary Stampeders, fullback Bob Swift, a one-time B.C. Lions star, and middle guard Al Ecuyer, long a tower of strength for Edmonton Eskimos.

Manning snared five passes for 110 yards and Taylor two for another 45.

Swift bulled his way for 98 yards on 13 carries and Ecuyer was one of the best Argo defenders in the game.

More than 20,000 Toronto fans saw Swift, Gabler, Dave Thelen, Al Irwin and rookies Nelson Adderley and Loomis Warren score touchdowns while rookie Ken Ivan kicked five of six converts.

For Hamilton, halfback Mel Anthony, a former Eskimo, scored twice with Dick Cohee and Art Baker getting the others. Don Sutherin, who missed two field goal tries early in the game before the Toronto attack began to click, booted three converts.

Gabler hit on 10 of 13 pass attempts for 248 yards.

In Ottawa, quarterback Russ Jackson rolled out for a seven-yard touchdown run and later combined with fullback Jim Dillard on a 50-yard scoring play. Moe Racine kicked two field goals, but missed both convert attempts.

George Reed bulled over from the one for Saskatchewan's touchdown and guard Jack Abendschan converted it and added a 26-yard field goal.

Saskatchewan, which won its first exhibition tilt against Montreal 23-17 Tuesday, lost the services of defensive half Dale West early in the second quarter. He suffered a shoulder dislocation.

Jackson completed six of 14 passes for 111 yards, while Bill Cline, who booted a 55-yard single, hit on four of six for another 107. Saskatchewan gained 144 yards through the air as Lancaster completed eight of 21 passes — all to flanker Hugh Campbell — for 102 yards and second-string quarterback Tom Kennedy was good for one of five.

Somebody Blew The Whistle!

SHEFFIELD, England, (AP) (AP) — Two disgruntled Swiss soccer stars agreed Thursday to stay on for the rest of the World Cup—after being promised that their wives would join them.

The players, Jakob Kuhn and Werner Leimgruber, were angry over a Swiss newspaper story that said they had been out late with two English girls.

They denied it and demanded to be sent home to explain the facts to their wives.

Last Tuesday, Kuhn and Leimgruber were dropped from the Swiss team that played West Germany. Swiss officials said they were being punished for reporting late to their hotel the night before.

LOST GAME

The Swiss lost the game with West Germany 5-0.

Next the two players got angry messages from their wives accusing them of going out with English girls.

"We are satisfied it was quite untrue," said Edgar Obertuefer, assistant general secretary of the Swiss Football Association.

"It seems they left the hotel Monday evening and hitch-hiked a ride into the centre of Sheffield. A woman driver took them into town and it happened that she had a woman passenger.

"The two players told us they got out of the car, thanked the women and never saw them again."

Kuhn and Leimgruber have been forgiven and are scheduled to play when Switzerland meets Spain today.

Will Issue New Permit For Hunting

QUEBEC (CP) — Arthur Laing, federal minister of northern affairs and natural resources, says his department will issue at the end of the summer a Canadian permit for hunting migratory birds regarded as game birds.

Speaking before the 30th federal - provincial meeting on wildlife, he said this would give for the first time an opportunity to make a record of waterfowl killed all over Canada.

This permit would be recognized in every province and territory of Canada. It would not, however, replace provincial permits but would be issued in addition to existing necessary permits.

Hunters would be able to get the permit for two dollars at any post office. Indians and Eskimos would get it free.

A questionnaire would be sent to all hunters asking them to indicate the number of birds killed and the species.

In this way the exact number of persons hunting this type of bird would be known, as well as the places, times, numbers of times they hunted and number of birds they killed.

This information was indispensable for assuring the efficient conservation of migratory birds.

FINISHES FIRST

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters)—The British training ship Sir Winston Churchill crossed the finishing line first in her class in the "tall ships" race from Falmouth, England, to Skagen, Denmark, officials said Thursday night. The Sir Winston was one hour, 20 minutes ahead of the nearest in her class, the Swedish Falken.

15-Year-Old Explodes For Two Titles

By JIM CREBAR

HAMILTON (CP) — Elaine Tanner, 115 pounds of competitive dynamite, exploded for two Canadian native and open swimming records Thursday night even though she was feeling tired.

The 15-year-old student from Vancouver, rated the top female Canadian candidate for the British Empire Games team going to Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 4-13, broke the records within an hour of each other at the Canadian amateur championships and Empire Games trials.

"Brother, I can hardly stand up," she said after bettering her own mark of 2:35.0 in 220-yard backstroke with a time of 2:34.1.

Less than an hour before, she clipped three-tenths of a second from the 40-yard freestyle record with a time of 4:46.4.

In the freestyle, she defeated Jane Hughes, a team-mate at the Vancouver Golf and Swimming Club who set the former Canadian mark of 4:46.7 in Vancouver 13 days ago.

Miss Hughes was second in 4:49.6.

SET RECORD

Wednesday, Miss Tanner set a Canadian open and native mark in the 440 individual medley with a time of 5:27.2 and two weeks ago in Vancouver set three national marks and a world record of 2:38.3 in the 22.-yard individual medley.

She has been in nine races in two days of the Canadian championships at McMaster University and has won every one.

She followed up her record-breaking efforts in the two finals at night by anchoring the Dolphin Swim Club to a victory in the women's 880-yard relay.

She shared the spotlight Thursday with Ralph Hutton, an 18 - year - old native of Ocean Falls, B.C., who attends high school in Los Altos, Calif.

Hutton, who Wednesday set a Canadian native and open record in the 110-yard backstroke in 1:03.0, Thursday shattered the Canadian native mark in the men's 440-yard freestyle with a time of 4:19.0.

WINS BACKSTROKE

He also won the 220 - yard backstroke in 2:16.2, just two-tenths of a second off his own Canadian native and open mark.

The previous native record in the 440 freestyle, 4:22.5, belongs to another Ocean Falls native, attending school in southern California, Sandy Gilchrist, who finished second in Thursday night's race.

The finals of the men's and women's 110-yard breaststroke went to a pair of Montreal swimmers, Donna Ross in 1:23.1 and Marvin Chase in 1:18.6.

Miss Ross, 19, is a second-year student at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, while Chase, 17, attends Michigan State University at Lansing. He finished four-tenths of a second ahead of Gilchrist.

On the 880-yard relay team with Miss Tanner were Miss Hughes, Pat Gibson and Elaine Clark. Their time was 9:42.0.

The men's 880-yard relay was won in 8:47.2 by the Vancouver YMCA Torpedos, consisting of Ron Jacks, Bruce Sutherland, Jim Knox and Bill Sutherland.

The championships end Saturday with the selection of up to 25 swimmers and divers for the Empire Games.

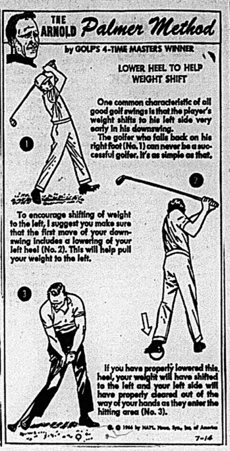
KNOW THAT SNAKE

The simplest way of recognizing the Massasauga rattlesnake is by its uniquely blunt tail, ending in a rattle.



by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

LOWER HEEL TO HELP WEIGHT SHIFT

One common characteristic of all good golf swings is that the player's weight shifts to his left side very early in his downswing.

The golfer who falls back on his right foot (No. 1) can never be a successful golfer. It's as simple as that.

To encourage shifting of weight to the left, I suggest you make sure that the first move of your downswing includes a lowering of your left heel (No. 2). This will help pull your weight to the left.

If you have properly lowered this heel, your weight will have shifted to the left and your left side will have properly cleared out of the way of your hands as they enter the hitting area (No. 3).

No Soft Touch Emceeing Miss Universe Contest

By JACK LINKLETTER
(For Cynthia Lowry)

This young son of Art Linkletter has made a speciality of a job most men would enjoy holding. But being host to a beauty contest isn't all girl-watching, and here Jack tells a few of the possible pitfalls.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—I will emcee the Miss Universe pageant Saturday for the third time.

To the average red - blooded male, this may sound like the softest touch in television. But the truth (and I hope my wife is reading) is that there are as many headaches as rewards to the job.

First, it is my responsibility, with the help of some able clock-watchers, to see to it that the telecast lasts just 45 seconds short of 90 minutes. This means getting 70 girls to be on time.

Any man who has waited for his wife on a rainy street corner knows this is impossible. There are a few things you can't expect a woman to keep, and time is one of them.

If the show lags, it's not so bad. I simply persuade the girls to romp through their final paces at the speed of a marine drill team. If we are under time, however, I try to "pad" the show by interviewing the new Miss Universe.

CAN BE TOUGH

Even two or three minutes can be an eternity when you are interrogating a weeping, hysterical beauty queen in a language she doesn't understand and she's answering in a language you don't understad.

Some of the European girls have at least a passing knowledge of English. But others, I've learned, come prepared with only a few English phrases, such as "hello," and "thank you very much." These don't make much of an interview.

My most pressing problem, however, is a personal one. Like any other man I find myself choosing favorites. It may be a girl who smiles the way my wife does, or who brushes back her hair in a particularly appealing fashion.

This is fine for the viewer at home. But I'm supposed to be impartial.

All-Time Great Greer Garson Plays Mother Prioress in "The Singing Nun"

Greer Garson, one of Hollywood's all-time great stars, temporarily interrupted the busy and mobile private life that keeps her constantly on the go between New Mexico, Texas and California, to make one of her rare screen appearances of recent years.

The film which caught the red-headed star's fancy is "The Singing Nun" in which she co-stars with Debbie Reynolds and a distinguished cast including Ricardo Montalban, Agnes Moorehead, Katherine Ross and Ed Sullivan. It marks her first movie role since her portrayal of Eleanor Roosevelt in "Sunrise at Campobello" in 1960.

That performance, incidentally, won her a seventh Academy Award nomination as Best Actress.

What lured Miss Garson back to M.G.M., where she achieved fame in such memorable pictures as "Goodbye Mr. Chips," "Mrs. Miniver" and "Random Harvest," to mention a few, is a personal conviction about the content of stories for the screen.

"I have always advocated good, clean film entertainment," she said. "The only films which interest me are those which parents can enjoy without being embarrassed at having their children along."

Debbie Reynolds and Greer Garson in "The Singing Nun," is now playing an extensive engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville. On the same program a new and funny Tom & Jerry Color cartoon, and a novelette.

Life of Jimmy Durante May Be Broadway Play

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

Jimmy Durante's life may be the next show business biography to appear on the Broadway stage. During a recent visit here, former MGM chief, Dore Schary, discussed with Durante and his agents his proposal for a musical play based on the comedian's earlier years. Schary should know his subject; back in the 1930s he wrote gags for Durante's radio show.

If the stage biography succeeds, it will undoubtedly lead to a file version. The Durante story was almost filmed a few years ago with Dean Martin as the comedian, Frank Sinatra as his partner - agent, the late Lou Clayton, and Bing Crosby as Eddie Jackson. But financial arrangements couldn't be worked out, and the deal expired.

"I still think Dean Martin would make a good Durante," says Jimmy himself, "though he'd have to put some putty on his nose, of course . . . ."

Now two James Bond movies are shooting at once.

Casino Royale, first of the Ian Fleming books, which Charles Feldman bought before the current craze, is still filming in England after months of production. Unable to secure the services of Sean Connery, Feldman is having a series of stars impersonate Bond.

You Only Live Twice has also started filming in England, with Connery in his customary role. The company will shift to Japan later this summer.

Just back from visiting troops in Viet Nam, John Wayne is eager to film The Green Berets. He'll get to it after he makes a western for Universal. Will he film the war movie in Viet Nam?

"I don't know about that," he said dubiously. "You might get into trouble if you started firing a lot of blanks over there. Anyway, the defence department is eager to have us make the picture, and we'll make it wherever it's practical . . . ."

Angler Hooks 46-Pound Grey Trout

QUEBEC (CP) — A grey trout weighing 46 pounds nine ounces has been caught after a 90-minute struggle by a United States fisherman on Lake Mistassini, 125 miles north of Quebec City.

The fisherman is Irving W. Pilsbury of East Pepperell, Mass., who was using a "daredevil" lure when he hooked into the big trout.

The catch, disclosed Thursday after the sportsman had returned from Mistassini, was taken last week with a rod and line.

The fish was of a record size for the lake and was one pound seven ounces less than the weight of what sportsmen here said is the heaviest grey trout taken in Quebec on a rod and line.

That fish was caught in September, 1933, on Lake Pythonga in northwestern Quebec.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Red Buttons (centre) is amused at George Hamilton's persistence in trying to sell a skeptical Susan Oliver a bottle of "cure all" in this scene from "Your Cheatin' Heart." The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, in Panavision, tells the dramatic and moving story of the late country-western singer Hank Williams, one of the most popular natural entertainers of his time. The picture features ten of Williams greatest song hits, sung on the sound track by Hank Williams, Jr., himself a popular concert and recording star. "Your Cheatin' Heart" continues Tonight and Saturday at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd feature attraction in color "The Rounders" stars Glenn Ford, Henry Fonda, Hope Holiday and Chill Wills.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — "What Are You Doing Here?" asks Tony Curtis of Debbie Reynolds in this scene from the 20th Century-Fox comedy in CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color, "Goodbye Charlie" showing Sunday Evening only at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Pat Boone has just fished Debbie out of the Pacific Ocean and brought her to the nearest home, which happens to belong to Tony Curtis. The cast of "Goodbye Charlie" also includes Walter Matthau, Laura Devon and Joanna Barnes. Vincente Minnelli directed from a script by Harry Kurnitz. 2nd feature attraction on the all color show, "Bachelor Flat" feature Tuesday Weld, Richard Beymer, Terry Thomas and Celeste Holm.

World Soccer Patter

LONDON (CP) — Italy and West Germany have joined England as second favorites for soccers World Cup.

Bookie William Hill announced these odds: Brazil 7 to 4; England, West Germany, Italy 6 to 1; Argentina 7 to 1; Russia 14 to 1; Portugal 16 to 1; France and Mexico, 200 to 1.

LYMM, England (CP)—Brazilian soccer players are helping the boys and girls of Lymm to raise money to build a youth club in the English village where the world champions have set up their training camp.

The Brazilians have autographed a special football which will be the first prize in a raffle to raise money for the fund.

DURHAM, England (CP)—Italian coach Edmondo Fabbri Thursday stressed that unless his team changes its style of play in the World Cup tournament it might as well pack and return home. Italy defeated Chile 2-0 Wednesday. Fabbri claimed his players slowed to a crawl after the first Italian goal. "They simply sat on the goal as if that was enough to carry the match."

HAMBURG (CP)—Die Welt, the West German daily, says that Brazil might reach the finals of the World Cup but its star Pele probably would not.

Referring to the rough going Pele had in Brazil's 2-0 win over Bulgaria, the newspaper says:

"A man (Gulgaria's Zetchev) was sent out to handcuff the superman (Pele) of this tournament, to hit him where he is always vulnerable, in his lustre, in the legend that surrounds him, in his physical strength. . . . The order of the day to all Zetchevs of this tournament is: 'Stop Pele now.'

"He was not stopped. But he was knocked down eight times in those 90 minutes. He was kicked, hit and bruised. Three times he needed doctor's help. Three times he hit back, angry and mortified.

" . . . His eleven may reach the final, (but) not Pele. . . ."

World Soccer

Fever Hits Half-Billion

LONDON (AP)—Half a billion soccer fans throughout the world are suffering from acute FIFA fever.

Its cause is the World Cup tournament in which the world's top teams are vying for soccer's most coveted international prizes.

FIFA comes from Federation International de Football Association, the French name of the organization sponsoring the games under way in British cities until the end of this month. They are being televised and reported in newspapers throughout the world.

West German factories are having trouble keeping night shifts away from television sets.

A big hotel in Frankfurt set up a World Cup cocktail room with a battery of TV sets. The bartenders serve a special World Cup cocktail. If Germany loses, they add a drop of vermouth—the German equivalent of bitter wormwood.

Prince Abdullah Al Faisal, a son of Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, brought 25 players from the Al Ahli soccer club in Jiddah to London so they could study the game at the competitions. His case of FIFA fever is costing the prince about $28,000.

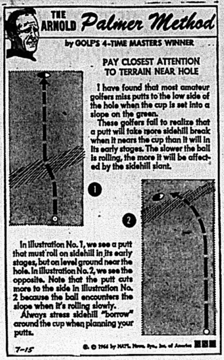
The government TV stations in the Soviet Union are devoting more time to the World Cup games than to any other event in recent memory.

In Madrid and other Spanish cities, evening strolling has dropped off sharply as Spaniards rush home to watch the games or listen to them on their radios. Most Spanish factories are closing well before the kick-offs.

In Italy, a magazine polled married couples in 11 cities asking their television plans during the World Cup games. Fifty-five per cent of the husbands said they would watch the games at home even if their wives objected; 14 per cent of the wives said they planned to watch, too.

Fifteen per cent of the wives said they would watch other programs. Some husbands said they bought extra sets to keep peace.

Officials estimate that at least one-fifth of Poland's 31,000,000 persons are watching the games, although the Poles aren't playing.



by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

PAY CLOSEST ATTENTION TO TERRAIN NEAR HOLE

I have found that most amateur golfers miss putts to the low side of the hole when the cup is set into a slope on the green.

These golfers fail to realize that a putt will take more sidehill break when it nears the cup than it will in its early stages. The slower the ball is rolling, the more it will be affected by the sidehill slant.

In illustration No. 1, we see a putt that must roll on sidehill in its early stages, but on level ground near the hole. In illustration No. 2, we see the opposite. Note that the putt cuts more to the side in illustration No. 2 because the ball encounters the slope when it's rolling slowly.

Always stress sidehill "borrow" around the cup when planning your putts.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Wes Coke of Petrolia, winner of the national driving title in 1964, scored two victories at Garden City Raceway Thursday night to boost his season's total to 3.

Coke, 22, scored with Top Notch Pick in the fourth and returned to the winner's circle in the seventh with Arawana Grattan.

Mike Colliton reined Jan's Magic to a $24.70 upset in the first and Willow Brook Sadie paid $37.10 in the second to set up a $565.30 daily double.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — For trotting fans who bet on a hunch Thursday night at Western Fair Raceway was the night for fours.

The daily double paid $47.50 on Spring Creek Edna and Dandy's First, a four and four combination.

Track Team At Games

Predict Top Performance

TORONTO (CP) — The best gold - medal performance by Canadian track and field athletes since the Second World War has been predicted for the 1966 British Empire Games in Jamaica next month.

Paul Poce of Toronto, coach of the Canadian track team in the Aug. 4-13 games, predicted a possible three golds in the men's events, with a fourth coming from Nancy McCredie of Brampton in the women's shot-put.

Poce, who flew to Edmonton Thursday night with 41 athletes from the Central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, predicted a total of 10 metals-gold, silver and bronze—for the team in Jamaica.

The Canadian team will be chosen Saturday at the close of the two-day games trials in Edmonton.

Outstanding candidates for gold medals, Poce listed as: Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., in the 880; Harry Jerome, Vancouver, springs; George Puce, discus, and Dave Steen, Burnaby, B.C., shotput.

"Canada has moved up in the Commonwealth rankings since the war, especially since 1962," Poce said in an interview.

"We have better coaching, better facilities and more and more people are becoming more knowledgable."

In the last games—in 1962 in Perth — Canadian men won one gold medal and two bronze in track and field events. The women were shut out.

Since the Second World War, Canadian men have won four golds in track, the women none. Men won nine of 11 second-place silver medals and 13 of the third - place bronze medals.

In 1950, Canada's track team won 10 medals, increased the total to 15 in 1954, then fell off to seven in 1958 and three in 1962.

Canada Outdoors

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

First in a trickle, then in a flood, they came across the sea to a world that was theirs for the taking. They conquered the land and the life that was on it. They were heedless as they burned and slashed and killed.

Nothing can compare with man's rape of the North American continent.

The depredations of the settlers from Europe, who sometimes burned whole forests to clear a few acres of farm land, and the greed of their descendants in a relentless drive to the Pacific, are touched on bitterly in two books on wildlife and conservation. Scathing, too, are comments on modern - day "sportsmen" who kill without heed for the future.

In Under Wilderness Skies (McClelland and Stewart), W. Philip Keller opens a treasury of information about wildlife in North America, based on 20 years of study and photographic expeditions into the wilderness. Bruce S. Wright's intimate knowledge of game is evident in Black Duck Spring (Clarke, Irwin), a captivating tale of a black duck.

WASTING WATER NOW

Man's waste of natural resources—of forests, of land, of water, of wild game—are preliminary in Keller's book to a series of lively pen sketches of various types of game in their natural habitat. Bitterly, he writes:

"We have wasted one of the finest arrays of wildlife ever known on the planet; we have wasted the soil from millions and millions of acres; we have wasted one of the greatest grasslands produced by nature; we have wasted entire forests; we have wasted the native tribes; now we are wasting the water.

"Not only are we wasting the water, we are also experts at contaminating that which we do not use in such a manner that it is no longer fit for man, fish or animal life."

That's the sledgehammer approach in getting across Keller's message: that if Canadians do not quickly take a more serious interest in conservation of their natural resources they soon will have nothing left on which to build.

HOOKS NAB DUCKS

Wright is more subtle. Deftly woven into the fabric of his story of a black duck that roams up and down the eastern seaboard are descriptions of Quebecers catching ducks in steel traps, of New Brunswickers slaughtering unprotected cormorants for practice before the hunting season, of the eradication of the great auks from Newfoundland, of the brutal death in 1894 of the last of the sea minks on the northeast coast, of "sportsmen" catching ducks with grain-baited fish hooks in New Jersey.

Keller became familiar with wildlife in his youthful days in East Africa. He trained as an agronomist in Canada and has done much agricultural research and land management in British Columbia. He has visited more than 20 countries on writing and photographic assignments and now lives in Three Hills, Alta. Under Wilderness Skies is his fifth book.

Born in Quebec City, Wright served for a time in the Canadian forest service before doing graduate study in wildlife management. For two years he worked on a survey for Ducks Unlimited. He now is director of the northeastern wildlife station of the Wildlife Management Institute of Washington, D.C. He has written four books and numerous short stories and articles.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

By BOB BLAIND

During the past few days hot weather has curtailed most of the fishing in our area although many river fishermen are having a ball fishing for channel cats, pickerel and bass, in the Moira.

To do this type of fishing and enjoy it one should wear an old pair of running shoes or something you can wade in the water, without fear of slipping on rocks, an old pair of trousers or a bathing suit. Wade the river just about any place from Belleville to Foxboro and from Plainfield to the Lost Channel.

Fish the riffles and deep holes with artificial or live bait and look out. You can never be sure what you will catch. In the evening a surface lure such as jitterbug, hulu popper, or crazy crawler works wonders on bass and pike in some of these potholes.

A very nice musky was taken in the Moira River near O'Brien's Bridge.

Albert Towns of 147 Bay St. in Trenton hooked a 20 lb lunge measuring 45½" while trolling with a musky size jointed pikie minnow and after a short but spunky battle landed this fish. Mr. Towns was fishing alone at the time and did not have another strike.

Now is a good time to be on the lookout for a good beaver pond for fall duck hunting. The walking is pretty good and the water is down so you can see just about what the ponds will be like in the fall.

At this time of year many families of ducks can be seen growing up in these secluded places and this also gives you a good idea of the duck population in your particular area.

Don't forget to ask permission from the land owner before you trespass.

'Shoot to Kill' Orders to National Guard Quieten Chicago Racial Rioters

CHICAGO (AP) — Flying squads of armed national guardsmen and police today patrolled the scarred streets of an area ripped since Tuesday by racial violence.

Youthful gangs who had looted, burned and fired sniper-style from rooftops faded away Friday night as guardsmen—told to shoot to kill if fired upon—went on patrol.

Through the streets of a 140-square-block area rolled trucks loaded with soldiers, rifles at the ready, bayonets fixed; jeeps with machine-guns mounted; police cars with shotguns poked out windows.

Knots of Negroes lined curbs in some areas, jeering occasionally, but there were only scattered incidents: one report of sniper shooting, with police returning fire but finding no one; a fire bomb thrown into a street outside a home; a few store windows broken; several fires in houses and stores.

By midnight, police reported, streets were virtually deserted.

The calm contrasted dramatically with Thursday night, when an estimated 5,000 were abroad and two Negroes were killed by gunshot and 30 were injured amid widespread shooting, looting and burning that continued into the day Friday.

Governor Otto Kerner called up the guard, 3,000 strong, Friday at the request of Mayor Richard J. Daley. The mayor said he felt police alone could not cope with the rioting.

Maj.-Gen. Francis P. Kane held 1,500 troops in reserve and sent 1,500 into the action, operating from a base in a parking lot. They teamed with 1,000 police.

"If anybody shoots at my men," Gen. Kane said, "my orders are to shoot back—shoot to kill."

Reporters interviewing Negroes on the streets reported an attitude of fear among many—especially of the guardsmen. There was much comment about weapons.

And there were some who said the guard will leave, sooner or later, and trouble will come anew.

"We can't cope with the stuff they got on those guard trucks," a youth told a reporter. "But we can cope with the police. As soon as those (soldiers) go back, these cops are gonna make a mistake (by being lax)."

The trouble began Tuesday night when police turned off a fire hydrant spraying children with water during a hot spell. A crowd gathered. Rocks flew. Violence began. There was more Wednesday night. Then the climax Thursday night and Friday during the day, with police reporting at one point they were unable to control the mobs.

Mayor Daley said Friday that he blames the outbreak "in large measure" on aides of

'For a Change'

Civil Rule of Forces Promised by Hellyer

EDMONTON (CP) — Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said Friday he has no intention of letting anyone, "even if he's an admiral," tell the government how to run the armed forces.

After making that statement at a press conference, the minister backed it up in a conversation later with local Liberal party officials when he said he would resign if his cabinet colleagues didn't give him full support in his battle with some top brass over integration of the armed forces.

If the federal government weakens in its support for integration—something Mr. Hellyer said he doesn't expect will happen—"they'll have to find a new minister."

Mr. Hellyer told an airport press conference on his arrival to speak to the Royal Canadian Air Force Association that the central issue in his public disagreement with four rear admirals over armed forces integration is civil control of the military.

And it's not only admirals who are giving him trouble, he added. Some top officers in the air force and army also were bucking integration.

Mr. Hellyer said in his conversation with local Liberal officials that he expects there will be further resignations from the armed forces over the issue.

According to law, he said, the armed forces are subject to civil control and "this is the way it will work, for a change."

EXPECTED OPPOSITION

"I don't pretend that support for my integration policy has been unanimous. I never expected that it would be. The problems are from the very senior people only. The ones in the medium ranks are most enthusiastic and anxious for me to get on with it."

Mr. Hellyer said no leadership problems will be caused by resignations. There was a "wealth of talent" in the lower and medium ranks.

"I have met with the commanders several times and have told them if they cannot support my policy to let me know and they can retire gracefully."

Mr. Hellyer said Rear-Admiral William Landymore, chief of sea operations, has been VICTORIA (CP) — Retired rear-admiral E. W. H. Finch-Noyes said Friday he would have taken the same stand as Rear-Admiral W. H. Landymore to maintain the navy's identity in Canadian forces integration.

Admiral Landymore said he was fired when he refused to resign from the service in a dispute over defence department integration policy.

"I agree with Admiral Landymore entirely, so if I had been in command I would have been fired too," said Admiral Finch-Noyes, a former flag officer, Pacific coast.

Retired Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, another former Pacific fleet commander, said "Admiral Landymore explained it very well. The loss is Canada's."

Allard, Air Marshal Publicly Back Hellyer

MONTREAL (CP)—Lt. Gen. Jean V. Allard, who assumes duties today as chief of the defence staff, said Friday admirals who are dissatisfied with integration of Canada's armed forces "put navy before country."

"I knew it was coming," he said. "The admirals have never been able to accept integration. They were only in favor of it as long as it didn't touch them."

EDMONTON (CP)—Air Marshal E. M. Reyno, chief of personnel for the Canadian armed forces, has supported Defence Minister Hellyer's integration policy in a speech to the Royal Canadian Air Force Association.

Speaking at a city-sponsored luncheon Friday for delegates to the association's annual convention, the air marshal said integration and unification of the forces are essential to their future.

"They are a practical approach to cut down extraneous expenses when the forces must pay servicemen more to offset higher wages offered by business and industry," he said.

Air Marshal Reyno asked veterans' organizations to discuss the integration question and look fairly at both sides before arriving at a conclusion.

Inco Workers Ignore Orders By Union to Return to Jobs

SUDBURY (CP) — Management and union were deadlocked today after 16,000 hourly-rated employees halted work in a wildcat strike at the International Nickel Co. of Canada's extensive operations in the Sudbury district.

The strike started Thursday morning when more than 200 men, members of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), walked out at Levack mine, 35 miles northwest of here.

The strike spread to the company's iron ore recovery plant in nearby Waters Township in the afternoon and by evening almost 90 per cent of Inco's operations were idle. The shutdown was complete by 8 a.m. Friday.

The number of employees who turned up at the mine and plant gates at midnight Thursday night to bear the night-shift from the premises with pickets and barricades swelled to thousands as the big day shift reported Friday morning.

Top company executives were unable to enter company offices in Copper Cliff as milling strikers stopped cars and told executive, secretarial and clerical staffs they could not enter.

The giant walkout was promoted by employees of the Levack mine, who moved to company mines and plants to seek sympathy from fellow workers.

Executives of Local 6500 of the Steelworkers Union toured the gates of various plants Friday to tell the men to return to work. None obeyed. Union chiefs later met company officials, whose only statement was that operations were 100 per cent shut down.

The walkout at Levack was sparked by a shift boss who ordered several miners to surface after they opened their lunch boxes underground to eat sandwiches before beginning work. The union claimed it has been a practice for more than 20 years for a man to have a sandwich while awaiting an assignment.

African Mandate Studied

LONDON (CP) — The World Court is scheduled to hand down Monday perhaps its most important judgment, involving South Africa's racial policies and touching to some extent on racial policies around the world.

Specifically the court—more formally known as the International Court of Justice, sitting at The Hague in Holland—will deliver its judgment on South West Africa, a one-time German colony.

The court is expected to say, among other things, whether South Africa has violated its obligations to the territory by applying to it the policy of apartheid, or racial separation, denounced as abhorrent by most other countries.

It has been frequently speculated that the pending decision of the World Court has been a factor in determining South Africa's policy toward Rhodesia in its current defiance of world opinion.

India's Premier Hits China

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union will refuse to make any effort to arrange Vietnamese peace talks unless Hanoi asks it to, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India said today.

And North Viet Nam has not yet commented on her efforts to open the way to peace talks, Mrs. Gandhi said. She had appealed to the Soviet Union to call a Geneva conference on Viet Nam.

Friday, Mrs. Gandhi chastised China for, as she put it, seeking to promote tension to justify belief in the inevitability of war and the use of aggressive force.

It was the second time in two days that the good-looking woman prime minister had hit out at China for its belligerent

Wilson Knows Moscow Visit To Be Failure

From Reuters-AP

MOSCOW CP — Prime Minister Wilson of Britain is to arrive here today for a three-day visit, forewarned that any new Viet Nam peace bid is doomed to almost certain failure.

His Soviet hosts are thought to regard his visit as partly designed to mollify the left-wing faction of his Labor government which has been demanding that Wilson break completely with the U.S. policy on Viet Nam.

The British government generally supports the American policy but dissociated itself from the bombing raids on the outskirts of Hanoi and Haiphong.

The Soviet Union has made it clear it will refuse to respond to any moves by Wilson to arrange Viet Nam peace talks as long as his government suports the American stand.

Says Executions Would Provoke Great Reprisals

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George D. Aiken said today that if Hanoi carries out its threat to execute U.S. airmen "the American people will demand the complete destruction of North Viet Nam."

Aiken, who has criticized acceleration of the war, thus put into blunter words the carefully phrased warning Friday of 18 self-styled Democratic "doves" that such action by Hanoi "would provoke the greatest reprisals and further blacken the hope for peace."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who endorsed the statement by the 18, agreed generally with Aiken's appraisal of prospective public demands for retaliation.

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, in a speech Friday at Fort Worth, Tex., also warned that the staging of trials would "set loose emotions very hard to control in this country."

"I can't think of anything that would be more dangerous than such a step," Humphrey told a press conference.

BLAMES MOSCOW

In an interview, Aiken, a Vermont Republican, blamed Moscow for encouraging the North Vietnamese to step up their resistance.

"No person in the world wants to establish peace more than President Johnson," Aiken said. "The Soviets could help bring this matter to the conference table. But I fear they want to bog us down to the fullest extent in Viet Nam and put themselves in a position to attack us. The situation never looked worse in our efforts to head off a nuclear war."

Mansfield told the Senate he has not lost hope that the conflict will be settled at the conference table through negotiations. But he agreed with the 18, headed by Senator Frank

Sketch of Killer Brings Many Tips

CHICAGO (AP)—An artist's sketch of the demented killer who slaughtered eight student nurses has brought a flood of new leads—and a burst of new confidence—to detectives determined to hunt the man down.

"We've been inundated with phone calls, tips and leads since we added the sketch to our description," said Michael Spiotto, deputy chief of detectives.

A police artist sketched the killer's face after closely questioning the only survior of the massacre, who was roused from heavy sedation Friday after the long night of horror.

Detective Spiotto said the two-hour interiew was more fruitful.

"Number one, we're confident we're going to get this guy," he said. "Number two, we know the girl can identify him."

The girl, 23-year-old Corazon Amurao, filled in details missing from her first, hysterical account blurted out to police when she finally fled the blood-splattered house of death at dawn Thursday.

At least one mystery remained, however, and police shed no new light on it after the interview with Miss Amurao:

Canada Packers Workers Vote to Strike Wednesday

TORONTO (CP)—Some 3,300 Canada Packers Ltd workers are set for a Wednesday strike, but union and meat industry officials predict the walkout will not seriously affect consumers or stock producers.

The United Packinghouse Workers (CLC) announced the strike deadline Friday after it had rejected a company offer of 40 cents an hour in wage increases over two years, plus improvements in fringe benefits valued at another two to three cents an hour.

The strike would affect Canada Packers plants in Toronto, Montreal, Hull, Que., Charlottetown, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, and Vancouver.

The company is the largest packer of cooked and processed meats in Canada.

Fred Dowling, union national director, said the union hopes housewives won't be affected by the strike. "We're hoping other packers will step up production and keep supplies available."

At the Ontario Public Stockyards a spokesman said prices of small stock may drop slightly because buying will decline during a strike. But the decrease in prices is not expected to be serious because other packers are expected to step up buying.

Mr. Dowling said the chief issues in the dispute are social security, job security and wages.

"We're asking for a 33-percent increase," he said.

MONTREAL (CP) — Strike-bound hospitals in Quebec now number 39 following the early-morning walkout of non-medical employees in 18 more institutions today.

The spread of work stoppage came at 7 a.m. EDT as night workers came off their shift. Picket lines were set up around most Montreal hospitals which had been warned more than a week in advance of the walkout.

Meantime in Quebec City, Premier Daniel Johnson and members of his cabinet kept a close eye on developments.

Mr. Johnson said Friday night "there was progress and the climate seems to have improved" as a result of the Montreal talks. The walkouts began Friday.

The provincial health department reported the strike had caused no serious dislocations, with emergency cases for under strike arrangements long planned by the hospitals.

The Montreal talks featured virtually round-the-clock activity by Yves Pratte, the government-appointed mediator, who was reported shuttling between representatives of the two sides gathered separately at a downtown hotel.

Lion Can Be Trained But It Is Never Tame

The prospect of seeing a man risk his life is not a pleasant one, but it nevertheless seems to be virtually irresistible to a big percentage of the population. And so, this summer nearly a million people will crowd under the big top of the Sells and Gray Circus to see Johnny Golden, a curly-haired five - foot - six bundle of nervous energy, rush into the steel arena to surround himself with snarling, jungle - bred lions.

The Circus will appear in Belleville on Tuesday July 19 and present performances at 2 and 8 p.m. The tented city will be erected across from Belleville Drive-In. Its appearance is sponsored by Firefighters Local 497

For years, Golden has carried on a daily flirtation with death. He concentrates so intensely when he is in the steel arena that he has actually been clawed without knowing it. Most of his performances are presented with such timing and showmanship that they seem to be relatively simple and safe. But working jungle killers is seldom simple and never safe.

There are many popular misconceptions about the training of wild animals. One of these misconceptions is reflected in the common use of the terms "lion tamer" and "lion taming." As Johnny Golden will hasten to affirm, a lion can be trained but never actually tamed. Even very young lion cubs, taken from the litter and raised on the bottle with the same human attention, care and companionship extended a domestic pet, will invariably become surly and treacherous after emerging from the kitten stage to early maturity.

Johnny Golden trains and presents only lions which have been jungle - bred and jungle - born, for he has learned from experience that they make better performers than those born in captivity, being more alert, more active, more intelligent, although by the same token more savage.

Another misconception regarding wild animal training is the idea that it is necessary to use cruelty for its accomplishment. Nothing could be further from the truth. Effective training is based on patience and firmness, Golden points out that his cats weigh five hundred pounds each and they can break a horse's back with a single blow.

"The last thing I want to do is anger them. For anyone dealing with wild animals, a display of temper and the use of cruelty pave a sure road to an early grave."

The whip which Golden carries is cracked to impress commands. The chair is used to confuse and halt a charging lion. The gun with its blank cartridges is simply a noise - making device with the same purpose.

Despite these protective weapons and despite Golden's unquestioned skill and experience, danger is never for an instant absent from the steel arena. A sudden tangle of slashing claws and snarling jaws have sent Golden to the hospital more than once.

"Lions are like lots of human beings," says Golden. "They bluff a lot. You have to out-bluff them. If one of them really decides to go for you, you haven't much chance. Luckily, they don't know that. I pray they never figure it out for themselves."

Golden was hospitalized in Truro, N.B. last Thursday when he was attacked by a female lion. He will however, be back in action for the Belleville and Trenton engagements.

By-product of Pill Output, Foals Said Sold as Venison asked for his resignation.n He said Admiral Landymore's conduct in opposing integration has been "an obvious violation of regulations."

In addition, there had been "discussions as to the future employment" of three other senior naval officers, Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, 51, of Esquimault, B.C., commander of the Pacific fleet; Rear-Admiral Robert P. Welland, 50, deputy chief of operations; and Rear-Admiral H. C. Burchell, 45, of Ottawa.

Admiral Landymore, 50, said in Lawrencetown ,N.S., Friday that he has been fired after refusing to resign.

The admirals and other high-ranking officers are after his head, Mr. Hellyer admitted candidly during his conversation with local party officials. He said the officers had moved only lately because earlier they didn't really believe integration would succeed.

DENIES CHARGE

At his press conference, Mr. Hellyer denied a statement by Douglas Harkness, former Progressive Conservative defence minister, that he had demanded a pledge of personal loyalty from senior officers of the forces.

"I have never in my life asked an officer for a loyalty oath," the minister said.

He also denied Mr. Harkness' allegations of discontent in the armed forces He said his intergation policy was supported by the majority of the staff of the armed forces and "I feel we have made wonderful progress and have moved farther and faster than any other country in the world"

In Victoria meanwhile, retired Rear-Admiral E. W. H. Finch-Noyes said Friday he would have taken the same stand as Admiral Landymore to maintain the navy's identity in the integration of the armed forces.

Admiral Finch - Noyes said there is a "lack of humanity" in the manner in which integration is been carried out.

OLD CLOCK KEEPS TRUE

A clock installed in London by Henry VIII 425 years ago still keeps good time.

TORONTO (CP) — Charges that unwanted foals, the by-product of estrogen farms, are being sold for human consumption were denied Friday night by government officials.

Thomas Hughes, director of the Ontario Humane Society, said earlier Friday the foals, born on farms where mares are kept pregnant so the hormone estrogen can be extracted from their urine, are disappearing without trace.

The hormone is used in the manufacture of birth control pills and some cancer treatments. "We've had two reports from eastern Ontario that the foals are being sold in Montreal as venison," Mr. Hughes said.

Dr. Harold Worton, director of the Ontario agriculture department's veterinary service, said the charges are irresponsible. "He's casting a cloud over the entire industry when we know many of the farms are beyond reproach."

FIND NO BRUTALITY

He said a random inspection of 10 per cent of Ontario's estrogen farms last spring uncovered no evidence of brutality to mares or foals.

R. G. Bennett, assistant deputy minister of agriculture, said in an interview he did not know how many farmers were disposing of their foals but he would ask departmental officials to check.

Mr. Hughes said estrogen farming is a $4,000,000-a-year business. "When you have that big a business mainly in depressed rural areas, the government's not going to do anything about it."

Mr. Hughes said society investigators found about 85 pregnant mare urine farms located near Brockville. He said these rear about 45 to 50 unwanted foals annually.

Mr. Hughes said farmers should pay an annual business tax which could be used by his organization to hire three inspectors who would be solely engaged in checking estrogen farms. The farmers are averaging more than $10,000 a year in profits and could afford the tax, he said.

stance in world affairs.

Neither time did she mention it by name.

Addressing a Kremlin banquet on the eve of her departure following a four-day official visit to Moscow, Mrs. Gandhi vowed that India will continue to practise non-alignment and peaceful coexistence.

"However, we deeply regret that a major Asian power should have forgotten the pledge it signed at Bandung and has by rejecting peaceful coexistence sought to weaken if not to overthrow non-alignment."

Bandung, in Indonesia, was site of an Afro-Asian meeting in the mid-1950s that framed a statement of peaceful principles to guide relations among states.

CITIES 'CERTAIN POWERS'

"Apparently certain powers do not desire peace,' Mrs. Gandhi declared. "They seek to promote tension in justification of dogmatic belief in the inevitability of war and the use of aggressive force in settlement of problems.

"They have entered into opportunistic alliances with feudal and revivalist forces in Asia Africa, even though these forces run counter to the national interests and well being of the people.

Her reference to China was clear without being made explicit.

Senators Robert F. Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.) and Edward M. Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) also rose to endorse the statement by the 18, which was signed by, among others, chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate foreign relations committee.

ACT OF BARBARISM

Robert Kennedy said that regardless of anyone's opinion about the U.S. bombing of areas near Hanoi, execution of American prisoners would be "an intolerable act . . . of barbarism."

"I have dissented at many points from this war and its conduct," he said, "but I am at one with all Americans in regarding any reprisals against these young men and indirectly aginst their families, as an intolerable act—contrary to the laws of war, contrary to all past practices in this war, a plunge into barbarism which could serve the interest of no man and no nation."

Communist dispatches from Hanoi have indicated that trials may start July 20 or Aug. 4. There has been no official word, however, from the United States or from the government of North Viet Nam.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By J. R. STAVELEY,
Employers Relations Officer

The salient point of interest in the local National Employment Service office activities this week was centred around the labor demands from the retail departmental field. During the week, representatives of a well-known chain retail store organization utilized the NES boardroom to interview prospective employees to fill its local store-staffing requirements. This type of employment service is advantageous for both the employer and applicants seeking suitable employment. Moreover these facilities are available free of charge. Other employers are invited to enquire about these facilities, which are available to assist them in either large or small labor-hiring programs.

The community's tourist season is now in full swing and the summer resort operators and allied businesses report the tourist trade is better than in previous years. Many resorts are booked to capacity for the next four weeks.

This activity has provided temporary employment for quite a number of the district's high school students, especially in the northern area.

The current prolonged period of hot, dry weather is adversely affecting local farm crop prospects. Of immediate concern is the present pea pack, the raspberry crop and pastures. Thus, during the week there was a decreased labor requirement from the local farmers.

JOBS OPEN

The following job opportunities represent only a few of those now available at the local National Employment Service Office:

In the female division locally, ladies experienced in selling dresses, suits and coats can find interesting work, either on a part-time or full-time basis. Still required is someone for window display work. Althougn experience is preferred, consideration will be given to an applicant possessing an artistic flair and an interest in this type of work. A capable woman is required as a housekeeper for a good farm home which as all modern conveniences. Two openings are unfilled for short order cooks experienced in grill work. One of theese positions is for evening work, with the other a daytime job. There are a number of maids-general needed by local residents. These positions require that the applicant live-in. In Trenton, a manufacturer of small engines requires assembly workers. The requirements call for a high degree of manual dexterity, a Grade 10 level in education, with a height of at least 5 feet 2 inches, single or a widow, 18 years of age or over and willing to work on a shift production basis.

In the male division locally, there are two positions available for stationary engineers, possessing a third class certificate for one opening and a fourth class certificate for the second position. There exists an attractive opening for an experienced typewriter repair man. Another vacancy calls for a licensed class "A" automobile repair mechanic. In the transportation field, there are two vacancies available, one for a male clerk-typist and the other for a qualified male stenographer. Another position calls for a reliable gasoline service station attendant. In demand also are qualified cooks for hotel and restaurant work.

The labor demand elsewhere covers a wide range of occupations, in plant production work, and in the mining, banking, manufacturing, services and agricultural fields.

Both workers seeking-employment and employers seeking workers are invited to contact the NES office, 324 Church St., Belleville, Ont, or phone 962-8681.

Reports of 7 Commissions To Be Ready by End of Year

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—A batch of reports, at least one of them expected to contain political dynamite, will land on Prime Minister Pearson's desk by year's end.

The reports are those of seven royal commissions or special inquiries set up either by the present Liberal government or the former Conservative administration.

An information source said said three of the documents probably will be delivered to the government during August. The others will follow in the fall. Expected to bring up the rear is the report of the royal commission on Pilotage, which may not be made public until the end of December.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence's report into the Gerda Munsinger affair, the most controversial and perhaps the most eagerly - awaited result, now is expected in mid-August.

STUDIED CHARGES

The Supreme Court of Canada judge is said to be polishing up his report into allegations that former prime minister John Diefenbaker mis handled the sex - and - security case involving two or more of his ministers.

Also expected in August are results of an inquiry into working conditions in post offices and former Supreme Court Justice Ivan C. Rand's report on dealings of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court with Northern Ontario Natural Gas Ltd.

Another report expected shortly is that of Mr. Justice Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court into the alleged spying activities of former Vancouver postal clerk George Victor Spencer. Spencer, accused of helping Russian agents, died while the inquiry was still on.

The royal commission on taxation hopefully will be ready before the commons resumes its session in October, commission officials said.

The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism says it hopes to file its first report in November, to be followed by several other volumes.

Chartered Plane's Co-pilot Fights Lions With Hatchet

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—The co-pilot of a chartered plane fought three angry lions with a hatchet in midair Friday while the pilot steered the aircraft to an emergency landing here.

When the plane landed, the terrified pilots smashed the cockpit window with the hatchet and jumped to the runway, leaving the lions two adults and a cub snarling behind them.

The lions, being flown from West Germany to London, broke out of their cage while the Swiss-chartered Dart-Herald cargo plane was over Belgium.

Pilot Paul Wihrman said the lions' cage was at the back of the fuselage. There was no partition to the cockpit.

As the plane was coming in to land, the two big lions became aggressive and co-pilot Max Schomenberger grabbed the plane's safety hatchet to fight them off.

As soon as it taxied to a stop and the pilots squeezed out of the broken window firemen threw a net over the plane to keep the lions from clawing their way out.

A Dutch woman biologist, Dr. Agatha Geyzen, hurriedly summoned from Antwerp Zoo 30 miles away, thrust her arm through the cockpit window and lifted the cub out of the plane by its neck. The big ones were left for later disposal.

Youth Killed Placing Bomb Beside Plant

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Friday a 16-year-old youth was killed Thursday night while attempting to place a homemade bomb at a Dominion Textile Co. Ltd. factory.

Police said Jean Corbo of suburban Mount Royal was placing the bomb at the side of the textile plant in Montreal's west end when it went off in his hands, hurling parts of his body as muh as forty feet.

Det.-Lt. Leo Plouffe, bomb expert for the city police, examined remains of the bomb in an attempt to determine the nature of the device.

Detectives said the victim's appearance was "quite similar" to that of a youth sought in connection with a bomb blast here May 6 that killed one and injured four others at the La Grande shoe factory offices.

There were no injuries in Thursday night's blast although some 250 employees were in the plant.

Dominion Textile plants in four Quebec communities have been shut down by a strike of 5,000 members of the Confederation of National Trade Unions for four months.

But the Montreal Dominion Textile plants, where workers are represented by a different union, the United Textile Workers of America (CLC), have continued to operate.

North Viet Nam Pounded With Record Raids

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. planes pounded North Viet Nam Friday with a record 121 missions, the U.S. military command said today.

They struck at three oil depots to keep up the intensified drive against the Hanoi government's fuel reserves and also attacked six missile sites.

U.S. navy planes evaded 10 Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles 45 miles southeast of Hanoi, but a Navy A-4 Skyhawk jet was shot down by anti-aircraft fire, U.S. military headquarters said. The pilot bailed out but heavy flak prevented rescue helicopters from reaching him and he is listed as missing.

The U.S. command reported the loss of a U.S. Marine F-4B Phantom fighter-bomber Friday 30 miles northwest of Quang Tri City. The plane was shot down by enemy ground fire. Both of the crew bailed out and were picked up.

CLAIM PLANES DOWNED

North Viet Nam meanwhile claimed that six U.S. planes were shot down over Viet Nam Friday, three of them in the vicinity of Hanoi. A number of Americans were captured, said the North Viet Nam news agency.

Encourage People to Leave Farms

OTTAWA (CP) — The farm population should be encouraged to decline in order to strengthen agriculture's competitive position in freer world trade, according to the research director of the Agricultural Economics Research Council of Canada.

W. J. Anderson stated his view in a written appraisal of last January's closed conference on international trade and Canadian agriculture at Banff, Alta., sposored jointly by the agricultural council and the Economic Council of Canada.

Mr. Anderson says:

"Instead of facilitating the emigration of people, Canada has encouraged immigration into agriculture, which increases the competition for land and the supply of people in agriculture.

"The result is that land becomes expensive and absorbs capital which could be used better for other purposes, and the returns to labor tend to remain low."

Mr. Anderson said there is no escape from this dilemma, "except to increase the rate of net emigration of people from agriculture."

One of Severed Arms Is Alive

OTTAWA (CP) — The right arm of four - year - old Myrna Blair, recovered in a hayfield and rejoined hours after the child was run over by a mower, is still alive, Ottawa General Hospital reported Friday.

Dr. J. J. Laurier said the right arm is "unquestionably" alive. But the child's left arm, nearly severed and removed by doctors before it was rejoined, is a "question mark."

Dr. Laurier, the hospital's medical director, said firm results of the operation would not be known for days, probably about next Wednesday.

The condition of the little girl was described by Dr. Laurier as "very satisfactory - except of course that the condition of the arms is still serious."

Both arms were severed above the elbow.

CHURCH MAN REMANDED

TORONTO (CP) — John J. Gooding, 42-year-old lay church official, has been remanded to July 21 on a charge of wounding Rev. Hope Surdivall, 38, of St. Luke's Anglican church. Mr. Surdivall has refused to tell police the identity of a man who beat him with a microphone in a fight in the church last week.

Bottling Firms Facing Charges

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The trial of two London soft drink bottling companies charged with operating lotteries through bottle cap contests was adjourned Friday.

The case against National Dry Ltd. resumes Aug. 24 and Vernor's Bottling Co. (London) Ltd. Sept. 28.

A case against Cocoa-Cola Ltd. has already been scheduled for Aug. 10 and one against London Bottling Co. Ltd. was set last month for Aug. 24.

City police contend such contests which offer prizes violate the Criminal Code.

Teachers Are Not Sure How Much Federal Govt. Intervention They Desire

By JANE BECKER

EDMONTON (CP)—After 45 years the Canadian Teachers' Federation still is not sure how much it wants the federal government to dabble in education.

The dilemma, as one executive member of the federation saw it Friday, boils down to the fact that the CTF wants federal money without federal control.

The most controversial discussion of the three-day CTF annual meeting this week erupted over the CTF board's proposal for a federal bureau of education "to co-ordinate federal government activities in the education field."

Over the combined opposition of Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia delegates, the annual meeting voted to work for establishment of a federal bureau.

URGED FEDERAL AID

Soon after its formation in the 1920s the CTF was pressing for a federal education office. In 1962 it urged the federal government to give aid to elementary and secondary education.

This year it carefully did not mention financial aid.

Yet members of the finance committee, who have studied the resources available for education across the country, say privately that educational opportunity will never be equal until somehow there is as much money, comparatively, to spend in the Maritimes as in the rest of Canada.

"A child in the Maritimes today doesn't begin to have the same educational opportunity as one in the rest of Canada," Elizabeth Redmond of Winnipeg, head of the CTF finance committee, said in an interview.

Another committee member remarked that even if the Maritimes collected all their own provincial taxes, as they are empowered to under the British North America Act, they still wouldn't have enough money to provide the same standard of education for their prople.

Clearly, the only answer the finance committee can see for the Maritimes is federal assistance.

The education bureau probably won't be urged for another year at least.

The federation finance committee still must set out the areas of provincial and federal responsibility in education, as it sees them, and suggest "adequate federal - provincial fiscal arrangements" to enable the provinces to carry out their responsibilities.

Although a spokesman for La Corporation des Instituteurs Catholique du Quebec, the French teachers' organization which is not yet a CTF member, warned that to approve a federal education bureau would probably delay his group's entrance into the CTF, delegates voted to make the federation a 'bilingual and bicultural organization."

Glamor Is Taped

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The average glamor girl weighs 121, is five-foot-six, has a 35½ inch bust, 23½ inch waist and 36-inch hips.

That is the tale of the tape among shapely beauties from 58 nations, including Canada, competing for the Miss Universe crown tonight.

Miss Holland and Miss Okinawa come closest to the average. Margo Domen of Holland is a half inch shorter and her hips measure a half inch less Yoneko Kiyan of Okinawa, missed only in weight — four pounds above the 121 par figure.

Four of the girls weigh 121. They are the Misses Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Holland.

The wispiest, 98 - pound Miss Ceylon, Lorraine Roosmalecocq, said this is her formula: "Eat everything you want to. Don't diet"

There are 10 blondes and 10 have blue eyes.

Marjorie Schofield of Burlington, Ont., Canada's representative, is both blonde and blue-eyed. An 18-year-old model, she replaced Diane Coulter, Miss Dominion of Canada, in the pageant after Miss Coulter became ill in Grand Falls, N.B Miss Schofield was runner-up in the Canadian contest

Miss Norway, Siri Gro Nilsen, is the heaviest at 138 pounds. Tallest is five-foot-nine Lynn Carol de Jager of South Africa. Shortest, at five-foot-two, are Miss Malaysia, Helen Lee Siew Lien, and Miss Free Cuba, Lesbia Murrieta.

SHIP LAUNCHED

TOKYO (Reuters) — A 144,000 - ton combination carrier, said to be the largest ship of this type in the world, was launched Friday at Kure in western Japan. Ordered by the Sea Tankers Inc., a Liberian owner, the carrier is expected to be completed by the end of October at a cost of about 4,680,000,000 yen (about $14,000,000).

Parliamentary Notebook

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—By recessing Parliament until Oct. 5 the government may have placed itself in a tight spot in getting vital legislation approved on time.

In addition to several measures needing approval before next spring, there is a major item—Finance Minister Sharp's amendments to the Bank Act—which has a Jan. 1, 1967, date tag on it.

When MPs return from their constituencies they will have only 56 sitting days—assuming they depart the weekend before Christmas—to work before the end of the year.

About 17½ of those will be used to consider departmental estimates. An undermined number will be spent on interim supply bills, which will provide an opportunity to debate the Munsinger report which is expected before then.

The Bank Act amendments, which include proposals for a higher ceiling on interest rates and greater competition in the banking field, are bound to consume considerable time.

There is no deadline set for passage of the government's medicare bill, but Prime Minister Pearson has said it will be presented for debate on second reading soon after the MPs return.

Health Minister MacEachen wants it approved quickly so the provinces can move into action to have it set up by July 1 next year.

The Conservatives are pressing for detailed study of the plan in a committee. Even without a committee hearing the debate in the Commons is expected to last several days.

The government also is to propose legislation to amend the Broadcasting Act. The controversy surrounding the CBC's program This Hour Has Seven Days may provoke extended debate on this.

Government informants say there has been little discussion about a date for concluding the session but agree the pressure will be on MPs before Christmas.

Ban Swimming Off Govt. Dock After Parley

TRENTON — The danger of children swimming off the government dock in downtown Trenton has been dealt with, at a joint meeting of the Department of Transport and the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

Effective immediately "No Swimming" signs will be posted at the dock and a maximum of $250 or 60 days in jail, will be imposed as the penalty for persons violating the ruling. Parents will be held responsible for their children caught breaking the regulation. The action taken resulted from a number of complaints about children's lives being endangered by boats using the dock area in the last couple of days.

Horace Wright recently donated safety equipment to be installed at the government dock. Mr. Wright supplied a life preserver and a pike pole to be used in emergencies.

Wells Go Dry

TRENTON — Residents of the district have started to feel the effects of the long, hot, dry spell.

Numerous wells and cisterns in the Conseoon area have had to be replenished with deliveries from tank trucks. Similar shortages of water in other parts of Prince Edward County worsen as the drought continues.

Pension Plan

In its plan to increase aid to old age pensioners, the government proposes to engage in what appears to be a complicated juggling act with available means of assistance.

The government program, to be brought before Parliament in the fall, will guarantee pensioners a minimum income of $105 a month. It is designed specifically for persons too old to benefit fully or at all from the Canada and Quebec pension plans which begin payments next January.

In other words, federal government payments will be gradually cut back as more Canadians receive the full benefit of the contributory Canada Pension Plan and the comparable plan in Quebec.

The initial annual cost to the federal government of the guaranteed income plan will be about $225 milion. Pensioners currently receive a flat rate payment of $75 a month. At the moment this goes to all Canadians 69 years of age and over. By 1970, however, the age qualification will have been reduced to permit all persons 65 and over to receive the flat rate pension.

An increase in the pension has been under consideration for some time, and a flat increase all round of $25 to $100 was the figure most often mentioned.

The fact that the government will guarantee a figure of $105 makes it difficult to understand why Opposition criticism of the plan is so intense. Such criticism centres around the time factor — the fact that pensioners, some of them in straitened circumstances, must wait until fall for the proposed increase, and because it may mean the holding of means tests.

Health and Welfare Minister Allan MacEachen defended the government's plan while outlining it in the Commons. He said that by guaranteeing a minimum monthly income of $105 to all it will aid truly needy old persons more than a flat $100, yet will not impose as large or continuing a burden on the federal treasury as would a flat payment to all.

By and large the plan seems a good one, in that it will guarantee a sum in excess of $100, from one source or another, while not imposing too severe a burden on the public treasury.

Hospital Security

The macabre killing of eight Chicago nurses in their townhouse residence a mile from the hospital, and in what other residents described as a quiet, middle-class district, throws the issue of security into sharp relief.

Whether the killer knew he was invading a nurses' residence, or it was just coincidence, is unknown, but it is clear that the residence was vulnerable to entry by any intruder.

The Windsor Star notes in this connection that security is a problem recognized by the three Windsor hospitals operating residences for student nurses.

All three report that police patrols take extra care in their areas to ensure that strangers and prowlers are kept away. Other security measures are also in operation.

This is likely the case in most hospitals. At the Chicago hospital residence, however, security appeared to be lacking, and this affords a serious lesson for other institutions of this kind.

Soccer in Spotlight

"Both sides exposed the art of weaknesses no World Cup side can ever carry and hope to win."

That was the neat summation of the Portugal-Hungary soccer tie by a Canadian Press writer who watched Portugal win a surprise 3-1 decision in the World Cup game in England. But there were no reports of any riots or other untoward reaction to the defeat of the Hungarians, finalists in 1954.

Thus far, the big soccer blast has been noticeably free of more than routine uproar. Knowing the passions that the game arouses, even among such well-balanced people as the British, this is remarkable.

Of course the event has another couple of weeks to run, and anything can happen with such an influx of Europeans, Latins and other devotees of the game.

One thing the British can use is the cash being brought in by such a large number of visitors. It will help to make up for the huge trading losses the country sustained during the seamen's strike.

Farming Beatle

Paul McCartney and his actress friend Jane Asher are reported to have looked over a farm in Scotland.

The bachelor Beatle apparently is feeling the strain of success. However, while feeling the need to get away from it all, if only at intervals between his busy life in the entertainment world, this would only be half the story.

The fact is, farm life has been one of McCartney's lifelong ambitions. Who knows, the popular Beatle may end up as a Scottish squire!

Ottawa Offbeat

The Day Andrei Gromyko Fled From Gilles Gregoire

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Anybody who can out-fast-talk Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko ought to be able to out-quick-dodge the RCMP.

Even if he has to do it the hard way.

Like spending a few thousand dollars.

As Deputy Creditiste Leader Gilles Gregoire ("The Fastest Tongue in the House," he's known to one and all on The Hill) has done. Done both, that is.

It was at the Park Avenue apartment of Paul Tremblay, former Permanent Canadian Delegate to the United Nations,, that Gilles Gregoire out-tongued and put to flight the Russian Foreign Minister, no stumble-mumble in the talk department himself.

They were both guests a couple of years ago, along with this correspondent, at a reception Ambassador Tremblay was giving for Prime Minister Pearson.

There was the brooding-browed Gromyko, Screwdriver (the bodka and orange juice model) in hand, minding his own business, when in rat-a-tats Gregoire, the man-who-talks-like-a-machine-gun, firing 350 words a minute, French and English.

"I'm a member of the Canadian Le Ralliement des Creditistes," rips off Gregoire sounding as if he was about to handcuff Gromyko as a war criminal, "and without doubt the swinginest anti-Communist in the building."

YES-MAN

"That covers a lot of territory," grins the startled Gromyko amiably, "we're up on the 18th floor about Park Avenue in New York, you know."

"And that goes for this and all the States of the Union and the Provinces of Canada," rattles along the garrulous Gregoire for fullest continental measure.

"Co-existence is in international fashion these days," beams back Gromyko, "so let's string along in style — cheers."

"Then let me tell you about Social Credit and free enterprise," gears up Gregoire, giving Gromyko no chance at all to get in a "yes but" edgeways.

By now the wispy Socred, skewering the hefty Communist on the end of his index finger, has him speared against the wall.

And what can Gromyko do but stand there, back to the wall, ~~listening~~ and finally, perhaps mesmerized, nodding and murmuring, "Yes, yes, yes. It's so. I agree. Yes. Yes."

Then desperate, he makes a break for it, slipping out from under the pinion of Gregoire's stiffened finger, shaking his good-nights along the receiving line and escaping into the elevator for freedom from Social Credit 18 floors below.

It wasn't long after that when Gilles Gregoire, after blithely ignoring some 20 or more traffic tickets, was bundled into an RCMP squad car as he emerged from the Centre Block on The Hill, and trundled on downtown to the police cells.

AT ANY PRICE

He made quite a thing of it in the Commons, protesting the unspeakable lese-majeste of the Royal Redcoats in defiling his sacred persson.

On the very steps of Parliament, too. And he an inviolate MP!

But he paid his fine. Finally. And swore never again would they lay a finger on him. No matter what.

It turned out that the "no matter what" amounted to nothing less than purchase of a 28-foot, four-bed luxury cabin cruiser with all the electrical and plumbing comforts of home.

All Spring ever since the ice went out of the Rideau Canal, he's been commuting to his Parliament Hill office by cruiser from the Dow's Lake marina.

It's a pleasant, scenic run of some two miles between the landscaped banks of the canal, and best of all, not patrolled by the RCMP which polices the Federal District, but not by boat.

His cruiser has a fair turn of speed, well above the limit along the canal, and a couple of times, the land-locked RCMP traffic detail, policing the canal from the Federal driveways that border it, have tried to whistle him down.

But he stood his ground — or water — and told the Redcoats that if they wanted to date him for a court appearance they would have to swim out with a summons. In French.

And they still hadn't got their man by the time he sailed away for his Parliamentary vacation down the Rideau locks to the Ottawa River, on to the St. Lawrence and so through to the Saguenay and his constituency of Lapointe.

There to holiday and combine cruising pleasure with between-elections campaigning and political fence-mending business.

Inflation—Another Warning

Letter to The Globe and Mail

In your editorial on inflation (July 6) you said some wise and weighty things on the subject of inflation which all Canadians, and particularly the labor leaders and Ministers of the Crown, should ponder well, while yet there is time to avoid disaster.

In your first paragraph you report writers in The Globe and Mail as "agreed on one thing: Canada seems almost certain to be facing serious inflation. Just as certain is the fact that the Government, which ought to have dampened the flames and said it was going to, has fanned them instead." You rightly criticize the Government's deal with the longshoremen and you point out that 95,000 railway workers have broken off pending negotiation "to raise their sights," in other words, to increase their demands. You further point out that "A high degree of inflation will rob millions of Canadians who live on fixed incomes, it will invalidate much of even the high wage increases which workers are able to negotiate; in the end it could make Canada uncompetitive in world markets and put a bust in our boom."

I find all this very convincing and very alarming, but there is, apparently, little public recognition of the true seriousness of the situation. We know vaguely that in other countries inflation has had devastating effects, but apparently our attitude is "of course it couldn't happen here."

May I venture to suggest that you should give particulars of some of the truly catastrophic inflations in the past 50 - years which caused widespread economic confusion and almost brought orderly life to an end. I suggest also that your alert staff could give convincing figures to show what happens when wage increases are extorted by wage-earners, regardless of their economic effect. I believe these figures would convince wage-earners that if things go on as they are, we will indeed have a "bust in our boom" which would create havoc among them as well among other elements in the community.

J. M. Macdonnell,
Ottawa.

Idleness the Real Enemy

Vancouver Province

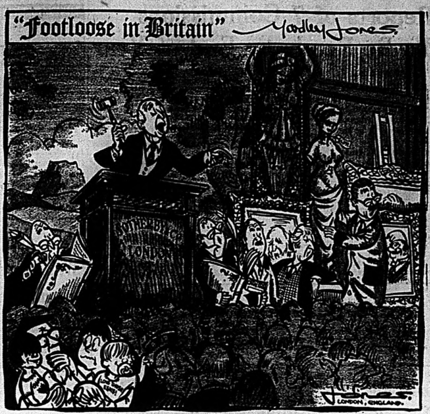
In this age of affluence and the diminishing work week it is laughingly alleged that the greatest challenge to a man is that of successful idleness.

It is no idle challenge, either, if we believe the story of a French Civil Servant. Louis Bublens is suing the French government for $40,000 because, he says, he suffered a nervous breakdown from inactivity while employed as a bureau chief in the ministry of labor.

He told a Paris court he spent nine hours a day "twiddling my thumbs." Worse yet, he claims he was even compelled to continue his inactivity into overtime. When he complained of his idleness, Bublens said, his superiors gave him an annual efficiency rating of 90 per cent and a commendation.

Government lawyers have replied by characterizing Bublens as a malcontent who is "attempting to shake the taxpayer's faith in how their money is spent."

So far we have heard no word from the Canadian bureaucracy of any such menace to laziness.



"Sold to the little boy in the maple leaf T shirt for five thousand, eight hundred and ninety-five pounds . . ."

'Jitter Legs' Plague Many Older People

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor has what the doctors call restless legs and suffers from it. Can anything be done? — Mrs. W. D.

The exact cause of this is not known, but it annoys a good many people as they get along in years, and occurs when the patient is at rest, such as lying in bed or sitting in a chair.

Symptoms can include tightness, burning, aching, a crawling sensation or restless discomfort, and it often goes by the name of "jitter legs," which in some cases is a good description.

Moving about usually brings relief, but if the annoyance can be prevented — as sometimes it can — that's better, of course.

Occasionally diabetic neuritis is found in a case, and medical attention is in order.

About half the patients are found to have some degree of depression, and drug therapy for this condiition can help, although relief may not be immediate.

Still others have anemia and correction of this improves the situation.

Disturbances in circulation or nerve disorders are not always a cause but do occur, and use of a vasodilator drug may be beneficial. Supportive hose may be tried.

In an occasional case avoiding coffee affords relief.

As you can see, when differing conditions are at work, no single remedy can be expected to help all cases, and the divergent methods which help different cases are evidence that we do not know very much about this problem.

Still, one or another of the foregoing methods have helped a good many people.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you check an article in the A.M.A. Journal on diverticulitis and let me know when is the best time to take barium sulphate? —Mrs. A. B.

It has often been noted that patients having irritation from diverticulosis (or diverticulitis) noticed relief after hovng barium for X-ray purposes.

The author of the article you cite reasoned that small doses of barium might therefore be soothing when a "divertic" becomes irritated or inflamed.

Trying it out, he found that a tablespoon of barium sulphate in a half glass of water or milk, taken three or four times a week did in fact, lessen the discomfort.

This does not mean that everyone with diverticulosis of the colon should take barium. The majority have no discomfort. The barium does not cure nor alter the condition basically, but is helpful in lessening irritation when it occurs.

If you do not have my booklet "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw you," I recommend it to you. Anyone may obtain a copy by sending a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read that after having the appendix removed, cancer could develop later on. I had an appendectomy 20 months ago. Is there danger of cancer? — J. L. L.

There is no relationship between removal of the appendix and cancer so relax and don't worry.

Note to F.A.T.: Your husband is wrong. X-rays of the lower bowel are being taken every day. A barium compound, opaque for X-rays, makes the bowel visible.

Dollar Value Has Declined

Financial Post

Postwar governments in Canada, by raising and spending increasingly vast sums of tax dollars, are obviously accelerating the redistribution of incomes. But the immense complexity of our jumbled tax system makes it difficult to tell just how much has been redistributed, and who has gained or lost most.

For those, however, who want to put the changes in perspective, here are some facts for contemplation.

Canadians are obviously far better off than ever before. Per capita annual income jumped from $365 per man, woman and child in 1938 to $940 in 1949 and then doubled to $1,998 by 1965. But taxes are climbing even more rapidly. Direct taxes, mostly income taxes, have more than tripled since 1949 to total almost $200 per capita. Indirect taxes, such as sales taxes, have jumped two and one-half times since 1949 to more than $366 per capita per year.

Canadians, through their taxes, are financing dramatic increases in total pension payments, baby bonuses and welfare payments of all sorts. These so-called transfer payments now account for almost 12 percent of the average income. This compares with just under 8 percent in 1949 and it is more than double the hand-out proportion of 1938.

This is not, however, something for nothing. Although per capita incomes have doubled since 1949, higher taxes now leave in the hands of the average individual to spend as he best sees fit only 64 cents of each dollar he earns. This compares with 72 cents in 1949 and 80 cents in 1938.

Certainly the citizen benefits from the better roads, better schools, better unemployment benefits and freedom from most hospital charges that his higher taxes buy. But the climb of taxes since 1949 and a 40 percent rise in living costs leaves that doubled income looking pretty mangy and moth-eaten.

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In connection with your recent editorials deploring broken glass on our local streets, it might also be appropriate to mention the garbage which many human beings leave behind on the beaches. Empty pop and beer cans, broken cartons and smashed bottles would be just a sample.

Though there may not be refuse cans in all of these areas, it should not be too bothersome for people to bundle up their garbage and take it home to be disposed of. A clutter of rusty cans and broken bottles strewn over a sandy area is a very real hazard to children playing or anyone in bare feet. It is also messy.

Fair Play

Editor's Note: Frequent reference has been made to beach litter in our editorial columns.

The last czar of Russia, Nicholas II, was killed 48 years ago today—in 1918—by Bolshevik revolutionaries. Nicholas, his wife Alexandra, and their children had been confined at the outbreak of the 1917 revolution, and were moved to a cellar in Ekaterinburg in April the following year. There they were shot by local Bolsheviks, who feared the imminent capture of the city by advancing Czech and White Russian forces. Grocer of Yesteryear Kept Pests Away With Fly Fan

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Flies in July were a problem for our great — grandparents. There were no convenient push-button sprays. The grocer kept the pests from his open stock of cheese, pickles and crackers by using a fly fan. A tall spindle held a fan blade that could revolve and chase the bugs. The original ad for the fly fan, printed in 1888, said "In hot, sultry weather, its use insures cleanliness at meals, comfort and rest to the weary."

Q. My four bottle castor set is missing one bottle. It has a tall bottle with a glass stopper, a short bottle with a hinged top and a small opening for a spoon a tall bottle with a perforated top and the one that is missing.

A. Four bottle castor sets usually had two vinegar bottles, a pepper shaker and a mustard pot. Castors with five bottles had another shaker for salt. Six bottle sets usually included an extra stopper bottle for oil. The most elaborate castor sets have bells (to ring for the maid), egg cups, or other such accessories plus five or six bottles.

Q. How should I protect some World War I posters I own?

A. Paper antiques are becoming very valuable. Large posters should be framed under glass. They should be treated like any other important picture. If this is too expensive, you could have your prints deacidified and reinforced with a muslin or linen backing or a heavy fibred Japanese paper. Be sure that rice starch paste is used.

Q. "Oporto" is marked on the back of a piece of porcelain we bought.

A. Oporto, Portugal was the location of a porcelain factory called Vista Alegre. It was founded in 1824 by Jose Basto. The firm is still working.

Q. My covered glass dish has a horse's head for a knob and the words "horse radish".

A. There was a clear glass mug marked horse radish made during the 1880's. It also had a horse head knob.

Q. DDK is stamped on my Wedgwood dish.

A. The Wedgewood factory of England used a special date letter system. D. is for December, the second D is the name of the potter, the K is for the year 1883, the year the plate was made.

BOOK REVIEW

Some books about antiques are so popular the authors write a second volume. "Much More Early American Pattern Glass" by Alice Metz ($8, 2004 West 102 St., Chicago, Ill.) is a continued listing of pattern glass. "Adventuring Further in Souvenir Spoons" by Anton Hardt ($9.95 335 Bleecker St., New York, N.Y.) reprints a series of articles of the 1890's listing the souvenir spoons of the day.

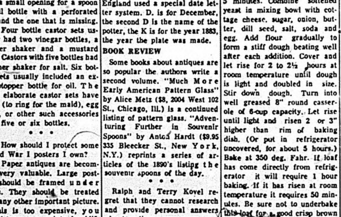
Ralph and Terry Kovel regret that they cannot research and provide personal answers about antiques you may own. They do appreciate your questions which can be answered in the column. Pictures and drawings cannot be returned.



Shoo fly! This fan went round and round and chased the flies from the home or store of the 1880's. It could be wound up to run an hour.

QUESTION:

About 6 years ago you gave a recipe for Dilly Bread that won a large prize. It contained cottage cheese and onion and dill seeds. That is all I can remember. Agnes S.

ANSWER:

I am delighted to repeat this for there are members of our family who think it is the best yet.

PRIZE-WINNING DILLY BREAD:

1 package active dry yeast (or 1 cake compressed yeast), ¼ cup warm water, 1 cup creamed cottage cheese, heated to lukewarm (see note), 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon instant minced onion, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 teaspoons dill seed, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon soda, 1 unbeaten egg, 2¼ cups sliced sifted all-purpose flour.

NOTE:

Be sure to heat the cottage cheese very slowly and just a little, because if you do not it will form into tough rubbery ball.

Soften yeast in warm water 5 minutes. Combine softened yeast in mixing bowl with cottage cheese, sugar, onion, butter, dill seed, salt, soda and egg. Add flour gradually to form a stiff dough beating well after each addition. Cover and let rise for 2 to 2½ hours at room temperature until dough is light and doubled in size. Stir down dough. Turn into well greased 8" round casserole of 6-cup capacity. Let rise until light and risen 2 or 3" higher than rim of baking dish. (Or put in refrigerator uncovered, for about 5 hours.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. If loaf has come directly from refrigerator it will require 1 hour baking. If it has risen at room temperature it requires 50 minutes. Be sure not to underbake this loaf for a good crisp brown crust is one of its charms. If desired, brush with butter and sprinkle with salt after baking but while still hot.

Going Places

Old and New Splendors Mark Rich City of Sweden

By SHIRLEY and BOB Sloane

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — In Stockholm, the traffic cops wear walkie-talkies on their backs and swords on their hips. That sums up the kind of city it is: memories of royal splendor and a sharp eye on the burgeoning present.

This is no leisurely provincial city. The traffic, with chauffeured Mercedes liberally sprinkled among the Volvos, rages ferociously through the streets, making them almost impossible to cross. Vast areas of the city have been redeveloped in the past few years, and whole communities — one of them atomic powered — have sprung up where nothing stood.

Expressways slash over and around shopping malls with fountains and subways. A garden of gleaming skyscrapers has risen beyond the stately columns of the Concert Hall, where Nobel Prizes are distributed. In front, the convoluted arms of Carl Milles' Orpheus now seem to be shielding the statue's eyes from the startling sight.

Yet there is a big colorful flower market on one of the shopping plazas. And what the traffic roars by are still the stately Royal Opera with its gilt statues, the massive Royal Palace and Parliament and other majestic monuments of Stockholm's 700 years before the industrial millionaires. It used to be if you were a king it wasn't just of an industry.

PROSPEROUS COUNTRY

Sweden is probably Europe's most prosperous country today, and Stockholm is its unmistakably rich capital, reeking of expense account caviar. But its beauty, if not exactly enhanced by skyscrapers and expressways is either unchangeable or carefully tended.

And beautiful it is, thanks largely to its splendid situation on a bewildering, park-like maze of islands. The two arms of the harbor embrace the city, and canals wind through its scenic heart; the great brick landmark of the city hall, with its 350-foot tower, stands in majestic isolation on its own island.

So does the pastoral oasis of the Royal Deer Park, the countryside in the city. Dotting the roads and paths are ancient inns and restaurants, brooding Victorian mansions of the shipbuilding czars, and the baronial Thielska Gallery, where on summer nights there are concerts in a setting of Renaissance splendor.

Nearby, and actually in the middle of Stockholm, is beloved Skansen, an all-things-to-all-people entertainment and cultural centre — amusement park, pavilion restaurant, zoo, park, outdoor theatres, children's playgrounds, and one of Sweden's finest outdoor museums.

Sprawling over the grounds in natural settings are romantic wooden churches with weathered shingles, farmhouses with grassy dirt roofs, complete estates, tiny country cottages, and craft shops where glass and ceramics still are handmade by centuries-old techniques.

On the same island with the Royal Palace is the old Inner City, which is all outdoor museum, untouched and untouchable for centuries, as medieval as it was when it was built. Alongside the cathedral, famed for its fifteenth-century Bernt Notke statue of St. George slaying the dragon, is the cobbled market square.

No traffic roars through it, and from its flowered benches and sidewalk cafe, citizens and tourists alike pause to contemplate the step-gabled houses out of the Middle Ages. Fashionable cellar restaurants and cafes, antique shops and dark narrow streets make the peaceful and timeless old town a place for endless wandering and pooking around.

Dramatically pointing up Stockholm's juxtaposition of old and new is the city's newest museum, housing the oldest known relic of its type.

On August 10, 1628, the pride of Gustav II Adolphus' fleet, the Vasa, with a complement of 500 men and mounting 64 guns, sailed from Stockholm on her maiden voyage. Everyone who was anyone was there to wave her goodbye, and all 500 crewmen leaned over the leeward rail to wave back. A sudden wind came up from the wrong side, the Vasa ignobly went down, and her designers went back to their drawing boards.

At least that's the story. No one really knows why she capsized, but with her high-riding hull, huge masts, and deck-mounted cannon, the Vasa probably was top-heavy.

She lay on the bottom for three centuries, no one dreaming until a few years ago that she had not rotted away. But scientists learned there was enough fresh water in the harbor to have preserved the hulk. Anyway, for years ships had been fouling their anchors on something; when she was raised on April 24, 1961, they found 38 books in her.

The hull stands today in an aluminum skylighted housing on the waterfront under a steady spray of polyethylene glycol preservative which, along with the humidity, gradually is being reduced. By 1970 the Vasa may be dry.

Meanwhile the task of raising the giant masts and embalming the dozens of magnificent wooden statues that graced her stern, goes on. Additional sections of her prow and stern also have been recovered and are gradually being fitted into place, a monumental jigsaw puzzle.

CAUSING EMBARRASSMENT

But the size of the museum is causing considerable embarrassment. It is obvious now that the entire reassembled ship will not fit into the building. And when the masts are recovered they cannot be raised because they are as tall as some of the downtown office buildings and the height of the structure would violate waterfront zoning laws.

In the meantime, the statues are being placed on display as they come out of the preserving tank, where they rest for a year or more. Also on display are the effects of the sailors — sea chests, ancient coins, eating utensils, Swedish modern-looking pottery and ceramics, even miraculously preserved uniforms.

When the last bits and pieces are put in place, engineers may be able to figure out why the Vasa sank. But until then, it's back to the drawing board for the museum designers.

City halls aren't usually tourist attractions, but Stockholm's is. Built in 1923, it was designed by Prof. Ragner Ostberg, who had the architect's dream of unlimited funds and a free hand. Using 100 percent Swedish materials and decoration, he did not, to his everlasting credit, fall into the modern architect's trap of building something that is out of style next year. The result is a timeless modern-day palace of warm brick and stone that borrows from the best of all periods and wallows in none, as contemporary today as it was in 1923.

Fighting Poverty Is Involved Problem

DEAR DORIS: I belong to a community group which likes to take on a topic of current concern and make a study of it. We meet monthly, and between times we get some reading to do. Then we discuss it.

Lately we have been wondering about The War on Poverty, which is referred to in news items and so on. How do you wage a war on a thing like poverty? Where could we look for things to discuss about this? — STUDY GROUP SECRETARY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SECRETARY: Poverty is a hard concept to pin down. What it is, and what it does to people, physically, socially, spiritually, is being talked about all over the place.

One Canadian authority, Mr. Jack Finlay, says that the real poverty which sets in after many deprivations is the attitude of "What's the use?" Of "Who cares, anyway?" Then escape is sought through drink, drugs, dream fantasies, cheap novels.

To quote a professor of social work, Mr. Martin Rein (Bryn Mawr College):

"A famous violinist once told Groucho Marx that he had supported himself since the age of five. 'What were you before that, Groucho demanded to know, 'a bum?'

"All of us, even concert violinists, are dependent during major and important periods of our lives. No one finds this strange or reprehensible. What does cause rising and public concern is public dependency — even though it may apply to the same periods, and even sometimes to the same persons."

If you really want to toss some ideas around and come up with some of the answers to poverty, you could do worse than write for the document entitled "The War on Poverty in Hamilton."

Bound into about fifty pages of mimeographing (and available for $1.00) are the presentations of two panel discussions sponsored by the Central Ontario Branch of the Canadian Association of Social Workers. Plenty of meat here for a year's worth of enquiry. The participants include an educationist, a physician, a social worker, a public welfare administrator, a lawyer, and a labor union man; and there are some informative appendices at the end.

I'll be glad to pass on any requests accompanied by the money.

Upper Canada Village

Walk through the 1850 toll gate and escape into the tranquil world of Canada's historic past. When ladies wore hoop skirts and baked ginger cookies in the summer kitchen of the Loucks' farmhouse. Where the schoolmaster taught the three R's in the Glengarry log schoolhouse. And the local cabinetmaker fashioned pine and cherry furniture for the villagers. Upper Canada Village faithfully mirrors pioneer life in early Ontario. Best of all, it's a 'living museum.' The 1845 woollen mill produces soft blankets to sell at the Village Store; the sawmill turns logs into planks; the cheese factory makes nippy cheddar cheese. Nearby Crysler Farm Battlefield Park has memorials to Loyalist settlers and soldiers, set imposingly in its 2000 acres. Upper Canada Village, near Morrisburg, on highway 2, is open daily from May 14 until October 16.

170 miles of parks

Looking for something different to do these summer weekends? Try a circle tour along Ontario's shores. Enjoy the variety of historic and recreational sites found in the St. Lawrence Parks strung along the highway from Adolphustown, on the Bay of Quinte, to Glengarry Park, 6 miles west of the Quebec border. In Crysler Farm Battlefield Park you can inspect the railway museum, hop on the miniature train "The Loyalist", go horseback riding, and play golf on the new 18-hole Upper Canada golf course. Be sure to visit Old Fort Henry, near Kingston, Ont. Parks are open from May 13 until October 16. For further information, write the Public Relations Officer, The St. Lawrence Parks Commission, P.O. MR. AND MRS. GERALD VEZINA

Vezina – Walsh

On Saturday July 9, 1966 at 11 a.m. in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, Mary Theresa Walsh, daughter of Mr and Mrs. James C. Walsh, Belleville, was united in marriage to Michael Joseph Gerald Vezina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Vezina also of Belleville.

Very Rev. B. J. Walsh, uncle of the bride, officiated at the ceremony. The organist was Mr. Gary Fitzgibbon who played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mr. Clifford Hunt.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length Empire styled gown featuring flowered appliques on the long sleeved bodice. The dress was highlighted at the back with a flowing train extending from the shoulders and edged with flowered appliques. A shoulder length silk tulle veil flowed from a wedding ring headdress of tiny roses dotted with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of red roses interspersed with stephanotis.

Miss Catherine Walsh, sister of the bride as maid of honor and the bridesmaids Carol and Bernadette Walsh, also sisters of the bride and Miss Anne Culhane were identically attired in floor-length Empire styled gowns of turquoise crepe enhanced with wide elbow-length sleeves. They wore blue floral and lace headdresses and carried crescent bouquets of pink mums. Miss Sheila Walsh, sister of the bride as flower girl was dressed identically to the other attendants and carried a tiny basket of pink and white mums.

Mr. Jim Haley was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Martin Walsh, brother of the bride, Mr. Leonard Bach, cousin of the bride and Mr. Jay Kiser. The ring-bearer was Master James Walsh Jr., brother of the bride.

A reception dinner was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Belleville where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a white lace over pink satin A-line dress, pink and white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a two-piece turquoise lace ensemble, white and turquoise accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania the bride donned a yellow silk shantung two-piece ensemble, white and yellow accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Upon return from the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Vezina will live at 159 Rubidge Street, Peterborough.

Husband's Gift Leaves Wife Cool

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been burning about this for weeks and finally decided to write and get it off my chest.

My husband and I had a small dinner party a few days before Mother's Day. We are all couples in our middle 30's. Every man in the crowd makes at least $35,000 a year.

ANN LANDERS

The women started to talk about Mother's Day and whether or not it made any difference if they were remembered by their husbands as well as their children. Two of the women said they would feel very hurt if their husbands forgot them on Mother's Day. One woman said she resented the whole bit — that Mother's Day was a commercial holiday manufactured by merchants and she couldn't care less.

I said it's the thought that counts and any little gift — even a single rose would be appreciated. Well, on Mother's Day, guess what my husband gave me? A single rose. I don't know if this is his idea of a joke but I was very disappointed. He bought his own mother a pure silk robe that must have cost $100. What do you think of this? — NO LAUGHING MATTER.

DEAR NO LAUGHING: Obviously, you were playing to the gallery and you didn't mean what you said.

A single rose means "I love you" but it's apparent that you'd rather have had the cash.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say "amen" to your admonition to parents not to deprive their children of the pleasure of personal accomplishments.

So many mothers and fathers insist on doing things over for their children or they demand a degree of perfection that is impossible to attain. As a music teacher I have had a great deal of experience with such parents.

The mother who feels she must sit beside her children when they practise the piano to make certain all mistakes are recognized and corrected destroys something very precious. Small wonder so many kids hate to practice.

Children should be left alone to enjoy their efforts. They should be praised and encouraged, not harped at and criticized. The youngster who is driven and pushed may be an achiever, but the one who gets parental approval is far happier. — BIRD'S EYE VIEW.

DEAR BIRD: Thank you for your letter. It provided me with an opportunity to get this idea before my readers once again and I appreciate it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have been married four years. This is my first marriage and my husband was a widower. His wife died six years before we were married. She is buried about 500 miles from here.

In August we are taking our first real vacation since our honeymoon. My husband wants to drive 500 miles to visit his first wife's grave. I am hurt to think that he'd rather spend his vacation with something out of the past than with me. Am I wrong to refuse to go? — E.C.K.

DEAR E.C.K.: When you say, "spend his vacation visiting his wife's grave" you are distorting the facts. Surely your husband did not suggest a vacation at the grave.

Your husband probably wants to return to the city where he and his first wife once lived. He would, of course, visit his wife's grave which is perfectly all right. By all means make the trip with him, and when he goes to the cemetery, do something else for a few hours.

A TALE OF TALENT

"A thing created is loved before it exists." — Gilbert Keith Chesterton, (1874 - 1936.)

To be young, to be talented, to be going to England to study! Such are the gifts of youth!

All of which applies to Alan Barkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Barkley, 372 Bleecker Ave., who has been attending the University of Toronto, and recently received notice of his acceptance into the advanced sculpture course at St. Martin's School of Art in London.

Twenty-one-year-old Alan had applied for entrance into St. Martin's beginner's class. The school's authorities impressed with his qualifications, at once accepted him "in the advanced sculpture course" saying in tribute: " . . . and choose your own subjects."

Even as a student at B.C.I., we are told, Alan showed an interest in art in which his teacher, Mr. James Ritchie, "gave me needed encouragement".

Upon attending the university of Toronto, sculpture took over his interest and Alan became assistant to the 28-year-old Canadian sculptor, Ted Bieler, son of Professor Bieler, former Art Director of Queen's University.

Ted Bieler, by the way, instructor and lecturer on sculpture with the Department of Fine Art at the University of Toronto for the past three years, who has studied in France and England and has shown his work in many exhibitions, and represented in important Canadia collections, has for the last six years developed techniques for sculpturing in concrete.

He recently completed a commission for the Administration and News Building Expo 67. His work, entitled "Sleeping Giant" of cast concrete with color sculpture recently installed at Fort William's Lakehead Air Terminal was commissioned by the Transport Department

To return to Alan (who has been assistant to Ted Bieler for the past year and a half), in January of this year, he completed a wooden exterior sun screen for the architect firm of Craig, Zeidler, and Strong, located on Davenport Road, across from Casa Loma, in Toronto.

"How long is the sun screen?" we enquire of Alan's mother.

"The screen is 50 feet long all told, including the part that wraps around the porch of the building," Mrs. Barkley explains "It is four feet high, designed in 14 separate sections for ease in construction and hanging.

"The screen is a sculptural relief, but was designed "architecturally"; that is, the design or "look" of the screen is completely fused to the method of putting the screen together.

"It is made of redwood which is a beautiful wood as well as an excellent weathering material. The grain is almost perfectly parallel and when it weathers, the grain will slowly be raised into patterns of vertical striations.

"The screen was designed for the building housing the architect's firm (which, incidentally, designed the Belleville YMCA).

"The design took a month to complete but the screen was built in four days."

"Youth", according to Plato, "is the time for any extraordinary toil" and this along with talent such as Alan Barkley possesses gives Belleville pardonable interest and pride in following so promising a career, along with its very best wishes.

The photo of the sun screen was taken by Terry Shaw, a graduate of the University of toronto. Mr. Shaw has taken pictures for the brochures dealing with the forthcoming Expo 67 in Montreal.

Stories of Famou Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

GLORIOUS THINGS OF THEE ARE SPOKEN

Glorious things of thee are spoken,
Zion, city of our God;
He, whose word cannot be broken,
Formed thee for His own
abode;
On the Rock of Ages founded,
What can shake thy sure repose?
With salvation's walls surrounded
Thou may'st smile at all Thy foes.

See, the streams of living waters,
Springing from eternal love,
Well supply thy sons and daughters,
And all fear of want remove;
Who can faint, while such a river
Ever flows their thirst to assuage?
Grace which, like the Lord, the giver,
Never fails from age to age.

Round each habitation hov'ring,
See the cloud and fire appear
For a glory and a cov'ring, Showing that the Lord is near!
He who gives us daily manna,
He who listens to our cry,
Let him raise the glad hosanna,
Rising to His throne on high.

No collection of hymn stories is complete without at least one of John Newton's gems. The hymn which appears above is generally accepted as his best.

Written in the same decade that brought forth Augustus Toplady's immortal "Rock of Ages,'" Newton's masterpiece has found its way into the song books and hymnals of every church denomination. Few of its admirers, however, are familiar with the remarkable life story of its author.

As a boy, Newton was a wayward fellow and his interests were far from the church and religion. Many of his years as a youth were wasted in fast living. He lived a wild, hard life on an African slave ship and he had the reputation of being the roughest seaman in the crew.

In later years Newton made up for his early excesses. Converted to Christianity during a severe storm at sea, he was "appointed to preach the faith he had long labored to destroy," according to his own testimony. For nearly 16 years he served as curate of a parish at Olney, England and it was during this ministry that his famous friendship with the distinguished English poet, William Cowper, began. In 1779 he collaborated with Cowper in publishing the famous "Olney Hymns".

Soon afterward, he became rector of St. Mary Woolnoth parish in London. Before his death, in 1807, he wrote his own epitaph which, as he requested, was placed upon a plain marble tablet near the door of his London church. It said:

John Newton, Clerk
Once an infidel and Libertine,
A servant of slaves in Africa,
Was, by the rich mercy of our Lord and Saviour,
Jesus Christ,
Preserved, restored, and pardoned,
And appointed to preach the faith
He had long labored to destroy,
Near 16 years at Olney, in Bucks,
And . . . years in this church.
On Feb. 1, 1750, he married
Mary
Daughter of the late George Catlett of Catham, Kent
He resigned her to the Lord who gave her
On 15th of December, 1790.

Lines on Life

Sorrow Is Universal

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

After the atomic explosion had blasted Hiroshima, one man who survived without injury went visiting the maimed and the dying, and to each he apologized for not being hurt too.

To everyone who has ever been bereaved, who has suffered the loss of a beloved, the vision of this man suggests a profoundly moving and helpful thought.

Our ancestors seemed to know better than we that death is part of life's span. That's because they had a faith that helped them face death as well as life. They came to understand that while faith of itself did not give them all of the answers, it offered something fundamental and necessary. It taught them how to view life's problems.

While we moderns are still very certain of the inevitability of taxes, we often act as if we no longer held such a view regarding death.

Grief is a spiritual malady, and we learn one of its cures when we recognize that death and sorrow are universal. What is it that makes us respond with sympathy to that man of Hiroshima? From him we can begin to understand that there are times in life when it is possible to feel guilty because we have been spared the universal fate of other men.

And out of this understanding, when we ponder life carefully there often comes the recognition that even if all is well with us we must suffer because of the suffering of others.

And if we know sorrow because others know it, we also will know how to respond to it when it strikes at our own door.

Consider what happened to another man. He was in an automobile accident and in his convalescence was required to walk on crutches.

For the first time in his life, he said, he noticed how many cripples there were.

TWO COURSES

And so it can be with all of us. When death or tragedy comes, and fate compels us to use crutches, there are two courses we can take:

We can go all to pieces, pitying ourselves and seeking the sympathy of our neighbors. Or, we can forget our own crutches and see how many other people are limping.

If we follow the second course, we will find still another cure to that spiritual malady known as grief. We'll learn to give up concentrating on our feeling and go on to some kind of active doing. We get some help even if we do no more than attend to the ordinary affairs of living.

But more than this, if we are identified with some great cause, we are bound to receive in return infinitely more than we possibly can give — in satisfactions, fulfillments, and the joys that come from serving an ideal.

Sorrow's effect, it has been said, is like that of intense cold. When Napoleon's soldiers were retreating from Moscow, they paused to rest by the side of the road. They sought to take but a moment's sleep. But some never woke. They were frozen stiff.

If we do not know how to treat it, sorrow can be like the bitter cold of a northern winter. Stay inactive, keep telling yourself how terrible you feel, never get up and do, and you are lost — to yourself and to everyone else.

You've got to march on! You'll learn how by keeping your eye and your heart on the suffering in the world around you.

When we face sorrow heroically, marching on to keep pace with life's demands, we gain confidence by comforting others.

PAYS OFF CONSCIENCE

A Lift for Living

Summer Evening Prayer

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Lord of earth and Lord of heaven,
Lord of dawn and evening sky,
How brief this day has been!

How hurriedly is written the
Of one day's thoughts and passions and deeds!
How swiftly we journey through the hours!
How soon our labor is over
And sleep begins to dim the mind!

Now the slowing pulse of twilight
Drums out warnings of day's dying,
And we think how swiftly
Ebb and flow the tides of life.

Lord of all things great and small,
Lord of the centuries and the hastening day,
Lord of Eternity and the fleeting hour,
Make us ever mindful of the brevity of our lives,
As transient as a thrush's
quick, sweet song,
As short as a swallow's swift flight across a stream.

Help us to understand
That since we have such a little way
To travel together,
There is no time to waste
In fretfulness

Remind us daily
That most annoyances are not worth noticing;
Much of man's unkindness
Stems from inner turmoil
Which deserves our pity
Rather than our revenge;
Many slights can best be passed over
With forgiving silence
Let us not chafe and complain
When we are misunderstood,
Knowing that we do not even understand ourselves,
And remembering that Complete understanding is Thine alone.

Cause us to remember
That before we judge another
We should know much more than any of us do,
And before we judge as Thou dost judge
We should know all that Thou dost know.

Help us to learn
To leave the harsh words unsaid.
Let us draw back the veil of many a dim life
And let the hidden radiance shine forth.
May we remember that life is too short to be small,
But it is long enough to be kind.

AMEN

QUESTION: As a newcomer to this area I would be interested to learn more about Fort Henry — How it operates? How the young men are selected and trained? If they receive pay? Who receives the gate admission? If these men are regular army men, etc? Anything you can tell me would be very much appreciated. — B. A. F., Belleville

ANSWER: There is just no place in this 74-man army for the Ernie Bilkos and Gomer Pyles.

From mid-May to mid-September, these summer soldiers, hand-picked from Canadian universities, provide tens of thousands of visitors with daily displays of drill and with fife and drum music taken straight from British Army monuals of 1867.

Every day their cannon booms out from this century-old fortress overlooking the modern city of Kingston.

At London's Royal Tournament they have performed with crack units of modern army services. At Washington and Fort Henry they have provided stirring joint displays with the U.S. Marine Corps' proud headquarters units.

Their precision and discipline are the envy of military units, yet the guard has no connection with Canada's regular army services. In the truest sense of the word, it is a "summer army", hired and paid by the St. Lawrence Parks Commission which operates Fort Henry for the Ontario Government.

How then can the guard achieve the unique standards set for it?

The answer lies in recruiting and training. The 74 men who form the guard have been carefully selected from several hundred applicants. They have been chosen for their athletic ability, academic excellence, moral character, neat appearance, good height and compatibility.

It is no accident that many of them are stars of their university football, hockey or other teams. Not only do these sports provide the ideal type of candidate, but Guard training is a football coach's dream of summer conditioning.

WORK HARD

Making the Guard is a matter of pride for any student. But, it is an honor as the result of which he will work hard during his stay at the Fort.

As soon as university terms are ended, the Guard assembles at the Fort. For new recruits and returning veterans alike, there are two weeks of arduous trainiing.

Under veteran NCO's, the Guard will go through a schedule that includes foot and arm drill, field and garrison artillery procedures, training for sentry duty (the ability to stand unsmiling and still while tourists tease and photograph), and, of course, training in conducting tours through the historic Fort.

For six hours a day the rookie learns to march with arms held stiffly at his sides, hands open, palms to the rear and thumbs along the seams of the trousers. This must be done with his elbows lightly touching the man next to him, an 1867 manoeuvre necessary for moving troops through the blinding smoke of battle.

He will develop firm wrist muscles from carrying the long bayonet-tipped Snider Enfield in a straight up-and-down position, rather than the modern sloped arms attitude.

The rookie must learn quickly the intricate and difficult unison evolutions which make up the Guard's precision drill, and he will go through a tough daily PT program, including a run around the two mile outer roadway of the Fort.

His training will include handling and firing the Armstrong field guns and the 24 pound muzzle loaders of the Fort ramparts. At the end of the two weeks he also must know every detail of the history of the Fort and be able to handle all questions during guided tours.

His uniform, tailored for him at the Fort's own shop, is hardly designed to make life any more comfortable. Completely authentic to its 1867 original, it is made from heavy melton cloth complete with the fully-padded red tunic buttoned tightly at the neck and topped with binding and cross straps for the packs and weapons he will wear.

The opening of the Fort to the public simply marks one more phase of the training. Now in addition to the daily parades under the hot Ontario sun, the Guardsmen will continue the training course, take tours through the Fort, police the grounds and rooms to an immaculate state of cleanliness, and, somehow, find time for the varied sports program of the Fort. Off duty, under pain of dismissal, he is expected to conduct himself as an officer and a gentleman.

The Fort is a tough school, but it is one with few dropouts. Almost all the successful recruits return year after year, some even finding time after graduation to go back to Fort Henry for special parades and shows.

Two Men Die In Police Chase

KITCHENER (CP) — Warren Harold Habel, 20, and Dennis M. Mewhiney, 19, both of Kitchener, died Friday when their car slammed into a tree following a police chase.

Their car reached speeds of more than 80 miles an hour during the chase, which began shortly after midnight when a policeman saw the car being driven erratically.

The winner of two tickets to anywhere on Canadian Pacific Airlines 52,000-mile world route system was drawn in Vancouver recently by C.P.A's Women's Travel Representative, Miss Kay Simons, as Sales and Traffic Vice-President Bryan Renwick held the flight bag containing the entries from 25 Ontario cities. The contest was sponsored by Ontario newspapers participating in C.P.A's travel awareness program this spring. Winner was Alex Swartz, 243 North College, Sarnia. He selected South America as his destination and will be awarded two first-class round-trip tickets from Toronto plus $500 in cash.

screams, no outcries for help, during the time the killer bound and gagged the nine girls, herded them into a back room, and led them out one at a time to their deaths?

"There were some light outcries by the girls who came in late, but it wasn't much," Spiotto said Miss Amurao had told him.

An autopsy report showed the girls had not been drugged to prevent screams. Three of them arrived home after the killer had already gathered the other six into the rear room.

Spiotto said he believed the killer was no stranger to the area of the townhouse which served as a dormitory for the student nurses in training at a hospital about a mile away.

"I believe it was someone who knew the neighborhood," he said.

NEVER SAW HIM

Miss Amurao told police she never had seen the man before.

The autopsy report produced no evidence any of the victims had been molested sexually, said Coroner Andrew J. Toman. He said laboratory tests for conclusive findings would be available Wednesday.

All the same, police showed Miss Amurao photographs of about 200 sex offenders. She did not identify any of them, Spiotto said, but added "there are a few individuals we are very much interested in—some more than others."

The sketch drawn from Miss Amurao's description shows a crew-cut young man with high cheekbones, aquiline nose, jutting chin, narrow-set eyes beneath brows of medium thickness, and thin lips. She said he definitely was a white man and that his hair was "somewhere between blonde and black.

Detective Spiotto said the sketch had triggered scores of leads.

CHECK TIPS

He said his staff of 40, working around the clock with days off cancelled, plus 40 more detectives from other departments, were checking out more than 100 tips, many of them from other parts of the country.

Detectives had picked up about 50 suspects for questioning. None panned out.

Laboratory technicians were checking about 100 fingerprints lifted from the townhouse. They had to be sorted from the victims' own fingerprints and those of their frequent visitors.

employees involved in the dispute, while the Quebec Hospitals Association represents the 139 institutions with collective con tracts to be settled with the union.

The federation, affiliated with the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions, originally planned on pulling its members out of all the hospitals.

Then it changed to a stratagem of work stoppages at some of the institutions, with the number mounting gradually until all 139 hospitals were affected.

ASK $8 INCREASE

The federation is seeking an increase of $8 in the weekly salaries of all workers as part of a one-year contract while the hospitals were reported offering between $4.60 and $6.60 in a two-year pact.

The employees' average weekly wage has been $68.50.

Mr. Johnson has said he doubted whether government injunction to delay the walkouts "would be an efficient remedy in the present circumstances.".

The hospitals had discharged most or all their non-urgent cases in preparation for the strike.

Patients were allowed to pass through picket lines freely on the strike's first day.

Madoc

MADOC — The congregation and Church School of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church held an open air service and parish picnic at O'Hara's Mill last Sunday afternoon. Following choruses and illustrated talks, the church school pupils were given their awards and certificates. They were, Teddy Delange, Monica Delange, Carla Delange, Nicola Mary Thompson, Peter John Thompson, Jack Reynolds, Mary Jo Reynolds, Carol Reynolds, Joyce Brownson, Gayle Brownson, Linda Barton, Ann Barton, Gary Barton, Lyle Alit, Dale Alit, Debbie Moon, Laraine Parsons, Linda West, Billy Carman, Ann Carman, Brenda Robinson, Terry Robinson.

Miss Joan Brownson left for Montreal for two weeks to stay with a French Canadian family in the student exchange program.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Danford have recently returned from motoring across Canada to the west coast.

The congregations of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church and Trinity United Church are holding services alternately in their respective churches during July and August, enabling their clergy to get away for their holidays.

The Madoc Lawn Bowling Club is now in full activity again. The greens are in excellent condition. A jitney night was held by the club, with the highest score going to Mrs. Ted Naylor with 22; second 20, for C. Buskard and Percy Naylor; third, 19, for Mrs. R. Taylor and Mrs. L. Felber. Several members have entered various tourneys.

CENTENNIAL MEETING

A meeting was held in the Town Hall, Madoc, to plan a centennial year program. Those present were: Mrs. Dorothy Howell, chairman, Women's Activities, Centennial Planning for Hastings County; Mrs. York, Belleville; Mrs. Vera Hill, representing the Women's Institute; Mrs. Ruby Brintnell; Mrs. Myrtle Gates; Mrs. Bertha Ellis; Miss Olive Ashe; James Kellar; Hugh McLeod; Doug Pigden; Don Bristol; Delbert Carman and Don Love.

Acting chairman Vera Hill, welcomed those present and introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Howell.

Mrs. Howell gave a short talk on centennial planning and showed the film "67 Ideas for '67." Following the film, Mrs. Howell led in a discussion and many ideas were brought forth.

Property owners are urged to clean up, paint up and plant flowers and shrubs.

Those present were enthused with the many ideas, but with the few persons present, it was felt that a committee could not be formed at this time. However, Mr. James Keller, President of the Chamber of Commerce was appointed chairman pro-tem and it is hoped a committee will be formed in the near future. Mrs. Hill thanked Mrs. Howell for an informative evening.

No Quick Correction in Sight For Goof by Stock Analysts

By GORDON GRANT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Six months ago most stock market analysts were predicting 1966 would be a good year. Their optimism has so far proved unfounded.

January started the year on the right foot with prices moving to new highs daily but the market hasn't been the same since.

Stocks have slid lower with only brief and unimpressive rallies, the result of activities of bargain-hunters.

Some analysts still talk of a possible sharp summer rally but others say we're in for a bear market.

"Canadian stocks are pretty low now but I can't think of any reason for them to move up," says Paul Henry, analyst with Bongard Leslie in Toronto.

"There are, of course, some good buys but selectivity is the key. I certainly don't think the market as a whole can go much lower except maybe for some hysterical sell-off. But the market needs some sort of stimulus to make it go higher and at the moment I can't see anything."

Ted Walker of Gairdner and Co. in Toronto says the market has already had its decline and the time now is ripe for buying blue chip stocks at discount prices.

H. S. Wheeler, chairman of the Canadian Stock Exchange in Montreal, says good earnings, which he expects companies to show for the first half, will attract investors.

SELL-OFF POSSIBLE

"The tendency of the market at this point certainly seems to be toward the upside rather than the downside.

"On the other hand the old uncertainties — Viet Nam, the fear of runaway inflation, strength or lack of it in the pound—are still with us and new ones such as flagging automobile sales, high inventories and a tight money situation are boring away at investor enthusiasm.

"Should the above-mentioned ills become more serious, a sharp sell-off . . . is certainly a possibility that must be reckoned with."

J. T. Thompson, chairman of the Montreal Stock Exchange, says "caution rather than exuberance will probably continue to be the keynote for some months to come."

Vancouver officials and analysts are reluctant to make predictions for the next six months. J. A. Van Luven foresees greater activity in mines, with more news forthcoming from properties, but other than that he "couldn't say."

The Toronto industrial index, a measurement of the price movement of a group of key stocks, now is about five points lower than at the start of the year. And the same holds true for Montreal and Vancouver.

GOLDS HIGHER

However, the first six months haven't been all gloom. There have been numerous bright spots. For example, the Toronto Stock Exchange gold index has jumped about 20 points.

"Whenever the market goes into a general decline gold stocks rise. It isn't necessarily brilliant thinking to switch into golds, but they have a reputation for being defensive issues," says Mr. Henry.

Oils were probably the high spots of markets, with Calgary doing more business than it had since 1952.

Cause of the action was discovery of a huge new oilfield in the Rainbow Lake area of Alberta.

Banff Oils, Scurry Rainbow and Imperial Oil traded sharply higher among producers while smaller companies such as Leduc-Calmar, Monterey Petroleum, Dynamic and Spooner were the pick of the juniors.

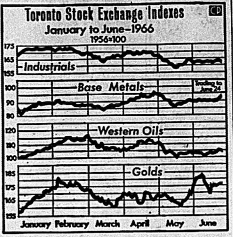
Volume on the Calgary Stock Exchange in the first six months totalled 63,000,000 shares with a value of more than $25,000,000 compared with 19,400,000 and $5,600,000 in the same period last year.

Volume on the Toronto Stock Exchange climbed in the first six months to about 584,000,000 shares from 505,000,000 shares due to increased oil speculation and an early-year flurry in mining issues.

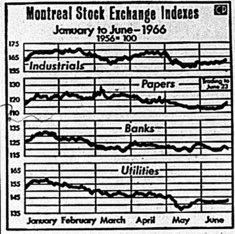
D'Eldona traded frantically as early drill results from its copper prospect in Rouyn, Que., looked promising, in a two-week period in January it traded more than 9,000,000 shares and climbed to $3.40. Later results didn't live up to expectations and it now sells around 60 cents.

In Vancouver, Rolling Hills Mines jumped to a high of $3.10 from 37 cents in January on rumors it had struck it rich in the Pine Point area of the Northwest Territories. The rumors were wrong and the stock now is around 40 cents.

Senior copper producers have been strong as the price of the metal has jumped on overseas markets to 62½ cents a pound from 45 cents. And while this means larger profits for the companies, they are concerned that users will move into substitutes for some of their products.



NO GAINS — Toronto stocks moved in fits and starts in the first six months of this year with the indexes making little headway. And many analysts think the rest of the year won't be much better.
(CP Newsmap)



QUIET MARKET — Montreal stocks experienced little net change in the first six months of year although banks were lower because of uncertainties about changes in the new Bank Act. Many analysts think there will be little change in the market in the next six months. (CP Newsmap)

CALLUP NEEDED

Daley and King met Friday and agreed on several moves aimed at reducing tensions: Equipping fire hydrants with sprinklers so citizens can cool off in hot weather; requesting federal funds for swimming pools and other recreational facilities in Negro areas; appointment of a citizens committee to recommend changes in police procedures; appointment of political precinct workers to walk streets urging an end to violence; equal access to public swimming pools for all persons.

A University of Chicago sociologist, Morris L. Janowitz, discussing the outbreak with an interviewer, said: "It is not within the capacity of the police to deal with these problems because we have permitted wide distribution of arms, unlike every other civilized country in the world."

URGES AMNESTY

He urged a three-week amnesty in which citizens be urged to turn in their guns.

Market in Summer Doldrums As Uranium Fever Subsides

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Trading was quiet on Canada's stock exchange this week as the recent boom in uranium issues faded and investors headed for their summer resorts.

At Toronto, a total of 16,466,000 shares changed hands compared with 14,212,000 last week.

One analyst said that market activity is usually quieter in the summer because "many investors turn their thoughts to vacations instead of the stock market."

Uraniums cooled when rumors were denied that a West Germany delegation was carrying an order form for a large quantity of the precious metal.

The nine-man delegation arrived in Canada Tuesday to investigate the possibility of buying uranium.

SALES UNLIKELY

However, a spokesman for Eldorado Mining and Refining, the Crown corporation for marketing uranium, emphasized that no immediate sales are likely. And besides, such visits aren't unusual.

Other rumors that have helped push the price of the stocks higher include the lifting of the United States embargo on imports of uranium by 1970. The present embargo isn't due to expire until 1975.

At Toronto, Denison climbed 1⅝ to 61⅞ although it reached a high of 65 before falling back Roman Corp., which holds a large block of Denison shares, added ¼ to 15¼. Rio Algom, the country's second largest producer, dipped ¼ to 27.

Among other base-metal issues, Inco was up 2⅛ to 98¼, Falconbridge ⅛ to 97 while Cominco dropped ⅝ to 40¾ and Noranda ⅛ to 53½.

Quebec Natural Gas, which was fifth in this week's most actively traded industrials, fell 1⅜ to 13½ when discussions were broken off with Northern and Central Gas concerning the possibility of a takeover of the Quebec firm. Northern was up ⅛ to 13⅛.

The industrial index, which measures key stock movements, dropped .60 to 162.29.

Among other industrials, Alcan Aluminium was down 2 to 36⅛, CPR and Westcoast Transmission 1⅛ each to 63 and 27½ and Bathurst Power and Paper ⅞ to 29½.

Massey - Ferguson advanced 1⅜ to 36⅜ and Anthes A ½ to 28.

Banks continued their decline as Finance Minister Sharp's changes to the Bank Act are expected to run into heavy opposition in Parliament.

MONTREAL OFF ⅛

Montreal was off ⅛ to 58¼, Nova Scotia ¾ to 68¾, Toronto-Dominion ⅝ to 61⅞ and Imperial-Commerce ½ to 62½. Royal edged up ⅜ to 73½

Golds scored the largest gains and the gold index shot up 9.58 to 183.64. It reached a 1966 high of 187.21 before falling back.

Dome paced the group, climbing 2⅛ to 50⅜, Kerr-Addison added 1¼ at 11⅝, Campbell Red Lake 1 at 25 and Giant Yellowknife ¾ at 13⅜.

Western oils were weaker with Canadian Superior off 1⅛ to 19⅜, Pacific Petroleum ⅝ to 11¾ and Scurry Rainbow ¼ to 30½.

Quebec Mattagami highlighted speculative activity, rising 28 to 50 cents on 1,792,944 shares. Brokers say they don't know the reason for the increase.

On index, base metals were up 1.36 to 97.77 while western oils dipped .47 to 104.04 and the tse .31 to 154.64.

At Montreal, industrials were down .36 to 161.67, utilities .28 to 142.06, banks .55 to 118.63 and papers .52 to 116.38.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

By the time this edition is begged, borrowed, bought or stolen Moe the Norman conqueror may have added another feather to his crowded cap.

Currently Moe is the hottest golfing heat wave to hit the provincial open pastures. He has the British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba scalps dangling on his trophy belt, and at this writing bids fair to tack on the Ontario Open.

And here's a hot fluff of news for golfing buffs of the city and district:

I have it on excellent authority that Mr. Norman will display his driving and putting prowess at the Bay of Quinte Country Club's Festival of Golf slated for the Civic Holiday weekend.

Moe is no stranger to the country club course. He has played, I believe in the last two festivals, and while he didn't win, made a host of friends among the golfing faithful.

Mr. Norman who can adopt the role of putting green clown prince if needs be, delighted a coterie of golfing moppets his last time here with his mastery of trick shots. He had the sub-teeners in spasms of delight and they paid the master due homage.

There are reasons to believe a fine field of pros will round out the fine card programmed by the Festival Committee.

The club pro George Balazs told me he would contact many of his golf buddies during the Ontario Open. Those that have played the course were impressed and this is evidenced in the return appearances of practically all who played in the inaugural.

But there's another side to the golf story and it comes from Al Balding, 42, the pro-at Toronto's Markland Wood. Balding has spent ten years on the U.S. tour. He suffered a shoulder injury and has been off and on the tour for some time. He plans to enter the St. Paul's open come back to Toronto for the Millar and return to the tour.

Balding believes, he recently told a reporter, that a touring pro should stay at that. "You can't do both — pro at a golf course and be a touring pro."

Balding had a gripe. He said he was convinced that the golf people in this country are doing far too little to encourage and promote the sport. He said he didn't see any new Canadians cracking the U.S. tour. He and Stan Leonard, he told his interviewer, were the first top Canadians and George Knudson could be the last.

"There is no season here, no golf program and no sponsor" Balding said. "It's getting too tough to break into the circuit. It is necessary to qualify for the pro circuit by attending the U.S. PGA school in Florida each winter."

"You play 108 holes, six rounds at the school and you have to qualify by finishing among the top ten scorers. In a nutshell the PGA has become so big and has so many candidates the list has to be cut," Balding said.

"What it means" he went on, "is that you have to be a topflight golfer to start with. But how are Canadians going to develop the necessary skill and talent when they don't get a chance to play?"

Balding feels the people who run golf in Canada do not have enough tournaments. There aren't enough sponsors to make competition worth while, he says. Officials are having a hard time lining up courses for major events.

"The pros and television gave golf the big lift it has enjoyed, but the people who run the game in this country don't want to put anything into it," Balding said.

The two great Canadian amateurs Nick Weslock and Gary Cowans are not interested in the tour, Balding said. Moe Norman doesn't care and "I'm awed by the big name golfers when I am on tour."

THE "CHIEF" IS BETTER

Former Fire Chief Gerald Vance phones from the hospital where he has been incarcerated for the past six weeks with a heart condition to say, "I'm feeling a lot better and expect to be home the first of next week."

He won't be back at his old familiar spot as head of the Quinte Driving Club for a week or so, but he's champing at the bit waiting for the "They're Off" shout.

Take it easy, y'old guffer. Old turkeys like you and me do not improve with age. Ole "Sulky" has done a grand job for you, so slow up and don't try for any new "track" records.

Best of luck and health from "all of us."

Tiger Hurler Pinch-Hits 3-Run Homer

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who says a pitcher's place is on the mound? Not Earl Wilson.

Six hurlers performed for the Detroit Tigers Friday during their 8-5 victory over Baltimore Orioles, but only five were to be found in their normal environs in the centre of the diamond.

The sixth, Wilson, made his contribution at the plate with a pinch-hit, three-run, 13th-inning, two-out home run.

Bill Monbouquette, who worked the four final innings perfectly, got the victory, while Stu Miller, the last of the mere three pitchers Baltimore used, took the loss. Monbouquette's performance had the added dimension of his twice having faced both Frank and Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell without a mistake.

It was the American League leading Orioles' fourth loss in a row and their second straight to the Tigers who have climbed to within six games of first place. Don Wert sent the game into overtime with a two-run single with two oust in the ninth.

In other American League games, Minnesota Twins edged Washington Senators 5-4, Kansas City Athletics came from behind to get New York Yankees 5-4, Chicago White Sox beat Cleveland Indians 4-2 and California Angels nudged Boston Red Sox 4-2.

Wilson, who like Monbouquette came to Detroit from Boston, added to his modest reputation as a hitter. The home run was his third for the year and he has 10 runs batted in as well as a batting average, .280, that many full-time hitters might envy.

Minnesota's Don Mincher broke open a tie ball game with a run-scoring single in the eighth inning after two were out. Harmon Killebrew, who had singled, scored the decisive run.

Danny Cater's two-run double in the eighth gave Kansas City the runs they needed after New York had scored a pair of unearned runs in the sixth. In the ninth, the Athletics went into a zany four-outfielder defense that may or may not have meant something. At least the Yanks didn't score.

Tom McCraw cracked a single in the seventh to drive in Chicago's winning run. John Romano had opened the inning with a homer that tied the score. Bruce Howard, after a shaky start, retired the last 20 men he faced.

California moved into third place as George Brunet picked up his 10th victory of the season despite homers by Joe Foy and Rico Petrocelli. Rick Reichert scored one run and drove in another.

BC Athletes Share Ten Titles

HAMILTON (CP)—They call them the Canadian amateur swimming championships, but it's a British Columbia show.

Swimmers from B.C. continued to dominate the championships and the British Empire Games trials Friday with Elaine Tanner of Vancouver and Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., taking turns occupying the spotlight.

Miss Tanner, a 15-year-old high school student, broke her fourth Canadian native and open record in three days, clocking 2:33.1 in the 220-yard butterfly, one second better than her previous mark set two weeks ago in Vancouver.

Gilchrist, 20, a third-year business student at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, shattered the Canadian and native open record in the 220-yard individual medley with a time of 2:20.5 in the finals. He also broke the record in his heat earlier in the day with a 2:22.1 clocking.

The former open record of 2:24.7 was set two years ago by Ted Leovitch at Tacoma, Wash., and the previous native mark of 2:25.4 was set in 1964 by Aldy Meinhardt of Vancouver.

RELAY RECORDS FALL

Two other Canadian and native open marks toppled Friday, both to Vancouver relay teams. The Dolphins Swim Club team covered the 440-yard medley relay distance in 4:57.3, four-tenths of a second better than the previous mark set by the same club two years ago.

On the team were Miss Tanner, backstroke, Pat Gibson, breaststroke, Jane Hughes, butterfly, and Sylvia Bockerill, freestyle. Miss Tanner, Miss Gibson and Miss Hughes also swam on the 1964 team.

The Vancouver YMCA Torpedoes, made up of Bruce Sutherland, backstroke, Bill Mahoney, breaststroke, Brad Jacks, butterfly, and Ron Jacks, freestyle, set a record of 4:21.7 in the men's 440-yard medley relay. The former record, 4:25.5 was set in 1964 by the Toronto University Settlement Club which finished second Friday night, one-tenth of a second behind Vancouver.

The meet ends today with the selection of the Canadian swimming and diving team for the British Empire Games in Kingston, Jamaica, next month and B.C. competitors have all but clinched most of the swim berths.

WIN 18 FINALS

Led by Gilchrist, Miss Tanner and Ralph Hutton, an 18-year-old native of Ocean Falls attending high school in Los Altos, Calif., west coast swimmers have won 18 of the 22 finals staged so far.

Miss Tanner has won five of nine women's individual finals—the 110 and 220-yard backstroke, the 220-yard butterfly, 440 freestyle and 440 individual medley.

Including heats, the five-foot-two, 115-pound brunette has won 12 of 13 individual races and been on two winning relay teams. She also set records in the 220 backstroke with a time of 2:34.1, the 40 freestyle in 4:46.4 and the 440 individual medley in 5:27.2

Between them Gilchrist and Hutton have won eight of nine men's individual finals. Gilchrist has won the 110 and 220 freestyle and 220 and 440 individual medleys while Hutton has taken the 110 and 220 backstroke, 220 butterfly and 440 freestyle.

Hutton won the 220 backstroke Friday and has set two records this week—a native mark of 4:19.0 in the 440 freestyle and an open and native record of 1:03.0 in the 110 backstroke. Earlier in the week, Gilchrist broke the 220 freestyle record with a 2:02.1 clocking.

Miss Tanner's only loss was to Marion Lay, another Vancouver resident, in the 110 freestyle Friday night. Miss Tanner finished second.

The B.C. swimmers have set all 10 national records that have fallen so far this week.

Jerome Ties World Mark

By JOHN SHORT

HARRY JEROME

EDMONTON (CP) — Counted out by many observers as a factor in world track, Harry Jerome, of Vancouver, burst back into recognition as one of the world's fastest humans Thursday when he tied a world record in the 100-yard dash. . .

Jerome, 26, covered the distance in 9.1 seconds to tie a record set by American Bob Hayes in 1963 at St. Louis. Hayes now plays flanker for Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and is ineligible to compete in track.

About 1,200 fans were on hand for the first day of the 1966 Canadian track and field championships and British Empire Games trials and watched Jerome win without stress.

Two watches timed him at 9.1 and the third at nine seconds flat. He has rebounded from several leg injuries and failures at key intervals in his career.

Jerome cruised through his first heat in 9.8 and a semi-final victory in 9.6, but close friends warned "he wants a good time in the final."

He got what he wanted—in a manner that almost caused observers to forget three Canadian records were set and one other was matched on a day when temperatures passed 80 and performances were almost uniformly good.

SHARE WORLD RECORD

Jerome and Hayes now share the world 100 yard mark. They also hold the world record of 10 seconds flat for 100 metres in conjunction with Armin Hary of West Germany and Horacio Esteve of Venezuela

Hary was the first to run the 100 metres in 10 seconds. Jerome matched the time during trials for the 1960 Rome Olympics and Hayes posted his time while winning the event at the 1964 Olympics at Tokyo.

Jerome is unsure whether he will travel to Kingston, Jamaica, next month with Canada's BEG team because he may decide to continue summer classes. He said it might be possible for someone to run 100 yards in nine seconds flat but would not commit himself when asked whether he could run any faster.

"It would depend on the weather, the competition, the track—so many things."

He praised the special-composition track, made of rubberized asphalt, on which the races are staged. "It definitely helps a sprinter. It's a little springier."

Jerome will compete today in the 220-yard dash and the 440-yard relay. After the competitions end today, officials will meet to discuss the makeup of the Canadian team to be entered at Kingston Aug. 4-13.

Certain to be highly considered are Dave Steen of Burnaby, B.C., Zenon Andrusyshyn of Oakville, Ont., Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver, Marjorie Turner of Winnipeg and Lockport, N.S., and Cathy Chapman and Bill Gairdner of Toronto.

NHL New Teams

Sponsor Junior Loops

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — Owners and general managers of the six new teams in the expanded National Hockey League Friday voted to commit the new division to sponsorship of one or more Junior A leagues in the United States and Canada.

Representatives from Los Angeles, San Francisco - Oakland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Minnesota met during a three-day meeting.

Friday's action cleared the decks for a meeting Saturday with Jerry DeLise and Ken Ullyot, representatives of the International Hockey League. The IHL and the NHL's new division will discuss the possibility of a working agreement between the two leagues which will make the IHL a full professional league.

A meeting is scheduled Sunday with Minnesota hockey and civic officials to study the possibility of a Junior A league in the state.

A division spokesman said: "We also will discuss a proposal made to us by an established Junior A league which wants to arrange a working agreement with the division."

SKIERS ARRIVE

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Canada's ski team has arrived to begin training for the Alpine ski championships to be held in Portillo, Chile, early next month. Team coach Dave Jacobs, 31, of Montreal said the team's five women and eight men are in good condition and predicted they will make a good showing.

Four Riders Spilled At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—Four riders were spilled among the hooves of a field of horses during the running of the second race at Woodbine race track Friday.

One jockey was knocked unconscious and another bruised.

The accident occurred on the final turn of the five-furlong race.

Jockey Noel Turcotte was moving up to make a bid for the lead when his mount Rascoe, clipped the heels of Open Page.

Rascoe stumbled then fell heavily, throwing Turcotte forward. Sunday Cruz, with Chris Steve in the saddle, tumbled over Roscoe. Then Dennis Magner, with George Gordon riding, fell over Sunday Cruz.

Jockey Gordon Nedeau's mount, Ann B. Good, was hit by one of the horses and knocked off stride. Nedeau lost his balance and also tumbled to the track.

Nedeau was knocked unconscious and forced to cancel his remaining two mounts. Turcotte suffered bruised ribs and also was forced to rest.

Gordon rode again, winning the fifth race with Baden-Baden, a five-year old gelding Turcotte was to have ridden.

Avelino Gomez again rode three winners on the eight-race card, giving him a total of 36 victories in 35 days. He won with Larkspur Lady in the second, combining with Longshot Alirahni for an $86.80 daily double, Cole Harbor in the sixth and Matt H in the eighth.

The exactor of Cole Harbor and Chopolis was worth $6.90.

CANCEL RACES

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Motor Racing club announced Friday that the national championship races scheduled for July 31 at Le Circuit St. Jovite-Mont Tremblant, 80 miles north of Montreal, have been cancelled because of lack of funds.

BUFFALO (AP) — Jack Kemp, voted the American Football League's most valuable player last season, has signed the largest contract ever offered a Buffalo Bills player. The AFL champions declined to disclose the salary terms but it was reported Kemp, a quarterback, would receive between $40,000 and $45,000.

Defeats Marlene In Thriller

Pamela Miller Wins Open

TORONTO (CP)—In a storybook finish, underdog Pamela Miller of Oshawa won the Ontario ladies open golf championship Friday by sinking a 60-foot chip shot from the edge of the green on the first extra-hole of a playoff.

Miss Miller, who has played only four seasons of golf, defeated Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto Fonthill one up in a nip-and-tuck final round.

After holding the lead for most of the 36-hole final, Miss Miller dropped behind on the 33rd hole. She stayed behind within one shot until the 36th when her tee shot dropped into a sand trap.

Cooly, she halved the hole and sent the match into extra holes.

Her chip shot on the first extra hole of the tournament gave her a birdie three while Mrs. Streit was par four.

"When I saw that shot go in I wanted to cry," said Miss Miller. "But I thought what if she sinks her putt?"

"I would have died if it went 38."

BEAT FAVORITES

Miss Miller, 18, a member of the Ontario girl's junior team, defeated favorites in each of her matches. She was rated as an underdog going against Mrs. Streit, who was seeking her fifth Ontario title.

In the first 18 holes of the final, Miss Miller forged ahead with a five-hole lead. She increased the lead to six on the 19th, but Mrs. Streit steadied to pick up three holes to put her back in the match.

Putting troubles hit Miss Miller on the last 18 as she was forced to take a two-stroke penalty on the 23rd while Mrs Streit birdied the hole to put her within one.

Miss Miller went two up on the 26th, but Mrs. Streit, playing a calm and steady game, whittled away until she pulled even on the 26th.

Miss Miller missed a five-foot putt on the 33rd hole and Mrs. Streit scored a birdie four and pulled ahead for the first time in the match.

It appeared at this point that Mrs. Streit would hold her lead, but Miss Miller settled down and pulled even on the last hole to set the stage for her triumph.

Hungary Beats Brazil In 3-1 Upset

Over-Confidence

LONDON (AP) — Brazil's eight-year reign as a giant of world soccer today rests on a single match and one man named Pele.

The world champions, defeated 3-1 Friday by a Hungarian side, next take the field against Portugal Tuesday.

It is a match they have to win and such are the complexities of World Cup soccer that even victory may not be enough to ensure Brazil a place in the quarter-final round.

With three games played in Group Three, Portugal, Brazil and Hungary are tied with two points each, Bulgaria has none.

If the series ends with three teams holding four points, each goal average will be the decider. That means Brazil must beat Portugal.

Friday, Brazil paid the price for over-confidence.

STAR SAT IT OUT

Perhaps remembering Pele's early injury in the 1962 series and their last bruising battle with the Hungarians in 1954, the Brazilians left their greatest star resting in his hotel room, while his colleagues went down to their first World Cup defeat since 1954.

In other matches Friday Uruguay defeated a demoralized French team 2-1, Spain came from behind to beat Switzerland, also by 2-1, and North Korea snatched a 1-1 draw against Chile with a goal two minutes from time.

Key matches today are Argentina vs. West Germany at Birmingham, Portugal vs. Bulgaria at Manchester, and Italy vs. Russia at Sunderland. In the evening, England and Mexico clash at Wembley Stadium.

The Hungarians, olympic champions, and Brazil fought out an even first half, each scoring a goal with fierce but scrupulously fair attacking football.

The second half was different. Florian Albert, the Hungarian centre forward, erupted.

PASSES BRILLIANT

Still another classic move brought Hungary's third goal. Albert and Bene weaved a chain of unbeatable passes along the right wing until inevitably Bene was brought crashing down inside the penalty area.

Meszoly took the kick and fired it swift and sure to Gymar's right.

For Brazil, the chips are down and it will need all Pele's genius to bring the champions through to the quarter-finals and beyond.

For Hungary, the summit of world soccer is again within grasp. On Friday's form, no team in the world could stop them. They played with exactly the style of the Hungarians who beat England in the historic Wembley exhibition match of 1953.

Today, if Bulgaria beats Portugal, and its form against Brazil suggests it can, each team in the section will have two points and anything can happen in the closing matches.

England goes ito its Group one match with Mexico knowing it must win, for two reasons: First—to be assured of a place in the quarter-finals. Second—to convince the players that the goals and penetration are still not locked up in the Uruguay powder-blue blanket defence.

Italian team manager Emondo Fabbri hinted he might field an entirely new team against Russia compared with the side that played Chile two days ago.

He said inside right Giacomo Bulgarelli would be definitely out and forecasted other changes.

This was interpreted as a sign that the team manager was at least planning to make a spectacular benching: That of star forward Giovanni Rivera. The 20-year-old "golden boy" of Italian soccer performed disappointingly against Chile.

Brazil Balloon Burst

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP)—"A night of drizzle and high drama," writes the Daily Mail's Ronald Crowther.

And the World Cup seems a wide-open race after Hungary's brilliant 3-1 upset Friday of the rulers of the soccer world, Brazil.

The myth was shattered. It was Brazil's first loss in World Cup soccer since 1954.

Fans and critics were overjoyed, not just by the downfall of the mighty, but also by a thrilling match that raised memories of the days when the Hungarians were the shining lights of European soccer.

The Hungarians "won themselves the greatest following any foreign team has had on British soil," writes Clive Toye in the Daily Express.

EARNED NICKNAME

"And the Liverpool thousands, packed damp and cold into Goodison Park, warmed the night with their appreciation of a Hungarian team once again earning its age-old title, the Magical Magyars."

Dereck Potter writes in The Express that the Hungarians played "football of elegance and menace."

"Passes long, short and nearly always lethal were stabbed across the soggy turf with such precision that Brazil were exposed as fallible and not soccer invincibles after all."

For that extra touch of drama, the fans saw Mezsoly, who scored Hungary's third goal on a penalty kick, go down with a serious shoulder injury with 10 minutes to go—then rush back on to the field three minutes later to play with his arm in a sling.

As Crowther writes: "No Hungarian wanted to miss any part of this great moment."

While Hungary got the lion's share of attention, it was a full night in the World Cup, with games in each of the four round-robin series that will cut the field of 16 countries to eight for the quarter-finals.

"Uruguay CAN score goals," is the surprised headline in The Express after the team that held England to a scoreless tie Monday in the first game defeated France 2-1 Friday.

The 1-1 draw between North Korea and Chile was judged unskillful but exciting by critics.

Derek Hodgson says in The Express: "It is absurd for Chile and North Korea to be in the last 16 while Scotland and Czechoslovakia stay at home."

Ontario Open

Homenuik Tops 'Moe' By Stroke

KINGSTON (CP) — Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg Canadian Professional Golfers Association champion, shot a 68 in the second round of the Ontario Open Friday to move in front of the field by one shot.

Homenuik played steady golf to duplicate his first round score. He got 16 pars and two birdies. He missed two more birdie putts of less than three feet which would have given him a more commanding lead going into the final 18 holes today.

First - round leader Moe Norman of Gilford's Golf Haven slipped to a one-over-par 71 Friday after shooting a four-under-par 66 Thursday. The jovial gallery favorite had troubles with his putter—three putting the second and 15th holes. Norman was less than five feet from the cup on the par three second and three putted for a one-over-par four.

Homenuik's 36 - hole total is 136, with Norman one shot off the pace at 137.

Two golfers tied for third place at 140. Bob Panasiuk, Windsor Hydeaway pro, and amateur Doug Mossop of Lambton were each a shot ahead of an amateur twosome of Ernie Bentley of Weston and defending champion Nick Weslock of Mississauga, tied at 141.

MATCHES FIRST ROUND

Mossop matched his opening round 70 while Panasiuk bettered his first round 72 by shooting a two-under-par 68 Friday.

Despite the presence of a steady wind which made the narrow fairways even narrower for an errant drive, scores for the second round were generally lower than Thursday's.

Amateur Garry Cowan of Kitchener moved into sole possession of sixth place with an even - par 70 and 36-hole total of 142. Four players are close behind him at 143. Bobby Breen of Pine Valley Bill Mawhinney of Willowdale, amateur Paul Williams of Burlington and Gerry Proulx are all tied in seventh - place.

The field was cut to the low 60 and ties Friday for today's final round which includes 22 amateurs and 42 professionals.

Two members of the 1965 Willingdon Cup team failed to survive the cutoff. Tom McAllister of Pine Valley scored a 161 and Stu Hamilton of Brampton was eliminated with a 158. Another contender, Bruce Castator of Weston, was eliminated with a 155 total.

Former open winner Jules Hout of Mt. Bruno, Que., voluntarily disqualified himself from further play when he inspected the scoreboard Friday morning. He was down for a 76 but realized he had shot 77. When his scorecard was checked it was found he had erred when he shot a five and put down a four.

Balazs Cards 148 In Two Bowerman 147

George Balazs, Bay of Quinte Country Club pro may not win the Ontario Open, but he's turning in a highly creditable performance.

He shot a 75 in the second round yesterday to card a two-round score of 148. This was 12 strokes off the pace set by Wilf Homenuik, who led the pack with a 136.

Gary Bowerman of Richmond Hill formerly of this city fired a fine 71 to give him a two-round score of 147.

Balazs was tied in tenth spot with Gus Blair, Toronto; Gary Maue, Woodbridge, Ron Bolus, Hamilton and Ken Duggan, Milken. He was a stroke better than such top names as Phil Brownlee, Frank Whibley, Jack Kay and Don Hill.

The Bay of Quinte pro was tops of golfers of the district. Cataraqui's home pro B. Ryan carded a 153; Doug Bowen, Peterborough, had the same score; Doug Robertson, Trenton RCAF finished with a 155.

Bowerman turned in a better score in the second round firing a 71 to go with his first round 76.

Shoots Ace In Kingston

Robert Callow's philosophy today is likely: "Anyone can break 100 but how many can shoot a hole in one?".

Callow, of 12B Moira Street golfed at Kingston's Glen Lawrence Club Friday.

He carded a neat hole-in-one but apparentlyy didn't fare near as well on the rest of the course.

Par is 72.

Callow's score was 102.

Footsteps Of Dear Old Dad

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob Storey, son of former hockey referee Red Storey, is to try out with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football conference.

Storey, a 200 pounder whose father played football with Toronto Argonauts and referred in the National Hockey League, will be tried as a halfback.

The Als also announced that one halfback has been released and another has joined training camp.

Don Lisbon, a 25-year-old halfback from Bowling Green University who played for San Francisco '49ers of the National Football League in 1963 and 1964, worked out with the Als Friday night. He was cut by Atlanta.

Pat Batten, who came to the Als last season from Pittsburgh Steelers, was placed on waivers by the Montreal club.

Bisons Nip Leafs 5-3, Wings Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Six games ago pitcher Dick Kelley of Richmond Braves was saddled with a record of only three wins and seven losses.

Today, although his team is in sixth place in the International League baseball standings, 7½ games behind the league-leading Columbus Jets, Kelly is 8-7.

The 26-year-old left - hander gained the last of his five consecutive victories Friday night as the Braves defeated the Jets 6-2 in Richmond.

Rochester Red Wings, meanwhile, climbed into second place ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs by defeating the Chiefs 6-1 in 10 innings at Syracuse while the Leafs were losing a 5-3 home-field decision to the seventh-place Buffalo Bisons. Toledo Mud Hens moved into a third-place tie with the Leafs three games back of Columbus by shutting out Jacksonville Suns 3-0 in Toledo.

Minor Baseball Results

The McTaggart brothers pitched the Lions Club to a 14-9 decision over the Jaycees in a tyke tilt at Park Dale last night.

Brothers Ron and Don gave up only four hits while walking eight and striking out 10 in their winning effort.

Ron Wood, Tim Whelan and Dave Sullivan allowed eight hits for the losers. They blew third strikes past 17 and walked 11.

Don McTaggart slammed three singles to lead the Lions at the plate. Ron McTaggart, John Ashley, Terry Madden, Wayne Hardy and Bob Webb all had singles.

The Jaycees got triples from Bruce Clark and Ron Wood, while Tim Whelan and Vern Woodbeck had base hits.

Canadian, 18

Reaches Queen's Prize Final

By CARL MOLLINS

BROOKWOOD, England (CP) A Winnipeg teen-ager with only a year's experience handling a large - bore competition rifle joins the experienced elite of Commonwealth marksmen today in the final of the annual Bisley rifle competition's premier event.

Bill Cottick, 18, a Canadian Army cadet, is one of the 1966 Queen's 100—the finalists for the Queen's Prize for marksmanship.

The tall, lean student qualified in a competition that started with 1,063 top shots.

Before joining seven adult Canadians on Bisley's gorse-covered Stickledown Range for the final—15 shots each at ranges of 900 and 1,000 yards—the cadet lieutenant indicated he harbored little hope of winning the whole shooting match.

"I'm not very strong at the long ranges, I'm afraid," Bill said. Cadets normally compete at ranges only up to 500 yards.

Cottick, who just completed high school and plans to study arts and law at the University of British Columbia, began shooting with a .22-calibre rifle at school five years ago. He took up the heavy .303-calibre rifle just a year ago and qualified for the Bisley cadet team at Connaught Ranges in Ottawa a month later.

CUT FIELD

The Queen's is a three-stage event that opened Wednesday at ranges of 200 to 600 yards and cut the field of entries to 300.

In the second stage Friday—10 shots at each of 300, 500 and 600 yards—Cottick scored 141 out of 150 to join 99 other qualifiers with 138 or more.

The cadet shot the same score as Lt.-Col. William Strachan of Ottawa, a veteran of 13 visits to Bisley and commandant of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team.

Top Canadian qualifier was Maj. Dick Hampton of Alliston, Ont., on his 10th trip to Bisley, who scored 145, a single point off top place.

LAC Jim Hennock of RCAF Cold Lake, Alta., goes into the Queen's with a 143, one better than Derek Daines and Arne Sorensen, both of Calgary, who shot 142.

Sorensen was top Canadian in the grand aggregate—a tally of scores in 10 major events—finishing eighth with a score of 561 out of 605 among 666 entries. Winning score was 573.

Two other Canadian cadets made spectacular showings against strong adult competition Friday.

FINISHES FIFTH

Tom Nelson, 17, of Victoria, finished fifth out of almost 1,200 original entries in competition for the St. George's Challenge Vase, an event rated second only to the Queen's Prize. His final total of 139 out of 150 was the second-highest score, but three Britons with the same tally were placed ahead of him on the basis of better scores in the final of the three-stage contest.

Jim Tood, 17, of Fort William, Ont., won the P. W. Richardson Trophy by shooting a perfect score of 70 against 186 senior marksmen.

Cepeda Gets 2 Homers-And Heave-Ho

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Orlando Cepeda is in a hitting mood, only the umpires can get him out.

The Cincinnati Reds weren't having much luck with the big St. Louis slugger Friday night until umpire John Kibler interceded in the seventh inning of the Cardinals' 9-2 victory.

Cepeda was called out on a close play at first base and when he argued over the call, Kibler tossed him out of the ball game.

By then, the damage was done Cepeda had whacked his 12th and 13th homers of the season and lifted his batting average to .324, fourth best in the National League.

The Cardinal first baseman, who came from San Francisco in the trade for Ray Sadecki, is on an 11-for-20 tear at the plate and seems completely recovered from the eye injury which sidelined him for two weeks last month.

Cepeda was struck by a batting practice line drive June 10. He returned to the line-up June 24, and in the three weeks since then he's had 25 hits in 73 at bats—a .342 pace.

Elsewhere in the National League, ex - Met Dick Stuart beat his former team mates with a pinch single in the 11th inning as Los Angeles Dodgers edged New York Mets 4-3, Chicago Cubs shaded Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 and San Francisco Phillies 8-1 behind Juan Marichal. Houston Astros and Atlanta Braves were rained out.

Curt Flood led a 15-hit Cardinal attack with four safeties as the St. Louis Cardinals battered five Cincinnati pitchers. Things got so desperate for the Reds' pitching staff that new manager Dave Bristol brought in Mel Queen, an outfielder, to work the ninth inning.

Queen had more success than his predecessors, setting the Cardinals down in order.

Stuart, who was released by the Mets last month, beat his old team with a soft single to centre, scoring Ron Fairly from third. Fairly, who had walked, went to third on Jim Lefebvre's double.

John Roseboro smashed a two-run homer for the Dodgers.

Robin Roberts, making his first start for Chicago, dropped the Pirates into second place by scattering eight hits. Ron Santo led the Cubs' attack, with three straight hits, driving in four runs.

The loss ended a five-game Pittsburgh winning streak.

Willie Mays and Jim Hart smashed home runs, backing Marichal's five-hit pitching as the Giants whacked the Phillies.

The homers were No. 21 each for Mays and Hart and gave Willie 526, just eight short of Jimmy Foxx and second place on the all-time homer list.

Marichal struck out nine in gaining his 15th victory. He lost his bid for a fifth shutout in the ninth inning.

Fred McMurray Is Keeping My Three Sons on Air

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How long should a television series stay on the air?

"Not long enough so they get tired of you," says Fred Macmurray.

Audiences show no signs of tiring of Fred on My Three Sons. Nor, CBS will be happy to learn, is Fred weary of the series—yet.

He was gratified that My Three Sons bounced back to the top ranks in audience ratings after a switchover from ABC. He is likely to remain as long as it stays in the upper reaches.

HARDER THAN IT SEEMS

MacMurray appears to be the easiest of performers but his work is harder than it seems. For example, he now is playing the title role of a new Disney musical, The Happiest Millionaire, in which he is required to dance an Irish jig.

"Pulled a muscle the first day," he reported. "I've managed to avoid dancing most of my career. I never did any on Broadway, and I had only one in a picture before: A Swiss slapping dance with Eddie Foy Jr. in some old musical. I was sore for weeks."

My Three Sons also has its strenuous aspects. Originally Fred did all his scenes in a three-month period, then the rest of the cast filled out the scripts with their own scenes. Now he does his work in two or three sessions of shooting, a few weeks at a time.

Four Youths Given Sentences By Magistrate

NAPANEE — Four youths whose cases have been before the magistrate several times, received their sentences by Magistrate R. C. Jackson on Friday in Napanee. They had been found guilty of theft of products from the Newburg factory, and of possession of goods stolen from summer cottages.

David Wood of Kingston will serve a total of 12 months, one month for theft and the rest for the possession of stolen goods. The sentences will run consecutively.

His brother Carl of Deseronto, 17, was sentenced to three months in jail for theft.

Donald LaPoint of Napanee was placed under suspended sentence, and on parole for two years.

Morley York made solemn promises of reform and was remanded for sentence until September 13 to give him a chance to carry out his promises.

Edward William Caron, of R. R. 3, Roblin, will spend three years in the Kingston Penitentiary for the possession of burglar's tools. Two charges of car theft were brought against him, one by the Napanee police and one by the OPP. He pleaded guilty to all three charges. Although he is only 20 years old today, Saturday, Caron has a long list of convictions, and his parole ran out only Friday.

Pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving, Robert Parks of Napanee was fined $125 and costs, and his driving licence was suspended for six months.

For creating a disturbance in a public place, Roy Locke of Belleville was fined $35 and costs.

James VanHooser was fined $20 and costs for operating a motor vehicle without a licence, and an additional $15 and costs for driving an unsafe vehicle.

J. K. Pearce was to have acted as County Crown Attorney, but Mrs. Pearce was taken ill at their Prince Edward cottage just as he was leaving, and he had to rush her to hospital. Fortunately there were no cases requiring a crown prosecutor. Some had been remanded for sentence, and the rest pleaded guilty.

Report Two Minor Fires

NAPANEE — The Napanee Fire Department had two calls in a little over an hour Friday afternoon. Neither fire was serious. At 1.50 an alarm came from Vine's Corners, and within a quarter of an hour the firemen were back at the station after having extinguished a grass fire. Someone had evidently tossed a lighted cigarette from a car.

The second call came at 2.55 to the Napanee Industries. Some iron parts, still wet from the dip tank, were ignited by sparks from a grinding machine. Fortunately the tank itself did not ignite.

The fire was extinguished by the employees themselves who used the plant fire extinguishers. The men returned to the station within 20 minutes.

Police Chief Harry Benn reports one minor accident involving two cars on John St. There were no injuries and no one was injured.

HITS AIR CANADA

MONTREAL (CP)—The machinists' strike that has grounded five major United States airlines is costing Air Canada as many bookings as it is providing, a spokesman for the airline said Friday. Air Canada can accommodate few of the stranded passengers seeking air transportation because it is already booked almost to capacity with the heavy summer trade. The strike was also costing the airline some bookings because of unavailable connections with strike-bound U.S. airlines.

Public School Addition Now Postponed

DESERONTO — At the special meeting of the Deseronto Public School Board Thursday evening there was divided opinion on the necessity of building a two-room addition whether for the alleviation of overcrowding or for an opportunity class. By a recorded vote the motion to proceed with the building program was defeated..

Difference of opinion among board members covered both points. Some felt that there would be no overcrowding, even though the report of Mr. McVicker's survey regarding next year enrolment showed that there would probably be 360 pulils for the present school.

Before making provision for an opportunity class, some wished for information regarding the basis on which children for such a class would be chosen.

Trustee John Neal moved that the Public School Board proceed with the building program and asked for a recorded vote

The chairman asked each member to explain the position he took in the voting. Mr. Neal and Mrs. McVicker said they did not feel that the present school would be overcrowded next year and that they wished for further information about the opportunity class, especially the selection of its members.

Mr. McVicker went a step farther. He repeated his opinion that the money set aside by the council for education would serve a more useful purpose if used for the forthcoming installation of a sewer system or some other civic improvement. As for overcrowding, he said the teachers had made no complaints.

Mrs. Saunders was strongly in favor of the additional rooms Even though they were not needed because of overcrowding, they were still needed for an opportunity classroom and-or a kindergarten. Donald Reid was equally emphatic in his support of the motion.

Chairman Spence voiced n's approval of the mootion, enlarging on the advantages to the children. Also, he said that from a financial standpoint, he felt that the addition should not be postponed.

A second motion was to the effect that the new principal, Mr Uens, be contacted to explain to the board how pupils were selected for the opportunity class, and the number in this school that he considered should be in such a class.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We live in an area where all the houses are the same and were built in the post World War II period (value $12,000 to $15,000). Any house offered for sale sells without too much trouble.

In the next year or two we will be moving to an apartment and will sell the house. It is in good condition except for the decoration. We would like your expert opinion as to whether there is a big monetary advantage to papering and painting before offering the house for sale. It will cost about $400. We cannot do the work ourselves. — Asking the Expert

ANSWER: Not only will there be no monetary gain if you paper and paint but you will suffer a loss. I doubt if the $400 you will spend will bring a measurable price differential. At most, it will be $100 to $200, and probably no difference in price. The main value of redecorating before selling is that it makes for a faster sale. Since the market in your area is good, I recommend you offer the property in "as is" condition.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A house on our block was recently sold at sheriff's sale and it brought $16,500. Some of the houses in the area in the past year have sold for $20,000 and over. Was the low price unusual or is this situation characteristic of a sheriff's sale? — Looking For Bargain

ANSWER: As a general rule, a property will bring less than fair market at a sheriff's sale. There are several legitimate reasons for this.

The usual buyer at a sheriff's sale is a real estate broker, a speculator or an investor and not the general public. Financing is also difficult. Usually a certified cheque of 10 percent is required to bid and the balance, in cash, is due in a relatively short time.

Also, it takes considerable knowledge to judge what one is buying. The sale may be subject to mortgages, liens, encumbrances, and easements which are difficult to evaluate.

Yes, bargains can be obtained at sheriff's sales. However, I do not recommend this for laymen. It takes specialized knowledge and experience.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband is 62 and doesn't make big wages. When we bought the house 10 years ago the mortgage payments were low. However, almost every year the taxes go up and now the payments have reached the point where they are too high. A friend tells me he has a similar problem and he makes no mortgage payments. He says he has arranged with the bank to wait until he sells the house or until his death and the estate will then pay off the obligation. This would be a wonderful solution! How do we make the arrangements? — Old and Broke

ANSWER: It can't be done! Somebody must be making mortgage payments for your friend without his knowledge as a charitable gesture. In a similar case I know of, the children were making the monthly payments unbeknown to the parents.

Since your mortgage is "seasoned" by now, I suggest you talk to the bank about resetting (extending) the term. This will reduce monthly payments. Lending institutions often will take such actions in cases like yours.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When I married five years ago my mother gave me some beautiful rugs that had been in the family for generations. Everyone of them is now curled up at the corners and end. Not only is this unsightly but it is dangerous. How do you get an old rug to lay flat? — Heirloom

ANSWER: New rugs usually are sized on the back to make them lie flat. With age, wear and cleaning the sizing disappears and the corners and ends will curl.

To resize a rug stretch it upside down on the floor and tack the ends so it is flat. Then spray the back with a solution consisting of one half pound of glue chips in two quarts of water or brush with a thin coat of white shellac. Let it dry thoroughly, (about 48 hours).

Dear Mr. Meltzer: The mortgage balance on our home is $6,500 (5½ percent interest rate). We have about $7,600 in savings. My husband and I have had many discussions as to whether we should pay off the mortgage at this time. What do you think? — Thrifty

ANSWER: There are two reasons why it is not prudent for our correspondent, under the circumstances, to pay off the mortgage. Savings rates are high at this time. Experience indicates that unless there is a differential of at least 1 percent better yet 1½ percent, between savings rates and the mortgage rates, the advantage is not great enough to make the action worthwhile.

In addition, one should never strip himself of almost all of his savings to pay off a mortgage. If money is required unexpectedly, re-mortgaging is expensive and time-consuming.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When anyone walks up and down our steps loud squeaks announce his coming and going. It's very annoying. A previous article of yours stated that the usual way to eliminate stair squeaks was to re-nail the steps. I tried, but this was only a partial cure. What do I do now? — Love Quiet

ANSWER: The main cause of squeaky steps is loose risers (back of the steps) or treads. A second reason can be rubbing between the step and the riser caused by the applying of a person's weight as he walks up or down. This can be eliminated by spraying the joint between the step and the riser with a generous amount of silicone slip lubricant (now comes in pressure cans obtainable at any hardware store). The excess fluid should be wiped away with a clean rag.

Summer of Labor Turmoil In Ontario May Get Worse

By JACK GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A summer of labor turmoil may get worse.

Thousands of workers—4,500 in Ontario alone—already are out on strike, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed, with the big talks still to come.

Two of three groups of unions representing Canada's 92,700 non-operating railway employees decided last week to turn down conciliation board reports and conduct strike votes across the country.

Negotiations with basic steel and nickel companies, with a total of 30,000 employees are in crucial stages. Packing house workers numbering 5,269 will strike Wednesday in eight plants of Canada Packers Ltd.

Strikes settled in the past few days included one affecting 1,900 iron ore workers at Schefferville, Que., and Labrador City, Nfld. But new ones started. Near Toronto Thursday 500 employees of Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. went out in a contract dispute.

The labor situation changed almost hourly in the big labor provinces of Ontario and Quebec, making it almost impossible to give an accurate figure of the number on strike.

Wildcat walkouts complicated the picture in Ontario, which has 614,900 union workers. A labor department official in Toronto Thursday noted that two-year contracts with most unions meant that each year between 200,000 and 300,000 would be engaged in contract talks.

ECONOMY BOOMS

Organized labor is bargaining in a booming economy in which the federal government estimated Thursday the unemployed rate is a bare 3.1 of the total labor force.

Unions in some cases are out to get wage parity—or better—with the United States counterparts.

Disputes can be costly for both labor and management. A spokesman for the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said Thursday the union is asking its 120,000 members to make an extra contribution to meet possible strike-pay costs of $100,000 a week, should negotiations fail.

The picture from coast to coast:

ATLANTIC PROVINCES

A strike that closed Iron Ore Co. of Canada Ltd. operations at Labrador City, Nfld., since July 5, ended Thursday when 1,200 strikers returned to work, along with 700 at Schefferville, Que. But another 1,900 were still off the job, 400 closing down the North Shore and Labrador Railways Co., and 1,500 members of the United Steelworkers continuing a walkout against the Quebec Cartier Mining Company.

Union leaders said the railroad won't operate until the company reconsiders its position. The men walked off July 4 in support of demands for an increase of 35 cents in hourly wages and other benefits. They now earn $2.84 to $2.91 an hour.

The rail workers, members of the International Association of Machinists (CLC), walked out July 6 to back up demands for a reduction of their work week to 40 from 48 hours with no loss of pay.

At Trenton, N.S., 1,000 steelworkers at the Hawker Siddeley (Canada) Ltd. voted to accept a new contract to give them an hourly increase of 62½ cents over a three-year period, to end an illegal walkout in which workers protested delays in contract talks.

No hope was held for early settlement of a strike of 450 textile workers against Cosmos Imperial Mills Ltd. at Yarmouth, N.S. The men, members of Local 152, United Textile Workers of America (CLC), struck July 4 to back demands for a 35-cent hourly wage increase over two years. The company has offered 22 cents over three years.

QUEBEC

Hospital workers in Quebec, members of the National Federation of Services (CNTU) started their strike Friday.

Strikes announced as settled in Quebec Province included a dispute involving 700 employees of Rolland Paper Co. at plants in St. Jerome and Mont Rolland. Three paper unions won pay raises totalling 40 cents by Aug. 1, 1967, over the hourly wage of $2.05. The walkout lasted almost four weeks.

A settlement was reached between Hydro-Quebec and a union representing 250 engineers who had been on strike against the publicly-owned utility since April 13. Details were not given. Some 300 flour mill workers at Ogilvie Flour Mills in Montreal returned to work in another contract dispute.

A threatened strike by 225 Quebecair employees was averted when the airline and International Machinists Association (CLC) reached agreement on a new contract. Terms were not disclosed.

Negotiations continued in Quebec City between Dominion Textiles Ltd. and representatives of the Confederation of National Trade Unions who bargain for 5,000 textile workers on strike against the company for the last four months. A company spokesman said the strike shut plants in the Quebec towns of Drummondville, Magog, Montmorency and Sherbrooke.

A union spokesman said negotiations between the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC) and the strike-bound Monsanto Canada Ltd. chemical plant in the Montreal suburb of LaSalle have reached a standstill. Some 165 workers have been on strike at the plant since June 10 demanding a 20-cent pay increase on a basic wage of $1.93 an hour.

Construction work on the vast Hydro-Quebec power-development projects on the Manicouagan and Outardes Rivers is threatened by a strike of 5,000 workers. The contract dispute is over a demand for a reduction in the work week to 50 from 60 hours.

ONTARIO

Large strikes in Ontario, where there were more than two dozen companies affected: Toronto newspapers—420 printers and pressmen; Ontario Malleable Iron Co. Ltd., Oshawa—235; Shafer - Townsend Ltd., Hamilton—435; Pedlar People Ltd., Oshawa—228; Crane Canada Ltd., Port Hope—341; Canadian Industries Ltd., Millhaven—700.

Most of these are contract disputes, involving demands for wage increases or better working conditions.

Negotiations continued at Ontario's big steel and nickel plants. Members of the United Steel Workers bargained for 15,012 workers at International Nickel at Sudbury, 1.750 at Inco's Port Colborne plant and for 6,000 employees of Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd. at Sault Ste. Marie.

The Inco contract ran out July 10 and Algoma's expires July 31. At Falconbridge near Sudbury the United Mine Workers, in a representation contest with the Steelworkers, are talking for 2,400 workers whose contract expires Aug. 21. The steelworkers have sent application cards to the Ontario Labor Relations Board, claiming they have enough members signed up to justify a vote.

Talks also continue for 11,000 workers at Steel Co. of Canada plant in Hamilton. The contract also runs out July 31. The talks, now going to a conciliation board, concern unspecified demands, although the Steelworkers have said they want wage parity with the U.S.

Seven hundred plumbers have been on strike for four weeks in the Hamilton area, with no negotiations scheduled with about 50 local contractors. The plumbers ask a substantial increase over present wages of $3.85.

Also at Hamilton, 140 stevedores and 40 checkers at the docks walked out in a wildcat strike. They are seeking a 40-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to the start of the shipping season in May. The stevedores' basic wage now is $2.50.

Tentative agreement on a new contract was reached after five months negotiations between 8,000 members of the Ontario Hydro Employees' Union (CLC) and the Ontario Hydro Commission. Workers must approve the deal.

Toronto city hall's 2,300 clerical workers and employees in city-owned homes for the aged decided to strike in mid-August if wage demands are not met. Details were not given.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES

There were no existing, threatened or recently - settled strikes in Manitoba. One minor strike, a dispute involving 35 men, was Saskatchewan's only walkout.

In Alberta 40 members of the Boilermakers' Union struck James United Steel Ltd. in Calgary in a dispute over fringe benefits. Some 300 Calgary electrical workers and the city agreed on a new contract hours before a strike deadline.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

In British Columbia, 18,300 union members are involved in wage contract disputes and negotiations. Another 28,200 have settled differences. About 3,000 members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) voted to strike on Monday, July 18, at the Trail plant of Cominco Ltd., unless there is a settlement of their contract dispute.

Your Car

Here's How To Make Car Life Easier

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Cool clothes and air-conditioning can take the simmer out of summer driving for you and the family . . . but they won't help your car beat the heated demands made on it. And we're not just talking about cooling systems.

Hot summer mileage can torture-test every inch of your car. You push it harder and farther while the sizzling sun keeps pouring on the heat all around. Every moving part, and even the body finish, takes more of a beating than at any other time of year.

How can you help? Via thorough summer servicing of everything that can make the car run efficiently without abnormal strain. Tires should be in good shape — or replaced, and always kept adequately inflated. Correct wheel balance and alignment, smooth steering and shock action, belong near the top of the list, too.

An all-over lube job is a must — including crankcase drain and refill, of course, with top-grade oil.

Then, with a complete ignition and carburetion tune - up, your car should have a much easier time of it through the summer. You and your pocketbook will really benefit, too.

From L. McG.: "If linings are fairly new, will a simple adjustment cure the trouble when there's too much brake pedal play?"

Usually . . . but there's a possibility that a damaged or broken piston spring in the brake master cylinder is responsible.

J. T. Asks: "What, in your opinion, causes most automatic transmission troubles? We've had problems with our last two cars."

Low fluid . . . and this results either from leakage or neglecting to check fluid level.

W. A. writes: "Lately, my engine tends to overheat in traffic. I also find that the oil warning light stays on unless I accelerate above 25 mph. Would there be a connection between these two conditions?"

There could. Oil is a coolant, holding down engine heat due to friction. If pressure is abnormally low, the oil can't circulate adequately to do this.

From N. P.: "My '57 sedan loses water only after it's running a while. The radiator, hoses, thermostat and pressure cap seem okay and engine temperature is usually normal until too much water is lost."

Next time, check radiator seams after you shut off the engine. Seam leaks are more likely to occur when the coolant heats up and the system is under pressure. But, there's another possibility, too. A high-pressure head gasket leak could be causing coolant to force out through the radiator overflow.

Wellington Doctor Retires As Coroner

PICTON (Staff) — Resignation of Dr. R. A. Thompson of Wellington as a Prince Edward County coroner has been accepted by the Ontario Government, in keeping with an amendment to the Coroner's Act that coroners retire at the age of seventy. Dr. Thompson had applied for retirement prior to this ruling.

This leaves only Dr. C. R. Richmond as a coroner residing in the county but two Belleville doctors serve Ameliasburg Township.

Through desiring to take things a bit easier, Dr. Thompson continues to lead a busy life as the village's only doctor. Graduating in 1924, he has practised in Wellington for 39 years, since 1927. He has also been coroner during that period.

Expect Lights Will Be Installed at 5 Crossings

PICTON (Staff) — Representatives of the Federal Department of Transport were in the County this week inspecting railway crossings. It is expected flashing ligths, or other signals will eventually be erected at five crossings currently unmarked by signals.

The road at Bloomfield crossing on the West Lake road was widened by the County to permit installations there, Council giving approval. This work is under way.

Other crossings include those where fatalities have occurred, at Mallory's crossroad and on Johnson Street, also at White Chapel and Talbot St.

The Bloomfield crossing, is estimated to cost $15,500 but with grants and subsidies available, the country's share would be 6½ per cent or about $725., plus a small amount annually for maintenance.

SENTENCE ROBBER

WINNIPEG (CP)—John Mckay Berry, 25, one of five men charged in a $383,000 gold bullion theft March 1, was sentenced Friday to three years in prison. Four are awaiting trial.

Plan for Fair

PICTON (Staff) — Directors of Prince Edward Agricultural Society are meeting at the County Centre, Friday, to make further plans for the County Fair at Picton, September 22, 23 and 24. As was the case last year, the Fair will open at 6 p.m. on theh first day, with a school parede on the Friday.

Mrs. Mary Green of Campbellford and Mrs. Leo Hickey of Peterborough recently visited Mac Anderson.

Little Miss Lori Wickens of Toronto is spending two weeks with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Wickens.

Inquiries Off From Tourists

PICTON (Staff) — For some unknown reason this has been an "off week" as far as Quinte Isle Tourist Association information booth on Main Street is concerned. Reservations and requests for information for this period show an unexpected drop.

However, from Saturday until August 13th, all resorts served by the association are well booked.

In spite of warmer weather this year, June enquiries were down but they are up in July sco far over last year.

Though camping has grown in popularity, cottages, hotel accommodation, motels, etc., are still in demand and theh are still in demand and the bureau provides excellent service. The association itself has carried on a vigorous promotion campaign.

Man Sought as Nurses' Killer Recognized After Suicide Bid

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard Speck, the most wanted man in the United States for 15 hours, lay in a prison hospital bed charged with murder today while police pieced together the story behind the massacre of eight student nurses.

Speck, a 25-year-old ex-convict, spent hours drinking and carousing before attempting to end his life Sunday.

In an ironic twist, the fugitive whose name and picture were flashed around the world was taken to a hospital by policemen who didn't recognize him.

State's Attorney Daniel Ward said Speck would appear in court today on a charge of murdering Gloria Jean Davy, 22, one of the eight student nurses massacred in their residence early Thursday.

Ward said he anticipates filing multiple murder charges against Speck and that he probably will present the case to the grand jury this week.

GUARD IS HEAVY

Speck has been under sedation in the city jail hospital and reported in good condition. Ward said Speck had not been questioned and had made no statements. He was under heavy guard.

The nationwide hunt for Speck ended in a skid road flophouse when a tenant saw Speck staggering down a hallway, covered with blood. The tenant called the desk clerk and he summoned police.

Police placed a tourniquet on the profusely bleeding left arm and took the man, reeking from alcohol and partly unconscious, to Cook County Hospital.

But a young surgeon who had just read a newspaper recognized a tattoo and summoned police. It came less than 15 hours after a murder warrant had been issued for Speck.

Detectives theorized that Speck drank himself into a stupor and tried to commit suicide after he saw a drinking buddy in the back seat of a police car.

ADVANCES THEORY

Detective John Mitchell said Speck may have spotted Robert Gerrald in the back of a squad car as police toured skid road in a systematic search for Speck Friday night and Saturday.

Mitchell said Speck may have reasoned "he had run out of time" and attempted to kill himself.

Authorities said he used either a broken bottle or knife to slash his arm and wrist. He lost 1½ pints of blood.

Police picked Gerrald up Friday after witnesses reported seeing Gerrald with Speck in a rooming house Thursday afternoon.

Police said Gerrald told them he and Speck discussed the nurses' massacre while drinking in a tavern the morning the bodies were found.

Gerrald said Speck told him: "It must have been a sex maniac who did that crime."

The story unfolded Sunday as details of police activity were made public.

SPOTTED MARK

The young surgeon, Dr. Leroy Smith, 26, worked on the bloodied man, registered in the Starr Hotel as B. Brain, in the emergency room as just another slashing case until he saw something under the coat of blood.

"I moistened my finger tips

'Born to Raise Hell'

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard Franklin Speck, 24, is white, six-foot-one, 160 pounds, blue eyes, brown - blond hair.

"Born to raise hell" and a hat and goggles are tattooed on his left arm, a dagger and a sickle on his right. He has a string of aliases.

This much is known for certain about the man police accused of methodically slaughtering eight student nurses in a dormitory Thursday.

From there the picture is blurred.

To his brother, William, a Monmouth, Ill., carpenter, Speck is a "loner and drifter who drank more than he should."

To a sister, Mrs. Carolyn Wilson, 23, of Dallas, he is "warm-hearted and tender. He would do anything for anybody. He's crazy about mom. He never forgets her birthday or Mother's Day." The Chicago Sun Times said it obtained this quote by telephone from Mrs. Wilson.

To Police Chief Harold Tinder of Monmouth, where Speck is wanted for questioning in the attempted rape of a 65-year-old woman and the slaying of a 33-year-old barmaid, "he was a very disarming man to talk to."

To Rev. A. E. O'Connor of Dallas, an acquaintaince, "he was so withdrawn, I never could communicate with him. . . ."

As a youngster, he was described as "quiet and moody" in school in Dallas, not interested in sports or girls. He was in minor scrapes occasionally. In the words of one student, he was "a kind of wild kid, who went out drinking quite a bit." He dropped out after the ninth grade.

As an adult he worked at unskilled jobs, never for long —trucker's helper, bakery worker, construction worker, would - be seaman.

He tangled often with the law. He first went to the penitentiary on charges of possession of a forged instrument, burglary and passing a forged instrument. He served a second term later.

While on parole between terms, records show, he was convicted of threatening a 28-year-old woman with a knife.

In prison, a spokesman said, his record was good.

Speck was born in Monmouth, one of seven children. When his father died in 1946, he moved to Dallas and lived with his sister and mother.

Speck's sister said he was divorced last year in Dallas by his wife, Shirley, and they have a four-year-old child.

Another sister, Mrs. Eugene Thornton, lives in Chicago.

Detectives investigating the eight murders say he came to Chicago some time before the slaying and lived in a series of skid road hotels, moving frequently.

They described his life as one of idleness, with at least one try at finding a job, when he applied as a sailor on a boat going down the Mississippi River to New Orleans. He didn't get it.

During the day, officers said, he drank beer and whisky and at night switched to bourbon and soda.

One officer said Speck liked to dance and consorted with prostitutes. "He was a smooth, slow talker with a southern accent, a real con artist," the policeman said.

SLEEPS IN COFFIN — Morhiro Matsuda, a Tokyo businessman who says he'll sell most of his personal property to publish more advertisements like those he inserted recently in New York and London newspapers outlining his views on world peace, takes a nap in his coffin as his wife, Eiko, and his two children watch. Britain Will Cut Spending

LONDON (CP)—The British government is reported ready to cut defence and overseas spending by more than $450,000,000 to stave off devaluation of the pound.

The crash program seems certain to include some sort of wage - price - dividend freeze, qualified informants said.

Three decrees coupled with drastic plans to deflate spending at home are being prepared for cabinet approval Tuesday and announcemnt in the House of Commons Wednesday.

To make the emergency measures more palatable for 8,000,000 British union members, the Labor government is expected to set up a national minimum wage scheme, enabling lower-paid workers to earn more despite a freeze.

Behind all these moves, informants said, lies a fundamental policy decision reaffirmed by the cabinet when world pressure on the pound was at its peak last week:

It is that devaluation of sterling below the pound's present level of $2.80 US and $3 Canadian has been rejected as a solution, short-term or long-term, for the troubles besetting Britain's economy.

COULD START CRISIS

Prime Minister Wilson's advisers take the view such a step could start a world money crisis, drag the dollar down with the pound and within a year or two leave this country and the whole Western world weaker than ever.

A cutback of British overseas spending in the region of $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 is likely to mean:

—A speeded but phrased withdrawal of between 25,000 and 30,000 troops from Britain's east of Suez forces now totalling around 60,000 men.

—A final demand to West

Wilson Is 'Having a Go' At Winning Peace Talks

MOSCOW (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson of Britain discussed the Viet Nam war with Soviet Premier Kosygin for 2½ hours today as he began what was considered an almost impossible task.

British officials said Viet Nam was the topic for almost the entire discussions. More talks were planned for later today.

Wilson seeks a Viet Nam peace conference sponsored by the Soviet Union and Britain, co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva agreement on Indochina, but observers said he was in for a tough time with the Russians.

A similar idea was put to the Russians last week by Prime Minister Gandhi of India but was firmly rejected.

Diplomatic observers felt Wilson was even less likely to succeed in talks today with Kosygin despite the air of relaxed cordiality the two leaders established during a tour of a British industrial exhibition Sunday.

The exhibition, part of Britain's current battle to boost exports, was the ostensible reason for Wilson's three-day visit to Moscow.

The leaders greeted each other with smiles and handshakes in Kosygin's private conference room at the Kremlin.

Wilson arrived Saturday shortly after the departure of Mrs. Gandhi after five days of efforts to gain Russian backing for her peace plan.

Mrs. Gandhi told a press conference at the conclusion of her visit that the Soviet Union is sticking to its position that it can't move to recall the Geneva conference until North Viet Nam asks it to.

So far Hanoi has no interest, continuing to insist that U.S. troops be withdrawn from Viet Nam before any talks can begin.

Any hopes Wilson might have retained for success in the negotiations took a deep dive Sunday when President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam announced new partial mobilization plans and reiterated that Hanoi would fight to the end against "American aggression."

A possible second round of Wilson-Kosygin talks this afternoon was expected to be cut short or prevented by a Kremlin rally called to express support for North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

The rally has caused a delay of two hours in a Soviet government dinner for Wilson. There was speculation it would be used to announce increased Soviet aid to Hanoi.

Wilson also was understood to be ready to appeal to the Kremlin to intercede with Hanoi on behalf of captured U.S. airmen. The North Vietnamese have been reported as preparing to bring them to trial for "war crimes."

Will Oust Admiral From Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Rear - admiral William Landymore is to be fired as chief of the integrated Atlantic command and commander of the Atlantic fleet within 24 hours, a defence spokesman said today.

The 50-year-old critic of Defence Minister Hellyer's plan to put the three armed services in a single uniform with one rank structure then may be subject to further disciplinary action.

A defence spokesman said the defence staff and the judge advocate - general's branch have been asked by Mr. Hellyer to gather and assess public statements late last week by Rear-Admiral Landymore on the issue of unification.

The spokesman said that there are clear regulations which prohibit an officer speaking publicly against government policy. The investigating groups have been asked to make recommendations on the Landymore case in relation to these regulations.

Rear - admiral Landymore said Friday he was fired, after he refused to resign, because he opposes unification. He has said he considers a single service no more efficient or economical than the present three.

Mr. Hellyer, who returned to the capital Saturday, said the issue is civilian control of the armed forces.

He had been in Edmonton Friday when Rear-Admiral Landymore issued his public criticisms. Mr. Hellyer attended the annual meeting of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association which approved a resolution de-

Gemini Astronauts Ready For Three-Day Space Trip

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Two U.S. astronauts were ready to ride the Gemini 10 spacecraft today on a bold dual-rendezvous and spacewalk adventure that could take them farther from earth than man has yet ventured.

Cmdr. John W. Young, veteran of last year's Gemini 3 flight, and Maj. Michael Collins had most of the day to prepare for their three - day journey among the stars.

Their Titan II was scheduled to blast off at 6:21 p.m. EDT. An Atlas was to vault skyward at 4.40 p.m. EDT to hurl an Agena space vehicle into orbit as a chase target for the astronauts.

With all preparations proceeding smoothly, Young and Collins took a day off Sunday and went fishing in the Atlantic off Cape Kennedy.

The late afternoon launch was dictated by the position of another Agena left in space last March by the Gemini 8 pilots.

After catching and linking up with their Agena late tonight, Young and Collins plan to fire the target satellite's powerful engine to shoot to a record altitude of perhaps 468 miles to position themselves for a tricky rendezvous with the Gemini 8 Agena Wednesday.

Collins is to take a space walk over to the old Agena—

China Will Aid North Viet Nam But Is Not Ready to Send Troops

TOKYO (AP) — North Viet Nam made an unusual appeal today for more material and moral support from its Communist allies and other countries, describing its war situation as "extremely serious."

But China indicated it is not ready to send its soldiers into the fight.

The plead came from North Viet Nam's Fatherland Front. It followed President Ho Chi Minh's decree Sunday of partial mobilization of North Vietnamese reserves.

The decree touched off speculation that North Viet Nam plans to send more regular troops into the South in reply to the intensified U.S. air war, using the reserves to fill gaps at home.

China reacted by offering again "to take all necessary actions" in support of the North Vietnamese, but implied it thought they could win with their own forces.

An editorial in the official Peking People's Daily dangled the threat of Chinese intervention, saying "we will take action any time we consider it necessary." But it emphasized that China regards its role now as a supporting one—"the vast expanse of country is the rear area of the Vietnamese people."

The Fatherland Front's appeal suggested North Viet Nam would like to see more co-operation between China and the Soviet Union to help the Hanoi regime. But Peking replied with a new swipe at the Kremlin.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai told the North Vietnamese ambassador after he brought word of the mobilization decree that Peking will not join with the Kremlin to help Hanoi, but will assist North Viet Nam independently, the New China news agency reported.

Chou said history ordains that China and North Viet Nam "should unite, fight and win together" although the "U.S. imperialists, reactionaries of various countries and the modern revisionists (the Soviet leaders) have resorted to various tricks to malign and poison the relations between our two peoples."

The North Vietnamese have shown no particular enthusiasm for a united front with the Chinese to the exclusion of the Russians, who are giving them important military aid.

Beer Foam Control Chemical Banned After Nebraska Deaths

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post reports that Omaha, Neb., has experienced 16 to 18 deaths among heavy drinkers. All the victims displayed heart - tissue damage, says The Post.

As a result, says The Post, all United States use was halted June 13 and 14 of a beer foam-control agent called cobaltous salts. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration proposed June 29 that all further use of the agent be discontinued "to be on the safe side," although an official said it has not been proved that the salts had caused illness or death.

The Omaha cases recalled the deaths of 18 beer drinkers in the Quebec City area earlier this year of a rare heart disease known as cardiomyopathy. On March 30, Dow Brewery closed its Quebec City plant after recalling and destroying some 1,000,000 gallons of beer.

A special committee formed by the Quebec government to determine the cause of the deaths did not turn up any harmful substances in Dow or any other beer and late in June reported the causes of the cardiomyopathy—a deterioration in the heart muscles—had not been determined.

The Dow plant reopened June 27

The Post says cases of heart-tissue damage among beer drinkers began showing up in Omaha hospitals as early as August, 1964, after a brewery in that area began using cobaltous salts. The deaths linked with heart-tissue damage may now total 16 or 18, says The Post.

Cobaltous salts come in the form of a pink powder. They are added in minute quantities to beer to control gushing from containers and improve foam stability.

The Omaha cases declined when the brewery stopped using cobaltous salts, says The Post.

North American breweries had begun using the substance after considerable European experience, which apparently revealed no human hazard.

American beer authorities, who had followed the Quebec case closely, moved to end use of the substance after the Omaha situation was revealed and have put aside $5,000 for research into the cases.

The Post quotes J. Kenneth Kirk of the Food and Drug Administration as saying that despite the move against cobaltous salts, "there is no basis for saying cobaltous salts made any one sick or killed anybody."

Hospital Strike Spreads

MONTREAL (CP) — Another 101 hospitals in the province were scheduled today to be added to the list of those whose non-medical employees already are on strike—bringing the total to 139, slightly more than 70 per cent of Quebec's 169 hospitals.

Early reports indicated that pickets established lines in Montreal soon after the 7 a.m deadline passed.

Confirmation of the new hospitals all being effectively under strike was not expected until late morning.

Workers of the 50 unaffected hospitals are not members of the union on strike.

The walkout began Friday and already had involved 38 hospitals prior to the Sunday announcement of its extension to all institutions represented by the Quebec Hospitals Association.

Meantime, mediation efforts continued in Montreal. Most hospitals reported plans for tackling strike-caused emergencies were working well, but one in a suburb of Quebec City reported hardship among its 107 chronically-ill patients.

Evacuate 500 Vancouver Homes As Gasoline Gets Into Sewers

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 250-block section of South Vancouver was threatened with disaster early Saturday when more than 1,000 gallons of gasoline spilled into the sewer system.

Gasoline fumes seeped into houses through basement sumps and caused an explosion in one home, minor fires in two others and forced police to evacuate another 500 homes.

The gasoline was spilled when a loaded tractor-trailer truck tipped over when turning a corner shortly after midnight. The driver suffered only a cut hand.

A city engineer said the gasoline poured down the street drainage system, connected to the sanitary sewer system.

The main danger was from gas fumes seeping onto homes through basement sumps.

Residents evacuated homes in the area. Firemen hosed down the road. City employees opened manholes to create a draft and drive fumes out of the sewage system.

Radio stations broadcast warnings to residents against lighting fires in their homes.

The explosion, which occurred in the basement of a home owned by Walter Glomba, blew out windows but did not harm the occupants.

Find Man Can Still Function Though Half Brain Removed

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A rare operation has proved responses from the brain are "quite different in the adult" than had been believed, and may lead to the rewriting of medical history.

A 47-year-old Omaha, man, half of his cerebrum removed, has gained a chance to live a relatively normal life.

More than seven months after the surgery, Dr. Aaron Smith of the University of Nebraska college of medicine said the patient proved some of the "rigid and traditional concepts in textbooks are wrong."

(The cerebrum is the brain proper, the front part of the brain mass.)

The case was revealed by the Omaha World - Herald in a copyright story.

Last Dec. 7, a patient underwent four hours of surgery during which the entire left half of his cerebrum was removed because of a malignant tumor. Identity of the patient has been withheld, but doctors gave him the alias "Ernest Coe."

Dr. Smith said the left cerebrum traditionally has been considered the dominant hemisphere in almost all right-handed persons and more than half of those who are left-handed.

It was generally thought the left hemisphere controlled not only speech and verbal comprehension, but visual color discrimination, purposeful movement of both right and left arms and the ability to accomplish certain higher intellectual tasks.

Dr. Smith said tests following surgery show Coe can perform many functions traditionally thought impossible after removal of the dominant left hemisphere.

Immediately following surgery, Coe still had the ability to speak spontaneously. Ten weeks later he asked his first questions. He continues to show post - operative improvement.

The patient's ability to write remains impaired. He can print his name and those of his family and occasionally descriptions of pictures shown him.

His comprehension has shown marked improvement and his color perception is improving. He can move his right hand and right leg on command, is making progress toward walking with assistance, can operate the hospital's automatic elevator and is able to move about independently in a wheel chair. He joins his family at home for weekends.

Around the 'Cat'

Corbin Gold Cup day is fast approaching for the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club and arrangements are nearly completed to make this day one of the best in history. This will be the 24th annual running of this tournament and it is expected that at least forty rinks from over the Province will be competing for the valuable prizes that have been obtained. As usual the visiting bowlers will be entertained at a reception on Sunday night previous to the start of play and the bowlers will be welcomed by a civic official. As usual "Jerry" Hyde will conduct the draw during the day and the women"s section of the Club will serve full course meals during the day.

All that is needed to make the tournament a success will be good weather and the Club has been fortunate in recent years in this regard. The Belleville Club will enter eight rinks, with the skips choosing their vices and the remainder of the rinks being drawn from the membership.

On Wednesday afternoon the Belleville Club held a mixed trebles tournament on the local greens with twelve rinks in competition. A rink of Ossie Newton, Mrs. Helen Coutts and Clayton McGuire, skip, from Trenton won the top prize followed by Errol Moses, Mrs. May Lowe and Doug Clark, skip from Kingston. A Trenton rink of Mrs. Anne Avery, Mrs. Kay Fuller and Bill Fuller, skip, won the two-game high count while a Trenton rink of Mrs. Pearl Frost, Mrs. Pearl Carr and Lou Chouinard, skip, won the one-game high. Frank Morrell and Ralph Tuck conducted the tourney and the women's section of the Club served refreshments of sandwiches, dessert and coffee.

IN MEMORIAM

HASLIP, James Edward — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, James Edward, who passed away July 18, 1964.

Beautiful memories are wonderful things.
They last till the longest day.
They never wear out, they never get lost,
And can never be given away.
To some you may be forgotten,
To others a part of the past.
But to us who loved you and lost you,
Your memory will always last.

—Always remembered and sadly missed by son Bill, daughter-in-law Phyllis and grandchildren.

WHALEN, William — In loving memory of a devoted father and grandfather, William Whalen who left us so suddenly, July 18, 1956.

Happy memories fond and true,
From us who thought the world of you.

—Lovingly remembered by wife Olive and family.

HASLIP — In loving memory of my dear father James E. Haslip who passed away July 18, 1964.

Loving memories never die,
As years roll on and days pass by.
Deep in my heart is a memory kept,
Of one I loved and will never forget.

—Ever remembered by daughter Olive Hagley.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of Mary Campbell, July 19, 1947.

So many things have happened,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
Had you been left to stay.
Every day in some small way,
Memories of you come my way.
Though absent you are ever near,
Still missed, loved, always dear.
If I had all the world to give,
I'd give it yes and more,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
And greet her at the door.
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind tokens of love,
To the best mother God ever made.
I like to think when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
She'll be standing at the door,
Up there to welcome me.

—Forever lovingly remembered by your son Leonard Hamilton.

manding that the three services retain their separate identities in the field until their roles are discussed further.

The spokesman said in an interview Defence Minister Hellyer will be "absolutely firm" in dealing with the admiral.

"Admiral Landymore has contravened the regulations. We don't think he has a leg to stand on. He will be relieved. This has to be done.

"We cannot have a man in his position speaking this way in a democracy and remaining in his position. Admiral Landymore had several courses of action open. He could have gone on television or run for Parliament or he could have written a book—as long as he did the honorable thing and resigned."

The spokesman said the department might take one of two courses in action in addition to relieving the admiral of his duties. It might dismiss him from the service or it might go as far as to court-martial him.

WILL REVIEW EVIDENCE

He said it would not be known which course of action would be taken until department officials had seen all the vidence.

The spokesman denied flatly that any of the other three admirals said to be on the verge of resigning are unhappy or plan to quit.

He said the three rear admirals, Robert Welland, 48, deputy chief of operations at Canadian Forces headquarters; M. G Stirling, 51, deputy commander of Maritime Command and Pacific Fleet commander; and H. C Burchell, 54, deputy chief of technical services for logistics — all have indicated they plan to remain at their posts.

Compulsory Fingerprints Are Forecast

TORONTO (CP)—Police Chief James Mackey of Toronto said Sunday compulsory fingerprinting for all Canadian citizens will soon be a reality.

Commenting on a proposal by Vancouver Police Chief Ralph Booth, Chief Mackey said: "It's only a matter of time before the public accepts compulsory fingerprinting and identification cards as necessary for their own protection."

"Identification cards with fingerprints are the only way of protecting the individual from the increasing number of fraud cases," he said.

Guardsmen Removed From Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Twenty-seven hundred Illinois national guardsmen were removed early today from Chicago's west side where they had spent three nights in a Negro district scarred by rioting.

Some 1,236 administrative and supply personnel were sent home at midnight. Three hours later, 1,465 others left, but they went to armouries in the city, on standby duty.

Maj.-Gen. Francis P. Kane, commander of the guard, said "at the present time, we plan to put troops on the street again Monday night."

Kane said that after a 3½-hour tour of the west side area he had noted there were fewer incidents and that the district appears to be returning to normal.

Police — operating under an emergency plan since the looting, shooting and burning reached a peak last Thursday—said morning patrols would be normal.

CLAIMS TWO LIVES

The outburst began last Tuesday when Negroes reacted with rock throwing after a patrolmen turned off a hydrant where children were cooling off in mid - 90s temperatures. It claimed two lives, scores of injuries and untold damage. The guard moved in Friday night.

There have been scattered incidents each night. In one, early today, a guardsman reported that a Negro fired at him and fled.

Taverns and pool halls in the area, closed by the disturbance, were allowed to reopen Sunday.

Except for scattered shots, window smashings and burnings, life in the area seemed virtually normal during the weekend. Guardsmen patrolled only in token force during the day.

Textile Firm's Employees' Homes Bombed

MAGOG, Que. (CP) — The homes of two Dominion Textile Co. employees in Magog, Que., were rocked by explosions early Sunday.

No injuries were reported in either case.

The first incident occurred at 2:30 a.m. at the home of Jeff Bonhomme, personnel manager for the company in Magog.

Police said a Molotov cocktail was thrown some 25 feet from Mr. Bonhomme's home. .The impact sent stones flying through a picture window and also caused a little damage inside the house.

The second explosion occurred less than an hour later at the home of Clarence Styan, a foreman with the company's print plant.

Police said they believe dynamite was used in this case.

More than 2,000 employees at the textile plant in Magog have been on strike for 13 weeks. Plants at Sherbrooke, Drummondville and Montmorency are also shut down by the strike. The employees are seeking higher pay.

DOWNTOWN MERCHANTS PUT ON BEEF — In conjunction with their weekend Sidewalk Sale campaign, the Belleville Downtown Merchants' Association sponsored a "Beef-on-a-Bun" barbecue on Front Street Saturday from 9.30 until 2 p.m. Eight hundred burgers, made from slices of four hind-quarters of prime red brand beef cooked over open charcoal pits, were sold to hungry passers-by. At left are chefs Herb Mueller and Doug Asselstine, who performed the cooking chores.

Downtown Merchants Please Everybody With Beefburgers

Downtown Belleville took on a carnival atmosphere Saturday during the first annual sidewalk sale.

Over 800 persons stopped at the barbecue pit in front of the Royal Bank to eat one of Herb Mueller's luscious beefburgers.

The Sun Valley chef started the day at 9.30 a.m. with four hind quarters of beef. By 2 p.m. he had sold out completely.

Jerry O'Connor, president of the Downtown Merchants' Association, was most happy with the results of the beefburger spree. "We didn't even have a complaint," he said.

The merchants had originally planned to hold a mammoth sale on the sidewalk, but a city by-law prevented them from obstructing the walks, so they held the sale inside the store, or in the doorways.

Union Uses Planes to Hunt Company Base

SUDBURY (CP)—An airborne reconnaissance force and outbreaks of vandalism were reported Sunday in an explosive wildcat strike that has paralysed all district operations of the giant International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

Executives of the company and the bargaining committee of Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) were scheduled to meet with government officials in Toronto today in an effort to get more than 16,000 workers back on the job.

The airborne force was formed over the weekend, a striker said, to try to locate an Inco helicopter base. He said the company is using a large helicopter to shuttle provisions to supervisory personnel inside plant and mine gates.

Meanwhile Sunday, a few families were evacuated from Inco's Crean Hill mine after power and water services were cut off during the night by unknown persons.

ARRANGES SESSION

Today's meeting was arranged by W. E Dickie, chief conciliation officer for the Ontario department of labor.

In a weekend statement, the union said the workers are firm in their determination to stay off the job until the company clarifies its position on "the indiscriminate and wholesale" distribution of penalties to employees.

The union also said it wants guarantees that no reprisals will be taken against any employees and an early and substantial settlement of current contract negotiations.

The previous three-year contract expired July 10, 1965 and negotiations for a new one began May 4. Since then, the Steelworkers joint bargaining committee has had more than 20 meetings with Inco.

U.S. Opens Red Light District

SAIGON (AP) — The old French resort of Cap St. Jacques will be the site for an experimental government red light district. If the experiment works, similar facilities for U.S. troops may be set up on the outskirts of South Viet Nam's major cities, the government announced today.

Cap St. Jacques, once a playground for French colonists, is 40 miles east of Saigon on the South China Sea and now is known by the Vietnamese name of Vung Tau. It is a rest and recreation centre for U.S. soldiers.

Social Affairs Secretary Tran Ngoc Lien said the district will have its own shopping facilities and will be under strict medical control to reduce the incidence of venereal disease. Gambling will be forbidden.

The growth of the U.S. military establishment in South Viet Nam to 280,000 men has been accompanied by a boom in bars, cabarets and prostitution, especially in Saigon.

Neighbors Take off Hay

Neighborliness is still evident in rural districts even in this age of farm mechanization. Claude McRae, R. R. 1, Marysville, found this out Saturday when a large group of his neighbors arrived at his farm to help with the haying. Mr. McRae has been in ill health all summer and unable to work his fields.

"Tahoe Miss" Wins Unlimited Hydroplane Cup

KELOWNA, B.C (CP)—Mira Slovak, who fled Communist-dominated Czechoslovakia and became a Central Intelligence Agency operative in the United States, Sunday won the British Columbia Cup for unlimited hydroplanes.

Slovak piloted Tahoe Miss to over-all victory after five heats staged on nearby Okanagan Lake. He edged Bill Muncey's Dollar Bill—winner of two of Sunday's heats—after the latter's hydro was washed out of the day's first race by another boat's rooster tail.

"I hate to win a race this way," he said. "Bill Muncey cleaned me in that final heat, but guys like me have all the luck."

Times registered by the big boats Sunday were slow. The action was halted for several hours when a brisk northwest wind whipped up the surface of the lake.

Three boats — Tahoe Miss, Miss Budweiser driven by Bill Brow of Seattle, and Wayfarer's Club Lady piloted by Bob Fendler of Long Beach, Calif.—jumped the gun in the final heat and had to complete an extra lap.

Slovak collected $4,500 for his win and Muncey $3,200 for finishing second.

Third was Bill Brow who earned $2,200 followed by rookie driver Jim Ranger who earned $1,600.

South Africa Whites Get Decision Today

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—After six years of litigation, the International Court of Justice decides today whether South Africa's white rulers have the right to continue running the affairs of Southwest Africa.

Whatever judgment is rendered on the future of the mineral-rich desert territory, a solution to the complex case appears far off.

South Africa was expected to defy any adverse ruling in the case brought before the World Court by Ethiopia and Liberia. The 36-nation Organization of African Unity then is expected to ask the Security Council to enforce the court's ruling, probably with punitive sanctions.

TWO ISSUES INVOLVED

The World Court's decision hinged on two main issues:

—Whether the League of Nations mandate assigning Southwest Africa to South Africa in 1920 still is valid and transferrable to the United Nations as the league's successor.

—Whether the extension of South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation to the territory violates South Africa's obligation under the mandate to "promote to the utmost the material and moral well-being and the social progress of the inhabitants."

Acting on behalf of the new African nations, Ethiopia and Liberia brought the case before the World Court in 1960. They claimed the United Nations inherited the league mandate and that South Africa was bound to submit to UN supervision. They accused South Africa of violating its obligations by practising apartheid in the territory.

South Africa insisted that the mandate died with the league and declared they would not be accountable to the United Nations as the league's successor.

But it said it would go on running Southwest Africa "in the spirit of the mandate."

Cities in the Sky

To accommodate rapidly-increasing population, cities in Canada and elsewhere are growing upwards. High-rise office and apartment buildings are symbolic of this trend. And besides, it makes for an impressive skyline, like that of Toronto viewed from the harbor area and the Yonge Street and Avenue Road areas with their apartment complexes.

The same is true of Vancouver where high-rise is the rage along such favored residential areas as English Bay. But Montreal, according to one authority, is the key to the growth of towering cities in Canada.

To some, Montreal may not seem either as tidy or as impressive a city as either Toronto or Vancouver. True it is bigger, but in the high-rise stakes it cannot lift a finger to the Queen City or the mountain-girt metropolis on the Pacific.

Be that as it may, Montreal ranks high with planning consultant Vincent Ponte.

Addressing a recent seminar on civic design, held in Stratford, Mr. Ponte spoke of the various Montreal schemes based on the Place Ville Marie and described them as representing "the ultimate in core design."

He said that within 50 acres Montreal has realized more than 5,000,000 square feet of office space. In addition, through pedestrian-way planning on sub-levels, about seven miles of shop-lined walkways will be available by 1972.

The entire concept, he says, applies to other cities in Canada, as well as Montreal. Toronto can realize the same success within a decade, and Vancouver, Edmonton and Halifax are headed in the same direction.

In this, Mr. Ponte is referring specifically to core design in the centre of a city as typified by the Place Ville Marie area. As we have pointed out already, both Toronto and Vancouver in our opinion, are more impressive cities.

In any event the outlook is bright for city development in Canada. By the year 2000, says Mr. Ponte, Canada will be at the head of the class in towering city design.

Mr. Ponte sums it up this way (with Montreal once again the apple of his eye): "The towers in Montreal symbolize a change coming to the nation's identity. It is good for the people of Canada, and for the image of Canada around the world."

Israeli Immigrants

Since the state of Israel came into being in 1948 its population has been swelled annually by Jewish people from many lands.

Israel truly has become a mecca and a homeland for thousands, including those who suffered from Nazi oppression. They have helped in the evolution of what today is probably the most advanced country in the Middle East.

Indeed, Israel's greatest asset is its people. While sharing the same common racial origin, they bring to their country the skills and genius of many nations. At the same time they are united in their loyalty as Israelis and members of the Jewish race.

And still they come. Recently more than 100 immigrants from Canada and the United States, the largest group from North America in many years, arrived in Haifa aboard the liner Shalom. They ranged in age from three months to 90 years and included 21 teachers selected by the Israeli Ministry of Education to teach mathematics, science and English in primary schools.

The immigrants will swell the more than 20,000 people from this continent who have settled in Israel in the last 18 years.

U.K. Girls Fly In

Big cities, one generally assumes, are where the girls are. They gravitate to the larger centres where jobs are plentiful and life is varied and interesting.

But not so, apparently, in Toronto, which has been experiencing an acute shortage of skilled office workers. To ease the situation, a planeload of 123 qualified secretaries was flown in recently from London, England.

And talk about the "power of a woman." With more than 100 of the English girls invading Canada in one fell swoop, the Immigration Department bent the regulations. Red tape was cut to a minimum to bring the girls (average age 23) here. They will work for Office Overload in Toronto.

Stay Sober—Or Else

The Toronto Telegram suggests Canada should adopt the Finnish approach to the problem of impaired driving.

The Finns sentence drunk drivers three months to two years, and assign them to special work gangs building airports, harbor installations and other public projects.

Actually, the idea is not a new one. Sweden has a similar program for drivers who err with a bottle, and its adoption here has been suggested before.

We recall the story of a Swedish television performer who was given a stint in one of the State forests up north. On his return he observed wryly: "My career was ruined, but I'm as strong as an ox."

Nation of Backseat Drivers

Orillia Packet and Times

It is a commonplace to observe that we live in an age of almost instant communications; an era when electronic miracles permit millions of people to witness events half a world away at the very moment that they occur. What is not so commonly understood, however, is that this revolution in communications has done remarkably little to add to global understanding; indeed, it may well be that many of the difficulties be-devilling international relations today are due, in whole or in part, to the magic of modern communications which is making us all irresponsible meddlers in our neighbor's business.

The network of undersea cables and radio waves serving our modern news media makes us instantly aware of every crisis, large or small, anywhere in the world without giving us true understanding of it. We learn of famine here, revolution there; we are privy to all the world's troubles, but the communications which bring these endless problems into our homes each day add nothing to our capacity to resolve them. Indeed, quite the reverse; so calloused do we become with constant repetition of the calamities and woes afflicting suffering mankind around the globe, and over which we have little control, that we have little time and less patience to spare to the consideration of problems closer to home, the lesser matters which are properly our responsibility.

As a nation, we stand aghast at an air crash in faroff Japan that kills half as many people as we unconcernedly slaughter on our highways on a single summer weekend. We are more concerned about the administration of Mr. Ky than with the capacity of our home-town aldermen or trustees, and few of our placard-carrying students, demonstrating sympathy with negroes in far-off Selma, have any interest in conditions on our own Indian reserves.

Canada is fast becoming a nation of Nosey Parkers, paying more attention to the scandalous goings-on next door than to the duller domestic affairs which should be their concern. Canadians who couldn't even locate Rhodesia on a map become overnight experts on how the crisis there should be settled. Reporters are jetted out, with all their provincial prejudices and parochialisms, to scenes of crises brought about over a period of years by forces of which they have no comprehension, to "interpret" the situation for us. Instant communications have produced the instant expert, and he in turn induces in us a cocksure conviction that we alone comprehend the real truth and so are entitled, by the divine right vested in democracies such as ours, to impose our solution by sheer moral pressure on the deluded principals in any dispute.

Modern communications have empowered Canadians, who haven't a man or a dollar involved, to lecture the Americans on Viet Nam; Canadians, who only see a colored man when the Pullman cars stand in the station, to set the world straight on racial tolerance; Canadians, born behind the shelf of British seapower and now sheltered under American nuclear might, to reproach world powers for their reliance on force. We are becoming that shining wonder of the age, a nation of expert backseat drivers, and we owe it all to the magic of modern communications.

Cape Croker Bear Hunt

Farming Today

While a full and satisfying life has different meanings to almost everyone, most people associate this happy state of affairs with financial success and the many things it can supply. To Mrs. Donald Keeshig, mother of nine children, living with her husband on the Cape Croker Indian Reserve, near Wiarton, Ontario, a satisfying life means raising a family to enjoy some of the better things of life most of which requires very little of this world's goods.

Mrs. Keeshig, a full blooded Indian, herself one of seven children, has through the years developed several wonderful hobbies which she shares with her family and friends. From her earliest days she was always intrigued by the great outdoors, and as a result she has become an avid hunter. The artistic gun rack on the kitchen wall sports several rifles and shot guns, and she is a crack shot with all of them.

Every fall she gets her deer, and as the season progresses she hunts regularly for rabbits, fox, wolves and just this spring shot a 450 lb. bear that was stealing lambs and calves from her father's barn yard. "I was never so scared in my life as when that wounded bear came charging at me," stated Mrs. Keeshig.

Her other main hobby, and one that brings in a little "pin money," too, is birch bark quill work. This art of making pictures from pieces of birch bark and dyed porcupine quills, passed down from her ancestors, requires hours and hours of tedious work before one picture is completed. The birch bark and the porcupine quills have to be gathered at specific times of the year. Both have to be prepared according to a laid down routine. The quills have to be dyed with various things to achieve the desired colors. The picture design is sketched on the birch bark and then the sketch filled in with the colored quills. These birch bark pictures are so famous Mrs. Keeshig's hobby is almost a business.

But in spite of her love of hunting, the outdoors and her handicrafft work, her greatest joy in life is reading poetry. "There is one piece of poetry that was in my father's public school reader, I must have read a thousand times," related Mrs. Keeshig. She reads poems to herself and the family and often records them on a tape recorder, then plays them back. "In the evening when the work's all done, reading a few poems or working at birch bark pictures takes me away into another world," says Mrs. Keeshig. "In fact, the everyday trials and tribulations seem to melt into nothingness when you can really relax by enjoying several very different hobbies like mine."

Strictly Personal

Masculine and Feminine

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What is "masculine," and what is "feminine"? When it comes to such superficialities as the length of the hair, the style of the clothes, or even the means of adornments — then for us to proclaim that any of these modes is "masculine" or "feminine" is to announce ourselves as historically ignorant and culturally provincial.

In the matter of long hair, men and women were indistinguishable by the length of their hair in Biblical times, and for much afterwards. Samson, indeed lost his strength when his hair was cut. The fiercest warriors in many periods of history wore hair down to their shoulders.

As for clothes, it is only in recent times that the woman has dressed in more color and frills than the man. Men have worn trousers for less than 150 years — before then, they wore skirts or long stockings, laces, ribbons, pleats, plumes and everything we today designate as "feminine" in attire. And would anyone suggest that General Washington was "effeminate" for wearing a powdered white wig?

Even in the matter of jewelry — which seems to us so exclusively a feminine concern — it was the men who wore the rings and bracelets even more than the women until the late Middle Ages. In fact, as Olive Nelson has pointed out in the Cambridge (England) News, until about 500 years ago the wearing of diamonds was a man's prerogative.

"It was not until 1444," we are informed, "that Anes Sorel, a lady of the French court, broke with tradition and appeared adorned with diamond jewelry. Agnes, who was beloved by Charles VII, borrowed some of her royal admirer's jewelry and wore it with such effect that she set a fashion which has never died."

To imagine that certain ways of wearing the hair, or certain types of clothes or adornments are inherently "masculine" or "feminine" is to take the appearance for substance. In past ages, the virility of a man was determined by his valor, his stamina, his strength of purpose in the fields or on the battlements.

In modern times, however, opportunities to display manhood are increasingly rare. Since it can no longer be proved, it must be symbolized — by the short hair, the drab clothes, the lack of adornment, the precise opposite of what the modern woman looks like. In my view, the lads of today who dare to grow long hair (whatever else their motives) are more certain of their manhood than those who deride them.

Hard Going For Graham

Peterborough Examiner

A Reuters item from London informs us that a young man who had been living a life of crime was so overwhelmed by hearing Dr. Billy Graham preach during his current crusade that he went to the police and confessed to 42 crimes. This, of course, is the stuff of which evangelism is made and it will have warmed Dr. Graham's heart. And, if we are to judge by the scattered reports we have read of his crusade from Britain he could do with it.

People have been questioning his attendance and commitment figures, raising eyebrows at the vast cost of the crusade and generally regarding sceptically his indictment of Britain as a decadent society. Indeed, since the 'swinging Britain' concept which Britons have been busily denouncing of late seems to have largely been a product of Time and other U.S. reporters' imagination, it is only adding insult to injury when a U.S. evangelist chastises the British for it.

However, what may be the worst of all for Dr. Graham is the suspicion that he is not being taken seriously. Juxtaposing pictures of Playboy Clubs and the Graham crusade, the Observer of London devoted some space to the visit of America's two most famous evangelists (the other being Hugh Hefner) who were both in London talking of love and sex, money, war and peace, both with their aides (Bunnies and Counsellors). Public figures can survive criticism, but not ridicule. But perhaps Dr. Graham has only himself to blame by trying to conquer Britain when everyone since William 1 has failed.

Ulcer Patients Need Low Residue Foods

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the low residue foods and when are they used? — R. G.

Low residue foods are those which are very largely absorbed by the intestines, with little left over to be expelled by the bowel. What is left over is called residue or bulk, or roughage or ash. (There are minor distinctions between some of these terms, but in all cases they are "what's left over.")

A certain amount of bulk is good for a normal digestive system. It gives the colon something to work on — for the bowel does not tend to discharge waste matter until enough accumulates to trigger the contraction which causes a movement. This is something too often forgotten by people who think they are constipated. For them, adding foods with more residue, speeds up the time in which the bowel accumulates enough to make a movement. For some folks, artificial bulk-producers (agar and similar products) are useful.

At the other extreme, there are people who should keep bowel activity or intestinal irritation at a minimum. People with ulcers, or diarrhea associated with colitis, are principal examples of those who may require low-residue diets.

Foods with the lowest residue are such items as refined flour, starch, pure fats, sugar, hard-boiled egg, meat, liver, rice, cottage cheese, gelatin, strained fruit and vegetable juices.

Vegetables and fruits in general are relatively high in residue. The vegetable fibres are cellulose, which is indigestible. The same is true of husks — the husks of grain the outer covering of kernels of corn, whole wheat, and so on.

Thus, straining out such fibres or husks reduces the amount of indigestible residue. In addition, cooking and straining softens the residue of many vegetables, which is why vegetable puree is low in residue even though the original vegetables may have been quite high in this respect.

Dear Dr. Molner: The son of a friend is dating a girl whose family I know. I am one of the few who know that the girl's parents are first cousins, a secret I have kept for years. Should these young people be told of the relationship of the girl's parents? Should I tell the boy's parents and let them take it from there? — Mrs. S. A.

Marriage of first cousins can, at times, result in defective children. This occurs if similar faults are inherited from both parents. That is why marriages of first cousins is discouraged, sometimes prohibited by law.

However, there may also be no overlap of faulty genes, in which case the children are normal, and, indeed, sometimes superior, since they may inherit favourable traits from both sides. Since the girl in this case is healthy, there is no reason for you to bring up the relationship of her parents, and no reason why the girl shouldn't marry—so long as she does not marry a cousin. Say nothing at all about it, ever.

Dear Dr. Molner: If, in your opinion it is possible to drink too much coffee, where would you draw the line, in cups per day, between enough and too much? — C. M. C.

If you really expect me to give you such a specific figure, you are dreaming! Tolerance to coffee and to many other things varies so much that what is too much for one person wouldn't matter at all to another.

Just one cup can bother some individuals, others drink a dozen cups or more a day without visible harm. For most of us, two or three cups a day is a reasonable amount. The question isn't how much is too much. The question is how much causes any symptoms for you.

Benito Juarez, the revolutionary founder of modern Mexico, died 94 years ago today—in 1872—aged 66. Life on Farm Is No Picnic

Ottawa Journal

It doesn't hurt for city people to be reminded that the "simple life" of the farmer, if ever it existed, is pleasant fiction in 1966.

The pressure by Ontario farmers for a higher milk price and a request for an equal price by Western Quebec farmers, are just small look-ins to the complicated economics a farmer must master if he is going to succeed. A city-man has a hard enough time figuring out the seeming maze of federal and provincial involvements in milk price supports; the good farmer, has to understand all the factors affecting the price of every one of his products. The really complicated part for the farmer is figuring out how his production costs in detail compare with his income. Training as an accountant and efficiency expert would come in handy. The agriculture courses that more and more farmers are taking at universities recognize these needs.

Farm vacations are said to be growing in popularity with city people and this could be one way to narrow the "understanding gap" that exists between rural and urban man. Finding out how much milk a particular cow can give in a year, or the worth of a field of hay or the cost of a new tractor would give the city man a more realistic view of farming.

But anyone planning such a vacation had better beware of asking the farmer too many innocent questions. He may be too busy to answer them. There are all sorts of information sources about farming, the Department of Agriculture not the least of them — which a man studying for his farm vacation could consult. The end result might be that he would find himself looking at a quart of milk and a package of porkchops, not to mention the farmer, with new-found respect.

Indians' Education

Brantford Expositor

More than 50,000 Indians are now enrolled in schools throughout Canada. Given the proper training, there is no reason why they should regard themselves as inferior in ability to others. Education is a self-help in the best sense of the word and should be of a type that the Indian can accept without feeling that he is being put upon. Well equipped and staffed day schools are of particular importance on the reserve. If the Indian wants to remain there, as so many do, he must have the facilities to develop a worth-while community life for himself. Education provides one such means.

NEW DELHI (AP)—Women dressed as men in central India and trudged out to plow dusty fields beneath a blazing sun.

In the city of Ghopal, Hindus and Moslems, forgetting tensions between them, offered special prayers. In New Delhi, shock spread through Prime Minister Gandhi's government.

The annual monsoon rains, which began normally in early June, were failing. And in rural villages there was fear that another scorching drought was ahead, that food shortages would get worse.

The women reverted to ancient superstitions, hoping to appease their rain gods with a masquerade in men's clothing. It did little good.

In the first half of July, conflicting wind currents deflected the monsoon which normally sweeps up the subcontinent from the south with great sheets of cooling, life - giving rain. Skies cleared and temperatures rose to 107 or more.

HIT BY DROUGHT IN 1965

India last year endured the worst drought in a century. The exact picture this year will not be known for several months.

Correspondents reported this picture:

New Delhi (northern India) had a week of sporadic rains in late June followed by a killer heat wave with temperatures of nearly 107 degrees. Soil moisture dwindled.

Bombay (west central) sweltered under a brilliant sun for this first two weeks of July. The surrounding Maharashtra state was counted among seven states where drought was seriously harming crops.

Madras (southeast) sweltered as the monsoon failed to deliver even half the normal rainfall along the Bay of Bengal coast. Farmers delayed rice transplanting and hydroelectric projects cut back power production.

Calcutta (eastern) had early rains but the surrounding states of West Bengal, Bihar and Orissa received less than a third the normal rainfall.

Two hopeful spots were Kashmir, in the distant north, and Darjeeling district, on the slopes of the eastern Himalayas. Both had adequate rains and officials predicted bumper crops.

Urge Control Of Canadian Banks in U.S.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. federal supervision of the growing activity of Canadian and other foreign banks is recommended in a special report prepared for a joint congressional committee.

Foreign-bank operations, centred in California and New York state, are found to have conferred some special benefits including improvement of the United States balance - of - payments situation, says a study prepared by Dr. Jack Zwick, assistant professor at Columbia University.

Reciprocity for American bank operations abroad would also be assisted.

"It is in the public interest that the Congress provide for the federal examination and supervision of foreign banks so that foreign policy and the broader national and international implications of foreign-bank activities can be adequately appraised," says the report to the joint economic committee of Congress, headed by Representative Wright Patmen (Dem. Tex.).

AMEND ACT

"At the same time, the National Banking Act should be amended to permit the licensing of foreign agencies and branches by the federal government. Currently only five states —California, Hawaii, Massachusetts, New York and Oregon—allow foreign banks to establish offices . . . the other 45 states are closed. . . ."

The report says Canadian federal authority effectively bars American banks from establishing branches or agencies there and it has special interest bearing on the American purchase three years ago from Dutch interests of the Mercantile Bank of Canada at Montreal.

Mercantile, bought by the First National City Bank of New York, is not mentioned in the Zwick report. But it has been assumed that Mercantile's growth will be sharply restricted as a threat otherwise to Canadian banks.

Road Mishaps Take 43 Lives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents results in at least 70 deaths in Canada during the weekend, with 43 persons dying on the highways.

Industry's Class Distinction Eliminated at Kingston Alcan

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—For more than 10 years, Fred Whitney, personnel manager at the Aluminum Co. of Canada rolling mill here, has been bothered by industry's class distinction.

"It bugged me that some of the men I went to school with had to punch a clock while others were on the honor system and were paid a weekly salary," Mr. Whitney said in an interview

"There didn't seem to be any reason for this distinction. We have some pretty fine gentlemen out there in the plant."

He suggested to company executives five years ago that clocks were obsolete. "I got zero reaction but I kept after them."

After much head-scratching, the company agreed to remove the clocks for three years. They're still out

This week Alcan - following Whitney's prodding since 1963- switched its 1,650 hourly-rated employees here to a guaranteed weekly salary.

The program, proably a first for North American industry, goes into effect in October.

Says Lloyd Fell, international representative of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC):

"This is a courageous, guisy step forward by Alcan. It puts our members on their honor to do a good week's work. There'll be chiselters, but they'll be weeded out by the men themselves."

Canada Banned Uranium Sale To France

AUCKLAND, N.Z (Reuters) —Canada refused to sell uranium to France because it was to be used for nuclear weapons, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh of Canada said today.

Despite close ties between the two countries, Canada did not support the French government's decision to undertake nuclear tests in the South Pacific, she told reporters.

Miss LaMarsh is on a two-week visit to Australia and New Zealand to speak about Canada's centennial celebrations next year and aspects of her department's work.

Although Canada did not publicly condemn the French action, she said, it was certainly not condoned.

"They tried to buy uranium from us, but we would not sell it if it was to be used for nuclear weapon purposes," she said. "I think they eventually got it from Africa or somewhere."

Asks What to Buy School Principal

DEAR DORIS: The principal of our school is a very nice person. He is married and has one child. He has helped me a lot during this school term and I would like to give him a gift. Do you have any suggestions of what I could give him? — GRATEFUL.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GRATEFUL: Think about: a pen and pencil set; a little silver desk calendar; a gift certificate for a book he wants; a set of letter opener and scissors; or a memo box.

Are you good at making things? One girl gave her helpful teacher a little leather wallet she had made herself and he really prized it. An artistic boy made a petitpoint picture, and presented it to his principal with a note expressing thanks and mentioning his hope that this picture would be enjoyed by the wife who shared her husband-teacher during so many after-hours.

The note is just as important as the gift itself.

DEAR DORIS: What do you think of a man who set the wedding date and had my Mom make all the arrangements for the wedding and reception before he broke our engagement? Unfortunately, I'm still in love with him. I even changed my religion for him.

Also, I'm not working right now which doesn't help any since I have too much time on my hands. Something like this really tears down your ego and is most embarrassing. — VERY DEEPLY HURT.

DEAR HURT: Did he get cold feet at the last minute? I'd have to know more about what happened before hazard a guess. One thing is certain — he's not one to face things squarely, is he?

It's a great shock, of course. Hurt pride compounds the insult. But the day will come when you'll be grateful for being free of him.

Marriage to the wrong person isn't embarrassing. It's tragic. Get a new job, quick. Your own good friends will stick with you.

WEDDING

SAGRIFF — McQUAID

Geraldine Helena, daughter of Mrs. E. J. McQuaid of Belleville and the late Mr. McQuaid, and Clinton Severn Sagriff of Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sagriff of Ivanhoe, were united in marriage by Rev. Rufus Debono in Holy Rosary Church recently. Sister Mary Rosario played the wedding music and Mr. John McQuaid was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Stanley McQuaid, wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie with triple panel of lace at the front. The lace bodice was styled with scalloped neckline, long lily-point lace sleeves and dipped to a deep V at the back, accented with a detachable train. Her shoulder-length bouffant veil fell from a headdress of rose petals and seed pearls and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of red and white roses and ivy.

Miss Lorraine McQuaid, sister of the bride, as maid of honor was dressed in a floor-length turquoise peau de soie gown. It featured a straight skirt with full overskirt, and three-quarter length sleeves ending in a flair. She wore a headpiece of turquoise-tinted and white Shasta 'mums with ivy, and carried a matching bouquet. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Mary Maracle and Mrs. Henry Capener, sisters of the bride, wore pink dresses similar in style to that of the maid of honor. Their bouquets and headpieces were in pink.

Two flower girls, the bride's nieces, Misses Valarie and Karen Maracle, were dressed in pink frocks similar to those of the bridesmaids. The Misses Tami Thrasher and Marilyn Nolan, also nieces of the bride, were dressed in turquoise. All carried bouquets of white Shasta 'mums and ivy and wore white head bands.

Mr. Doug Scott of Kingston was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Gerald McQuaid, brother of the bride and Mr. Firmen Sagriff, brother of the bridegroom. Michael Nolan, nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer.

At the reception at the Army, Navy and Air Force Club, Mrs. McQuaid received the guests, wearing a straight cut royal blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Sagriff assisted, wearing a beige sheath dress with lace bodice, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For her wedding trip the bride chose a mint green suit with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

On their return the couple will live at 16 Holloway Street, Belleville.

Swedish Beauty Is Winner

The entry of 58 was cut to 15 in Saturday night's judging, then pared again to five before the final selection was made.

Canada's entry, 18-year-old Marjorie Schofield of Burlington, Ont., did not make the 15 semi-finalists.

Buyers and Fashion Writers Move From Florence to Rome

By LEONORA DOSWORTH

ROME (AP) — The buyers and the fashion writers moved from Florence to Rome today for fall and winter collections that promised to be as feminine and soft as boutique showings in Florence last week were wild and colorful.

Italian high-fashion houses hold the Roman spotlight for six days starting with presentations by Ognibene-Zendman, Gattinoni, Barocco and Valentino.

Advance information indicates the Italian designers have returned to soft, graceful lines as a reaction to the boyish brashness and hard, rigid designs now in style.

Women will be women once more, say Italian designers, and that's the way they like them here. Shapeliness is back in.

The curtain rang down in Florence Sunday night on boutique and knitwear shows after three days crammed with new and pretty ideas.

Featured were see-through theatre coats, beach robes with windows revealing bikinis, home-on-the-range outfits for chich cowgirls, Arab caftans and furs for men designed by a woman.

This is what the boutique designers stressed in Florence:

Sleeves, clinging or flowing but always long; stripes, up-and-down, round or diagonal; the return of the waist in baby-bodice dresses and shorty-jacket suits; splashy colors—vivid violets, golden yellows, hot pinks and lush greens; the versatility of knitwear, neat and tailored or Eskimo-thick for apres ski;

The beauty of billowing Scheherazade gowns in dramatic prints; the "total look" in outfits co-ordinated from top to toe; hose keyed to the color and pattern of the rest of the outfit; the new makeup—down-turned eyes or "no eyes," minus eyebrows in the manner of 16th-century maidens, and long, long hair twisted into fantastic chignons.

Quintebelles Entertained at Barbecue

Japanese lanterns lent a party mood in the backyard of Audrene Moorman, as the Quintebelles Chorus met together Wednesday evening for a time of barbershop singing and fun.

A visit by the "Ding-Dong-Belles" quartet of the Oshawa Chapter of Sweet Adelines climaxed the evening. The quartet, Laverne Rousseau, Anna-Jane Sharrard, Barbara Fear, and Kathy Junkin, who are vacationing in the Madoc area, sang several selections and taught the Quintebelles some new songs.

Barbecued hot dogs and coffee brought the party to a close.

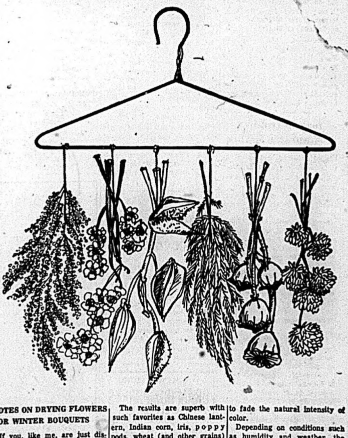
Drying Flowers for Winter Bouquets



NOTES ON DRYING FLOWERS FOR WINTER BOUQUETS

If you, like me, are just discovering the wonders of drying the exquisite flowers, weeds, grains and grasses that are brimming over in the gardens, along the roadsides and in the fields, then you have a surprise in store.

You'll find that no special skill or equipment is required to preserve dozens of the prettiest varieties and that their original color, texture and form can be maintained by the simple method of hanging them by their stems in small bundles, heads down, to dry.

The results are superb with such favorites as Chinese lantern, Indian corn, iris, poppy pods, wheat (and other grains) wild grasses, gladioli, sage, dock and blue salvia.

Ideally, one should pick the plants just before maturity; and try to work on a warm sunny day in order to gather them dry.

Strip off the leaves of flowers before bringing them inside and hang the plants in a dim, dry place such as the attic cupboard or the inside roof of the garage where air will circulate about them freely.

Why? Because, basically, to preserve them indefinitely, they must be dehydrated, and while doing so exposure to light is apt to fade the natural intensity of color.

Depending on conditions such as humidity and weather, the drying time will take about 10 days or until the once limp stems will snap easily with a brittle crack. Store the material in labelled cartons in a dry place (my speed is a dress box under the bed) until the furnace is turned on next fall and the air is free of humidity. A good idea is toseal the container in a plastic cleaning bag to keep out the dust.

Ferns dry ideally when spread out sparsely between thick layers of newspapers heavily weighted down . . . like under the rug.

Revealing Past Would Serve No Purpose

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have had many strange letters in your column but I'll bet mine will be the strangest.

In 1941 I was 17. We lived in a city near an Army camp and I became involved with a soldier. I had a child out of wedlock. I gave up the child for adoption when he was 10 days old. The father was transferred before I knew I was pregnant and I lost track of him.

ANN LANDERS

Two years later I married a fine man who knew about my past and has never once mentioned it. Our first child was born the following year — a beautiful little girl.

Jennifer (not her real name) is 21 and a junior in college. She wrote that she is in love and would like to bring the chap home for us to meet. Ann, we met him last weekend and I am in a state of shock. This young man is the image of the father of my out-of-wedlock child.

Should I ask Jeniffer to find out if the boy was adopted? If he was should I tell her he may be her half-brother? Could they have normal children if they married? Please help me — I am going to pieces. — RX.

DEAR RX: I checked with several authorities and they all agree that the chances are millions to one against the boy being your son. One consultant suggested that your sense of guilt might be magnifying the resemblance in your mind's eye.

If the boy is Jennifer's half-brother — most unlikely in the light of those fantastic odds — they have a good chance of having normal children provided neither has an inheritable disease such as diabetes or hemophilia. Say nothing to Jennifer. It would serve no useful purpose.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teen-ager who just had her eyes opened up. My friend asked me to go with her when she took her written test for a driver's licence. I'll be taking my test next year and I wanted a preview.

My friend flunked the test and was very mad at the officer who did the grading. She accused the motor vehicle department of throwing in trick questions so people wouldn't pass. The Officer said, "Better to flunk the test on paper than on the highway. We don't give away licences here. Our job is to protect your life and the lives of others against drivers who don't know the rules."

The officer then went on to explain that thousands of people are killed every year because they didn't know what a sign meant — or the other fellow didn't know.

I realize for the first time the importance of studying and understanding the driver's manual. When I take my test I'll know it backward and forward. Thanks for your time.—WISER NOW.

DEAR WISER: Thanks for your time. Your letter may change the lives of some of our readers — or even save a few.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please say something about women with high and puffy hair-do's that obstruct the view in the theatre, the movies, at lectures, concerts and in church? I'm sick of rubber-necking to see over a mountain of ratted hair which stands eight inches above the head and five inches out at the sides. Thank you. — CUT OFF BY CRAZY COIFFURES.

DEAR CUT OFF: In the days when women wore enormous hats they used to flash a message on the screen which read: "Will the ladies kindly remove their hats?" It hardly seems practical to suggest today that the ladies be asked to kindly lower their hair do's — since those high jobs are frequently the result of several hours (not to mention dollars) spent at the beauty salon.

I will print your letter, however, in the hope that some of the Pompadour Paulas and Bouffant Betsys will see it and take the hint.

Salmon or halibut steaks make a wonderful addition to your barbecuing repertory. Cooked to the right turn they make a meal your guests will never forget. Mary Moore gives the detailed steps.

BARBECUED SALMON STEAKS

In Marcus Connelly's famous play "The Green Pastures" of the early Thirties there was a scene called a heavenly "fish fry".

Under the firmament with nine folks that included two ministers and a deaconess, around my backyard barbecue we had a fish fry.

The fish was Pacific halibut steaks marinated in French dressing and cooked in a stainless steel "barbecue basket" (see note below). This was a new experience and an experiment with me. While I had eaten barbecued salmon fillets in a garden on the shore of Vancouver harbor last summer and have fried many a Muskoka perch over an open fire I had never had a Pacific halibut steak cookout.

I was a little apprehensive for I knew that overcooking would spoil its goodness. That is what happens over open fires — either your steak is raw and cold or dried out and burned black.

Ours was perfect. I hope you will add fresh halibut and salmon steaks to your barbecuing repertoire.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Chili Con Carne; Hot Buttered Rye Toast; New Cabbage Slaw; Apple Pie and Cheddar Cheese; Coffee.

BARBECUED HALIBUT (OR SALMON) STEAKS:

NOTE:

You may be tempted to buy a piece of halibut and plan to cut it into steaks yourself. Do not. Ask the fishman to cut the steaks one inch thick. The skin is tough and the centre bone is hard and it requires his strong knives to cleave them.

A one-inch-thick halibut steak cut from the widest part of the fish should be cut in half to make two portions. So allow one 1-inch-thick steak for each two people to be served. Place in barbecue basket (over large pan) or in large frying pan and brush with lemony French dressing and allow to stand ½ hour. Turn steaks over and brush other side with French dressing.

When flames of outdoor fire have died down and you have a good bed of glowing coals cook the halibut steaks, turning them over when underside is cooked and golden and cook other side. It takes only a few minutes over hot coals so test flesh to see if it is opaque and will flake. Be sure not to overcook or you will dry out this delicate fish. Serve with Tartare Sauce or Lemony mayonnaise.

NOTE:

Barbecue baskets are made of stainless steel wire and are hinged like old-fashioned hinged toasters that our grandmothers used to use to make toast over the wood stove. My barbecue basket cost $4.50 and is a handy piece of equipment for use over an open fire for steaks, chops, whole small fish and wieners and meat cakes and the whole cookout collection.

Women in High Heels Tire at Slot Machines

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you're taking your wife to Las Vegas, be sure she isn't wearing moccasins . . . Women in flat shoes, a survey found, could play the slot machines for four hours, those in high heels wore out in 2½ hours.

Speaking of high-heel shoes, King Louis XIV of France is credited with making them himself . . . The pint-sized monarch wore a red pair at court functions to make himself look more impressive.

How to make yourself socially more popular: Drinking sweet milk will eliminate breath odors caused by eating onions . . . Gulping lots of black coffee helps if you've indulged in garlic - flavored foods. (But if you've had two gin martinis, taking two more made with vodka won't do a thing to leave you breathless. They're more likely to leave you dizzy.)

You think you've heard of everything? . . . Word comes from Hollywood that some zanies there are having "come as your favorite disease" parties . . . Sounds more like Greenwich Village.

Folklore: Fishing improves when the dogwood blossoms . . . If it rains on Monday, it'll rain at least three days . . . If a girl going through the woods picks up a crooked stick, she will later marry a worthless man . . . A young girl overly fond of cats will wind up as an old maid.

Beatniks are proud of their beards, but gentlemen who sported them in the 17th and 18th centuries were just as vain . . . They wore cumbersome cardboard boxes to bed to protect their chin whiskers from being warped during sleep.

It was W. C. Handy, the jazz musician and composer, who observed: "Life is something like this trumpet. If you don't put anything in it, you don't get anything out. And that's the truth."

Canadians in Gaza Strip Find They Have to Be Diplomats Too

Canadians serving in the Gaza Strip must be diplomats as well as soldiers. A Canadian Press reporter who visited the United Nations bases along the Egypt-Israel border tells how they operate in the tense situation.

By CARL MOLLINS

CAMP RAFAH, Gaza (CP) Canadian soldiers with the United Nations Emergency Force encounter some routine the training manual fails to cover.

Like the time last spring when Maj. Bill Stoker of Vancouver, commander of the UNEF provost unit, had to settle a complaint from an Arab shepherd that a UN soldier on a bicycle had run over one of his sheep.

Or the fact that service corps drivers on supply runs in the Sinai desert are expected to drop barrels of water along the way as goodwill gestures towards local Bedouin sheikhs.

Adaptability is a prime requirement of Canadians serving alongside soldiers of five other nations and working with Arab civilians in an alien atmosphere that is politically touchy.

"You have to bend routine and alter some of your working habits out here," says Col. George G. Bell of Toronto, commander of the Canadian UNEF contingent for the last year. "Every soldier has to be a diplomat."

He emphasizes the point in familiarization lectures to newly-arrived troops, briefings that range carefully over the history, customs and current sensibilities of this Arab enclave squeezed perilously between Israel and the Mediterranean Sea.

HAS DUAL ROLE

The colonel himself must thread his way through the intricacies of a dual role as commander of the Canadian contingent and head of UNEF support group.

He thus exercises administrative authority over some Canadians who come under the direct operational command of UNEF headquarters in Gaza Town. As head of UNEF support group in Camp Rafah, he has operational command of an Indian supply unit, Danish medical staff and a Brazilian guard company as well as the Canadians in support duties.

"You find inevitably that you deal differently with a force of mixed nationality than you would with an all-Canadian unit," says Col. Bell, a 45-year-old officer who gained experience of military diplomacy as Canadian liaison officer at the Pentagon in Washington from 1960 to 1964.

An administrative goof by an Indian officer or a disciplinary lapse by a Brazilian guard, for example, would warrant a more formal chewing out than would a similar breach by a Canadian. In the Brazilian case, the reprimand would probably lose some of its immediacy by the time it went through translation into Portuguese.

GUARD UNEASY BORDER

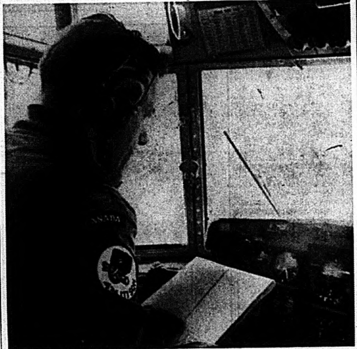
The 814 Canadians with UNEF provide the administrative and logistical backbone for a six-nation force that employs 3,959 servicemen, 74 UN civil servants and about 1,300 local civilians in keeping watch over an uneasy armistice between Arabs and Israelis along the 35-mile frontier of the Gaza Strip and down the 118-mile Sinai border between Israel and Egypt.

Most of the Canadians are based at the southerly end of the Gaza Strip in Camp Rafah, a former British base straddling ancient caravan routes along the coast to Ashkelon and across the desert to the camel market of Beersheba. Gen. Edmund Allenby used Rafah as a base for his 1917 campaign against the Turks and the camp was a munitions and maintenance base during the Second World War.

Inside a 3½-mile perimeter of barbed wire and guard towers, manned by Brazilians in apple-green uniforms, is a comparative oasis of 260 sandy acres made fertile enough by regular watering to support shade trees, flowers and sparse patches of grass.

The military village of low, concrete barracks, frame offices and hangar-sized workshops includes a transport centre that once served as stables for Allenby's camel corps and a hut where a young Egyptian lieutenant named Gamal Abdel Nasser once bunked.

THEY'RE ON THE WATER WAGON — Canadian soldiers with the UN Emergency Force in Gaza find themselves with some strange duties, such as filling water barrels along their supply routes for Bedouin tribes. Readying a tanker truck for a water trip to outposts in the Sinai are Bill Rose (left) of Chilliwack, B.C., Doug Groves of Petawawa, Ont., and Martial Gauthier of Arvida, Que. (CP Photo)



AERIAL PIPELINE — Sqdn. Ldr. Gerry Fosberg of Ottawa nears El Arish on the weekly RCAF flight from Canada. Supplies and personnel for all the members of the UN Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip are handled by Canadians. (CP Photo)

Rafah has been home, work place and recreation centre for a year at a time for thousands of Canadian servicemen in the last nine years. But UNEF assignments scatter detachments of Canadian signallers, engineers, administrators, airmen postal, provost, ordnance and transport men from the torpid tip of the Sinai Peninsula to the Leaning Tower city of Pisa.

Twenty-six Canadian soldiers and two RCAF officers hold key positions at UNEF headquarters in Gaza Town under Indian Gen. Indarjit Rikhye, former chief of staff to UNEF's first commander, Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada.

Singly or in pairs, Canadians guide the movement of UNEF supplies and personnel through staging centres in Pisa, Beirut, Port Said and El Arish in the Sinai southwest of Gaza.

At El Arish, 89 RCAF flyers and maintenance men operate the UNEF air force of three Caribou and two Otter planes, sharing the only concrete airstrip in the area with MiG fighters of the Egyptian air force.

The flyers ferry supplies and passengers into the strip, up to Beirut, down to Cairo and across the Sinai desert to isolated outposts of the Yugoslav reconnaissance battalion as far as Sharm el Sheikh at the entrance of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Flying in primitive conditions, landing and taking off on natural sand flats, the RCAF suffered its first serious accident in almost 10 years with UNICEF last April at El Kuntilla, a remote post 100 miles south of Rafah. Two RCAF pilots and a Yugoslav lieutenant died.

At Sharm and nearby Ras Nasrani, nine Canadians provide engineering and communications support for a Yugoslav detachment that maintains a watch on shipping. At this otherwise unpopulated point, Egyptian shore guns once barred ships bound for the Israeli port of Elath. The passage was freed in 1956.

Nothing taught at Petawawa or Gagetown ever really prepared the Canadian soldier for the humid reality of the heat at Sharm el Sheikh, remotest of the UNEF posts.

"But look at it this way," said a properly adaptable trooper. "You can pick up a great suntan at Sharm, and the swimming must be the best in the world."

Tomorrow: Boredom is main enemy of Canadian troops.

Man Sought

and rubbed," Dr. Smith said. "I saw a B. I rubbed some more and saw B-O-R-N."

It was the first word of a tattoo reading "Born to raise hell."

Dr. Smith recalled the newspaper article and quickly washed the blood off the arm.

The tattoo was one of the identifying marks flashed across the continent 15 hours previously.

"What's your name?" Dr. Smith asked the man.

"Richard, Richard Speck," he answered weakly.

"This is the fellow police are looking for," Dr. Smith told a nurse. "Get hold of the police right now."

At one point, Dr. Smith said, Speck looked up and asked:

"Will you get the $10,000?"

The reference was to the $10,000 reward offered by the South Chicago Community Hospital, where the student nurses trained.

HE'S SCARED

As details of the police investigation were revealed, it showed that Speck might be tied to the mass murder partly by his desire to reach New Orleans.

The only survivor of the massacre, Gorazon Amurao, 23, a Filipino exchange nurse, told police the killer had said he only wanted to get money so he could reach New Orleans.

Then, Miss Amurao said, the man coolly and methodically took her eight friends into other rooms one at a time and strangled or slashed them to death.

Miss Amurao escaped the slaughter by rolling under a bed while the man was killing a nurse in another room.

Police learned that a stranger had been at a service station three blocks from the nurses' townhouse two days previously. He said that he was a seaman and wanted to find a job so he could go to New Orleans.

SOUGHT JOB

At the National Maritime Union hiring hall detectives learned that a Richard Franklin Speck had applied for a job on a ship going to New Orleans.

The clerk gave police a 25-cent photograph of Speck.

The next day, Miss Amurao identified the photograph of Speck as the man who killed her eight friends.

In Washington, the FBI produced the ex-convict's fingerprints. Three prints lifted from a door in the nurses' townhouse were matched to those of Speck.

The tall, acne-scarred Speck has a list of felonies and misdemeanors filling pages of Dallas, Tex., crime records. One offence was an attempted attack and robbery of a Dallas woman with a knife.

Gemini

which he has dubbed a "dead bird" because it has no battery power.

This is one of two 55-minute work periods he plans outside the Gemini 10 spacecraft. The first is to be a simple stand up manoeuvre Tuesday during which he'll open his hatch, poke the upper half of his body into space and conduct scientific and photographic experiments.

At the outset of their flight, Young and Collins will try something new — do-it-yourself navigation. Using the spacecraft inertial guidance system, a sextant to make star and horizon readings and a spacecraft computer, they'll plot the manoeuvres needed to pursue Agena 10 over a 103,000-mile course, catching it after a five-hour chase during their fourth orbit 185 miles above the earth.

On earlier Gemini rendezvous flights calculation was done mainly by computers on the ground, which will be a backup this time.

An hour after catching the Agena 10—shortly before midnight—Young is to insert the nose of Gemini 10 into a docking collar on one end of the 26-foot Agena, clamping the two vehicles firmly together.

Two repeat dockings are slated the next day — one by each astronaut.

After the first docking Young and Collins, both 35, plan another space first — igniting the powerful 16,000-pound thrust Agena 10 engine while linked with it to send both vehicles soaring together into an orbit ranging from 185 to 468 miles.

The altitude record is 307.5 miles, held by Russia.

Germany to take over the $270,000,000 foreign exchange costs of Britain's Rhine Army. If Bonn says no, then Britain will ask the Atlantic allies to release her from her treaty obligation to keep 50,000 men in West Germany.

—A quicker pullout from Britain's Middle East strongpoints including the Aden base which is due to be evacuated by 1968.

The drastic measures are widely predicted in the British press, although a government informant said Sunday all he knows is that austerity will strike at the consumer market, probably in the form of higher purchase taxes and down payments.

Britain simply has been unable to ship or sell enough goods and services abroad to pay for her imports.

HELD SISTER PRISONER

SALERNO, Italy (Reuters)—Anna Vapore, 17, was kept prisoner in a house for more than three years, held there by her brother and sister-in-law, police said Sunday. The girl was found after a neighbor heard cries police said. Her brother, railway engineer Nicolo Vapore, 37, and his wife Liliana, 23, were charged with illegal detention and ill-treatment.

filiated with the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions.

SEEK HIGHER WAGES

They want salary increases and a number of new work arrangements, such as improvements in the system for judging worker competence. The employees are dietary, laundry, housekeeping and maintenance workers and ward orderlies.

All was reported peaceful on picket lines during the weeknd, but five pickets outside the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal were arrested after a dispute about who should be allowed into the hospital.

The pickets carried signs with such inscriptions as The Era of Unpaid Services is Finished and We Protest against Contempt for Workers.

When the strike began Friday against 21 hospitals, union authorities said the strategy would be to increase the number of affected hospitals gradually until all were hit. There are some 50 Quebec hospitals not represented by the association.

Expressing union determination, Marcel Pepin, CNTU president, called during the weekend for Premier Daniel Johnson to "indicate clearly" that his government favors a salary increase for the workers.

He added that none of the negotiation differences concerning money had been resolved up to Saturday night. The workers are "all extremely aware of the heavy consequences flowing from present circumstances and the strike decision was taken only after deep reflection and as the only possible means left to the union."

PLANS WORKING WELL

Spokesmen for the Quebec health department said the department's emergency services were working well and that citizens were volunteering help.

FUCHS DENIES ARREST

EAST BERLIN (Reuters)—Klaus Fuchs, the former British atom spy, has denied a magazine report that he had been arrested by Communist authorities in East Germany for passing atom secrets to the Chinese. The American Parade magazine had reported Sunday Fuchs had been arrested in Dresden. Fuchs, now 54, said: "I have heard these reports in recent weeks. They are simply not true."

It's a far cry from the Halls of Montezuma, the shores of Tripoli, Okinawa and Iwo Jima, but if the Baltimore Orioles win the American league pennant, you can chalk another one up to the Marines.

Hold it, make that a Marine.

The toughest bird in the Baltimore baseball barnyard is the top cock Hank Bauer, ex-Yankee, ex-leatherneck and current ruler of the Oriole roost whose mental trigger can explode more chew-outs than Durocher, Stengel, Stanky and Mauch in a package deal.

The man has knotted muscles upholstering a huge frame. He has a face that resembled a volcano crater after an eruption. There is nothing of the pussyfoot, pantywaist about the Orioles manager.

I saw him during a Dodgers-Yankee world series game leap high in the air, clutch the wire fence that bordered Ebbet's Field right garden, stick out a huge paw and rob Yogi Berra of a sure homer.

Twice Bauer has brought the Birds to third place. This year, the strongest Oriole team in some time is headed for the flagstaff but is being rushed by the second and third placers.

The players know that under the ice-cold surface of Bauer beats the heart of a rough-tough hard-nosed Marine. They cannot change things and the general consensus is to win the pennant under this hard-boiled managerial egg.

And Bauer knows it. "I ain't runnin' no popularity contest" he growls in Marine-spiced language. "If they expect me to be a father, mother, brother or priest, I'm sorry. I just wasn't born that way."

He served four years in the Marines, contacted malaria in a Georgie swamp then was wounded in Guam and again at Okinawa. He went back into baseball and two years after the war was signed by a Yankee scout. Then followed 11 years as an outfielder with the Bronx Bombers.

Pity the poor Oriole who goofs in a game. He is met by the sight of a hairy-chested shrapnel-marked body en route to the shower, who grabs him and roars, "You blankety-blank so-and-so you're fooling with the wallets of 24 other guys."

Bauer's eleven years with the Yankees left their mark. He has carried what they call the Yankee obsession with him ever since. "The Yankees" he growls, always came every day to sweat blood, not play games and towel off."

Frank, one of the Orioles Family Robinson says "Hank loses just like the Reds' Hutchinson, but Hutch used to come into the clubhouse and break furniture. Not Bauer. All you do is take a look at him. You don't mess with him then."

Brooks Robinson, one of the Orioles top hitters has his own ideas of handling Bauer. "He is either smoking cigarettes or eating candy mints. When he's smoking you know he's all right. But when he goes on those mints you just stay away."

Bauer has been accused of being aloof and staying away from his top stars. He has little to say to them. "You don't talk to players like that" he rumbles, "you just write their names in the lineup."

In the heat of a hot close game he roars his orders and quakes the dugout. And his orders are final not without a dash of strategy at times.

So don't be surprised to see a lone Marine ex-sergeant plant the American League flag in Baltimore's baseball Iwo Jima come early October.

Spring was a forgettable experience for Chuck Hinton this year, but he has given American League pitchers small reason to welcome summer.

The Cleveland Indians centre fielder climaxed a month-long hitting spree Sunday with a spectacular performance as the Indians twice scalped Detroit Tigers, 7-3, 15-2.

Hinton hit three home runs, drove in six runs, belted a triple, two singles and second five runs.

Until the middle of June, Hinton, playing irregularly, had been hitting a meager .220.

Playing full time the last month, he's been hitting .333.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees, who have climbed to eighth place, took a pair from Minnesota Twins, 4-2 and 9-6, Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles split, the White Sox winning 5-1, then losing 3-2, California Angels shut out Washington 5-0, then was edged 3-1, and Kansas City Athletics and Boston Red Sox split, both games going 10 innings and both ending 3-2.

Saturday, Minnesota beat Washington 6-2, Cleveland lost 7-2 to Chicago, Baltimore belted Detroit 8-2, New York went 10 innings to defeat Kansas City 9-5 and Boston whipped California 7-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates took over first place with a double win over San Francisco Giants, 7-4, and 7-1, Philadelphia Phillies split with Los Angeles Dodgers, winning 3-0 then losing 3-1, New York Mets took a pair from Houston Astros 4-2 and 7-5, Atlanta Braves defeated Cincinnati Reds 9-6 and St. Louis Cardinals beat Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 11 innings, then lost 7-2.

Saturday, Los Angeles defeated New York 7-1, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 4-1, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 5-3, Philadelphia outlasted San Francisco 6-5 in 15 innings and Houston at Atlanta was called after 5½ innings with the score tied 1-1.

With their two victories Sunday the Indians ended a fast during which they had lost five in a row and 11 of their last 12 games. In those 12 games, Cleveland scored 31 runs. Sunday they came up with 22.

Joe Pepitone, Horace Clarke and Lou Clinton homered for the first Yankee win and Clete Boyer drove in four runs in the nightcap.

Gary Peters of the White Sox limited first - place Baltimore to five hits in the opener, but Brooks Robinson came back to lead the Orioles to victory in the second game. He scored twice and drove in a run.

The Angels' rookie pitcher, Clyde Wright, shut out Washington on seven hits in their opener while Bob Rodgers drove in three runs. In the nightcap, Fred Valentine drove in a run and scored another while Jim Hannan kept the Angels at bay with six hits.

Mike Hershberger scored the winning run on a wild pitch in the first game for Kansas City after he had tripled with two outs. In the second, the hero was Joe Foy, who hit an inside-the-park homer to lead off the 10th.

HE'S ONE AWAY

HANKOE, Norway (AP)—Ernest Fay of Houston, Tex., scored his second victory Sunday in the yachting regatta for the Scandinavian Gold Cup. He led all the way in Pride to finish one minute, 50 seconds ahead of Suennschein, skippered by Rudolf Harmstorf of West Germany, and needs only one more victory to win the cup.

Bobby Rose Led Pros

Doug Mossop Wins Ontario Open

Balazs Has A 222 Score, Bowerman 218

George Balazs, Bay of Quinte Country Club pro, topped immediate district golfers in the Ontario Open, while Gary Bowerman of Richmond Hill and well - known here pocketed a cheque for $87.50.

Bowerman added two 71's to his first round 76 for a 218 and tied with such well known pros as Breen of Woodbridge and Morland of North Bay.

Gary said he was pleased with his showing but would liked to have exchanged his practice round of 70 for his first round 76.

Balazs shot a 74 in the third round giving his a 222 for the tournament. He shot consistent golf throughout and left some well - known pros in his wake.

Other immediate district scores were: Renaud, Peterborough, 228; and Gazeley, Kingston, 224.

BROWN ENTERS

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Hal Brown of Lethbridge, Alta., running second in the contest for the Canadian driver's championship, has entered the 125-mile race for the William Cleland Memorial Trophy next Saturday.

KINGSTON (CP)—Doug Mossop changed to a backhand style of putting this season and today he holds the Ontario open golf championship.

Mossop, a 42-year-old Toronto amateur who resumed competitive golf only two years ago after a 10-year absence, shot a one-under-par 69 Saturday following a pair of 70s in the first and second rounds to take the 54-hole championship with a total of 209.

Bobby Rose, 27-year-old touring pro from Toronto Maple Downs, led the field of professionals with a 67 Saturday for a three-round total of 211 and second place. He shot five birdies Saturday.

As top pro, he won $1,200 and earned the fourth Canadian berth in the world $200,000 golf tournament at Southport, England, next month.

TIES NORMAN

Rose nosed out Bill Mawhinney of Toronto by one shot for the England trip. Mawhinney, former Canadian amateur champion, scored a 69 to tie More Norman of Gilford at 212.

They earned $700 each for their third-place finish and tie for second among professionals.

Norman, winner of the Manitoba Open a week earlier and the Alberta Open the week before that, finished with a 75 while Mawhinney carded his 69.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, who started Saturday's play with a lead of two strokes over Norman and four over Mossop, staggered in with 81 and finished in a tie for 15th with Dave Clayton of Toronto. They each won $137.50.

The 28 - year - old westerner took a disastrous 11 on the par-five, 588-yard fourth hole. His second shot landed among rocks in the left woods.

Homenuik then twice missed the ball and finally watched as it hit a tree and then his golf bag for a two-stroke penalty.

The Open is the first major title Mossop has won since taking the intercollegiate crown while playing for the University of Toronto in 1946.

After ending his eight-year layoff, he spent last winter developing his legs and forearms with a weight training program.

Homenuik estimated his disastrous hole cost him about $100 a shot. "If I could do it over, I'd call it unplayable and go back with a penalty stroke. Oh well, it's only a golf game and I learned something."

Mossop credited his final-round pairing with Norman for the win. "Moe has the greatest hand action in the world," he said. "Watching him helped me straighten out my tee shots. I had been hitting too soon."

In other final scores, Ernie Bentley of Weston, Nick Weslock of Burlington and Gary Cowan of Kitchener each finished with 215. Weslock, six-time Open winner, was shooting for his third consecutive title.

Unruly Brawls Mar Game

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A disgraceful display of sportsmanship which twice erupted into a brawl marred the Belleville and District Softball League's final regular-scheduled game at Alemite Park Saturday night.

It may well have also hurt fan attendance beyond repair.

Another big crowd attended the "game," won by the Bobcats 13-2 over Ellis Juniors, but murmurs on the way out indicated it would be the last game for many of the fans.

Ellis Juniors were unhappy with the work of umpires Jim Tebworth and Mike Whalen and showed it in various methods from the early going.

Disputed calls and heated words were numerous and in the seventh, when Bobcats scored once on a wild pitch to snap a 1-1 tie, Ellis Pitcher Bob Ethier flung his glove to the mound, protesting a called ball by Tebworth.

The serious trouble came in the eighth.

Bobcat catcher John McKibbon hit a single, the first solid hit of the game. He advanced on a wild pitch and headed home to score when Don LeSage singled.

The throw from the outfield was high and Junior catcher Bob Moon was jarred as McKibbon attempted to dive over him. Moon kicked at the fallen McKibbon with his spikes. McKibbon came up grabbing and players from both teams filled the area. When the main combatants were separated, no ejections were made.

Ethier, control-troubled all night with nine walks, walked Lott and Paul Meraw lined a solid home run to finish off the Ellis hopes, making it 6-1.

The Juniors got one back in the bottom of the frame, Moon singling and riding home on Gardiner's base hit, but they left the sacks full.

Bobcats ran wild for seven runs on five hits, two errors, a walk and a hit batter, with Meraw and Mitts each driving home two, in the top of the ninth.

Still arguing calls, Ethier was ejected from the game by Tebworth with his club at bat in the bottom of the inning. He was ordered from the Ellis bench area but a team official told Tebworth to "put him out of there yourself."

Pinch - hitter Bill Barberstock lined a hit to right and was tagged out trying for a double. He came up swinging at the 'Cats' Lem Mowat, who fought back, and both teams rushed into the fray, followed by a pack of young fans. Ethier also joined the battle.

Base umpire Whalen bounced Barberstock and Mowat when peace was restored.

Better control of the Juniors by management and more and earlier ejections by the umpires would have prevented the mess.

League vice-president Cliff Belch, in charge while president Frank Insley is on holidays, has called a full executive meeting for Tuesday night, at 7:00, at the Alemite, prior to a Madoc - Ellis postponed game. Belch has also requested reports from both team managers and the officials.

Bobcats moved six points ahead of the pack with the win, pitched by Bob Lott with relief from Clair Leahy in the ninth. They gave up six hits, fanned seven and walked three. Ethier allowed 12 hits, eight in the last two frames, fanned eight, walked nine and hit two. The club erred six times.

Paul Meraw drove in five runs with his homer and two one - baggers while Rick Locke singled three times and Billy Mitts had a double and single. Bob Lott, Terry LeSage, John McKibbon and Don LeSage added loners.

Don Gardiner got two Ellis Junior safeties, Bob Moon, Bill Barberstock, Bob Chick and Wayne Woods one each.

NHL "Newcomers"

Sponsor Junior Clubs

MINNEAPOLIS (CP)—Junior hockey in eastern Ontario and Minnesota will be sponsored by the six new teams in the National Hockey League.

This decision was announced Sunday following a three-day session of the owners and general managers of the new NHL teams.

Each Junior A series will have six teams and will begin play this fall.

The Ontario operation is the Central Junior A series, governed by Canada's oldest hockey group, the Ottawa District Hockey Association.

The six Ontario teams and the new NHL club with which each will work, are: Ottawa — San Francisco-Oakland; Hull —Los Angeles; Brockville — Philadelphia; Cornwall — St. Louis; Smiths Falls—Minnesota; Pembroke—Pittsburgh.

Ernie Noonan of Brockville, president of the Central Junior A series, negotiated the sponsorship.

Locations of the Minnesota teams will be announced later.

The owners also established a committee to explore the possibility of the International Hockey League becoming a professional league affiliated with the new clubs.

The new clubs' officials are to meet again in Toronto Aug. 28.

Ryun Breaks World Mile Mark

By JACK STEVENSON

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Kansas teen - ager Jim Ryun returned the world record in the mile to the United States after a 29-year absence.

Ryun, 19, blazed four laps in 3:51.3 Sunday, clipping a remarkable 2.3 off the record held by Michel Jazy of France.

Ryun would not have raced the mile event if Russia and Poland had not backed out of scheduled meets in California in protest against U.S. bombings in North Viet Nam.

If the Poles had arrived he would have raced the 1,500 metres.

Ryun adds his mile mark to the world record of 1:44.9 in the half mile he has pending recognition. It was set at Terre Haute, Ind., June 10. The previous month in Los Angeles, the youngster from East Wichita bettered the American two-mile record at 8:26.2.

FIRST SINCE 1937

Not since Britain's Sydney Wooderson broke the record of another Kansan, Glenn Cunningham, with a 4:06.4 in 1937, has an American owned the mile record. Cunningham ran a 4:06.8 in 1934.

En route to the mile, Ryun was clocked with the second fastest 1:500 metres of all time—3:36.1, an American mark now topped only by the 3:35.6 by Herb Elliott of Australia in the 1960 Olympics.

After the race, the six-foot-two, 155-pound Ryun said, "I like any distance—a half mile, 1,500 metres, mile or two miles."

He plans to compete in the half mile next weekend at Los Angeles where runners from Australia, New Zealand and Britain substitute for the Russians. Then he'll rest until fall when he joins the University of Kansas cross - country varsity.

Ryun ran his record mile on the University of California's Edwards Stadium track with two taped blisters on the inside of his right foot and he developed another on the inside of the left foot during the race. He said they didn't bother him.

Brazil On Spot

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP) — Russia is through to the quarter-finals and the Bulgarians can pack their bags and go home—that's the position in the World Cup soccer championships today as the 16 teams move into the final stages Tuesday and Wednesday of the preliminary round.

A goal by Igor Chislenko gave Russia a 1-0 victory over Italy Saturday and assured them of a quarter - final berth. It was the one bright spot in a dull affair.

Portugal whipped Bulgaria 3-0 and that ended Bulgaria's hopes.

The other groups still are open and it could be that goal average will count in several of them.

Defending champion Brazil, beaten 3-1 by a revitalized Hungarian team Friday, now must defeat group leading Portugal to make sure of reaching the quarter - finals.

Brazil took on the Hungarians without their "king of soccer" Pele. He had a slight leg injury, but he could have played. The Brazilians thought they would save him for later and more important games.

Hungary was defeated 3-1 by Portugal in the opening game and looked a pushover for the Brazilians. Now the Brazilians, the team that brought glamor and excitement to the championship, must throw in Pele for the match against Portugal Tuesday.

DEPENDS ON PELE

And Pele must produce all his genius and magic to make sure Brazil defeats Portugal and qualifies for the last eight.

The star man in the Portugal team is inside forward Eusebio, second only to Pele in the world class.

It's going to be no walkover for Brazil.

England and Uruguay are the favorites to go into the quarter-finals from Group One—London group that also includes Mexico and France.

England, after defeating Mexico 2-0 before a crowd of 85,000 at London's Wembley Stadium Saturday night, now has been established 9-to-2 favorites to take the world title for the first time since the competition started in 1930.

West Germany is second favorite at 11-to-2, Argentina and Portugal are 6-to-1, Brazil and Italy 7-to-1, Russia 8-to-1, Hungary 10-to-1, Uruguay 30-to-1, Spain 40-to-1, Chile 200-to-1, France 500-to-1, Bulgaria, Mexico and North Korea 1000-to-1.

England won against the massed defence of Mexico. But they did it solely on the artistry and brilliance of one man, Bobby Charlton.

Group One

Mexico vs. Uruguay

Group Two

Argentina vs. Switzerland

Group Three

Portugal vs. Brazil

Group Four

Italy vs. North Korea

All teams in all groups now have played two games. Each one has one more game to play.

LEAD WITH THREE POINTS

England and Uruguay lead Group One with three points each. France and Mexico have one point.

West Germany and Argentina lead Group Two with three points. Spain has two points. Switzerland is pointless.

Portugal tops Group Three with four points. Brazil and Hungary have two points each. Bulgaria has no points.

Russia leads Group Four with four points followed by Italy with two points and Chile and North Korea with a point each.

The winner of Group One will play the runner-up in Group Two in the quarter - finals. The runners—up in Group One will play the winners of Group Two. The winners of Group Three will play the runners up in Group Four, and the runners—up in Group Three will play the winners of Group Four.

BELLEVILLE LIONS CLUB 4, WHITBY 7

Pirates Sweep Twin Bill From Giants

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Clendenon continued his torrid hitting pace Sunday as Pittsburgh Pirates swept a doubleheader from San Francisco Giants 7-4 and 7-1 and replaced the Giants in first place in the National League pennant race.

The sweep vaulted the Pirates one game ahead of the Giants, who had been out of the top spot only four of the previous 71 days. The teams conclude their three - game series tonight.

Clendenon was a baseball, basketball and football star in his high school and college days.

Upon graduation he was sought by Harlem Globetrotters and New York Knicks for basketball, Cleveland Browns for football and the Pirates.

His four hits in the doubleheader raised his average to .294, putting him within reach of the .300 level that four team mates already have attained.

Clendenon, however, was hitting only .259 June 25. But since then, in a stretch during which the Pirates have won 17 of 23 games, the 30 - year - old first baseman has collected 32 hits in 83 at-bats for a .386 mark.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Philadelphia Phillies blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0 before bowing 3-1, New York Mets swept Houston Astros 4-2 and 7-5, Atlanta Braves downed Cincinnati Reds 9-6 and Chicago Cubs whipped St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 and losing 4-3 in 11 innings.

In the American League Sunday, Baltimore Orioles edged Chicago White Sox 3-2 after losing 5 - 1, Cleveland Indians bombed Detroit Tigers 7-3 and 15-2, New York Yankees swept Minnesota Twins 4-2 and 9-6, California Angels shut out Washington Senators 5-0 before losing 3-1 and Boston Red Sox and Kansas City Athletics traded 10-innings, 3-2 decisions.

Saturday, Baltimore trounced Detroit 8-2, Minnesota defeated Washington 6-2, Chicago drubbed Cleveland 7-2, New York beat Kansas City 9-5 in 10 innings and Boston blasted California 7-1.

Lawn Bowling

District 16 Wins Honors

Lawn bowlers of District 16 won top honors in the zone playoffs held in Peterborough on Saturday. The Stouffville rink of G. Stark, F. Farthing, Merv Watts with Elgin Wagg as skip went through three games undefeated, while the pairs of George Allison and Don Bacon won the doubles after an extra end with Prescott while Gordon MacMillen of Oshawa remained undefeated in singled competition.

A rink and Colts rink from Kingston, a pairs from Belleville and a single competitor from Trenton did not have much success against the sharpshooters from the west of Central and Eastern Ontario. Dave Foxhall of Cobourg was the convener of the Zone playoffs and G. B. "Jerry" Hyde, president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association presided at the luncheon which was sponsored by the Peterborough Club. Mr. Hyde announced that the finals would be played in Brantford on July 30. He stated that he hoped to visit as many Clubs as possible during his term of office.

The Belleville pair of "Jerry" Hyde and Bruce Miller had a frustrating day. In the first game against Prescott they were down fourteen shots midway through the game to fight back to being even going home after 18 ends but lost by one shot on the last end. They arrived in the same position in the second game and were finally beaten 22-15 but managed to defeat the Oshawa pair in the final game.

The Kingston rink won the first game in an extra end but thereafter were never in the hunt and the Colts rink skipped by Doug Clark won the first two games but Stouffville had too much power in the third encounter. Bill Fuller of Trenton was defeated in the first two games but managed to capture the third against Prescott to give MacMillen of Oshawa his third zone playoff in singles.

Cannifton Plane's Win Pair

Cannifton Plane's took a run at the South Hastings Baseball League leaders on the weekend.

It was a pretty successful run.

Plane's whipped Read 8-2 in Read Saturday night and followed up with a 6-5 victory at home against Shannonville Sunday afternoon.

Butch Clapp spun a strong three-hitter to dump Read. He struck out 11 batters and issued five walks, three of them in the first frame.

Clapp hit two singles on his own behalf but got plenty of batting support from his mates. Don Forsythe slammed two bases-empty home runs. Hugh Petrie clouted a two-run homer and a double and Court Brailey contributed two singles. Ron Urch and Pat O'Connor got the other base knocks.

Frank Farrell and Ted Abrams handled Read's pitching, tagged for ten hits. They whiffed five and walked a pair.

Carm Milligan had a double, Pat Enright and Pat Steele a single each for Read's hit total.

Cannifton took a 4-0 lead before Read cut that in half in the third. A four-run explosion in the sixth put it out of reach.

Another four-run blast turned the victory tide Cannifton's way against Shannonville yesterday, coming in the fifth frame. Shannonville fought back with two in the ninth to make it close.

Pat O'Connor pitched the victory, scattering ten hits and half a dozen walks. He struck out a pair.

Dave Lewis and Bill Barberstock split the losers' mound chore, allowing nine hits. They fanned five and walked two.

Court Brailey banged out a double and single to lead the Cannifton hitters. The only other extra-base blow of the game was Jerry Hill's double. Hugh Petrie got two singles with one each going to Ron Urch, John Tweedy, Eric Emerson and Larry Adams.

Wayne Sager and Larry Lewis each collected a brace of singles for Shannonville. R. Boomhower, Carl Boomhower, Dave Lewis, Bob Detlor, Bud Hill and Bill Barberstock divided the others.

T. and S. Softball

Halloway maintained their hold on first place in the T. and S. league with a 4-1 victory over Johnstown on Saturday. In another game, Crookston took over second place with an 11-4 win over Foxboro.

Ron Denyes pitched seven-hit ball for Halloway. Gerry Grills took the loss.

Glen Ketcheson slammed a double and single for Halloway.

Dick Chapman pitched the Crookston win, with Stub Carmen working for the losers.

Bob Smith and Dennis Ray smashed homers for Foxboro.

Squirts Out Of Tournament

Belleville OASA Squirt Travellers were knocked out of competition in the Newmarket Squirt tournament in the second round on Saturday.

The Travellers had no trouble in their opening game, whipping Richmond Hill by a 23-2 count. Bruce MacDonald pitched three-hit ball on the winners' mound.

Preston eliminated Belleville in the second round with a 7-4 decision. Dave Taylor and Peter Labaron shared the Travellers' pitching.

The Travellers will represent this city in the OASA Squirt playdowns shortly.

Dolphin's Behavior Pattern Resembles That of Human

By RICOU BROWNING
(For Cynthia Lowry)

Ricou Browning is the man in charge of the underwater photography which is a specialty of NBC's Flipper series. Here he describes the way he directs his dolphin star during performances.

MIAMI (AP)—To me, Flipper is a person.

He has the instincts, the responses, the behavior pattern, the emotions (notably affection) of a human being.

Flipper's head trainer, Ric O'Feldman, contends that 'anybody who can train a child can train a dolphin," and I heartily agree. It takes as long for me to teach Flipper a trick as it takes me to get the idea across to him as to what I want him to do. And he never forgets. If he learns a trick, and uses it once, he'll do it again on the proper signal six months later.

All the signals used to tell Flipper what to do are done with the hand, underwater and top-side. For example, the signal for him to squirt water is to push water in his face. The signal to shake hands is—as with a human being—simply to hold out your hand.

He will perform as well for strangers as he will for his trainer, and responds readily to the human stars in the TV series — Brian Kelly and the youngsters Luke Halpin and Tommy Horden. In fact, there's a genuine affection between Flipper and members of the cast.

M'JST COMMUNICATE

In training Flipper the most important initial step is to establish communication. Once this is accomplished, it's a matter of "affection training."

Like people, dolphins possess different personalities and character traits, are intelligent in varying degrees. In many years in this field I have never encountered a dolphin I couldn't train.

The first step in training is to encourage the dolphin to eat while in captivity. This may take several days, and requires patience.

Once the animal knows his source of food, the trainer gets into the tank with him, during and after the three-a-day meals, and establishes physical contact—such as touching, rubbing, petting — so that the dolphin realizes there is no danger.

First, I have the dolphin retrieve various objects thrown into the water. Then I have him retrieve live fish—a rather difficult effort since he naturally is tempted to eat the fish.

Once the animal realizes that he is obeying my commands, I teach him to transport people from one place to another.

After each trick, Flipper is rewarded with both food and affection. He receives a daily average of 12 pounds of fish, plus vitamins.

Tyro Class

Cadet Outshot Veterans

WINONA, Ont. (CP)—A 17-year-old army cadet from Oakville outshot a field of older and more experienced marksmen Sunday to emerge the highest man in the Tait-Brassey Match in the Ontario Rifle Association's three-day annual rifle competitions here.

Otto R. Spork, a cadet sergeant firing in the Tyro class, shot 102 out of a possible 105 points to win his class and emerge ahead of Lt.-Col. J. L. (Johnny) Johnston of Islington, Ont., of the O class, and W. A. Hornsby of Toronto of the Experts class.

Col. Johnston and Hornsby, each with 101 points, topped their classes.

Cadet Sgt. C. A. Jones of Oakville won the Green class in the Tait - Brassey with 97 points. Cadet Sgt. J. G. Todd of Brampton, and Cadet Cpl. M. H. Neuman of Fort William tied for second place with 95.

In second place in the O class was Russel C. Smith of Oakville with 100 points. Lt-Cmdr. E. Ryan (RCN Retired), of Kingston was second in the Experts, also with 100.

Flt. Lt. Joe R. Daybell of Centralia, Ont., G. M. Turney of Carrying Place, Ont., and Cadet Maj. D. K. Nicholson of St. Thomas, were tied for second place in the Tyro category.

In Tait-Brassey team competition, the Camp Borden Rifle Association won with 395 out of 420 points.

US Swim Team Beats Russians

MOSCOW (AP)—"Our kids just had a little more experience," coach Don Gambril said today after his American swimming team took an 11-6 unofficial victory over Russia Sunday in a dual meet.

The strong Soviet squad set two world records in defeat.

Gambril called the Soviet team improved over their showing at the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo and predicted they would be tough at the 1968 Olympics.

He added that the Soviets showed good style and conditioning, but needed work on tactics and "the kind of experience that can only be gained in international competition."

Several Americans shot past Soviet rivals with better turns.

BOTH TEAMS WIN

The American men edged the Russians 6-4, and the U.S. girls coasted by the Soviet women 5-2.

The Soviets called the two-day meet a friendly match between swimmers, not nations. They kept no team score.

The Americans unofficially kept score by awarding one point to the winner in each event. There were four American double winners.

Soviet girls set the world records. Irina Posdnyakova, 13, set a mark of 2:43 in the 200 - metre breaststroke Saturday. Galina Prozumenshchikova came back the next day to win the 100-metre breaststroke in a record 1:15.7.

Don Schollander, who won four Olympic gold medals at Tokyo, turned in the fastest time of his career in the 100-metre freestyle, 53.2 seconds, and also won the 200-metre freestyle.

Track And Field

Will Send 34 To Games

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada will send 34 track and field athletes — 21 men and 13 women—to the 1966 British Empire Games (Aug. 4-1) at Kingston, Jamaica.

The decision was announced Sunday by Pete Beach of Toronto, national chairman of the track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union, following two days of trials.

Included is Harry Jerome, the world's fastest active human, although the 26-year-old Vancouver speedster has not said he will go.

Jerome earned his spot by tying the world record for the 100-yard dash in 9.1 seconds Friday and following with a clocking of 20.4 seconds Saturday in the 220.

His century performance matched a record set by American Bob Hayes at St. Louis in 1963. Hayes, now a flanker with Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and ineligible for further track competition, also shares with Jerome the world 100 - metre record of 10 seconds flat.

Jerome's time in the 220 was four-tenths of a second off the world record held by American Henry Carr, now a defensive back with the NFL Detroit Lions. In the process, Jerome bettered his own Canadian-native and open mark by a half-second.

Record - setting women sprinters Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver, Jan Maddin of Winnipeg and Marjorie Turner of Lockport, M.S., were named to lead the women's team — Miss Maddin and Miss Turner for the first time.

Beach said the team is the "strongest we have sent anywhere since the Olympics of 1928, when our girls led all other women's teams in points and Percy Williams won two gold medals in the sprints."

The team includes all athletes who shared in setting four Canadian open and seven native records. Only Jerome set more than one.

Swim Championships

Teen-Ager Sensational

HAMILTON (CP) — Canada has won only two gold medals in women's swimming at the British Empire Games in the last 32 years, but a 15-year-old schoolgirl from Vancouver could match that total herself next month in Jamaica.

Elaine Tanner, 105 pounds of competitive dynamite, leads Canada's swimming contingent into the Aug. 4-13 Games at Kingston and officials predict as many as six golds in women's events.

Miss Tanner, dubbed the mighty mouse by team-mates, turned out to be a mouse that roared Saturday at the windup of the week-long Canadian amateur swimming championships and BE Games trials at McMaster University.

The five - foot - two brunette capped a phenomenal week-long performance by breaking her fifth Canadian native and open record, this one a 1:06.2 mark in the 110-yard butterfly final.

SET BY IDOL

The previous record, 1:07.3 set two years ago, was held by Mary Stewart of Vancouver, a former idol of Elaine's who has retired and now attends Simon Fraser University.

Miss Stewart was the last Canadian woman to strike gold in the BE Games when she won the 110-yard butterfly in 1962 at Perth, Australia.

The last time Canadian women did well in BEG swimming was 1934 in London with five golds. The only other first-place finish since then was in 1938 at Sydney, Australia, in the 440-yard freestyle relay.

In addition to setting five records, Miss Tanner won six of 12 women's finals, swam on two record-setting relay teams and won 14 of 15 individual races, including heats.

Her only loss was to Marion Lay of Vancouver in the 110-yard freestyle final in which she finished second.

Miss Tanner, Miss Lay, Jane Hughes of Vancouver, Louise Kennedy of London, Ont., Barbara Hounsell of Toronto, Marilyn Corson, a native of Parry Sound, Ont., living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and Donna Ross of Montreal comprise the women's team.

INCLUDES FIVE FROM B.C.

The men's swimming team includes Sandy Gilchrist and Ralph Hutton, both natives of Ocean Falls, B.C., attending school in California, Ron Jacks and Bill Mahony, both of Vancouver, Gordon Eby of Prince Rupert, B.C., Bob Kasting of Lethbridge, Alta., Jim Shaw and Alex Fedko, both of Toronto and Tom Arusoo and Leonard Chase, both of Montreal.

Six records fell on the final day of the meet, five to British Columbia competitors. Miss Tanner, who earlier in the week set records in the 220-yard butterfly in 2:33.1, 220 backstroke in 2:34.1, 40 freestyle in 4:46.4 and 440 individual medley in 5:27.2, also anchored a Vancouver Dolphin Swimming Club team in the 440 freestyle relay to a 4:27.6 record. It was six-tenths of a second better than the previous record by the same club two years ago.

Takes Race At Harewood, Brabham Wins

SIMCOE (CP) — George Eaton, 18, of Toronto, won his first motor race on the Canadian driving circuit with a victory in the Mid-Summer Trophy Race at Harewood Acres Saturday.

Eaton drove his Ford Cobra to the win in 38 minutes and five seconds for an average of 90.2 miles an hour over 30 laps.

Second was Louis Donolo of Toronto in a Merlyn Ford. Harold Brown of Lethbridge, Alta., was third in a Lotus 23.

George Fejer of Toronto led for the first 12 laps but the engine of his Chinook blew on the 13th lap and from then on it was a tight two-car affair between Eaton and Nat Adams. But their cars bumped on the last lap and Adams racer spun off the course.

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP)—Jack Brabham streaked away from the field and won the Royal Automobile Club's British Grand Prix Saturday.

Driving a car he built, the 40-year-old Australian lapped almost the entire field in capturing the event for the third time. The victory gave Brabham a 10-point lead for the world driving championship.

Second place went to another Brabham car, driven by Dennis Hulme of New Zealand.

Immaculate Motor Veterans Pass Through City on Tour

They drove out yesteryear into Belleville yesterday.

Thirty - eight classic cars, vintage 1914 to 1937, passed through Belleville yesterday afternoon on one link of the 10th annual Tour To Yesteryear.

The tour, sponsored by the Antique and Classic Car Club of Canada, started Sunday morning in Toronto, goes all around Lake Ontario, a distance of 675 miles, and winds up with a banquet Friday night in Toronto.

The cars assembled at the Rite - Way Plaza then paraded through the city to Victoria Park. A large crowd of spectators was on hand at the park to to view the cars.

Every car in the tour is in immaculate condition. Merrill Weekes, regional co - ordinator, ACCCC, exlained, "Many of these people have older cars at home, but they don't want to take them on a trip of this nature."

He said they travel along at a rate of 30 to 40 miles per hour.

Paul Dodington, president of the Toronto region of the ACCCC, and owner and driver of a 1914 Model "T" Ford, the oldest car in the tour, said he once drove his car from Toronto to Kingston in four and one-half hours.

Cars in the tour assembled in Toronto Saturday and Sunday. They came from as far away as Sarnia on the west and Montreal on the east, and they were driven, not towed in a trailer.

Don Joss, chairman of the board of Black Diamond Cheese, along with Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville, presented tour officials with some Black Diamond cheese. The cheese will be carried throughout the tour with portions of it being presented to mayors in the communities in which they stop. Mayor Ellis welcomed the tour to Belleville and wished them success on the rest of their tour.

The tour left Belleville yesterday for Kingston and plans to arrive in Oswego, N.Y., tonight.

Don't Know Where to Start in Remedying Pollution in Great Lakes--Pepin

KINGSTON (CP) — Research into water pollution of the Great Lakes is a multi-million-dollar project but implementation of effective remedial measures could cost billions of dollars, Mines Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Monday.

"The problem is so complicated we don't even know yet where to start," he said in an interview aboard the Brandal, a 133 - ton converted fishing trawler chartered by the mines and technical surveys department for a Lake Ontario survey this summer.

Mr. Pepin, department officials and a press party got a first-hand look at the research equipment and techniques used aboard the vessel during a short cruise Monday.

Studies this summer are restricted to Lake Ontario. But the department, working in co-operation with the Ontario Water Resources Commission, the federal health department, the Great Lakes Institute of the University of Toronto and the U.S. department of the interior, hopes to have two vessels chartered next year.

Eighteen scientists aboard the Brandal are taking core samples from the bottom of the lake for bacteriological studies, checking water temperatures at various levels and measuring the amount of sunlight radiation falling on the lake.

While some data they are gathering is new, much of it is intended to complement previous studies by U.S. scientists and discover what changes have occurred.

The Brandal is covering the shore on both sides of the international border, collecting data at 46 sites in rotation.

Results will not be startling but they will contribute to the eventual solution, said Dr. W. M. Cameron, director of the department's marine sciences branch.

"We can't restore the lakes to their original pristine state but we can find out what level of pollution we can live with. Then we can try to reduce pollution to achieve that level."

Eventual cost of any program to clean up the lakes could be billions of dollars, Mr. Pepin said, but "it's difficult to make any estimates until we know just what we have to do."

While there is no argument about the lower lakes, especially Lake Erie, being polluted there is not enough data for an accurate assessment of the actual causes of pollution and the individual effect of different sources of pollution. The Brandal's work is expected to shed light on this problem.

The mouth of the Niagara River, where Lake Erie's polluted water flows in, is Lake Ontario's biggest region of pollution and the Brandal's summer studies of lake currents, temperature flow and bacteria is partially aimed at discovering whether the pollution is building up in other areas and how fast it is spreading.

Wilson Hurries Home

'Last Minute of Eleventh Hour' In Britain's Economic Crisis

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson flew home from Moscow today and headed immediately for a cabinet meeting on Britain's economic crisis.

On his arrival he refused to comment on the crisis prior to the meeting.

That meeting was designed to wrap up the socialist package that Wilson promised to present Parliament to save the skidding pound sterling and re-establish confidence in Britain's economic health and determination.

Today's newspapers try to whip up an almost doomsday air of tension. The tabloid Daily Mirror, which supported Wilson in the last two elections and boasts the biggest circulation, devotes the greater part of its first three pages to an editorial:

"It is now or never. For this is the last minute of the 11th hour And there isn't a single gimmick in the armory of self-delusion which can change, even appear to change, the shattering economic facts. . . ."

Wilson's ministers worked through Monday on proposals believed to include purchase-tax increases, a slowing down of domestic industry and diversion of energies to exports, boosting of unemployment and chops in government spending at home and overseas.

Wilson will address Parliament Wednesday — one week earlier than had been scheduled—and is expected on the same day to make a television address on the economic position.

The prime minister hoped to further peace efforts on Viet Nam by his three - day Moscow visit. But reports from the Soviet capital indicate he wore the look of a man fighting the wrong crisis in the wrong place at the wrong time

The pound slid Friday on the eve of Wilson's departure and came under renewed selling pressure Monday. The stock exchange slumped for the 13th consecutive day.

Millions of pounds were clipped off the market value of stocks as the country waited uneasily for Wilson's austerity measures, which are expected to be the toughest since the Second World War.

The pound - U.S. dollar rate dropped Monday to $2.7689 from $2.7872. It also fell Friday after the bank rate, the country's key landing rate, was raised to seven from six per cent and the government also announced other austerity measures.

The Bank of England gave some support to the pound in forward markets, where pressure also was building against sterling, but not in the spot markets.

Asked Nurses To Resist

CHICAGO (AP)—She tried to persuade the others to resist but they felt it would be safer to go along. As the quiet-spoken intruder led each of her friends to their deaths, she crouched under a bed and prayed.

The consul - general of the Philippines said Corazon Amurao gave him this account Monday night of the massacre of eight student nurses. Miss Amurao, 23, was the only survivor.

It was the first account of the night of horror. Miss Amurao has given, apart from largely-confidential reports to police.

Consul-General Generoso P. Provido visited Miss Amurao, an exchange student from his country, in the hospital where the girl has been confined since the slayings last Thursday.

The only time she has left the room was for a brief visit Monday to the jail hospital where the man accused of committing the slaughter—Richard Speck, 24,—was under treatment after attempting suicide.

AGAINST MEETING

Speck was under sedation and doctors forbade a face-to-face meeting. They said neither he nor Miss Amurao could stand the strain.

Provido said the girl told him she and the other two Filipino

3,000 Nurses Join Quebec Hospital Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec's harassed hospitals tackled today a mounting mass of strike-generated problems against a background of increased public discomfort and continued expressions of union determination.

A call for the provincial government to take the hospitals under temporary trusteeship was sounded Monday by Marcel Pepin, president of the labor organization with which the 32,500 non - medical workers on strike against the 139 hospitals are affiliated.

A strike by 2,924 of Quebec's 21,000 registered nurses, at 53 hospitals, added to the province's public-health woes.

From the institutions themselves came reports of emergency staffs trying to deal with laundry, meal and medical chores that ordinarily are performed by the non - medical workers or nurses.

From some areas, families forced to accommodate relatives discharged from the hospitals as "non-urgent cases" told of the resulting inconvenience and, sometimes, anguish.

The National Federation of Services said pickets would allow urgent cases and supplies through their lines but not "individuals who call themselves volunteers."

The union, affiliated with the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions, wants higher wages among other benefits.

Mr. Pepin, CNTU president, told a Monday press conference that negotiations so far had not produced tangible results.

The first of the non-medical workers struck Friday and the strike against the 139-member-institutions of the Quebec Hospitals Association became total Monday. There are 189 Quebec hospitals in all.

Talks continued as the hospitals' skeleton staffs carried on despite a situation officially described as "serious but not critical."

At St. Justine's children's hospital in Montreal, doctors said they were being asked by expectant mothers when the strike would end and what would become of them.

St. Justine's, with a normal complement of 840 beds, had 140 occupied following the discharge of non-urgent cases—a strike - time emergency measure.

In Quebec City, some families expressed worry about their ability to take proper care of discharged relatives.

Visiting nurses said they were being bombarded with calls from panicky people who felt unable to cope with shch situations.

In the provincial capital, too, Liberal Leader Jean Lesage hinted that the obtaining of a court injunction by the province's Union Nationale goverment to bar the strike might help the situation.

Union Denies Bombings

MAGOG, Que. (CP) — Pierre Vadboncoeur, chief union negotiator for more than 2,000 striking employees at the Dominion Textile Co. plant here, Monday denied union responsibility for bombings at the homes of two company executives.

"Blowing things up and terrorizing people would not only fail to accomplish anything, but actively harm the cause for which the union is fighting," he said in a prepared statement.

A Molotov cocktail was hurled early Sunday against the home of Geoff Bonhomme, personnel manager of the plant.

An hour later, a dynamite blast rocked the home of Clarence Styan, a company foreman. It shattered several windows and damaged the front gallery.

No injuries were reported in either explosion.

The incidents followed an explosion outside a Dominion Textile plant in Montreal Thursday night which caused one death.

The bomb exploded in the hands of Jean Corbo, 16, of Montreal. Montreal police believe the latter was prompted by the same interests as a bombing which killed a woman and injured four others at the offices of La Grenade Shoe factory in Montreal several months ago. The shoe factory had been on stike for more than a year.

Meanwhile, the strike here, entering its 14th week today, is hampering business in this city of 13,602.

The textile industry is a prime factor in Magog's economy. Half the city's labor force is employed by Dominion Textile

CRITICIZES HELLYER — Rear-Admiral Jeffry V. Brock, former vice-chief of naval staff, Monday called for a reopening of Parliament to deal with the controversy over integration of the armed forces. He told a news conference Defence Minister Hellyer should resign or come to the Atlantic coast to face senior navy officers "eyeball to eyeball." (CP Wirephoto)

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer relieved the Atlantic fleet commander today and prepared similar action for the Pacific fleet chief in a top-echelon defence shake-up over planned unification of the armed forces into a single service.

Rear-Admiral William Landymore, 50, was dismissed for publicly criticizing government policy on unification, He was chief of the integrated Maritime Command as well as Atlantic fleet commander.

Rear-Admiral M. C. Stirling, 51, deputy commander of Maritime Command and Pacific fleet commander, notified Mr. Hellyer he could no longer support policy if it led to complete unification of the services.

Mr. Hellyer's office said the minister considered Rear-Admiral Stirling had done "the honorable thing" and had asked to be relieved. He would be "in due course."

At Halifax, Air Commodore Ralph Gordon, 48, became Rear - Admiral Landymore's temporary replacement as chief of Maritime Command which includes the Atlantic fleet and RCAF maritime units.

TO NAME SUCCESSOR

Mr. Hellyer was expected to name the permanent commander of Maritime Command later today.

Meanwhile, he conferred with defence staff and Brig. W. J. Lawson, judge advocate general, on findings of the judge advocate general's branch about public criticisms by Rear-Admiral Landymore.

Mr. Hellyer's office has said Rear-Admiral Landymore contravened service regulations and laid himself open to disciplinary action.

A department spokesman said a number of regulations cover public pronouncements by serving officers. They include a prohibition on discussion of or writ-

May Alter Seaway Pact To Avoid Raising Tolls

OTTAWA (CP)—The government faces a decision this fall on what to do about St. Lawrence Seaway finances.

The result may be increased tolls along the inland waterway or a revamping of the financial program to get around the debt that has been growing since the mammoth project was completed in 1959.

The Canadian government provided a loan of $345,000,000 to foot the bill for the Canadian side of the Seaway. Since it opened, the waterway has been unable to pay off any of the principal and has fallen behind on the interest payments.

Hearings were held earlier this summer to get reaction of interested parties to a toll increase of some 10 per cent. There were strong protests against a boost.

So there may be more than usual Canadian interest in a bill Representative Henry S. Reuss says he will introduce in the U.S. Congress this week.

The bill proposed by the Wisconsin Democrat would remove the requirement, agreed to by both the Canadian and U.S governments when they undertook the joint project, that building costs for the Seaway be repaid over 50 years.

It would make the U.S. investment in the Seaway, about $130,000,000, a permanent one. The debt would be wiped out but the government would collect an annual payment in perpetuity for having financed the project.

Mr. Reuss said preset tolls

Kosygin Bluntly Refuses To Intercede for Pilots

MOSCOW (CP)—Soviet Premier Kosygin bluntly told Prime Minister Wilson of Britain Monday that Russia will not intercede with North Viet Nam to prevent the trial and possible execution of captive American flyers as war criminals.

He said trying the pilots is within the competence of North Viet Nam, which will settle it using its own discretion.

"The United States will have to account fully for the international banditry committed by that country in Viet Nam," official Soviet spokesman quoted Kosygin as saying.

Thus the Soviet Union appeared to wash its hands of PARIS (AP) — Agence France-Presse said in a dispatch from Peking that the North Vietnamese ambassador to China declared today captured U.S. pilots will be tried as war criminals.

The U.S. pilots have never been considered by North Viet Nam as prisoners of war. Therefore they do not come under the Geneva Convention which would prevent their being put on trial.

Angry Africans Threaten War As World Court Dismisses Suit

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—Nationalist leaders from South - West Africa, incensed over the World Court ruling in favor of South Africa, threaten bloodshed to win freedom for their white-ruled territory.

The 8-to-7 decision handed down Monday caused jubilation in South Africa, rage throughout black Africa and concern in London and other Western capitals.

Black African fury exploded at word that the international tribunal had thrown out the six-year-old suit by Ethiopia and Liberia to break South Africa's control over the 317,000 square miles of mineral-rich land. The League of Nations awarded South Africa the mandate in 1920.

"We have no alternative but to rise in arms and bring our liberation," said a representative of the South-West African People's Organization. "The supreme test must be faced and we must begin to cross many rivers of flood on the march to freedom."

A spokesman for the South-West African National Union in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, warned: "The international community must bear the consequences of what may follow."

The fact that the ruling was based on a legal technicality did not lessen the indignation.

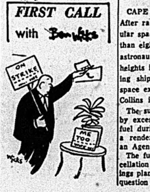
The court held that Ethiopia and Liberia had no legal right to bring the suit as individual members of the League of Nations. Court President Sir Percy Spender of Australia, who cast the deciding vote, held that such action could only be brought by the league council — which no longer exists.

Thus the case was killed with no decision on the Black African charges that South Africa has misruled the territory by imposing its apartheid policy of racial segregation on the 450,000 non-whites who are more than 85 per cent of South-West Africa's population.

"This will convince Africans that they can't expect this question to be settled by reasonable means," said Ambassador Achkar Marof of Guinea, head of the UN committee on apartheid.

Ambassador Endalkachen MaKonnen, Ethiopia's envoy to the UN, said the decision was received "with great surprise and disappointment."

The 26-nation organization of African unity called a strategy session at UN headquarters next Tuesday.



Gemini Docks With Agena Satellite, Then Soars to Record Orbit Height

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) After racking up three spectacular space achievements in less than eight hours, the Gemini 10 astronauts soared to record heights in their fuel-short orbiting ship today, aiming for a space excursion by Michael Collins in late afternoon.

The successes were tempered by excessive use of spacecraft fuel during the final phases of a rendezvous and linkup with an Agena target satellite.

The fuel shortage forced cancellation of two additional dockings planned today and raised a question whether Collins and command pilot John W. Young would be able to redezvous Wednesday with another Agena left in space after the Gemini 8 flight last March.

Flight Director Glynn Lunney said early today that "we're working on the plan for today, looking at the fuel we have left to see what experiments we can conduct and the exact manoeuvres we can make."

Despite the fuel shortage, Young and Collins achieved the major goals of the flight—rendezvous and docking — in the first hours of the flight that started late Monday from Cape Kennedy.

History's second linkup of two space vehicles was climaxed brilliantly when Young and Collins fired the powerful engine of the docked Agena—the first time the rocket of one satellite had been used to manoeuvre a manned space ship.

For nine startling seconds the Agena spurted a fountain of flame and sent Gemini 10 shooting like a Roman candle to a record altitude of 476 miles, eclipsing a 307.5-mile mark held by two Soviet cosmonauts.

The burst of power briefly jolted the astronauts out of their weightless world, subjecting them to a force of about one G—equal to the gravity force on earth.

"That was really something," exclaimed Young when the big 16,000-pound thrust engine ignited.

More excitement lay ahead today, with extra-vehicular activity by Collins a highlight.

Collins is to conduct a stand-up excursion, opening his hatch and poking the upper half of his body into space to conduct scientific and photographic experiments.

Collins plans to step outside the spacecraft Wednesday for a 55-minute stroll on a 50-foot lifeline. If Gemini 10 is able to rendezvous with the Gemini 8 Agena, he will walk over to it for some experiments.

Couple Tell Of Teaching In Nigeria

In Nigerian communities weddings are held twice a year, and when Jim and Jane Verner of Belleville attended one such ceremonial day some 100 couples were united in marriage.

But Nigerians are now adopting western ways so that today many of them have a European-style wedding, with the groom in lounge suit and the bride in white, as well as the traditional African ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Verner described their experiences as teachers in Nigeria when they addressed Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

In their desire to catch up, Nigerians are forsaking many of the old ways and are "doing in one year what Canadians have done in the last 50 years." Once a man's status was judged by the amount of property he owned and the number of wives he had. Today the Nigerians want the same things as westerners — a big car and a home and television. They also desire a good education for their children.

But some are caught between two worlds — the traditional one they have always known and the latter - day one they are trying to embrace. And in their desire to give the children a good education Nigerians are hampered by low salaries and by the old Nigerian custom of helping to support parents, brothers and sisters. Their problem is one of trying to accomplish "too much too soon."

Superstition still plays a large part in the people's lives and westerners ignore this fact at their peril. Mrs. Verner told of an American anthropologist who sought out a "rainmaker" and rain duly fell in a particular area as desired. The American also went to a witchdoctor who told him his wife was pregnant and if he did not do as the medicine man said a grave misfortune would be his lot. The American ignored the instructions and his wife had a miscarriage.

COMBINE BELIEFS

While Nigerians are embracing Christianity they cannot be expected to give away their old beliefs and traditions, said Mrs. Verner At the same time, she said, they could not return completely to the old life and she suggested that Nigerians would progress as they combined the best of their own ways and beliefs with those of the European.

Mr. Verner showed color slides of Nigeria and Ghana. One picture showed a centenarian who had gone back to work as a blacksmith because his son had died. Another showed a woman carrying a load on her head, and Mr. Verner said the women carry loads which European men are unable to lift.

A group of secondary school boys in smart red blazers and ties and slacks were in a picture taken at Mr. Verner's school. In another picture were cadets on parade who won commendation from the military governor of the region — a young man of 27 who had been trained overseas, and according to Mr. Verner is "a very brilliant man."

Nigeria has been under a military government since a coup last January, and tension is still high because of tribal and regional differences.

Mr. Verner has his M.A. in mathematics and plans to study for his doctorate at the University of London, England. Mrs. Verner is an honors graduate in history. In Nigeria she taught elementary school students.

Rotary president Dr. J. F. McCorquodale presided.

Pastures, Hay Grain, Corn Require Rain

Pasture growth, the second hay crop, and spring grain in Hastings County have all been affected by the lack of rain, the Stirling Agricultural Office reported yesterday. Decreased milk production will result from the lack of pasture growth if supplementary feeding is not carried out The second cut of hay will be short without rain and in some areas hay is already too far gone to yield a normal crop.

Early corn is still satisfactory although other varieties need moisture. Rain is necessary now if serious losses are to be avoided.

Conditions in Prince Edward County are much the same, the Picton Agricultural Office reports. There has been very little pasture growth and negligible hay growth. Even if it rains immediately the second cut of hay will be low. Corn is showing the effects of the lack of rain but a good soaking would bring it along. Potatoes are not sizing up the way they should and some growers are holding off harvesting them.

Land Deals Discussed by Town Council

TRENTON — Trenton council dealt briefly with a number of "land deals" with various other town bodies last night.

The Board of Education wants a "definite understanding" with the town about how much land in the Marmora Street Senior Public School playground the town needs for approaches to the new bridge before school opens in September. The board wants an early meeting with council on this matter.

The parks' board will be asked to convey to the town a strip of land from Hanna Park along Film Street, to provide for the widening of this street.

And the councillors will look over suggested land in the Victoria Ave. - William Street area for a playground to replace the Victoria Park playground, deserted by the board owing to the relocation of the liquor retail outlet.

Councillor Ross Burtt suggested that those on council with small children would not want their children playing on some of the land in question as he said it was "swampy" and "mosquito-ridden."" He suggested the town might buy a better piece of property in the same area for this purpose.

Town Workmen Laying Curb

TRENTON — Trenton this year allotted $4,500 for curb construction. Town workmen are now engaged in laying curb on Film Street.

Meanwhile, tenders were called for the installation of 4,000 feet of curbing in the arena parking area.

Prices for the three tenders received were: $10,655; $9,007; $8,560. The lowest tender would work out to $2.22 a foot, exclusive of inspection costs.

Town engineer Eric Aldersey says the public works' men could do the job for $1.54 a foot, all found.

Council voted to have the town men do the job.

Will Call For Tenders

TRENTON — Councillor Douglas Kinney's detailed study of the circumstances surrounding the "firing"' of market clerk Jack Blight was outlined to town council last night and revealed that Mr. Blight's work was adequate. However, the councillor said there was a suggestion that Mr. Blight might be considering other employment, and he recommended that the list of duties of market clerk be incorporated in a call for tenders for the job, and this council decided to do.

News in Brief

TRENTON — Town council used to dealing with five, six or seven figure projects, voted last night during one of the shortest sessions on record, to pay out sums, none of which exceeded $5,000.

The last sum was named in connection with the calling of tenders for road surface treatment and represents the sum beyond which the town will not go for this service.

Other four figure sums dealt with included the salary to be paid the bridge operator, which will not exceed $4,130 in subsequent increments.

TRENTON — In accordance with surrounding communities, town council voted last night to proclaim Monday, Aug. 1 as "civic holiday," this year.

TRENTON — The final go-ahead to the installation of an eight inch sanitary sewer on Edwards Street and an eight and ten inch sewer on Roscoe Ave. was given by the third and last reading of the by-laws by town council last night. Work on the Roscoe Ave. installation has already started.

Swim Pool Fund $48,200

TRENTON—To date $48,200 has been donated towards the construction of the United Service Clubs' swimming pool in the high school.

This amount, coupled with an Ontario government grant of $5,000, which the swimming pool committee hopes to collect, would bring the total within reach of the estimated $5,000 required for the construction.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Board of Education said on Monday the board hopes to make a speedy decision on awarding the tender for construction.

Tenders were received last month but the board could not come to an agreement on the prices at that time.

Will Place Preservers, Pike Poles

TRENTON — Life preservers and pike poles donated by Dairy Queen owner, Horace Wright, will be placed at the two government docks and a set owned by the recreation committee will be put up at the municipal parking lot, town council ruled last night.

The fire department will be asked to put up the life saving equipment each spring and to take it down and store it each fall.

Meanwhile, the councillors hope vandals will leave the equipment alone . . . "because the lives saved may be their own."

Will Probe Cost of Book

TRENTON — Trenton council thinks very highly of Nicholas Mika's "Mosaic of Belleville," but whether or not the town could afford to have Mr. Mika compile a similar "Mosaic of Trenton" for Centennial Year is another story.

Council will ask Robert Carleton, chairman of the town's Centennial Planning Committee to get prices and other information about the book. Mr. Carleton brought the Belleville version to the attention of council. It is reported to retail at $10.95 and the cost for 1,000 to be $10,000.

are more than adequate to meet reasonable seaway costs. His bill would provide that tolls be set to cover operating and maintenance costs plus a fair return to the government on its investment.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority says that, up to last Dec. 31, the Canadian Seaway had paid interest of $47,196,000, leaving $44,095,000 in deferred interest. Interest charged on the original loan and deferred loans is about four per cent.

The report on the toll hearings is in government hands and Transport Minister Pickersgill told the Commons last week there will be no change in the toll structure without an announcement to Parliament.

With the Commons in recess until Oct. 5, it is expected announcement of any decision could come soon after the House resumes sittings. Shippers have to take tolls into account in setting rates for the 1967 season.

The 50-year period to wipe out Seaway debt was stipulated in the Canada - U.S. agreement. Changes along the line of the bill proposed by Mr. Reuss, or any alteration in this repayment period, would have to be approved by both governments.

IN MEMORIAM

FITZGIBBON — In loving memory of a dear son who passed away suddenly two years ago today, July 19th, 1964.

Tis just two years ago today,
That you dear Bert were called away,
Fond memories linger in our hearts,
In which you played love's noble part.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by dad, and step-mother Martha.

FITZGIBBON — In loving memory of a dear brother Berton Fitzgibbon, who passed away July 19, 1964.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.

—Lovingly remembered by sister Eileen and brother-in-law Earl and nephew Jim.

FITZGIBBON — In loving memory of a very dear husband and father, Berton, who passed away July 19, 1964.

It is sad to walk the road alone,
Instead of side by side,
But to all there comes a moment,
When the ways of life divide.
You gave us years of happiness,
Then came sorrow and tears,
But you left us beautiful memories,
We will treasure through the years.

—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Ruth and Bruce.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of Mary Campbell, July 19, 1947.

So many things have happened,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
Had you been left to stay.
Every day in some small way,
Memories of you come my way,
Though absent you are ever near,
Still missed, loved, always dear.
If I had all the world to give,
I'd give it yes and more,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
And greet her at the door.
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind tokens of love,
To the best mother God ever made.
I like to think when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
She'll be standing at the door,
Up there to welcome me.

—Forever lovingly remembered by your son Leonard Hamilton.

Ontario Is Exception

Quebec Authoress Finds Scant Sympathy for Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — After a coast-to-coast fact-finding tour on how the rest of Canada feels toward Quebec, sponsored by Canadian centennial commission, author Solange Chaput-Rolland said Monday she was split between pessimism and optimism.

She said she found little sympathy for the aspirations of modern Quebec in British Columbia, the Prairies and the Maritime provinces.

B.C. views every move by Quebec as one to break Confederation, Mrs. Chaput - Rolland said, in a speech to the French-speaking Business Publication Club.

A journal of the trip, under the title of My Country: Quebec or Canada? is to be published this fall. The writer first gained attention as the co-author of Dear Enemies—a book on relations between the English and French of Canada.

GIVE NO SPECIAL STATUS

The Prairies harbor the cult of the Canadian mosaic - general tolerance of ethnic groups, with, by implication, no special status for Quebec.

French - speaking Canadians everywhere must struggle to secure their rights, she said.

A positive avenue for hope was the great number of changes she found in Ontario.

"At the summit in Ontario and Quebec there is fusion, an understanding, the beginnings of a dialogue.

"There have been great changes. They (in Ontario) have opened their eyes, their hearts, their souls."

Basis for co-existence between the two is intellectual and cultural, not simply economic.

The author conceded that all of Canada currently is under a "gigantic effort to recognize bilingualism . . . they really want to speak two languages."

ing on military matters or controversial matters relating to policy without permission from the chief of defence staff or his deputy.

Another section of Queen's regulations permits commanding officers to talk directly to the press so long as they neither defend nor criticize departmental or government policy.

VOICED CRITICISM

Rear - Admiral Landymore voiced his criticisms of unification in newspaper interviews last Friday and Saturday. He said he considers unification no more efficient nor economical than three services.

Rear-Admiral Stirling, son of Grote Stirling, minister of national defence in the Conservative cabinet of R. B. Bennett in 1934-35, met Mr. Hellyer here last week to discuss unification plans. He issued a prepared statement Monday saying he had asked to be relieved.

As Rear - Admiral Landymore's standard came down at Maritime Command headquarters, the out-going chief sent a message to the fleet proposing a method of setting the integration problem.

Rear - Admiral Landymore's message said unification should be studied thoroughly before it is implemented. Each officer and men should be given a choice, after the plan is explained fully, to join or leave the services.

"Those who prefer not to join should be honorably released under terms of those who have been compulsorily retired over the past two years," the message said.

PROCEEDING BY STAGE

Mr. Hellyer has been proceeding by stages towards unification of all the forces into a single service with one walking-out uniform and a common rank structure.

So far the command structure has been integrated with navy, army and air force officers serving together at headquarters and the various commands across the country.

Mr. Hellyer told the defence committee earlier this year that it is time to prepare for the next step—uniting the three services at the unit level into one service.

Informants said planning for this step has included consideration of the name Royal Canadian Marines for the unified services and a green uniform for the walking-out dress. Chocolate brown and grey also were considered as uniform colors.

It is understood that unification would not involve dropping the dress uniforms of the various military units—for example, highlanders would keep the kilt and distinctive features of navy and air force dress uniforms would be retained.

But the aim would be to put all three forces in one uniform for operations when the services normally put away their dress uniforms anyway.

Picton Man Found Guilty Of "Impaired"

Douglas Joseph Kirby, 21, of Lake St., Picton, was fined $75 and costs and prohibited from driving for three months when he was found guilty of impaired driving by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

Magistrate Wills accepted a not guilty plea from Kirby after Kirby said he had a lawyer but the lawyer had forgotten all about it until last night. "Did the lawyer forget, or did you not notify him until last night?" Magistrate Wills asked. He said the case had been set for today and everyone had ample time to be prepared.

A police constable said that at 12.35 a.m. June 20, he was on cruiser patrol when he saw Kirby's car moving easterly on Bridge St. in the midst of making a turn south onto Front St.

He said he saw a police constable step off the curb and motion the car to stop, but instead, the car rapidly accelerated south on Front St.

The officer said he chased the car along Front St. at approximately 60 miles per hour. At the turn onto Dundas, the car veered right, almost striking the traffic island, and went along South Front. He said the car began fish tailing and went right up into the air when it went over the railroad tracks. He finally stopped the car in front of Jack Goyer's Marina.

There were three other youths in the car with Kirby. Kirby smelled of alcohol, and when asked to walk about 15 feet feet down the sidewalk, he was unsteady on his feet and he staggered.

Kirby was taken to the station and given some tests, then at 1.10 a.m. he was taken to Dr. Scott's office for a blood alcohol test. The officer said he became erratic and threw his left arm up in the air, knocking the syringe to the floor. He said he became very abusive in his language towards the doctor.

Another constable said Kirby would be belligerent and quarrelsome one minute then would be laughing and joking the next minute. He said that Kirby said he had not been drinking.

Kirby has a lengthy record of traffic offences, mostly speeding. He said he got a letter from the department of highways last week telling him he had 13 points off.

"You don't have to worry about that letter," Magistrate Wills said, "You're going to get an automatic suspension now."

It was the American girls' opinion, Provido reported the girl as saying, that since the man told them he meant them no harm "let's not start anything that will make this one do something crazy."

Miss Amurao hid under a bed and prayed as he took the other eight out of the room one at a time and strangled or stabbed them.

"She said the man did not appear violent and did not talk violently," Provido said. The American girls, therefore, felt that "maybe if we are quiet and calm, he will remain quiet and calm."

Miss Amurao has not been allowed to see or talk with any but official visitors on orders of State Attorney Daniel P. Ward.

Violence Flares in 3 Cities

CLEVELAND (AP) — Racial violence flared in Cleveland, Jacksonville, Fla., and New York City Monday night, leaving a young Negro woman dead and scores of persons injured.

The worst outbreak was here where, police said, Joyce Arnett, 26, a mother of three, was shot in the head, two men suffered minor bullet wounds and firemen had to leave a blaze when they were fired upon.

Store windows were smashed, some stores were looted and at least eight fires were set—some by fire bombs — before more than 300 police moved into the area on Cleveland's east side, sealing off an eight-block area.

The disturbance, sparked by roving bands of teen-agers, was marked by sniper fire at police and firemen. Police shot out some street lights and ordered motorists to douse their headlights to keep from making targets of the officers.

STARTED AT TAVERN

Policeman Bill Alexander said the trouble started when irate patrons tore up a tavern after they learned they could no longer get free ice water.

Several policemen and firemen were injured, none seriously, when the crowd pelted them with bricks and rocks.

The violence in Jacksonville came after about 200 Negroes had staged an orderly march on city hall to protest alleged racial discrimination in city hiring practices. Police said the trouble began when the group left city hall and headed into the business district in violation of their permit to march.

Roving bands of Negroes then began throwing rocks through store windows and set fire to a small grocery store with a fire bomb, officials said.

Firemen Avert Serious Blaze On Front St.

Prompt action by the Belleville Fire Department stopped what could have been a serious blaze on Front St. yesterday.

Firemen responded quickly to a call from Rachael's Ladies Wear, 315 Front, shortly after 4 p.m. Actual fire damage was light, but there was some water damage and heavy smoke damage.

Store owner Harry Schwartz said he believed the fire started when a passerby threw a burning cigarette into the grate under the front easterly window of the store.

A woman passing by on the street noticed the front window on fire and rushed into the store to inform Mr. Schwartz. He immediately phoned the fire department and said afterwards, "I had just hung up the phone when I could hear the firemen coming."

Deputy Chief Leo Culhane said he believes the fire burned for some time before breaking through the flooring into the window.

"It was going right towards the south wall," he said. "If it had burned another half hour or had broken out in the night when nobody was around, we would have had a real blister on our hands."

He said fires often smoulder for a long time under grates like that. "The dirt gets built up over the years and of course these things don't get cleaned out and the fire starts."

Three fire trucks answered the call, but only one was called into action.

Two firefighters donned masks and airpacks and went to the basement of the store where the flames actually were. One commented, "It was going pretty good down there for a while."

Mr. Schwartz said they have had the grate closed up at the bottom. He said over the years dirt builds up from people throwing things into it.

"The worst of it is," he said, "we just had a man in last week to clean up the store and the basement and get everything ready for August 1. We get all our new things in then."

Now they'll have to clean up again.

Cement Company, Chamber Agree on Dust Question

PICTON (Staff) — A special meeting was held here last night by the Directors of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce to discuss the renewed problem of dust from the Lake Ontario Cement Plant here.

Present were R. D. MacLean, President of the company from Toronto, Ray Miller, Vice - President, and Charles Fox, manager of the local plant. Also in attendance were Mayor H. J. MacFarland, a prominent shareholder in the company, and Collin Carter and Dr. C. S. Slack who represented the people and homeowners who have been affected by the dust nuisance.

Acording to Chamber of Commerce President Howard Mallett, the meeting was 100 per cent successful He was personally elated with the way in which the meeting went. "Everyone", said Mr. Mallett, "left the meeting satisfied". "It was", he considered, "a feather in the Chamber's hat".

Plant officials have agreed to close down the aggregate plant which has caused some of the dust problem until new equipment is installed to correct this. They also explained that much of the problem was with the new kiln. An explosion during the month of June left the equipment damaged and since that time everything possible has been done to get it working satisfactorily. New equipment has been ordered specially made and it is expected to be here no later than September 19. It is said to take 48 men only three days to insall.

Mr. Carter and Dr. Slack both stated the peoples' side of the story and expressed their personal satisfaction with the moves the plant was making. They are prepared to wait.

The two old precipitators, it was learned, are operating at 99% efficiency. Mr. Mallett stated that he thought the problem had been cleared up by the meeting and that one of the reasons people were impatient with the problem was that they were not informed of conditions existing at the plant or of the steps the company was using to control the dust problem.

Norris Whitney Obtains Probe Of Tax Returns

PICTON (Staff) — Norris Whitney, M.L.A. for Prince Edward - Lennox, has taken action to have the public prosecutor investigate a company selling contracts to compile income tax returns. This investigation has been passed into the hands of the anti-racket squad.

In a recent speech, made in Legislature, Mr. Whitney reported the case of a Prince Edward County farmer who was persuaded to sign a contract for $75 to have his tax forms compiled for the next two years. Mr. Whitney stated that the farmer thought the salesman was a representative from the government. "I do not say that this company is doing anything illegal" continued Mr. Whitney, "but at the same time, as far as the practice of accountancy is concerned, it is something that would generally be frowned upon." He warned that if people think someone is a representative of either the provincial or federal government they should ask for identification.

Mr. Whitney said this farmer kept an excellent set of records and that Mr. Whitney himself was able to figure out, in less than an hour, just what income and expenses were for the year 1965.

In another recent speech to Legislature Mr. Whitney fought back at a newspaper columnist who wrote of members of "this part of the house" as "old Ontario", "snake fences" and "rock-piles". Mr. Whitney stated perhaps he did not mean to do so but he has given us a rare compliment. People who reside in the part of the province that I have the honor to represent appreciate and respect the accomplishments of the great people before us who did so much to pave the way for our accievements of today.

"It is recognized by conservationists that snake fences, particularly if they run in a north-south direction, are of great benefit in reducing the loss of top soil by wind erosion and in conserving moisture."

"The rock piles are monuments to the labors of those who strove to improve their land and leave it better than when they first possessed it," he said. "Those who criticize the people of Ontario residing outside the large cities, have little appreciation of the local pride and the loyalty that exists."

A total of 186 boars were approved for premium under the approved Boar Premium Policy during June 1966. This number included 158 Yorkshire, 21 Lacombe, and 7 Landrace. Among those listed were several boars on the farm of Morley and Robert Williams, R.R. No. 1, Picton. Farmers interested in purchasing an approved boar can obtain a list of breeders who have boars for sale from the local Ontario Department of Agriculture office.

One of the highlights of 4-H activities in Ontario each year is Provinical 4-H Leadership Week. The program, which is designed to recognize the achievements of outstanding 4-H Agricultural Club members from every County and District in the province, will be held this year from July 18th to 22nd, on the campus of the University at Guelph. Prince Edward County will be represented by John Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Thompson, R.R. No. 2, Picton.

Of special interest to the delegates will be discussion periods led by Dr. D. N. Huntley, Director, Ontario Research Council, on "How Research Will Affect the Future of Agriculture in Ontario" and another on "Father-Son Farm Business Agreements", presented by Mr. Dick Heard, Farm Management Specialist of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food.

His Bone Cancer Disappears After Exchange of Tumors

CONSTANTINE, Mich. (AP) Doctors say there is no evidence of cancer left in Larry Rink, a 21-year-old bone cancer patient who exchanged tumors with other diseased patients in hopes of a cure.

"I'm going to make it now, even if it comes back—I just know it," Rink said Monday on learning the results of tests.

His physician, Dr. Ray Houghton, said officials of Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo reported the absence of any signs of cancer in a letter to him.

Houghton said the letter from Roswell Park, where Rink underwent a series of tumor transplants and blood transfusions with a number of other persons, reported the results of x-rays, laboratory tests and physical examinations.

But Houghton, who said "if the disease had progressed normally, Rmg would have been dead three months ago," cautioned that "you don't call a cancer patient cured until they go five to 10 years without any evidence."

He said: "It takes just a few cells to lie dormant and pop up again. We cannot say he is cured" Even with present-day tests, "you can't find microscopic cancer."

MacMillans Enter Pleas Of Not Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — George MacMillan, president of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., and his wife, Viola, both entered pleas of not guilty as their preliminary hearing on fraud charges began Monday.

They are charged with defrauding the public and fraudulently affecting the market price of Windfall shares between May and July, 1964. Both elected trial by judge and jury.

Crown Prosecutor Roderick Cormack told the hearing he expected witnesses' testimony to be similar to what they said at the royal commission inquiry into the rise and collapse of Windfall shares.

Outlining the prosecution's case to Magistrate Joseph Addison, Mr. Cormack said that two years ago Mrs. MacMillan was interviewed on a CBS television show during which she called Windfall her most recent successful strike.

Mr. Cormack said she made this statement before any Windfall drilling had been done.

Three Killed In Muskoka

MACTIER, Ont. (CP)—Three men were killed and three seriously injured in the head-on collision of two cars on Highway 103 eight miles south of this Muskoka area community early today.

Dead are a Hamilton man whose identity was withheld pending notification of next of kin and Hector W. Beaulieu, 24, and Paul Emil Santerre, 38, both of Sudbury.

Convict Ulster Protestants For Assembly

BELFAST (AP) — Rev. Ian Paisley, leader of Northern Ireland's Protestant extremists, was found guilty today of unlawful assembly. He refused to post a good-behavior bond and was faced with three months' imprisonment.

The magistrate hearing the case against Paisley and six co - defendants on charges of taking part in an unlawful assembly gave him 24 hours to think it over.

Paisley told reporters later the defendants would take the next 24 hours to decide "whether to appeal or to go to Crumlin Road Jail for three months."

The case against Hercules V. Mallon, one of the seven defendants, was dismissed. The other six were found guilty of the charge.

One, Mrs. Wilhelmina Brown, was fined £5 ($15). Paisley and the remainder were each fined £30 ($90) and ordered to post a bond of £30 to be of good behavior for two years.

CRACK DOWN

The trial was being watched as the first attempt of the government to crack down on the 40-year-old firebrand preacher who has charged there is a plot afoot in Northern Ireland to sell out to the Roman Catholics.

Paisley, who set up his own Ulster Free Presbyterian Church, has a flock of only about 3,000 but claims support of 500,000 of Northern Ireland's 900,000 Protestants.

Integration Hassle

Since Defence Minister Paul Hellyer launched integration as a means of improving the efficiency and economics of Canada's defence system its progress toward realization has been slow, hesitant and acrimonious.

The Services, the men and women whose careers are bound up so intimately with integration, are disturbed by the whole business. Many skilled tradesmen have quit the forces and gone into civilian life. Admittedly, this is due in part to the higher wages afforded by comparable civilian occupations, but it is also an indication of the disquiet and sense of uncertainty aroused by the integration process.

Matters have now reached a head with the confrontation between the Government and high-ranking officers of the Navy, including Rear-Admiral William Landymore. The Chief of Sea Operations has publicly criticized integration: he says it has led to loss of the navy's identity without any apparent economy or increase in efficiency.

Naval tradition dies hard. In Britain, where the three services retain their separate identity, the navy is the senior service. Despite the levelling process which has been going on in Britain in recent years any attempt to integrate the services in that country would likely meet with even sterner opposition by the navy than it has here.

But this is Canada, and the basic idea of integration of the services is a sound one. With costs in every other sphere skyrocketing Mr. Hellyer deserves the respect of Canadians for an imaginative and cost-saving plan, which in the ultimate must also achieve a greater degree of efficiency with regard to the defence of this nation; and more particularly, Canada's self-imposed role of keeping the peace in far-off lands under United Nations auspices.

Integration may strike a blow at the separate traditions of the services, but it does not detract from the need for personnel trained in the various arts of war — on land, at sea, and in the air. What is taking place is simply coordination of these services.

Where economy is concerned, this has been achieved, as witness Mr. Hellyer's statement that about a third of the $1.5 billion, five-year re-equipment program for the armed services will be paid for out of savings resulting from integration.

He can also claim with justification that the integration program is being watched closely by other countries, with a view to its adoption.

If the program has run sour, for the time being at least, it may be attributed to a disinclination among some high-ranking officers to permit changes in long-standing traditions and methods. Yet the realities of our time demand change, not for its own sake, but in order that Canada's defence forces may be adequate to cope with the complex commitments of the day.

Punchbags

"The public at large are sick and tired of the police being used as punchbags."

The above comment by Magistrate Albert Marck of Hamilton while sentencing three men to jail terms is timely. This is not the first incident of the kind. It has happened in Belleville, as in Hamilton, and it is likely to happen again at some time or another.

Six men were before the court, accused of attacking Constable Gerald Evans when he tried to clear them from a hotel after a brawl. The officer told the court he was "knocked about from all sides" in the 10-minute fight and is still off duty due to his injuries.

Two of the men were jailed for three months, another was fined $200, while assault charges against the other three was dismissed. The first three were also given three months' suspended sentences for creating a disturbance.

The police have an unenviable task while attempting to do their duty in circumstances such as have been described here. Alcohol, of course, was at the root of this, another beverage room brawl, but it also stems from a basic disrespect for law and order among some sections of the population.

In this case the accused men got off lightly — perhaps too lightly.

Cost of Living

None of us needs to be reminded of the cost of living, but it is interesting nevertheless to hear the reactions of visitors on this theme.

Americans visiting this area, campers for example, often patronize local supermarkets, and one was heard to comment recently on the high cost of food in Canada.

The rising cost of living index, as it is called, is felt coast to coast. Friends in Vancouver referred to it in recent correspondence and to the views of U.S. visitors to that part of Canada.

A Californian visitor to Vancouver echoed the thoughts of the American in Belleville, expressing the opinion that living costs in the west coast state were lower than in British Columbia.

There is no doubt about it, ours is a high-priced economy, and it is becoming higher all the time.

Freckles Are Latest Fad

Lorraine Shore in The Vancouver Sun

Finkle fashion's latest edict is just fine with Vancouver's freckle-faced females.

"I knew someone would recognize them sooner or later," said freckled Mrs. Shirley Boyd, of 4665 Underwood, North Vancouver.

"I'm delighted with the new idea," she said.

The latest whim of the beauty world making freckles fashionable started in Paris, where women without natural flecks are painting them on.

Now the cosmetics industry in North America is awaiting the spot-painting onslaught on this side of the Atlantic.

And freckle-faced femmes in Vancouver couldn't be happier.

Mrs. Boyd, 29, says she has enough freckles for seven or eight people.

Mrs. Doreen Slattery, of 3726 Norwood, North Vancouver, said her freckles have never really bothered her.

"Everyone has got something they think is wrong with them, but if you let it bother you, you might as well crawl in a hole and stop living," she said.

"Now I'm going to enjoy them while it's in style."

Both women said their freckles increased in the summer.

"I'd make one freckle if I got tanned enough," said Mrs. Slattery.

Carol Anne Baker, a 20-year-old University of B.C. student, said she doesn't regard her freckles as either an asset or a liability.

"They're just there, and there is nothing I can do about them unless I put on three inches of make-up," she said.

Only one freckled young woman objected to the new marks of beauty.

"I hate them. I don't care what anyone says, I still don't like them," said Barbara Johnston, 21, of 8162 MacPherson, Burnaby.

Young Folk Read Little

The War Cry

An inquiry into the habits and accomplishments of 6,000 young people in France revealed that "between twenty-four and forty per cent of them read nothing, not even the newspaper, other than their school books, assuming that they are still at school."

The finding probably reflects the reading habits of a large proportion of young people the world over. The tendency is for them to earn more and to read less. Where does the money go? Just half of their earnings goes on records, record players, romantic magazines, fiction paperbacks, movies, dance halls and other items.

Young people obviously will read what is lively and "up their street." They ignore what is drab and insipid, which would be a fair assessment of many publications, and certainly of a substantial part of the religious press. At a time when teenagers are increasingly indifferent toward organized religion, and the problem of evangelical communication is by no means resolved, the Church, including The Salvation Army, must beware lest its publications fail through appearing to be flat and uninviting.

Nitroglycerin Raises Amount of Blood Flow

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read your article on how digitalis helps the heart, and would like one on the use of nitroglycerin.—M. L.

O.K., sir, gladly.

Nitroglycerin is possibly the most useful drug we have for one type of heart trouble, angina pectoris, which is chest pain resulting (usually) from insufficient blood circulation to the heart muscle.

After exertion, or a big meal, which is an activity that puts demands on blood circulation, the heart muscle, overtaxed, cramps painfully.

Resting the heart until it catches up its strength, is important. But a tiny amount of nitroglycerin, acting as a drug, does it quicker. It dilates the coronary arteries, allowing more blood to flow, but without increasing the work of the heart. Other drugs will improve circulation, but they also put added strain on the heart.

That is why nitroglycerin is so useful. There is a similar preparation, amyl nitrate, which also is very effective but its effects are not as long-lasting. A tablet of nitroglycerin brings relief within minutes, and the effects last from 30 minutes to several hours, depending on the patient. (The tablets are dissolved under the tongue, which is more effective than swallowing them.)

Frequency of use is variable, from an occasional pill to several a day. Part of the trick of effective use is for the patient to learn how much exertion brings on pain. Let's say that a man walks several blocks from his office to the parking lot, and notes that this long a walk usually causes angina pain. A pill before he starts can let him make the walk in comfort. Or a person who can walk moderate distances may find that when he has to walk against the wind, a pill makes the difference between comfort and cramps. Still, it is important for the angina patient to learn to stay within the limitations of his natural "heart power" and not press his luck and depend on having nitroglycerin do more for him than it is supposed to do.

There can be some side effects which the patient should be warned about: a feeling of fullness in the head, transient giddiness, flushing or warmth of the skin

Once one gets used to them — if they occur — they are usually well tolerated, and certainly preferable to the exhausting pain of an attack.

Here's another warning: Nitroglycerin must be used cautiously by patients with glaucoma; if you have glaucoma, make sure your doctor is told about it.

The drug has a relaxing effect on a certain type of muscle known as "smooth muscle," such as is found in the bile ducts and ureteral tubes, and thus it gives some relief in attacks of colic from gallstones or kidneystones.

Not all chest pain is angina, so if nitroglycerin does not bring relief, further study of the case is essential to make sure that some other trouble, including coronary thrombosis, is not involved. While the pain of angina and of a coronary attack are similar, the latter is not relieved by nitroglycerin or rest.

Pleasant things about nitroglycerin are that it is inexpensive, and not habit-forming.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is pneumonitis? — J. C.

It is a localized inflammation of the lung. You might reasonably call it a limited or mild pneumonia which usually clears up readily with antibiotics and rest.

Note to "Scratching": No, I wouldn't start hunting for "something in the blood" for that irritation in the scalp. I'd investigate some form of allergy or contact dermatitis.

Litterbugs are Incurable

Kingston Whig-Standard

It costs millions of dollars every year to clean up after the thoughtless and slovenly persons who seem to believe that the whole world is one great garbage pail just waiting for their refuse. No matter what the authorities do to discourage their filthy habits, no matter how much others (the majority) complain, they are not deterred and often one is forced to conclude that, of all animals, man is the dirtiest.

Far too many people, we suspect, simply shrug their shoulders when the issue of littering is raised — something for somebody else to worry about. What else can they do whenever they come across the messes left by others? Well, they could complain to the proper authorities; they could make known publicly their disgust; they could insist on stricter enforcement of existing laws; they could report persons they have actually seen leaving filth. Most of them, however, draw the line at cleaning up after their fellows — and justifiably so.

It is a frustrating and disgusting experience to come across the work of the spoilers — for those workmen who must perform the cleaning functions and for those who appreciate what is being done to make their surroundings a little more pleasant.

Along highway 33, for example, there still remains a few little roadside areas beside the lake for which the Department of Highways has provided picnic tables, trash barrels and public conveniences. How nauseating it is to stop at one on a summer's morning, only to find the area littered with empty cans, paper, lumps of food and bottles, broken or intact; picnic tables smeared with fly-covered globs of sticky substances; privies fouled and made otherwise unusable by the unbelievably filthy practices of those who have been there earlier.

No matter how many persons appreciate and enjoy such facilities — their own facilities paid for by their money — there are always those who don't care; who prefer to live and act as few animals will live and act. And society seems powerless to do anything about the deplorable situation.

Donald Gordon, Once a Tiger Is Now All Sweet Reason

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The song is ended, now that Parliament's recessing, but the melody lingers on.

The almost unbelievable melody of Canadian National Railways President Donald Gordon and the Commons Transport Committee in perfect harmony.

What a switch in pitch!

For up until their astonishing performance the other day, crooning in beautiful unison their own special Melodie D'Amour, the moment the braw Donald rumbled into a committee hearing was the moment the place sounded like Batman had zowied in.

It was one long pow and row.

But not this time.

Could it be that the years are mellowing the Great Scot, DG, or "Dear God," as they used to call him when he czar-ed it over the Wartime Prices and Trade Board?

Or is it that there is nobody left in the Commons undulging in the blood sport of Gordon-baiting?

Douglas Fisher was about the last.

Those were the exciting days of the Tansport Committee. Remember Donald Gordon, head lowered and swaying, snorting like an infuriated bull as the Parliamentarry picadores prodded him to red rages?

WITH JOKES YET

Recall the night he pawed up from the witness table, bellowing, and waved that meat slab of a fist of his under the flabbergasted nose of former Toronto Conservative elder statesman MP J. M. Macdonnell?

Ah, stirring times, those.

Would you belive the battle-battered warrior of old has become the diplomatic smoothie, all chuckles and charm?

Well, it is so.

Beside him at the committee, taking a turn or two at answering questions, was economist Robert Vandeen, CNR Director of Corporate Development.

What did he mean, the committee asked Vandeen, by the phrase "economic return?"

It meant, he explained, when revenues exceeded costs to the point where you could afford to spend more to earn more.

In short, enterprise building.

"Can't always follow these economist fellows," rumbled Donald Gordon breaking in, "but what he means is that if you have a lousy service you can't sell it at any price."

Donald Gordon firmly believes that good passenger service makes for fatter freight revenues.

"Contented, well-satisfied passengers," he said, "are our best salesmen."

So what was the CNR doing to attract more of them?

"Incentive fares, we make it cheaper for a wife to travel with her own husband," he grinned, amid laughter.

Generally, on longer trips, a wife can travel at the all-inclusive bedroom fare rate at something like half the going price.

FIGHT? NEVER!

Additionally, added the president whose railway prides itself in thinking it is treating customers like VIPs, "we've considered the comfort of passengers and installed new and better seating in the coaches — and if you don't think that is revolutionary these days, then you don't know the railroad business!"

By this time, the MPs who had come to the Transport Committee with their guard up, expecting the usual donnybrook with the big railway boss, were bemused.

What had happened to the tiger in Donald Gordon's tank?

What overnight miracle had transformed it into a purring putty-tat?

A bewitched MP murmured something about "where has the old Donald Gordon gone?"

"Yeah," gulped another in a whisper of unbelief, "look, Ma, no fighting."

It was a changed Donald Gordon, indeed, who answered them.

"Ah," he beamed, "you know, gentlemen, I never thought of it as fighting. We were never in a fight, we old friends. We were merely clearing up a few little inconsequential misunderstandings."

A couple of them looked as if they were going to keel over from the sheer shock of it all.

For Donald Gordon, the new old smoothie, had sort of sneaked up on them with his soft words and sweet music.

They had scheduled day-long committee sittings, morning, afternoon and night. And that was just to bee the first of what everybody expected would be a bumpy string of stormy days.

So here they were, all done in a couple of hours.

Man, it's magic.

Children Magnify Fears

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When older people rhapsodize about the joys and delights of childhood, it is because they have suppressed all thoughts of the fears and frustrations of childhood. Both are equally real — but the joys can be realized only in retrospect, while the fears are loomingly present.

My 6-year-old boy kept asking how soon he would be a teenager, when he could get a real motorcycle, and who could give him some boxing lessons. When questioned carefully about these wishes, he confessed that an 8-year-old around the corner was bugging him.

This older boy would block his way when he wanted to reach a friend's house to play; would taunt him and threaten him and chase him back home. It got to the point where he was afraid to turn the corner, much as he wanted to visit his friend.

When he told me this, my early boyhood suddenly came back to me with a rush of feeling. I vividly remembered how fierce and ominous the older boys had seemed to me at that age, how I despaired of ever getting big enough to beat them up—with the shocking recognition that as I grew bigger, they would be growing bigger, too. There seemed no way out of this trap.

Nobody ever told me that when they got older, the bigger boys would no longer bother to torment a little squirt like me — they would be busy with their racer bikes and girls and the other preoccupations of puberty. I thought the tyranny of age and size would go on forever.

Childhood is a time of delight — but the delight is unconscious. It is a time of fear — which is very conscious. And not only realistic fears, like that of an 8-year-old bully, but fantasies of the mind, that can hardly be described to one's self, much less expressed to others.

We suppress the memory of past pain, because we cannot live with it. But, in dealing with our children, we must always be aware of this pain, and not airily dismiss it from the superior vantage of our age. We must be able to recall the emotional perspective of a child, and to remember that what seems small and petty to us now seemed enormous and threatening when we were little and weak and vulnerable.

Time passes differently for us, too, than for children. A few weeks or a few months are but a snap of the fingers to an adult; to a child, whose time-sense is not yet developed, a few weeks can seem an eternity. Both size and time are tremendously magnified in a child's mind, and to fail to sympathize with his distorted vision of the present is to fail in helping him get rid of the tyranny of the past when he grows up.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

July 19, 1966 . . .

Matthew Flinders, the English explorer of Australia, died 152 years ago today—in 1814—on the day the book of his voyage was published. He was only 40 and had never recovered from the effects of scurvy and a shipwreck 12 years before, after which he spent six years in a French prison. Flinders is thought to have been the first sailor to measure and counteract the effect on a compass of the iron used in a ship's construction.

1840—The Britannia, the first Cunard steamship, arrived at Boston.

1845—A fire in New York burned down 345 buildings worth $6,000,000.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—Turkish troops began a major attack against the Suez Canal; British units at the Somme attacked again at Delville and Longueval; Russia captured Carpathian passes at Jablonitza and Kiritbaba.

Honor Miss Loreen Connor After 40 Years of Teaching

MADOC — At the end of the school term of 1966, Miss Loreen Connor, Madoc, retired after more than 40 years' teaching in the schools of Hastings County.

Miss Connor received her elementary and secondary school education in the village of Madoc. She attended the Peterborough Normal School and then taught for a short time in the Springbrook area. For the last thirty eight years (1928-1966) she has taught primary work in the Madoc Public School.

Miss Connor has been most active in the Teachers' Federation and was one of its original members. She has served three terms of office as president of the Centre Hastings' Women Teachers' Association. She leaves behind an enviable record as shown by the high esteem expressed by former students, some 1200 pupils in that teaching period, parents and community friends. The weekend of June 24th, 1966, was declared as "Loreen Connor" weekend in Madoc.

On June 24th, the celebrations began with a presentation of a portrait of Miss Connor at a public and pupils' gatherings at the school, followed by a picnic at Crystal Beach, Moira Lake. The whole assembly of teaching staff and students were the guests of Mr. William Hawthorne, Jr.

On June 25th the Madoc Public School Board, 1966 were hosts at a dinner in honor of Miss Connor. The guests included the Public School staff, the two remaining members of the 1928 board, Mr. Colin I. Ross and Mr. George West, Mr. and Mrs. L. MacCrimmon, Mr. and Mrs. Rothwell and members of Miss Connor's family.

PUBLIC RECEPTION

Later on in the evening a public reception was held in the Moira Recreation Centre. Mr. Wilfred Forestell, a member of the School Board, was chairman. Mr. W. Rothwell, a former principal was master of ceremonies for the program which had been arranged by the present principal of Madoc Public School, Mr. John Murphy.

Two of the highlights of the program were the selections given by the 1965-66 Grade 1 Rhythm Band directed by Miss Connor and a choir composed of a representative from each of the 38 classes (1928-1966).

Entertainment was supplied by the King Edward's Court and Mr. Stan Hawthorne at the electric organ.

Mr. L. MacCrimmon, representing the Department of Education, spoke in praise of Miss Connor's work in the school and the contribution she has made to this community.

Senator G. White also told of what she had done for the beginning of schooling for so many young Canadians from this district.

PRESENTATION HELD

On behalf of the School Board, former students and friends, Mr. John Wagner presented Miss Connor with a purse and a Royal Doulton figurine.

Miss Connor expressed her thanks and appreciation for the testimonial dinner and gifts and delighted the large audience with her early teaching days with several anecdotes from her long teaching experience.

Following the program, a buffet lunch was served by the women of the local church groups.

WANT SAFE TIRES

TORONTO (CP)—The Garage Operators Association has submitted a brief to the provincial government urging action on minimum tire standards. The association's general manager, David S. Prowse, said Monday a $10 car tire cannot be made without cutting corners on materials and workmanship, and low-cost tires are "like staking your life that a child's balloon won't break."

Two Grass Fires Result Of Dry Weather

CAMPBELLFORD — The dry weather with its resulting fire hazard has been the reason for two calls for the fire truck within a week. One fire occurred at the dump which created a smoke nuisance and a gass fire burning out of control in the Healey Falls area. This fire has covered about 50 acres and gave some claim to cottagers living in the area.

On Monday firemen were called to a home on the River Road where a pail of gasoline had become ignited, no damage resulted.

This week Campbellford Fire Department will be hosts to a meeting of the Northumberland County Mutual Aid organization. About 70 firemen in the immediate area are expected to attend. Demonstrations will be made of rescue work and control of different types of fires.

Lions Holds Carnival

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Lions' Club held its annual Carnival on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Secretary John Roberts reports the carnival established new records in attendance and receipts. Convener of the event was Lion Bruce Wallace and his committee.

Rides and games entertained young and adult but the fun provoking event was dunking of the Lions in a tank of water.

Prize winners were as follows: the first prize of $400 was won by Mrs. Joyce Wilson, second prize of $200 by Mrs. Caroline Roberts, Mrs. Joe Doherty, R.R. No. 2, Hastings, won the $100 prize and the two $50 prizes were won by Tina Darling, and Ross Kerr respectively.

Lion Club projects in Campbellford include the establishment of the swimming beach and the purchase in conjunction with the Campbellford Legion of an ice making machine for the proposed new arena.

We've added some new horses to our corral.

They offer you a powerful advantage.

When it comes to hauling your freight, we're not talking about old Dobbin.

The horses we're talking about are the horses you find in our diesel locomotives. We mean hard-driving horsepower. And plenty of it. If you add up all the horsepower in all our diesel locomotives, you get a figure of a million and a half.

And to meet the stepped-up demands of shippers, we're adding 96,000 more this year; 99,000 more early next year.

That's a lot of horses. And they're for hire. They gallop your freight to the next city, the next province, or clear across the country any time of day or night. Like old Dobbin, they're working horses. But unlike old Dobbin, they don't get tired at the end of the day.

And to make sure our horses speed your freight where you want it to go, we spur them on with the latest in handling techniques and communications.

You see, we're a company of people serving you. So we do our best to ship your goods as quickly and efficiently as possible.

We figure that makes good horse sense.

Ann Landers

Minding Own Business Hard Lesson to Learn

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I went to the airport to meet friends arriving from Mexico City. While waiting, I noticed a young man in uniform, his sobbing wife seated next to him. She was holding a tiny infant in her arms, and there was also an older woman — presumably the soldier's mother.

ANN LANDERS

The woman turned to me and said, "Isn't it terrible that young families have to be broken up this way?" I replied, "Yes, it is very sad." Then, I asked, "How old is the baby?" She answered, "He was born 10 days ago."

I said, "Don't you think it's a little foolish to bring a newborn baby to an airport?" The woman got red in the face and shouted, "That baby is seeing his father off to war! Don't you understand?"

I said, "A 10-day old baby doesn't see anything. Don't you understand! Infants belong at home, not in public places with millions of germs."

My husband yanked my arm and pulled me to the other side of the room. He gave me a terrible bawling out for "speaking out of turn."

He made me feel like a fool. I'd like your views on this. — ADA.

DEAR ADA: Are you the manager of the world — or just the airport? Your husband was wise to remove you from the scene of what might have developed into a hair-pulling fight.

It's true that a 10-day-old baby doesn't see anything, but if the parents wanted to bring him to the airport that's their business, not yours.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll bet you are sick of receiving letters about boy's hair. But please handle just one more for a fossilized dad of 41.

Our 15-year-old son has gone in for the long look — and I do mean long. My wife and I haven't said much because we don't want to make it a cause celebre. The boy's grandmother was here and yesterday and said something to the boy about his "ridiculous mane."

Our son said styles come and go and this was the style right now and you can't really tell anything about a guy by looking at his hair. Right or wrong? — JUST ASKING.

DEAR JUST: Wrong. You can tell a great deal about a guy by looking at his hair. One thing you can tell is if he believes in soap and water.

Long hair may be the style but some of the kids I've seen look like fugitives from the board of health. I wish crew cuts would come back. And the sooner the better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a career girl on the shady side of 30. Frankly I'm plain looking and overweight. But I do have some sense in my head, and I could make the right man happy. I am not talking about marriage. I'm not one of those women who thinks I must be married or I'm dead.

I am dating a really nice man but the best thing we do together is eat. I'm an excellent cook and Georgie loves to eat at my place. It's fun to slave over a hot stove for someone who appreciates it. And Georgie does.

Problem: George's grammar is terrible. He will never get a better job if he doesn't do something about it. I've enrolled in a night school course in psychology. I want Georgie to come with me and take English but he refuses. I'm beginning to sound like a nag. Any advice? — DOT.

DEAR DOT: Yes. Cut it out. He doesn't want to go to school with you. He just wants to eat with you.

British Designer Dies at 56

LONDON (AP) — Charles Creed, 56, one of Britain's leading fashion designers, died in London during the weekend, it has been learned.

Creed had just returned from a holiday abroad. He died in his sleep.

Creed's was one of the oldest dress houses in London and was founded by one of his ancestors at the beginning of the 18th century.

His house specialized in two piece suits and catered to members of the British aristocracy. His predecessors had made clothes for Empress Eugenie of France and Queen Victoria. He claimed they also made an execution outfit for a First World War spy, dancer Mata Hari.

In March this year, Creed closed his couture business and concentrated on wholesale, off-the-rack designs.

RAISIN BATTER BREAD

Before today's recipe was in print, four visiting tasters asked for a copy, after they tasted it fresh from the oven.

It is for homemade yeast-raised raisin bread that is full of lovely plump raisins.

But the interesting feature is that it is called batter dough or casserole bread which means it does not require kneading.

RAISIN BATTER BREAD
(yeast — one standard loaf)

One package granular yeast
2 teaspoons sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
2/3 cup boiling water
½ cup sugar (second amount)
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup shortening
1 egg
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 cups seedless raisins

In your measuring cup measure the lukewarm water and 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top, give them one stir and let stand 10 minutes or until risen to top of cup.

In a mixing bowl measure the boiling water and add the ½ cup sugar, salt and shortening. Stir to dissolve additions.

As soon as this is cooled to lukewarm add yeast liquid and raisins to it. Then add flour and egg and stir for 2 minutes. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover and let rise. (I let my dough rise 3 hours at room temperature of 70 deg. Fahr.) Stir down dough and turn into one well - buttered standard loaf pan or six-cup-size casserole. Let rise at room temperature until one inch higher than rim of pan. Bake on center rack of oven at 400 deg. Fahr, about 35 to 40 minutes.

Absolutely perfect sliced and buttered for a hearty afternoon tea or midnight snack.

NOTE: We freezerwrapped and froze one loaf of this Raisin Bread and when we tasted it with ous midafternoon tea, sliced ice cold, it was delicious. We are a hungry lot but we are critical too.

Lack of Things to Do? Join Diplomatic Corps

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Lonely? Try joining the diplomatic corps. You may just trade ordinary boredom for jet-set ennui but you'll have no lack of things to do.

AC popular diplomat or a charming and ambitious wife of a diplomat could paper the party room with invitations. It would be fairly easy to start the day with lunch at one embassy, tea at a second, dinner at a third and still have time to leap into the Rolls and whip over to the final minutes of a cocktail party at a fourth.

You'd have to slip home and change at some point in the schedule. Ottawa isn't the fashion centre of North America but long formals and dinner jackets are required dress at ambassadorial dinner parties.

For cocktails, a simple silk suit or a little lace dress will do. Ladies don't wear hats after five, my dear, and gentlemen may come in the suit they wore to work.

"You seethe same dress over and over," says one regular. "They'll have a collection of different blouses and scarves to try to make the suit look different. Of course, the ambassadors' wives have a large enough wardrobe to juggle that you hardly ever see them in the same dress twice."

SIGN AND YOU'RE IN

You don't have to be an accredited diplomat to make the fringes of the cocktail circuit. Also eligible are officials of government departments, MP's and cabinet ministers, members of the press and "interesting" natives of the capital.

Probably the biggest crowd scene is the Governor-General's garden party in June, with about 3,000 attending. Heads of almost all the 82 diplomatic missions top the guest list, but everybody who signed the guest book at Rideau Hall during the year gets an invitation.

Next in size are the national day celebrations, when a diplomat asks most of the other diplomats over to his place. Natives of the host country living in the Ottawa area are invited, and about half the guests are Canadians. Attendance for this kind of cocktail bash ranges from 600 to 2,500.

Ambassadors are also required to entertain when a study group, trade mission or cultural representation from their country arrives in the capital for talks or performances. At this kind of party those invited include Canadian counterparts of the visitors—fellow economists, ballet dancers or whatever.

CATERERS BUSY

Overnight guests at an embassy, say, cabinet ministers from back home, usually rate a dinner party. Other entertainments may be a small gathering for friends, a farewell or hi-there party, or a you-invited-me - now - I'm - asking - you-back affair.

Followers of the whirl estimate that diplomatic crystal and china is clinking at an average of three parties every night. That's 90 a month.

The embassy staff usually cooks for the crowd but even so one Ottawa catering firm guesses it feeds on average 1½ diplomatic gatherings a week.

The caterers say there a: more parties in the summer, when the "in" thing is to have them in the embassy residence garden.

Shorts Offend House But Win Senate OK

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Do women in shorts offend the dignity of Parliament?

Yes, says the House of Commons.

No, says the Senate, providing the shorts are knee-length Bermuda.

You can wear shorts as short as you like while watching the changing of the guard on Parliament Hill or touring the buildings. You can even edge into the Commons chamber briefly on a guided tour when the House isn't sitting.

But the guards won't let you into the Commons visitors' gallery wearing them when a session is on.

"After all, if anything in Canada should be dignified it's Parliament," says Lt.-Col. D. V. Currie, Commons sergeant-at-arms.

The rule-makers seem to feel that wearing a skirt, even if it's attached to the briefest of sun-tops, indicates proper respect for Parliamentary dignity.

But sun-dresses and slacks are classed as "bright and unusual" attire and although women wearing them are not barred they must take back seats in the gallery.

HOT WEATHER DECISION

The Senate, sometimes thought of as a rather stodgy place, is more liberal, permitting women in Bermuda shorts to watch proceedings.

"The Speaker made the decision as soon as the hot weather came," said a Senate guard wearing a heavy wool uniform and mopping his brow.

In Washington the wives of Congressmen have started a "tourist beautification" campaign to ensure that women spectators wear skirts. Women members of Congress have joined them in deploring the laissez - faire attitude toward shorts in their galleries but so far the male members have been apathetic.

In Ottawa, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh is opposed to shorts.

"My view is that shorts are for sports. While being in the chamber might be bull-beating time, sitting in the gallery can only qualify as a spectator sport. So shorts should be out."

A slim young Parliament Hill secretary who would look good in shorts agrees. "The ones who could wear them don't—it's always the ones like this," she said, describing a big square with her hands. "You see some pretty disgusting sights up here."

APPROVE OF SHORTS

But some women MPs don't see anything wrong with shorts on tourists, especially since only the Commons and Senate chambers in the Parliament Buildings are air-conditioned.

"I wouldn't mind wearing shorts myself if I had the figure," says Mrs. Margaret Rideout, Liberal MP for Westmorland. "I suppose the idea is that visitors should be properly dressed but I really haven't any strong views on the subject.

"I think they are mostly people travelling with children who want to be as comfortably dressed as possible. I was once a mother with little ones tagging at my heels so I know how it feels."

"They should be allowed to dress as comfortably as they do for the street," says Mrs. Grace MacInnis, NDP member for Vancouver-Kingsway. "I can't see any of the women wearing shorts—we haven't the figures— but I've often thought men members should be able to wear light jackets or shirtsleeves."

An apple - checked tour guide estimates half the women tourists on weekdays wear shorts but on weekends there are more Ottawa people and there aren't as many shorts.

A Senate guard thinks the figure is closer to 90 per cent and he doesn't mind. "It sure makes the time pass faster."

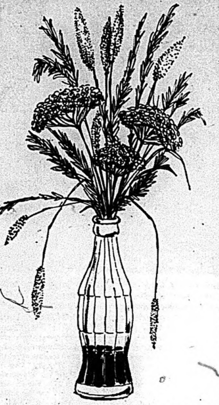
More on Drying Flowers



Did you know there is a chameleon in the crowd called dock? If you pick him in July, he'll be green, in August, pink, and in September, light brown. So. . .it's nice to have a choice.

Tinting wild grasses in food coloring is fun. A tall pop bottle for this process will help the grasses maintain their graceful line. Immerse the stems in a few inches of diluted food coloring and overnight you will see the color creep up into the heads of the plants.

Have you heard the word about poor old gorgeous goldenrod? He's not guilty after all! Here he has been accused all these years for being the bane of hay fever sufferers, while all the time the really dangerous culprit has been that rascal ragweed! So use lovely goldenrod without fear.

Just a reminder that corn made from cutting nylon stockings (pull a stocking over some rolled up newspaper and cut in a circle a couple of inches wide; is perfect for tying the stems of flowers. It's firm, has plenty of give, but doesn't cut in.

We have also learned that cultivated flowers such as dahlia and zinnia need more specialized treatment, for instance surrounding them in sand or other prepared drying agents . . and a solution of glycerine and water will impart a glossy, satiny finish to beech leaves.

We have prepared an elementary paper on these two methods, which I would love to share with those of you who are just getting your feet wet in this fascinating art, and as always, I would adore your sharing one of your special hints for the column with me. — SUSANNA

Successful Living

Reversal Children Need Understanding

DEAR DORIS: I live in the States, but have been visiting in Canada, and I read a letter in your column from "Hoping for Help." I want to tell you about my youngest child, who seemed to have the same problems her boy had.

DORIS CLARK

She was failing, yet seemed normal; even remembered things she was taught better than the others. Then a doctor wondered whether she might be a "reversal." This is a reading difficulty, which has only been identified in the U.S. recently, but that's what it was.

The doctor explained it this way: If I were at a meeting where everyone had a page to read, and all the others were in English while mine was in French, how would I feel? I'd try to read along, and eventually be upset. A "reversal" doesn't see things like we do, and it takes a great deal of patience to help him understand.

If he gets the right kind of help soon enough, he can overcome it. But if it goes on too long it can affect a child's whole personality. —HOPING TO HELP.

DEAR HOPING: I have sent a copy of your long letter on to H. for H. Perhaps you hit the nail on the head.

We have met up with some of these reversal children in Canada too; and work is being done to help. But it is still a strange enough phenomenon to be unrecognized by many parents and teachers; in which case a really bright child may be put in a class with retardates, or with disturbed little ones, or may be scolded into submission and despair for something he can't help.

DEAR DORIS: Can you tell me the rate at which you should lose weight?

My doctor has put me on a reducing routine but I have only lost 20 pounds in about four months. — BIG GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: Congratulations! Did you expect to turn into a grease spot overnight?

The thing is to keep your health while you reduce. A loss of one or two pounds a week is perfect. And that's what you are doing.

Confidential to JAN: Don't worry about it any more. What you have done won't hurt you; but stop doing it. Carrying on with any such practice could eventually be disturbing to your mental and emotional well-being.

* * *

(Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!)

WEDDING

WRIGHT — TYRER

Mr. Douglas Robinson officiated at the wedding in Grace Chapel, Stirling, when Joyce Jean Tyrer, daughter of Mrs. R. H. Tyrer, Frankford R.R.3 and the late Mr. Tyrer became the bride of Ian Walter Wright, son of Mrs. James Wright, Renfrew and the late Mr. J. Wright.

Mrs. Douglas Tyrer was organist and played accompaniment for the soloist Miss Judith Sutherland.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Douglas Tyrer, the bride wore a floor length Empire styled bridal gown of white satin featuring a lace panel at the front of the skirt extending to the hemline. A waist-length tulle veil flowed from a circular headdress of satin roses intertwined with silver leaves. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Margaret Moorcroft of Foxboro as maid of honor and the bridesmaid Miss Ena Tyrer, sister of the bride were dressed alike in turquoise satin dresses styled with Empire waistlines, with the bodices trimmed with white lace. Each carried a nosegay of white 'mums and pink carnations.

Mr. Paul Tyrer attended the bridegroom and Mr. R. A. Cameron and Mr. Hugh Johnston, were the ushers.

At the reception in the church hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a blue sheath dress with lace jacket pink and white accessories and a pink cymbidium orchid corsage. Greeting the guests also, was the bridegroom's mother, who wore a pink sheath with three-quarter pink lace coat, white accessories and a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

On departure for the honeymoon trip to the Muskoka area, the bride chose an aqua sheath dress with aqua and white lace coat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The couple will reside in Arnprior, Ontario.

Cecelia Wallace of St. Mike's Asks Women Catholic Priests

By DOUG WATLEY

TORONTO (CP) — A Roman Catholic feminist is challenging her church's view that only men can be priests.

Cecelia Wallace, a member of St. Michael's College's centre for ecumenical studies, argues that women should be admitted to the priesthood. She has written several articles on this theme, and "someday may even tackle a book."

She says the first serious proposals for women priests were greeted in Catholic circles with three reactions: "Laughter from some, anger from some, shock from the rest. Both men and women reacted this way."

"I suppose most Roman Catholics today think that being a priest is exclusively a male role," she said in an interview.

"But, then, some people used to say that being educated and doing productive work in society were for men only, too—and look at all the women who fill those roles now."

ROOTED IN THEOLOGY

She says opposition to female priests may have theological roots.

"It's probably based largely on an inadequate conception of God in an all-male image, an image which is only an unfortunate result of a pervasive type of Western patriarchal culture."

"Not all men have thought of God as all-male. Primitive matriarchal cultures, for instance, conceived of their gods in fundamentally different terms. In many agricultural societies—including some North American Indians — the deity bears a strong mother image."

Miss Wallace speaks with some approval of ancient religions with both male and female priests.

"This indicates they had a conception of God that was not confined to the male image. It may very well be that the bisexual view of God manifested in pagan religions and represented in lesser deities of both sexes may have much in common with the bi-sexual God of Genesis."

Believing the absence of female priests to be intimately linked with deeper theological problems, she deplores the "lack of a feminine influence in both theology and the priesthood."

She says it has led Catholics to pay too little attention to women's potentialities.

CITES GOOD QUALITIES

"Women may even be able to bring special qualities to the priesthood. Qualities like, perhaps, a special kind of concern for people which may allow women to become involved in human affairs, to relate to people, in ways that males can't."

Miss Wallace extends this line o' thought beyond her church to questions of possible contributions by women to society.

She says women should not be confined to a narrow range of strictly defined, stereotyped roles, but should assume a wider scope of activity.

"This seems to be to be true not just in the church but in all work roles. I think we've got to move beyond the point where we so easily say of so many jobs: A woman can't do that, because — well, just because she's a woman.

"I think there's a horrible female image throughout our society that's related to passivity and weakness and so on. It tends to make men into the more active sex and women into more or less passive instruments. But I think women have a right to be active—and maybe even aggressive, in a feminine way."

She advocates that male and female tasks in society be less rigidly distinguished than they are now, with the impetus provided by women acting on a broadened understanding of their possible roles.

"Their activities are too restricted by what they feel is a proper feminine role. Women will often avoid, say, grappling with serious intellectual problems or taking up the responsibilities of political leadership. But why should they?"

Dief Assails "Arrogance" In Integration Handling

INVERMERE, B.C. (CP) Opposition Leader Diefenbaker Monday night assailed what he termed arrogance in handling of armed forces integration by the Liberal government.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in this resort community near the Alberta border on a fishing trip, also took time off to condemn Liberal tight money policies.

"The way the government is handling the integration of the forces is a striking revelation of its arrogance," he said.

"The armed forces have become the private puppetry of a cabinet minister and this has caused irreparable harm to their morale.

"Civilian authorities must be in charge, but the way the government is going about it shows a complete disregard for the men who have given their lives in the armed forces."

Mr. Diefenbaker said it will take a long time to rebuild the shattered morale of the army, navy and air force.

"The armed forces, which have always supported the Liberals by 65 to 76 per cent in elections, are now receiving the dividends of their political loyalty. It is indeed a strange reward."

He also said he has seen some distressing signs of tight money policies.

"It is greatly reducing the prospects of small businesses and a great many of them will go into bankruptcy because of the cutting off of bank credit".

Grain Crop Much Below Last Year's

NAPANEE — When asked to comment on crop conditions in this county, Garnet Mills, agricultural representative for Lennox and Addington, said that while the hay was below average, it was better than last year. On the other hand, grain this year is in bad shape, much below last year's crop.

This is due to the fact that the rainfall, below average both years, came at a different time. Last year saw no rain to speak of in June, and so the hay crop was a failure. This year a good rain in June and light showers later, brought on the hay. However, while rain fell in July last year in time to help the grain, July this year has seen no rain and grain is very poor both in quality and quantity. The grain situation here is serious, Mr. Mills believes.

Farmers complain that the milk yield is away down. The pastures are dried up and they are feeding their cows. One farmer states that his cows come to the barn at noon for water, and lie in the barnyard the rest of the day, refusing to go back to the pasture field in the excessive heat.

A farmer's wife notes that there is not even any dew now. "We always have to put on long rubber boots to go for the cows in the morning, but not this year," she notes. Mr. Mills explains this by pointing to the warm nights. "There is not enough change in the temperature to bring about condensation," he says.

"Conditions are desperate as far as canning crops are concerned," William Forbes states. Mr. Forbes is the manager of Metcalf Foods, Ltd., in Deseronto.

Only one - third of the usual crop of peas has so far been processed at the factory and the prospect for the rest of the crop is extremely poor, he says. This should be the height of the pea season, with the factory running 24 hours a day. Instead, it was closed for the weekend.

As far as tomatoes and corn are concerned, the prospect is gloomy. Tomatoes and corn both thrive in heat, but must also have moisture. There has been little since tomatoes were set out. This area had its last good rain June 6, with a shower a week later and a few drizzles since then, but not in any measurable quantity. Growers report that tomatoes are not growing, and that corn is stunted.

The situation is the result of a combination of excessive heat, high winds, and lack of moisture, Mr. Forbes states. "A day like Sunday is just murder for crops," was his opinion. Sunday was hot, dry, and windy.

Smokers Urged To Use Extreme Care

NAPANEE — Napanee Fire Department has had its hands full battling grass fires caused by careless cigarette smokers. All started on the road allowance and one of them spread to neighboring fields. Fire Chief W. F. Patton states that fire conditions are extremely hazardous and warns smokers to use extreme care.

Not long after midnight Friday Napanee firemen were called to put out a fire on the road allowance on the Switzerville Road about a mile and a half off Highway No. 2. They were able to control it within half an hour.

Saturday afternoon it was a different story. Again it began with a lighted cigarette tossed out by a motorist on Highway 401 near the Hastings - Lennox and Addington boundary. Both Napanee and Deseronto fire departments responded promptly. It spread to a field of uncut hay on the farm of Walter Bell and flames were so high and so hot that the 200 volunteers could do little until the firemen arrived. It spread next to pasture land on the farm of Glen Tucker where it was finally subdued after burning over approximately 15 acres. About 100 panels of rail fence were destroyed on the Tucker farm and had to be replaced by wire that day to keep the steers confined. Buildings on both farms were endangered.

Sunday afternoon a call came from Hay Bay Road. Although the fire was confined to the road allowance the tenant house on the farm of Jack Forester was endangered.

Teen-agers Enjoy Dance Sponsored By Firefighters

NAPANEE — Teen-agers of Napanee and neighboring communities are showing their appreciation of the Friday night dances in the Armoury by coming in greater numbers each week. There were 244 paid admissions last week to dance to the music of two local orchestras, Paul and the Tarantulas, and Michael Paul and the Endees. Both are made up of boys from Napanee and Deseronto.

The dances are sponsored by the Napanee Firefighters' Association, whose object is to provide entertainment, well-supervised, for the young folk of the area. Last Friday eight of the firemen were on hand to supervise, and several were in uniform. Drinking is strictly ruled out. Last week the firemen were grateful to the town police who twice came in and gave their papproval. Some of the firemen always bring their wives along, also, to add to the care taken of the young folk, and to assist with the canteen.

Paul and the Tarantulas have played for all three of the dances so far, but last week Michael Paul and the Endees were invited to be on hand also. The experiment was so successful that it will be continued for the season. Dances will be held weekly until the end of August.

Bob Young, both of Ottawa, curl on a plywood rink in the 100-degree heat. (CP Photo)

Work Fine But Leisure Time Problem for Gaza Strippers

Boredom is a major enemy of Canadians serving with the United Nations Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip. A visiting Canadian Press reporter describes some of the ways they fight it.

By CARL MOLLINS

CAMP RAFAH, Gaza (CP) —On the Gaza golf course, you watch out for grass traps and shoot for the sand. At the Camp Rafah curling club, the sweeper's only job is to clear the wood-floor rink of flying insects.

Troops of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip seize upon such makeshift pastimes with an eagerness based on awareness that an hour thus killed means an hour less of leisure boredom on this desert assignment.

"We do some really childish things out here sometimes," said Sgt. Herb Davies of Toronto, who heads the entertainment committe of the Canadian sergeants' mess.

"Kite-flying, marbles, this curling with toy rocks on a hardboard rink—but the attitude is that if it kills a couple of hours, it's worth doing."

A gag going around this Canadian UNEF base has it that the commanding officer's confidential reports on officers now include an assessment of their marble-playing ability.

Camp Rafah, a former British Palestine base where most of the 800 Canadians with UNEF are stationed, has more organized recreation than almost any military camp in Canada. Discipline is more relaxed.

SITUATION ABNORMAL

Allowances are made for what one officer described as "an abnormal situation for peacetime service by Canadian soldiers—the desert climate, virtually no off-base recreation, no women."

From the vantage point of a routine army job back home — especially during a long, cold winter — assignment to a year's tour with UNEF can look invitingly exotic.

On paper or even in experience for the first few months, Canadians say, the advantages of superior pay, different tasks and interesting surroundings outweigh the drawbacks of social restrictions, often-frustrating working conditions and separation from family.

For many, the extra pay and allowances mean building up a tidy nest-egg—for some, a new car on return; for a few, sharing a once-in-a-lifetime vacation with their wives in Cairo, Jerusalem or Beirut.

The Canadian assignments — providing administrative and logistics support for UNEF — take on dimensions that are different from the same jobs in Canada, adding interest and challenge to routine.

A service corps driver might truck water along a camel track to a Sinai desert outpost one day, set out for supplies to Port Said or Tel Aviv the next. A private in the engineers might find himself in charge of a dozen civilian workers on a construction project.

TIME SOON DRAGS

But a common cry is that time starts to drag after six months or so. Strenuous efforts are made to maintain morale.

Talk to almost any Canadian UNEF man and within a few minutes he will volunteer precisely how much time is left in his Gaza tour—to the day if he has less than six months to go, to the hour if it is a matter of weeks.

Separation from family and isolation from non - military relaxation are the chief sources of a sense of monotony.

As a support unit, the Canadian contingent consists mainly of skilled craftsmen, generally older than the average infantry unit and therefore strongly attached to married life and family.

The mail flown in twice-wekly from Beirut by the RCAF flyers attached to UNEF is obsessively important.

"If that postal strike back home last year had gone on much longer there would have been a mutiny here," said a private who gets an average of a letter a day from his wife. He semed to be only half joking.

Cpl. Bill Frost of Toronto, a signalman on a very special if semi-official assignment, is thus the most popular man at Rafah. Frost runs a ham radio shack and makes between 100 and 200 contacts a month with Canadian amateurs. He passes soldier-family messages back and forth when the mail is slow and often arranges person - to - person conversations for Rafah men through co - operative hams such as Guy Reynolds of Trois-Rivieres, Que., a regular contact.

Politics and custom virtually enforce confinement to camp except on outside assignments or sometime leave trips to UNEF furlough centres in Cairo and Beirut.

UNEF's delicate mission separating hostile armies, Palestinian checkposts along the Gaza highway and lack of public entertainment in the villages of the strip rule out fraternization with the local population except formally at the official level.

The result is that Camp Rafah men must make their own entertainment inside the 3½ miles of barbed wire, watchtowers and searchlights that protect the camp perimeter.

MISS FAMILIES

"It's not that I don't like the people her," says WO2 Paul Corcoran of Yarrow, B.C. "It's just that you get a bit tired of seeing the same faces at work, in the barracks, at meals and during free time."

Summing up an outpouring of miseries in a Rafah mess one night, Corcoran added:

"The work is all right. But once I'm home you wouldn't get me back here in chains Sgt. Ed. Molinsky of Cal—unless they arranged for family quarters and a school."

gary, a bachelor, chimed in with a half-serious contrary opinion that the hoots of his messmates exposed as a minority view:

"I don't know what these guys are complaining about," he said. "Plenty of free time and all the golf and tennis I can play. No women sizing me up as a possible lifetime meal ticket. In fact, no women.

"This, for me, is Utopia."

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Unless heads roll, and not just in token fashion, at tonight's Belleville and District Softball League executive meeting, the sport in this city will have suffered a severe setback.

It is impossible to place all the flaunting of responsibility and discipline in Saturday night's so-called game between Ellis Juniors and the Bobcats into print.

And the responsibility for the mess that resulted does not rest completely with the teams.

Plate umpire Jim Tebworth and base official Mike Whalen could have prevented at least part of the nonsence by ejecting several players and a manager before the actual brawls took place.

The fans certainly did not approve and without them where will the league or its teams stand?

Punitive action should be taken against Ellis players Bob Moon, Bob Ethier and Bill Barberstock; manager Paul Russell and coach Harold Reid for failure to control them; Bobcat players John McKibbon and Lem Mowat for their parts in the fights; and manager Ron Fralick for antagonizing rather than assisting to control the others involved.

There may be others that we missed in the two battles that saw the field littered with players from both teams, as well as officials and some young fans, late in the game.

While the fights did not happen until the eighth and ninth innings, the Juniors showed their disrespect for the umpires from the early stages.

Pitcher Bob Ethier was far from at his best. Yet he attempted to shift blame for his lack of control onto the shoulders of the plate umpire. He shook his head, fired his glove to the ground, moaned about almost every ball called, threw at or near several batters, and in general upset his own team.

Bob Moon put the final light to the fuse when he attempted to kick opposing catcher John McKibbon in the top of the eighth.

McKibbon did not charge into Moon but tried to leap over him for home plate on the play. And in the fight that followed, he has yet to touch the plate. The throw home was high and wide, into the screen, but Moon, for no obvious reason, elected to kick at McKibbon.

McKibbon, as Mowat in the later fight, did the natural thing and fought back.

Luckily for both parties Moon's kick did not land. Players filled the home plate area, with Ethier and the 'Cats' Rick Locke holding each other at bay, probably the closest thing to a preliminary bout.

I, for one, was very surprised when Tebworth did not toss Moon and McKibbon out of the game.

Several close calls on the bases gave the players more chance to mouth and kept the fever high during the next inning and a half.

Tebworth finally tired of Ethier's shouted remarks from the Junior bench in the bottom of the ninth. He ordered him out of the park and when Ethier did not go, told Ellis' coach Harold Reid to put him out of there.

"Put him out of there yourself", was Reid's reply from the third-base coaching area.

The Barberstock-Mowat incident was pure folly.

Barberstock, a giant of a lad, pinch hit a single with the score 13-2. He headed for second and was out by a wide margin. The play looked very ordinary until Barberstock came up swinging and Mowat kicked back at him.

It was a free-for-all then, with Ethier again charging onto the field to mix with Locke. How many others were involved in short centre field I would not attempt to guess from the scorer's table.

We don't know what the managers' and umpires' reports will say at tonight's meeting and, as we said, more than one party is at fault.

But until some of the Juniors are willing to take as well as give; to lose as well as win; and to learn a little respect for authority, they should not attempt to play in a men's league.

Cementmen Win String Clipped

A three-run homer in the top of the sixth inning gave Black Diamond Cheese all they needed to snap Point Anne's Commercial Softball League winning streak last night.

The Cheesemen won 3-1, at the Point, for the Cementmen's fourth defeat of the season. It was Point Anne's first loss since June 20.

Point Anne jumped ahead 1-0 in the first frame, scoring the run on a fly ball, and it stayed that way until the sixth.

A walk and a missed third strike put two Cheesemen on. Jack Francis slammed a ball to left-centre that bounced high over the fielder's head for a home run — and the 3-1 score.

Don Holoway for Black Diamond and Ron Maracle for Point Anne matched three-hitters in the tight battle.

Jack Francis had his winning homer and a single for the winners while Gene Francis got the other base hit.

Ron Maracle had one of the losers' safeties.

No other details of the game were available.

The victory tied the Cheesemen with City Hotel for fourth place.

Departmental Softball

The Fire Department clinched a berth in the Departmental Softball League playoffs last night with a 5-3 victory over the tail - end Public Utilities.

Winning pitcher Larry Reid hit a two-run homer to snap a 2-2 tie and spark his own win. He gave up six hits, fanned one and walked five. Loser Ralph Sine allowed five hits, whiffed three and walked six.

Aiding Reid in the hit department were Grant Parks with a triple, Al Ryan and Rocky Davis with a double each.

Jim Ilens had a double to pace the Utilities.

Utilities have only a slim chance left for playoffs. They must win both remaining games while Public Works lose their pair to tie for the last playoff spot.

Tonight's scheduled game between the Firemen and Works has been postponed until Thursday. City Hall and The Intelligencer battle it out for first place tomorrow night.

Lightfoots Bow to City Hotel

City Hotel rode a five-run third inning to a 9-5 Commercial Softball League victory over Lightfoot Construction at Alemite Park last night.

Lightfoots held a 2-1 margin when the City explosion came, halting the losers' bid to grab some breathing room in third place.

Three walks, Brooks' two-run double, Coolen's two-run homer, another double by Murray and two errors chased the City runs across. The losers never got closer than two runs after that.

Dave Feeney pitched six-hit ball to earn the victory. He struck out three and did not walk a batter.

Walks hurt the Lightfoot cause with starter John French passing four, George Young three and Don Smith two. They gave up only five hits and struck out two.

Tom Coolen hit a home run, Bob Brooks and Doug Murray a double each and Larry Potter had a pair of singles to account for the Hotelmen's safeties.

Rusty Garvin poked a Lightfoot homer while Tim Cook and Don Smith had doubles. Doug Rose singled twice and Don Wood once.

City Hotel trails Lightfoots by two points after the win, 18-16, but share the position with Black Diamond Cheese. The Cheesemen snapped Point Anne's winning streak last night.

Sine Shell managed only two hits but took advantage of 11 walks to edge Tip Top 7-6 in a BMBA peewee battle at Park Dale last night. In tadpole, the Rockets out-powered the Jets 15-7.

Wayne Andrews and Austin Wilson allowed only two singles but had control problems for Tip Top. They struck out 14 in defeat.

Sine Shell's pitching pair of Rick Meagher and Gary Edwards gave up five hits but walked only four to nab their win. They fanned five.

The winners got hits from Keith Joudwa and Rick Meagher.

For Tip Top, Wayne Andrews, Jim Stather, John Truiasch, John Irvine and Phil Kirby hit singles.

Scott Bowes and Pete Hall threw the Rocket's victory, giving up six hits and whiffing 11.

The Jet's pitchers, Paul Weeks and Stephen Coates, allowed 10 hits and struck out 12.

Chris O'Hara ignited the Rockets with a homer and two base hits. Chris Dutton slammed a homer and double, Scott Bowes doubled and lined two singles, while Tony Simard had two base hits.

TINA LEADS

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Tina, an America boat, captured the second race between yachts in the six-metre class Monday and became the favorite to win the One-Ton Cup. Skippered by owner Edward R. Stettinius, completed the 300-mile race between Denmark and Sweden in a little more than 60 hours.

In the middle of July, what's more natural than a two-week vacation?

Now that Cleveland Indians, power structure has returned from its mid - summer holiday, manager Birdie Tebbetts can get back to the business of the American League pennant race.

The Indians continued their sudden assault on California Angels' pitching Monday, ripping four home runs in a 6-1 victory. That gave Tebbetts club 13 homers in two days and a three - game winning streak.

Until California arrived in town, Tebbetts had struggled through two weeks in which his club had managed just four homers and had lost 11 of 12 games.

Then came Sunday's doubleheader sweep in which the Indians smashed nine homers.

Monday it was much the same with all Cleveland runs resulting from the long ball.

ROCKY HITS 19TH

Rocky Colavito and Larry Brown tagged fourth inning homers, each good for two runs. Colavito's No. 19 followed Chuck Hinton's walk and Brown's second of the season delivered Chico Salmon, who had walked.

In the seventh Leon Wagner walloped his 12th of the season and an inning later Max Alvis belted his ninth.

Homers also played a major role in other American League games. Boog Powell and Frank Robinson smashed consecutive shots that helped Baltimore Orioles whip Chicago White Sox 5-3 and Hector Lopez' three - run homer lifted New York Yankees to a 6-4 victory over Minnesota Twins.

Gary Bell (10-5) hurled a four-hitter for the Indians with the only Angel run coming on Jose Cardenal's 10th homer of the season in the sixth inning.

SHOW MUSCLE

The front - running Orioles showed Chicago some muscle, too.

Powell and Robinson rocked Juan Pizarro with a pair of 400-foot blasts in a four-run second inning. Powell's 21st was a two-run shot which landed on the right - centre field roof and Robinson followed with his 23rd to the bullpen in centre field.

The Twins had a 4-0 lead against the Yankees for six innings but New York knocked out Mudcat Grant with a three-run rally in the seventh.

In the eighth, Roy White singled and Clete Boyer walked in front of Lopez' fourth homer of the season.

Ted Uhlaender and harmon Killebrew had homered earlier for the Twins against New York starter Al Downing.

Midgets Dump Frankford 6-2

Belleville dumped Frankford 6-2 behind the two - hit pitching combination of Steve Ling and Bob Pinke, in EOBA midget play last night. Ling and Pinke struck out 10 and walked six in their winning effort.

The pitching duo got plenty of support from their team-mates as Belleville hitters rapped out 10 hits.

Frankford held an early 1-0 lead, but it evaporated with Belleville getting three runs in each of the third and fourth.

Adams and Danton toiled in defeat, walking three and striking out three.

Wayne McTaggart banged a triple and double, and Bob Luffman had a triple and single, to lead the winners' attack. Cliff Scott slammed two singles, while Dale Duvall, Paul Goodfellow, Brian Harder and Steve Ling stroked base hits.

Larry McCauley and Chesher had singles for Frankford.

Ryun Targets 800-Metre Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Ryun, at 19 the owner of two world marks and a couple of American records, will be shooting for a fifth one in an international track and field meet this weekend.

The Kansas runner, who added a world record 3:51.3 mile to his world 1:44.9 half mile mark last weekend, will shoot for the 800-metre record.

"I've got the half mile mark and now I'd like to get the other," Ryun said on arrival Monday from Berkeley, Calif., site of his record mile run.

There was considerable speculation the six - foot - two ace would go for the world 1,500-meter mark in Los Angeles, but he quickly squelched it.

HOLDS U.S. MARK

"I've run my last mile race this year," he said. The 1,500 meters is about 167 yards short of a mile. He set an American record of 3:36.1 en route to his mile mark last weekend and also holds the American record two miles, 8:25.2.

He erased Peter Snell's world record in the 880-yard run by two-tenths of a second a month ago at the U.S. Track Federation meet in Terre Haute Ind.

No one bothered to clock him at 800 meters, but under the conversion method generally used, he would have broken Snell's record of 1:44.3 by a tenth of a second.

He will compete in the 880-yard run in Los Angeles—about 10 yards longer than 800 meters.

Meet director Glenn Davis has asked officials to have a set of watches and a tape at 800 meters in case Ryun reduces his mark for that distance.

WILL RELAX

"I'm just going to sit around and act human" after running the 800 meters, Ryun added.

"There are so many things you can't do in training."

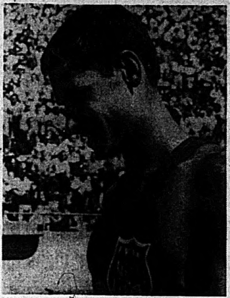
Ryun's training schedule includes rising early and running about 50 miles early every week. He divides his time between sprint and distances.

He likes other sports, but says he has no time for them. When he's home, he has a summer job as a newspaper photographer in Topeka.

He has no illusions about the durability of his record.

"My record may not last through the summer. Someone will run a 3:50 mile this year."

But it won't be Ryun, if he keeps his word.



A SMILE FOR A WORLD MARK — Kansas freshman Jim Ryun smiles as he hears he has established a new mark for the world mile. Ryun, 19, clipped 2.3 seconds from the record set by Michael Jazy of France in 1965. The Kansas runner's time was 3 minutes 51.3 seconds. (AP Wirephoto)

WILLS IS OUT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers shortstop Maury Wills will be out of action for a few days because of a knee injury he suffered last Friday in New York, a team spokesman said Monday.

Lions Release Queen's Norrie

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions announced Monday the release of Canadian defensive halfback Bayne Norrie from their Western Football conference roster.

Norrie, 21, is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston.

SAILORS TAKE RISKS

There were 19 boating accidents in Ontario provincial parks last year, compared with eight in 1964.

S. Warner Slips Past Belvedere

Floyd Crawford's Stewart Warner team collected only four hits last night but made the most of the quartet and as many errors to upend Belvedere Hotel 4-2 in Commercial Softball.

Stewart Warner tightened its grip on second place with the win, six points behind Point Anne and six ahead of Lightfoots.

The winners jumped ahead 2-1 in the third. Belvedere tied it in the fourth and singletons in the fifth and sixth produced the 4-2 count.

Junior Day pitched seven-hit ball in a route-going effort for the Warner crew. He struck out four and walked three.

Jim Nicholls was the victim of defeat, despite his four-hitter, on the Belvedere rubber. He struck out four and walked five. All four of the club's errors figured in the winners' scoring.

Rod Turner crashed a run-scoring triple and Keith Bertrim hit a double for Stewart Warner. Singles by Gary Gow and Pat Glancey completed the attack.

Bill Nicholls punched out three Belvedere singles and Jim Nicholls collected a pair, Jim Muir and "Pug" Kellar had the others.

The loss left Belvedere alone in the league basement, two points back of City Hotel and Black Diamond.

Mets Win Second Twin Bill

Giants Nip Pirates; Dodgers Shut Out

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

"If you're going to relieve," says Lindy McDaniel of San Francisco Giants, "the only spot is short relief."

McDaniel is a short relief pitcher. So is team-mate Bill Henry. But Henry's short relieving and McDaniel's aren't the same. Henry makes an even more minute specialization out of it.

The veteran southpaw displayed his short short relieving Monday night as the Giants edged Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and moved to within two percentage points of the National League-leading Pirates.

Manager Herman Franks called on Henry in the eighth after Roberto Clemente doubled home the Pirates' second run against starter Gaylord Perry. Henry retired Manny Mota on a fly ball, then departed as Frank Linzy came on.

.The appearance was Henry's 23rd this season and his one-out performance was the 10th time he's pitched only one-third of an inning. In fact, in those 23 games, Henry has pitched only 16 1-3 innings. McDaniel and Linzy, on the other hand, have averaged about two innings an appearance.

After Henry left in the eighth, Linzy came on and retired Jose Pagan on a foul pop, leaving Clemente at second with the tying run.

Then in the ninth when Linzy got into trouble on two-out singles by Bill Mazeroski and Bob Bailey, Franks brought in Joe Gibbon.

Matty Alou greeted Gibbon with an infield single, loading the bases. So Franks went to the bullpen for the fourth time in two innings, calling on McDaniel.

McDaniel walked in and ended the game on Jesse Gonder's line drive to Jim Davenport.

In other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 4-0, New York Mets swept Houston Astros for the second straight day 4-1 and 6-3, Atlanta Braves edged Cincinnati Reds 9-8 and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Chicago Cubs 7-6.

BROKE OUT IN FOURTH

The Giants scored all their runs in the fourth with the help of two wild pitches by Bob Veale. The first put Davenport and Willie Mays into position to score on a ground out by Jim Hart and a single by Cap Peterson.

Larry Jackson stopped the Dodgers on five hits for his fifth straight victory and second straight shutout. Philadelphia, meanwhile, erupted for three runs in the fifth inning, sending Sandy Koufax to his fifth defeat against 16 victories.

New York scored three runs in the eighth inning for the opening - game victory against Houston. Roy McMillan knocked in the last two with a single.

Larry Elliot drove in four runs in the nightcap for the Mets, the last two with a double in the seventh when the Mets wiped out a 3-2 Astro lead.

Ed Mathews' run - scoring single in the Atlanta eighth snapped an 8-8 deadlock. Felipe Alou and Mack Jones each hit two-run homers for the Braves while Tommy Harper's two-run double in the eighth pulled Cincinnati into the tie.

Byron Browne drove in five runs with two homers for Chicago, but St. Louis got three-run homers from Tim McCarver in the sixth inning and Mike Shannon in the seventh.

Wings Trim Bisons 4-1, Jets Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Bertaina wants to get back his spot on the Baltimore Orioles pitching staff.

The young right hander, sent down by the American League club a month ago, won his fourth game in five starts for Rochester Red Wings Monday.

He twirled a four-hitter and got home run support from John Mason, John Scruggs and Dave May as the Red Wings whipped Buffalo Bisons 4-1 in one of three International League games played.

May's homer came with a team-mate on base.

In other action, Elvio Jiminez singled home the deciding run in the bottom of the ninth as Toledo Mud Hens nipped Richmond Braves 7-6. The victory allowed each club to finish the four-game series with a pair of triumphs.

Home runs provided all the runs for league-leading Columbus Jets in a 5-1 victory over Jacksonville Suns. The big blow was a three-run blast by Dave Roberts. Jim Price, and Tim Harkness hit the other Columbus homers and Wilbur Wood tossed a five-hitter for the victory.

SAILS TO VICTORY

HANKOE, Norway (Reuters) Ernest Fay of the United States, the world's foremost 5.5-metre yachting skipper, won the Gold Cup Monday for the second successive year. Fay, skippering Pride, won by two minues over Sweden's Patric Fredell on Carioca II and West Germany's Rudolf Harmostorf on Suennschein was another minute behind.

Pearl vs Panther In Soccer Epic

Brazil Meets Hungary

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — The Black Pearl against the Black Panther. That's the lineup today for Brazil's World Cup clash with Portugal, a make-or-break encounter that could be the soccer match of the century.

Brazil, champions since 1958, must beat the experienced Portuguese by three goals to be sure of a place in the sudden-death quarter-finals. Otherwise its dream of three consecutive World Cup triumphs faces certain ruin.

The Black Pearl is 25-year-old Edson Arantes do Nascimento, the slender Brazilian genius known through the soccer world as Pele. The Black Panther is Portugal's 24-year-old Eusebio Ferreira, who learned his soccer barefoot in Mozambique and is Pele's only rival for the crown of soccer supremacy.

Both have the same job—to score goals. Each packs a shot like dynamite, backed with supreme positional gifts and the grace, balance and explosive acceleration to dance, swerve or burst through modern packed defences.

Who is king? The answer goes on parade today at 2:30 p.m. EDT before an expected capacity crowd in Goodison Park Stadium, Liverpool.

HAS WIN AND LOSS

And in the World Cup so far, Liverpool fans have roared their hearts out watching Brazil in action twice—once beating Bulgaria 2-0 in a top-flight game by any standards, once losing 3-1 to Hungary in a classic of soccer history.

Brazil now faces the unthinkable—exit from the cup even before the quarter - final round. Only a true champion performance can get it through. Even if it wins by two goals Hungary can oust it by defeating Bulgaria Wednesday.

Eight national teams play today and the remaining eight Wednesday in matches that will settle the quarter-finalists of the three-week competition.

COULD DEPEND ON COIN

At each stage of the championships from now on, team captains could find themselves in a hopelessly deadlocked tie that only the toss of a coin could resolve.

Fortunately for the soccer statisticians, the chances are small of the World Cup being awarded as a result of several lucky calls of the coin.

The top two teams in each of four groups will qualify for the quarter-finals to be played next Saturday. If teams are equal on points, goal average counts. And if goal averages are identical—out comes the coin.

If any quarter - final match ends in a draw, rules provide for 30 minutes of extra time. And if there's still no victory for either team, the coin again decides which goes into the last four. The same rules apply to the semi-finals to be played July 25-26.

In the World Cup final, Saturday, July 30, a half hour's extra time will be played if the match ends in a draw. If nothing is resolved after extra time, the final will be replayed Tuesday, Aug. 2.

And if that replay ends in a tie after extra time—out comes the coin.

Other key matches in group play (starting times EDT):

Mexico against Uruguay at London 11:30 a.m.

Argentina against Switzerland at Sheffield 2:30 p.m.

Italy against North Korea at Middlesbrough 2:30 p.m.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

May-December Marriages Fare Well in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Can a 21-year-old beauty find happiness with a swinging millionaire of 50?

This question, which sounds like something out of the Peyton Place television serial, is being asked hither and yon ever since last week's announcement that Mia Farrow and Frank Sinatra are engaged.

On a purely statistical basis, it would appear that their marriage has a good chance of survival. A survey of other famous May - December marriages in Hollywood discloses that a surprising number succeeded—surprising in view of the generally poor climate for the marital state in the film colony.

The record:

Humphrey Bogart, a three-time loser, married Lauren Bacall in 1945 when he was 45 and she was 21. The union produced two children and a dozen years of happiness for Bogie.

Rudy Vallee, also thrice divorced, married a University of California coed in 1949. He was 29 years older, but their marriage has prevailed.

CHAPLIN HOME SECURE

Charlie Chaplin, at 58, married the daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill when she was 18. They have reared a large family and appear devoted to each other.

Buster Keaton, 44, married Eleanor Norris, 21, in 1940. Their marriage continued until his death this year.

Al Jolson was 56 when he married a nurse, Erle Galbraith. It was the only one of his marriages that proved successful.

Cary Grant did wonders for the geriatric set by marrying Dianne Cannon, 26, and becoming a father the following year, when he was 61.

William Powell's third wife was Duana Lewis, whom he married in 1940 when he was 47 and she could barely vote. They continue to live in contented retirement in Palm Springs.

Bing Crosby at 53 became the husband of Kathryn Grant, 30 years younger. He now is rearing a second family.

Dick Powell was 41 when he married a 22-year-old actress, June Allyson. They weathered a few separations and were together at the time of his death.

John Wayne chose as his third wife a Latin beauty, Pilar Palette. They married in 1954 when he was 47 and she was 25. She gave birth to their third child last Feb. 22.

SOME FAILURES TOO

Of course, there have been failures of such marriages, too. Two of the more notable ones were Leopold Stokowski, 58, and Gloria Vanderbilt, 21; and John Barrymore, 54, and Elaine Barry, 19.

Why do the marriages of older men with younger wives succeed? Bogart himself once offered some views on the matter:

"The mature man is more experienced. He knows how to court a woman. He has learned the hundred little courtesies that make her happy she is a woman. . . .

"He offers security—the security of character. And he's not as fickle as his juniors. Let's face it: He can't afford to be."

Kingston Trio Credited With Reviving Folk Tunes

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It started 10 years ago when three amateur musicians met on college campuses of the San Francisco peninsula. The results can be seen and heard all around: The strumming of a million guitars and a chorus of folk tunes.

Most historians of folk music credit the Kingston Trio with bringing the ancient form to the forefront of the pop music world. A decade later, the trio still is selling its merry songs with returns of more than $1,000,000 annually.

The Kingstons were here from their San Francisco bay homes to record the title song for the Dean Martin western, Texas Across The River. Nick Reynolds, billed as "the runt of the litter," did some reminiscing about the eventful decade.

"It was just 10 years ago that Bob Shane and I met at Menlo College," said Nick. "I was tending bar in a joint where Bob and I fooled around with guitars. Later we met Dave Guard, who was at Stanford."

AWAKENED LEGACY

The collegiates teamed as the Kingston Trio (Harry Belafonte's Calypso was hot then) and played their first professional date at San Francisco's Purple Onion in 1957. Their record of Tom Dooley brought them wide attention and awakened North America to the vast legacy of folk music.

Five years ago, Dave Guard defected; he was last reported on the beach in Australia. John Stewart replaced him with scarcely a missed beat, and the trio has continued on its money-making way.

RECORDS SLUMP

"The record business hasn't been good," said Reynolds, "but that's to be expected after 26 albums. The personal appearances couldn't be better. We go out about five months of the year now, a few weeks at a time, playing auditoriums colleges, Lake Tahoe and Las Vegas."

By working less than half a year, the Kingston Trio can still earn more than $1,000,000 for their musical efforts alone. They also own a mass of investments — buildings, restaurants, a night club.

Reynolds, Shane and Stewart converge every two or three months for board meetings to oversee their enterprises. When not performing, they go separate ways.

Shane raises Shetland ponies on a farm near Roswell, Ga. Reynolds builds and races cars. Stewart tends to the music; he composed eight of the 12 songs on the last album.

Riders, Als Win Ex. Games

WINNIPEG (CP) — Halfback Bo Scott's 52-yard third-quarter sideline run set up the touchdown that pushed Ottawa Rough Riders to a 17-10 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Canadian Football League exhibition game before 12,704 fans Monday night.

Scott's sprint put the ball on the Winnipeg seven-yard line and two plays later Russ Jackson passed to end Ted Watkins in the end zone for a touchdown.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, picking up two first - quarter touchdowns, defeated Calgary Stampeders 15-8 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Monday night.

AT THE PARK — Jerry Lewis and Janet Leigh here are a romantic two on a couch in the new Columbia Pictures release, "Three On a Couch". The Jerry Lewis production in color presents Lewis as an artist and Miss Leigh as his fiancee, a psychiatrist who refuses to wed him until she cures three patients — co-stars Mary Ann Mobley, Gila Golan and Leslie Parrish — of their man-hating complexes. To speed his own wedding, Jerry makes love to all three girls. James Best co-stars, in his first comedy role. The first fun showing "Three On A Couch" opens Wednesday for a week's engagement. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

HOW TO HIT STRAIGHT SHOTS FROM HILLY LIES

Most golfers have trouble hitting straight shots from uphill or downhill lies. Because the player's weight shifts so readily to his lower side, the path of the clubhead is thrown out of kilter.

Normally a golfer will push shots to the right from a downhill lie and pull them to the left from an uphill lie.

To counteract this tendency, the golfer should consciously put more weight on his higher foot at address (see illustrations). Try to keep much of your weight on the higher foot throughout your swing. Straighter shots should result.

WINONA, Ont. (CP)—A 17-year-old high school cadet is counting his silver today after three days of marksmanship competition in which he outshot veterans of the Ontario Rifle Association.

Sgt. Otto R. Spork, a Grade 12 student in Oakville, outshot competitors in all classes at the annual competition to win the Governor - General's Silver Medal, the Mercer Challenge Cup, $100 and the National Rifle Association's Silver Medal.

Spork, a Tyro, shot 102 out of a possible 105 in the Tait-Brassey Sunday, giving him a high score which he maintained through the City of Toronto and the Cornwall and York to win the Mercer aggregate with 478 points out of 505.

G. T. Donovan, a Tyro from Alliston, Ont., and Maj. Arnold Smedmor of Willowdale, Ont., an Expert, tied at 213 at the end of the Lieutenant-Governor's and were forced to shoot off.

They fired five shots each with Donovan sinking three bulls and two inners to win the match, the Lieutenant - Governor's Silver Medal and $300.

Smedmor, a Bisley team member in 1959 and 1961, won the City of Toronto with 144 out of 150 in the Expert category.

Donovan led the Tyro group Saturday with 96 out of 100 in the Bankers'.

Mariucci US Amateur Director

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — John Mariucci, former University of Minnesota hockey coach and Chicago Black Hawks player, Monday was named director of United States amateur player development by Wren Blair, general manager of Minnesota North Stars.

Minnesota is one of six new National Hockey League teams which will begin play in October, 1967.

Blair said Mariucci will be in charge of all North Stars U.S. area scouts and will work with the Minnesota entry in the new Minnesota Junior A league.

Blair said Mariucci's duties as 1967 U.S. national and 1968 U.S. Olympic hockey coach will be "compatible with his North Stars duties."

Mariucci was named to the two positions 10 days ago by the U.S. Olympic hockey committee.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — William R. Putman, president of the new Philadelphia entry in the National Hockey League, will be spokesman for the league's new six-team division.

A spokesman for the Philadelphia hockey team said Putman was elected at a private meeting in Minneapolis. He said he will represent the teams in dealings with the old, six-team division and the league's board of governors.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—A last-minute goal by outside Gill Thomas gave a touring women's field hockey team from Canada a 3-2 victory over Jamaica.

Govt. Should Contribute More

Mr. Smythe Talks On Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Conn Smythe of Toronto, leading money-winning owner in the recent thoroughbred meeting at Woodbine race track, wants the Ontario government to put more money into horse racing.

At a press conference, he proposed that the province contribute $650,000 annually in purses for 13 stakes races at $50,000 each.

He said The Jockey Club Ltd., which operates Ontario's three thoroughbred tracks, should go into a form of partnership with the government on certain matters.

He suggested the government reduce its take of six cents on every dollar wagered, although he did not say to what level he felt the tax should be decreased.

WILL 'RUN OUT'

"We're going to run out of owners, stable help and spectators under the present system," said Smythe. "It's too expensive. All that money being taken out of the dollar should be reduced so that a guy can afford to come to the races twice a week instead of once."

Under present legislation, 15½ cents is deducted from each dollar wagered—six cents to the province, nine cents to the track and ½ of one per cent to the federal government.

"Here in Toronto we have a great drawing area. But we're not getting the attendance we should. We should average 15,000 a day instead of the 10,000-11,000 we're getting.

"The government should help. It gets from $11,000,000 to $12,000,000 a year in taxes. It should reduce the take and it should allow owners the same concessions the U.S. government does."

"I'm the leading money-winning owner at Woodbine this meeting for the first time in my life and I want to show you what I put into a stable."

He said his horses won more than $64,000 but his expenses were more than $120,000 in acquiring 12 two-year-olds for this year's racing.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Duc Drummond, owned by Gerard Veilleux of Drummondville, Que., won the first elimination heat of the $5,685 standardbred futurity at Greenwood Raceway Monday night before an opening-night crowd of 9,168.

Duc Drummond's victory over runner - up Prince Bambi stamped him a threat in the $6,000 final Saturday for the first five finishers of each elimination.

Pat Ezra won the second elimination by two lengths over Spangler Frost. Time for the mile was 2:05 4-5.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP)—Del Miller, Major Domo of the Meadows race track near Pittsburgh, came to Buffalo Raceway Monday to drive Hugh Grant's well - mannered two-year-old filly, Floral Hanover in the $14,959 W. N. Reynolds Memorial Stakes.

The horse led from wire to wire for a three-length victory over Jilda, owned by Jack Grammons, Flint, Mich.

Floral Hanover boosted its earnings to $30,000 with its victory.

The co-featured ninth, a $1,300 conditioned pace, was won by Grattworth Byrd, driven by Joe Hodgins, the Ridgeway, Ont., native who maintained his place as third leading driver with 41 wins.

MONTREAL (CP)—Gilles Lachance, a 27 - year - old driver from St. Augustin, Que., emerged from weekend action as Canada's leading harness racing driver.

Lachance recorded three wins Sunday at Richelieu Raceway to move two victories ahead of Ronnie Feagan of Goderich, Ont. He now has come home ahead of the field 111 times this year.

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy LaRush, 24 - year - old driver from the small community of Wolfe Island in the St. Lawrence River across from Kingston, drove three winners at Rideau Carleton raceway Monday night.

LaRush, leading driver at Rideau Carleton last year with 115 wins won the fourth with Meadow Way in 2:10 4-5, the sixth with Joe Dares in 2:09 1-5 and the featured ninth with John R Direct in 2:06 4-5.

A crowd of 2,475 bet $93,991.

SEEK SHIP TRADE

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese transport ministry said Monday survey teams will be sent throughout the world to assess the demand for new tankers, freighters and other vessels to be built in Japanese shipyards.

Bret Hanover To Race At Greenwood

TORONTO (CP)—Bret Hanover, the world's leading money-winning pacer, arrived Monday after a 110-mile trip from Hamburg, N.Y., to keep his engagement in Friday night's $15,720 Harness Tracks of America Pace at Greenwood Raceway.

It will likely be the only Canadian start for the four-year-old winner of 22 sub - two - minute miles, owned by Richard Downing of Shaker Heights, Ohio.

Bret Hanover captured the initial leg of the HTA touring series at Hamburg Friday night in 2:01.2.

Horses officially will enter today, but it is expected that six or seven horses, including the Canadian-owned trio of Woodland Drummond, owned by Gerard Veilleux of Drummondville, Que.; Keen Freight, owned by Ed Arthur of Otterville, Ont., and Dr. G. K. Boyce of London; and Gerry Hal, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Langford of Chatham, will be starters.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Trainer Duke Campbell hasn't had a good season to date on the Ontario thoroughbred circuit and at one time thought his stable was jinxed.

The jinx must have remained at Woodbine, however, when Campbell moved his stable to Fort Erie for the 42-day summer meeting which began Monday because the only horse he sent to the post won.

Courant D'Air, a two - year-old owned by J.-Louis Levesque of Montreal, won the fifth race at Fort Erie.

Courant D'Air, a son of Nearctic, travelled the distance in an impressive 1.01 2-5. The exactor of Courant D'Air and Mr. Sweet Dreams was worth $181.10.

Steel Leader and Muskeg combined for a $18.70 daily double.

Officials Cater To Big Hitters

Venturi Blasts Pro Golf

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ken Venturi, warming up for the Professional Golfers Association championship with a sore shoulder, contended Monday that golf officials have sold their souls to big hitters and thrown accuracy to the winds.

"It's tee the ball up and let 'er fly with no regard for where she lands," the 1964 U.S. Open winner said.

"There's no longer any reward for the man who can hit the ball straight.

"Courses are tailored for home run sluggers, guys like Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer. The men who run the tournaments are afraid to let the rough grow and penalize them for wayward shots."

Venturi's ire was raised by the barbered 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course, where 171 professionals begin their 72-hole event Thursday.

"There might as well not be any rough on this course at all," Venturi said.

2 Papers Report Nurse Says Speck Is Killer

CHICAGO (AP) — The dark-haired nurse looked at the man accused of killing eight of her friends.

Richard Speck, 24, was in a bed at the city jail hospital, pale from the blood he had lost through self - inflicted cuts in his arms.

He may have been further weakened, doctors said, by a heart attack which he possibly suffered shortly before his face-to-face meeting with the nurse Tuesday.

Was he the man who had managed to subdue, gag, bind and then kill eight young student nurses early Thursday?

Corazon Amurao, 23, a Filipino exchange nurse who escaped the fate of her roommates by rolling under a bed, was there to answer that question.

The Chicago Sun-Times and the Chicago Tribune both say Miss Amurao identified Speck as the intruder.

DECLINE COMMENT

However, the state's attorney on the confrontation or comment on the reports.

Dr. William N Norcross, the city jail physician, said in a medical bulletin that Speck may have suffered a heart attack shortly before the incident.

"Complete rest has been ordered as well as no interviews or visitors for the next 48 hours. The patient cannot be moved."

Dr. Norcross said Speck complained of chest pains, was restless and was trying to sleep. Tests would be conducted today and Thursday to determine Speck's condition.

Speck was depressed during the confrontation with Miss Amurao and remained depressed after she left, he added.

The city jail hospital administrative director, C. William Ruddle, said Miss Amurao, dressed in a nurse's uniform, was taken by Dr. Norcross to Speck's room.

Ruddle said Dr. Norcross spent five minutes examining Speck as Miss Amurao stood behind him. Dr. Norcross did not observe the girl's reaction nor did he hear her say anything.

Miss Amurao went into Dr. Norcross's office to consult with police officials. Then she left the hospital.

A spokesman at South Chicago Community Hospital, where the eight students were in training, said Miss Amurao was placed under sedation.

Chief Counsel Gerald Getty of the public defender's office was appointed Tuesday by Judge Daniel Ryan as Speck's lawyer.

Speck is charged with murdering Gloria Jean Davy, 22, of Dyer, Ind., believed to have been the first of the nurses to die in the townhouse shared by the girls.

Nuernberg Precedent?

Captives' Trials Claimed Legal

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Are the United States captives in North Viet Nam subject to trial under the 1946 Nuernberg charter against war criminals—or are they immune from it under the 1949 Geneva convention for the protection of prisoners of war?

North Viet Nam has focussed world attention on that point in announcing that the captured flyers will be tried on war-crime charges.

Ambassador Arthur J Goldberg, U.S. chief delegate to the United Nations, told reporters in Geneva Tuesday the U.S. believes "the Geneva conventions on the treatment of prisoners of war fully apply to the Viet Nam conflict." Goldberg is a former justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Secretary - General U Thant last Saturday asked North Viet Nam to exercise restraint in its treatment of U.S. prisoners. He urged all sides in the Viet Nam war to "comply with the provisions of the Geneva convention of Aug. 12, 1949, irrespective of conflicting interpretations."

The North Vietnamese, however threaten to try U.S. personnel under the Nuernberg charter. They argue that the U.S. is carrying on the war in Viet Nam in violation of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indo-china, which call for the withdrawal of foreign troops.

Article 6 of the Nuernberg charter sets out that "crimes against peace" include "waging of a war of aggression, or a war in violation of international treaties, agreements or assurances."

Article 8 says:

"The fact that the defendant acted pursuant to orders, of his government or of a superior shall not free him from responsibility, but may be considered in mitigation of punishment."

North Viet Nam could plead the first part of that article in convicting the flyers, the latter part in letting them off lightly.

North Viet Nam, South Viet Nam and the U.S. are all bound by the Geneva convention on prisoners of war, since all are parties to it. It appears to cover the present undeclared war, because it says "the present convention shall apply to all cases of declared war or of any other armed conflict which may arise between two or more contracting parties, even if a state of war is not recognized by one of them."

It does not rule out the trial and execution of prisoners of war but surrounds such procedure with restrictions.

Freeze Wages, Prices

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson today called for an immediate freeze in wages, salaries and prices in an effort to save the pound sterling and pull the country out of its economic crisis.

He imposed higher taxes that will affect Britons as a whole, from beer-drinkers to motorists and from big income-earners to modest householders.

He also slashed the government's spending at home and abroad.

Under the emergency measures, which impressed many bankers including those in Europe, wages, salaries and prices are to be frozen for six months and severely restricted thereafter for another six months.

Wilson said the government, in another cost-cutting measure, might have to propose substantial cuts in British forces in West Germany.

The prime minister said the chancellor of the exchequer, James Callaghan, will visit Bonn for further negotiations with the West German government aimed at eliminating the foreign exchange cost of British troops in Germany.

He also said the government had decided on firm programs reducing military expenditure and economic aid by £100,000,000 ($300,000,000) elsewhere than in West Germany.

Take Step To End Dispute

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Picket lines blocked entrances of 14 strikebound mines and mill of the International Nickel Co., but union and management appeared to have taken the first step to settlement of their dispute.

At a Toronto meeting, the bargaining committee of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) agreed Tuesday night to permit maintenance workers, executives and certain other white-collar employees to enter Inco installations.

Union officials visited picketers during the night to ensure orderly demonstrations in what Homer Seguin, vice-president of Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America (CLC), described as an "explosive situation."

Both Mr. Seguin and Staff Superintendent William Gillings of the provincial police said there have been no reports of violence on picket lines and all is quiet.

"I don't know of anything," Superintendent Gillings said in an interview when asked if there had been incidents in the strike that began last Thursday at Inco's Levack mine, 35 miles northwest of here.

Senior Officer Afloat, Promoted to Admiral, Maritime Commander

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer Tuesday replaced one of the admirals opposed to his armed forces unification program and said he expects no more revolts by senior naval officers.

After a day-long meeting with advisers, the minister, handling his first major crisis since taking on the portfolio in 1963, told a press conference that:

—Commodore John C. O'Brien, 47, senior naval officer afloat, is being promoted to rear-admiral and appointed immediately as new head of the integrated Maritime Command to replace Rear - Admiral William Landymore, whom Mr. Hellyer fired Monday night.

—Admiral Landymore, although he contravened service regulations by publicly criticizing government policy, will be retired forthwith without penalty because of his distinguished record.

—He will accept the request of Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, 51, deputy commander of Maritime Command and commander of the Pacific Fleet, that he be retired. Admiral Stirling said in Esquimalt, B.C., Monday he cannot support government policy if it leads to unification of the armed forces.

ARRIVES FOR TALKS

Late Tuesday Admiral O'Brien left Ottawa by RCAF aircraft to take up his new post. Three hours later Admiral Landymore, summoned here by Gen. Jean Allard, chief of the defence staff, arrived for talks today with the general.

In interviews last week Admiral Landymore said he was being fired—after refusing to resign—for saying publicly he did not consider unification of the services to be more efficient or economical than continuing three separate services. He said he did not oppose integration which involved only the headquarters and regional commands' staffs.

Mr. Hellyer told the press conference he plans to go ahead with unification and may present to Parliament, when it resumes Oct. 5, a bill to make legal a change in names for the service.

The defence staff now was working on a name — among suggestions is Royal Canadian Marines—and a single uniform, common rank structure, promotion stream and other details.

Mr. Hellyer rejected demands by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker for a royal commission or parliamentary inquiry into the NAMES NEW ADMIRAL — Defence Minister Hellyer Tuesday named Commodore J. C. O'Brien, 47, of Montreal, as commander of the integrated Maritime Command and the Atlantic fleet. Diefenbaker Wants Inquiry Or Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker called Tuesday for either a royal commission or a full parliamentary examination into the dispute between Defence Minister Hellyer and top service personnel.

In a statement released by his office here, Mr. Diefenbaker said details of the dispute "cannot simply be glossed over by a minister embarked on a course of self-justification."

The disagreement was a deep-seated one and officers who had served Canada well in war and peace "deserve better of this nation than to be driven out."

The Conservative leader, vacationing in western Canada, said Rear - Admiral William Landymore, who was dismissed by Mr. Hellyer as commander of Maritime Command and of the Atlantic fleet, was being made a scapegoat by Mr. Hellyer.

Navy Men Back Admiral

HALIFAX (CP)—Seventy-one letters, three telegrams and two post cards signed by navy men supoprting Rear-Admiral Landymore's stand against armed-forces unification were delivered to the Canadian Press Halifax Bureau Monday night and Tuesday.

Most of them read: "The undersigned supports the position of Rear - Admiral Landymore concerning the identity of the Royal Canadian Navy." There were a number of telephone calls in the same vein.

However, one able seaman took a different tack and wrote: "I am against Hellyer and everything he stands for."

Fifty - seven letters were mailed in identical blue-lined plain envelopes.

For One Day Navy Was Under Airman

HALIFAX (CP)—A white flag bearing a red cross and two small red discs was raised over the naval dockyard here today, signalling the return of a naval officer to the top job in Canada's 21,000-man integrated sea defence force.

Rear-Admiral J. C. O'Brien, 47, a witty, white-thatched veteran of 29 years in the navy, assumed leadership of the RCN-RCAF Maritime Command after the role was filled for one day by Air Commodore Ralph Gordon.

Air Commodore Gordon was put in command briefly while Admiral O'Brien — known throughout the fleet by the nickname Scruffy—was in Ottawa for talks with Defence Minister Hellyer. Mr. Hellyer dismissed Rear-Admiral William Landymore, the former Maritime commander, for openly criticizing unification plans for the armed services.

Admiral O'Brien, whose appointment carries with it a promotion from commodore, took over an office vacated 24 hours earlier by Admiral Landymore, 50, who was given a warm farewell by 5,000 navy and civilian dockyard personnel Tuesday morning.

Admiral O'Brien's command covers anti - submarine units—including naval ships and planes and RCAF aircraft—on both the East and West coast. Air Commodore Gordon will remain as the No. 2 man in the command.

Brock Repeats Challenge To Hellyer for Discussion

CHESTER, N.S. (CP)—Rear-Admiral Jeffry V. Brock, retired former vice - chief of naval staff, re - issued his challenge today that Defence Minister Hellyer openly discuss service unification matters with serving and retired naval officers.

Admiral Brock said in an interview at his home in this resort area 50 miles from Halifax that Mr. Hellyer should discuss the matters in the presence of the press. He said Monday that Parliament should be re-called to discuss the unification controversy and suggested that Mr. Hellyer resign.

Failing that, he said, the defence minister should come to Halifax to face his senior naval officers "eyeball-to-eyeball" in the presence of the press.

Mr. Hellyer said in Ottawa Tuesday that "I expect to go to Halifax soon and I'd be pleased to see my old friend, Admiral Brock." However, the minister said he doubts a meeting with the press present would serve any useful purpose.

Admiral Brock issued the following statement today:

"I am delighted to learn that the minister has agreed to re-visit Halifax. I hope he will be able to announce before his arrival that he has recommended to the prime minister the re-call of Parliament to debate the grave issues he now faces as a result of his controlling our armed forces and spending $1,500,000,000 annually for his purposes.

"If Mr. Hellyer wants to meet me privately or if, as minister of national defence he would like to confront me publicly, I am willing to oblige and am readily available. However, the national interest would be best served by Mr. Hellyer calling for a meeting with officers of the Atlantic Command during his visit and clarifying his plans for reunification.

"At the meeting he should be prepared, in the presence of the press, to devote most of his time to answering questions of those who have been so seriously disturbed by recent events.

"If Mr. Hellyer will face up to the fact that good civilian control also demands good personal leadership, he will recognize that only this sort of confrontation can satisfy the growing doubts and uncertainties of the general public and the many thousands of Canadian citizens in uniform he has the great honor to lead."

Final Stage of Unification Gives Rise to Controversy

OTTAWA (CP) — Seeds planted two years ago in a government white paper on defence flowered into the current controversy over unification of the armed forces.

Three distinct stages were planned culminating in the present plans of Defence Minister Hellyer to put the navy, army and air force into a common walking-out uniform with a single rank structure.

Two of the stages have been completed. It is the final stage on which the dispute between Mr. Hellyer and a number of senior officers now centres.

There have been rumors that Mr. Hellyer planned to introduce legislation in the Commons this fall to complete the unification stage. He is reported to have outlined his plans to most of the senior officers in recent months.

The initial step was taken in March, 1964, when the Royal Canadian Navy, the Canadian Army and the Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters were ordered to integrate.

What emerged from this was a single chief of defence staff where previously there had been a chairman of the chiefs of staff committee plus chiefs of staff of the three services.

Direct Talks In Hospital Strike Resume

MONTREAL (CP) — Direct labor - management negotiation resumed in the Quebec hospitals strike, following a week when talks were carried on separately with each side by a mediator.

The direct dealing began Tuesday night after reports circulated in Montreal that the government - appointed mediator, Yves Pratte, may make a wage - package suggestion for the 32,500 non-medical employees who began striking against 139 hospitals across Quebec July 16.

Meantime, provincial health department officials reported the atmosphere on picket lines thrown around the affected hospitals by the National Federation of Services seems to be growing tenser.

Astronauts Hope Problems Eliminated

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The Gemini 10 astronauts whirled through their second full day in orbit today, hoping smarting eyes and a low fuel supply would not erase a late afternoon attempt at a second space rendezvous and an hour-long stroll outside the craft.

Ground control officials studied the two problems as the space walker, Maj. Michael Collins, and the command pilot, Cmdr. John W. Young, spun 240 miles above the earth, still hooked to an Agena tanker satellite.

Gemini Flight Director William C. Schneider said:

"We feel we have a reasonable chance of completing the double rendezvous even though we don't have as much fuel pad as we'd like. If the environmental control system problem straightens out, we also feel we can make the space walk."

Officials gave the stroll priority over rendezvous if a choice has to be made.

The eyes of both astronauts watered and became irritated Tuesday while Collins conducted experiments with the hatch open, the upper half of his body thrust into space.

Neither could see, and Collins was forced to end the exercise after 45 minutes, about 25 minutes early.

Lithium hydroxide, a chemical used to remove carbon dioxide from the cabin environmental control system, may have been responsible.

The problem cleared by the time the astronauts went to sleep at 11 p.m. EST but officials were concerned that perhaps it would recur when the hatch again was opened for the space walk.

If all goes well today, the astronauts were to break off from the Agena about 2 p.m. and start closing in on another Agena left in orbit last March by the Gemini 8 astronauts.

Hitchhiking under the power of their own Agena, the Gemini 10 crew had first soared to a record altitude for manned flight at an orbital high point of 476 miles, then pulled back down close to 240 miles, just seven miles below the path of the old Agena.

They are to rendezvous within a few feet of Agena 8 around 5 p.m., and Collins is to step outside about an hour later. He'll use a gas-powered hand gun to propel himself to Agena 8 to conduct experiments.

Young and Collins have expended considerably more spacecraft fuel than intended.

Instead of having 70 per cent of their 940-pound fuel supply remaining, they were down to 35 per cent. As a result, they curtailed many scientific and technological experiments.

By using the Agena engine for the manoeuvres that set them up for the rendezvous with Agena 8, the astronauts conserved their fuel.

Schneider reported Tuesday night Gemini 10 had 375 pounds of propellant remaining. He estimated that under normal conditions, 155 to 255 pounds would be required for the Agena 8 chase.

But this may not be enough, based on the fuel required for the earlier rendezvous.

Agena 8 will be especially difficult to track down because it has not battery power, lights or radar transponder as did Agena 10.

When Young reported their eye trouble, they were ordered to switch to a high-flow oxygen system, which cleansed the suit and cabin environmental control systems, shutting off the supply of lithium hydroxide, which has an odor similar to ammonia.

Gemini 10 plans to return to earth Thursday, landing in the western Atlantic about 500 miles east southeast of Cape Kennedy at 4:07 p.m.

Filtration Plant Operating Close to Daily Capacity

The city's filtration (water purification) plant is operating very close to its eight million gallons per day capacity, members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club learned yesterday at their regular meeting at the Kiwanis Centre. James Scriven, plant superintendant, told the Kiwanians that water usage each day last week was well over the seven million gallon mark, due mainly to lack of rainfall in this area.

While enlargement of the plant is now definitely required, action is awaiting the results of an investigation by the Ontario Water Resources Commission into the feasibility of using Lake Ontario, instead of the Bay of Quinte, as a source. Whether the Lake water will help solve the shortage problem while supplying a quality product, remains to be seen.

In the meantime, local officials are experimenting with a pilot filter in their efforts to give city users taste and odor free water. Eight filters are in use in the present purification system but while the water is pure, odor and taste remain and become most noticeable in the summer months when water temperature in the bay reaches 80 degrees.

Algae the chief problem confronting plant operators in their efforts to improve the quality of the water, can be taken out during filtration but odor and taste remain. Chlorine, introduced into the local system in the early 1920's, cuts odor by one - half. Carbon treatment is a successful way of controlling the problem of taste but it is costly since a great deal is necessary to treat the water.

Supplementing his "ad lib" remarks with a diagram sketched on a blackboard, Mr. Scriven traced the history of the plant from 1885 to the present. He has been employed at the "pump house" for 28 years.

When water was first pumped from the bay for use in the city, in 1885, a 20" intake pipe into the bay, a pump operated by a steam engine and an open-topped stand pipe made up the plant, explained the speaker. He said the water was clean and the only problem was that fish sometimes became caught in the pump.

As early as 1910, problems concerning the taste of the water were cropping up. In 1923, a firm consisting of consulting engineers recommended that filtration equipment be added to the plant. Apparently the city was not ready to take this step but several improvements were made. A well was added; a valve installed and the intake pipe was extended 1.440 feet out into the bay. In addition, a one-quarter inch mesh screen was placed in the pipe and this kept large fish from entering the system. But now, the problem of sediment in the water became annoying.

Filters were installed in 1930. Mixing basins, settling basins, sand filters and another pump were added. The plant supplied four million gallons of water per day. Improvements and additions to the plant have been numerous over the years as the growth of the city continued. In 1950, the total number of filters was increased to six and two diesel powered standby pumps were installed. Ten years later, four electric pumps were declared obsolete and were replaced with four 200 h.p. pumps. Another diesel unit was added at the same time. Fluoride was added to the water in 1965.

By SABINA SIMCOCK

HALIFAX (CP) — Floating seaweed farms may become more than just a science fiction dream in the Atlantic provinces.

The region's budding seaweed industry already is worth $1,000,000 a year. And National Research Council scientists at the Atlantic regional laboratory say the concept of seaweed farms may not be far from realization.

Research on seaweed cultivation started here in 1962, after seaweed processors began to fear that known sources of supply would not keep pace with future demands. Already more than 40 different processes in the food, textile, agricultural and pharmaceutical industries depend on bulk supplies of seaweeds such as Irish moss, kelp and rockweed.

Because of the uncertainty of basing a sizable industry on the haphazard collection of widely-scattered wild plants, the laboratory began extensive studies on the environment, biology and cultivation of seaweed—or marine algae, to use the scientific term.

Dr. A. C. Neish, laboratory director and head of its plant physiology section, emphasizes that the cultivation studies are still in the research stage. Expansion is expected later this summer when a field station is established "somewhere in Nova Scotia."

A large part of the laboratory's work consists of investigating such questions as why some species grow only in exposed areas, or at certain depths, or only in the presence of other species.

"This is the first step before we begin to improve on nature," says Dr. Tikvah Edelstein, a biologist on Dr. Neish's staff.

DIVERS EMPLOYED

The four scientists on the project are far from the shelter of any ivory tower of research. Temporary space limitations mean crowded laboratories, where technicians and researchers work in what appears to the visitor's eye to be bewildering confusion.

Field trips are even more rigorous. Survey work takes the staff around Nova Scotia's 5,000 - mile coastline by car, with their small outboard motorboat in tow, in all weather. Recent surveys included expeditions to shallow salt marshes off Antigonish to see whether seaweeds grew successfully in beds of eel grass there.

Deeper waters, where the large weeds are found, call for skindiving equipment and a chartered fishing boat. Working year-round at depths as great as 150 feet, trained diver-technicians bring up seaweeds and rocks from which algae are scraped.

Specimens obtained on these trips are packed in seawater containers and rushed to the laboratory where they are stored in large household - type freezers for later examination.

This occasionally reveals new species to be added to the list of more than 300 varieties of seaweed known to exist in Atlantic coastal waters.

Of these, five now are used commercially — dulse, Irish moss, ascophyllum, gigartina and furcellaria. Dulse is the edible, dark red seaweed, which, when sun-dried, is sold as a Maritime delicacy. The other weeds are processed for use in the manufacture of products as varied as toothpaste, cosmetics and beer.

Man in Trunk Was Mechanic

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) Provincial police officers from three detachments pursued a car speeding down Highway 9 Tuesday after a telephone caller told of watching two men stuff a body into the car's trunk.

When the police caught the car and forced the driver to open the trunk, out stepped a man. He was a mechanic riding in the trunk to locate the cause of a noise in the car.

Walkerton is some 30 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

Tractor Hits Freight Train, Driver Unhurt

A Read youth narrowly avoided serious injury yesterday when the tractor he was driving was struck by a west-bound CNR freight train.

Maurice Hanley, 17, was driving the tractor across the railroad tracks at the Drummy Sideroad, one and one-half miles west of Marysville when the mishap occurred.

He told police he didn't hear or see the train and when he looked up he thought the train was on the south track so he swung the tractor onto the north track and jumped off into the north ditch.

The train, Number 491, completely demolished the tractor, spreading pieces of it three-quarters of a mile up the track.

Police said the tractor was "just torn to pieces."

The youth was not injured. The tractor was owned by Joseph Hanley of Read. There was $3,000 damage to the train.

Court Judgment Is Annulled

MONTREAL (CP) — Samuel Olan, promoter of the ill-fated Verdi Opera Festival in Montreal, won an annulment Tuesday of a $38,956 judgment obtained against him two weeks ago by financier J. Ernest Savard.

The Superior Court judgment against Mr. Olan had been obtained by default on an action filed in 1962 in connection with a acknowledgement of indebtedess agreement made with Mr. Savard, a former stock-broker, in 1960.

The judgment was annulled after Mr. Olan's counsel, L. Yves Fortier, presented a petition in revision in which he submitted his client had never been served with the action and was unaware it had been taken against him.

16 Countries Begin Review Of Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (CP) — Sixteen countries, including Canada, begin a two-day review of foreign aid today, concentrating on food at a time when some authorities are predicting the worst famine in world history.

The second major item will be more low-interest loans for developing nations, confronted with ballooning debt charges on past assistance.

The occasion is a regular session of the development assistance committee, established in 1960 to co-ordinate aid among the industrialized nations providing 90 per cent of foreign aid.

External Affairs Minister Martin, with other delegation leaders, will speak today to the closed sitting.

Record Number Of Russian Missiles Fired

SAIGON (AP) — North Viet Nam fired a record 29 Soviet-made missiles Tuesday during heavy U.S air attacks near Hanoi and one of the rockets found its mark, the U.S command reported.

One U.S jet was lost to a surface-to-air missile and another was shot down by a Communist MiG 17 in a dogfight 20 miles north of Hanoi, a spokesman said. US pilots claimed damage to three MiGs but saw none go down.

In the ground war, U.S jets and artillery pounded Communist positions in the jungles of the Song Ngan Valley just below the 17th parallel frontier as 1,000 U.S marines and South Vietnamese troops carried Operation Hastings into the sixth day. The main target of the barrage was Hill 208, site of numerous bunkers and foxholes. A spokesman said 11 bunkers had been destroyed or damaged.

Man Acquitted In Bribery Case

ALEXANDRIA, Ont. (CP)—Jean-Paul Touchette, a town councillor, was found not guilty Tuesday on a charge of accepting a $200 bribe in consideration for his agreeing to cover up a theft committed in his grocery store.

Mr. Touchette, 37, was alleged to have asked for and accepted the money in order that a woman, who was later convicted of stealing groceries from his store, would not be prosecuted.

Magistrate Michael Fitzpatrick handed down the decision in Alexandria magistrate's court.

IN MEMORIAM

TANNER, Calvin — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away on July 20, 1963.

We were not there, Dad, to see you die,
To hold your hand or say goodbye,
But will remember our whole lives through,
The last words we had with you,
Each time we see your picture,
You seem to smile and say,
Don't cry — I'm only sleeping,
We will meet again some day.

—Ever remembered by children, Carl, David and Ruthanne.

TANNER, Calvin — In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away on July 20, 1963.

So many things have happened,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
Had you been left to stay,
Every day in some small way,
Memories of you come my way,
Though absent, you are ever near,
Still missed, still loved, and always dear.

—Lovingly remembered by wife Gladys.

KIRKPATRICK — In memory of my dear husband, Fredrick George Kirkpatrick, who passed away seven years ago today, July 20th, 1959.

It is sad to walk the road alone,
Instead of side by side,
But to all there comes a moment,
When the ways of life divide.
You gave me years of happiness,
Then came sorrow and tears,
But you left me beautiful memories,
I will treasure through the years.

—Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Jeannette and family.

SMITH — In loving memory of my dear mother, Emma Louise Smith, who passed away July 17th, 1965.

Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all,
And though the years be many or few,
They are filled with remembrance of you.

—Always remembered by son and daughter-in-law, Isaac and Olive Smith.

MOWERS — In loving memory of a dear mother and wife, Jean Eva Mowers, who left us so suddenly, July 20, 1965.

Happy memories fond and true,
From us who thought the world of you.

—Lovingly remembered by your husband Earl and family.

BELNAP — In loving memory of my beloved husband, Rexford R. (Pat) Belnap who passed away five years ago today, July 20, 1961.

We watched him suffer day by day,
It caused us bitter grief,
To see him slowly fade away,
And could not give relief,
His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are passed,
And in our aching hearts we know,
He has found sweet rest at last,
'Tis sweet to know we will meet again,
Where parting is no more,
And my beloved husband I loved so well,
Has only gone before,
God knows how much I miss him,
He counts the tears I shed,
And whispers, "Hush, he only sleeps,
Your husband is not dead."
Some day some time, my eyes shall see,
The face I loved so well,
Some day, some time, his hand I'll clasp,
And never say farewell.

—Sadly missed and forever remembered by his wife Lila and family.

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of Mary Campbell, July 19, 1947.

So many things have happened,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
Had you been left to stay,
Every day in some small way,
Memories of you come my way,
Though absent you are ever near,
Still missed, loved, always dear,
If I had all the world to give,
I'd give it yes and more,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
And greet her at the door,
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind tokens of love,
To the best mother God ever made,
I like to think when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
She'll be standing at the door,
Up there to welcome me.

—Forever lovingly remembered by your son Leonard Hamilton. Jy18-20

PLAN HOUSING

A $2,000,000 private housing development was announced in Windsor Tuesday by Capital Building Industries Ltd. The firm will build the 84 units with the first group ready in the fall.

PRODUCTION'S UP

Production in May of refined beet and cane sugar was 169,127,000 pounds compared with 189,206,000 in the same month of 1965, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday. The January-May total of 650,971,000 pounds compared with 610,909,000 in the same period of 1965.

INCOME INCREASES

The Aluminum Co. of America reported in Pittsburgh Tuesday an almost-35-per-cent increase in net income for the first half of 1966. Alcoa said it had earnings of $52,669,095 or $2.40 a share on sales and operating revenues of $669,200,615 during the first six months, compared with income of $39,119,219 or $1.77 a share on sales of $591,198,954 for the comparable period of 1965.

May Complete Windfall Hearing Today

TORONTO (CP) — A preliminary hearing of fraud charges against George and Viola MacMillan, respectively president and promoter of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., may be completed today with testimony from five remaining Crown witnesses.

Prosecutor Roderick Cormack said the witnesses include Howard Graham, former Toronto Stock Exchange president, John R. Kimber, Ontario Securities Commission chairman, and a woman who is in hospital. He said the hearing might have to adjourn to the hospital to hear testimony unless agreement could be reached with defence counsel.

MacMillan and his wife each face two charges of fraud in connection with price fluctuations of Windfall shares in July, 1964.

The shares rose to $5.60 from 56 cents on rumors that a Windfall drill core contained rich commercial values of copper. When the core was assayed and no ore found, the shares dropped to 80 cents.

The woman in hospital was supervisor of Technical Services Laboratories in Toronto. Edward Warren, the company treasurer, testified Tuesday that Mrs. MacMillan gave him a short section of the Windfall drill core July 6.

REVEAL NO VALUE

Mr. Warren told Magistrate Joseph Addison tests completed that day revealed no commercial value and the laboratory supervisor was instructed to inform Mrs. MacMillan. A formal report was sent to the MacMillans' home in Toronto July 8, two days after Windfall stock opened strongly on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

In other testimony Tuesday, two geologists and a chemist said visual examinations of the drill core showed no commercial value.

Fenton Scott, a geologist who said he saw the core in March, 1965, was "not impressed with the core from an economic standpoint."

He testified he could see no indications of copper, zinc, silver, gold "or rocks which you would expect to contain silver or gold."

Under cross - examination, however, he said he would definitely send the core to be assayed.

Child Chokes As Head Stuck In Car Window

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Sharon Frances Deamude, 2, died of strangulation Tuesday after her head became stuck in a partially - opened window of an abandoned car.

Police said the girl apparently slipped off some fertilizer bags she was standing on to look into the car, which was being used as a playhouse.

Dunnville is 30 miles southwest of Hamilton.

Senior

controversy which burst into the open last week. He said that when Mr. Diefenbaker was prime minister there had been considerable disintegration in the morale and effectiveness of the Canadian armed forces and that the Commons defence committee seemed satisfied with the progress of integration.

EXPECTS OPPOSITION

Mr. Hellyer said he expected opposition to the principle of unification but feels it has the overwhelming support of the majority of the armed forces. He said he does not believe critics who say morale is low and has confidence the defence staff will agree to unification in the best interests of the forces and the country.

Mr. Hellyer said he will retain as many traditions of the individual services as possible. He also plans to visit Halifax within days or weeks and while there to talk to men of all ranks.

Retirement of Admiral Landymore means he will receive about 70 per cent of his present $20,000 annual pay. If he had retired voluntarily he would have suffered a 20-per-cent reduction in pension.

Mr. Hellyer said the admiral's statements gave an "unfortunate example" to his juniors but in recognition of his long and distinguished service "I have decided to simply retire him forthwith without penalty." A spokesman said later that forthwith meant immediately.

In a farewell message to the Atlantic Fleet Tuesday, Admiral Landymore said the whole process of unification should be studied and thoroughly understood before anything more is done.

SHOULD HAVE CHOICE

Once it becomes law every officer and man must have it explained and any should be given the choice of joining or not, he said.

Mr. Hellyer, who said the admiral had no authority to issue the message, said it is impossible in a volunteer service to hold men if they disagree with the way it is run.

Mr. Hellyer also said the blueprint for service manpower extending into unification was written by Vice-Admiral Ralph Hennessy, 47, who was given a double promotion two weeks ago over rear - admirals and named comptroller - general of the Canadian defence staff.

He said it was inevitable that when a man is promoted over others there are always repercussions. But he thought Hennessy the best man for the job since he wrote the blueprint that will be the "cornerstone" of the new single force.

In other developments Tuesday:

—Rear-Admiral Hugh F. Pullen, 61, of Halifax, who retired as the navy's East Coast commander in 1960, said there is a place for integration of the forces but that Mr. Hellyer's unification program would lead to destruction of the armed forces and perhaps cost the lives of citizens.

—The Naval Officers Association of Canada commended Admiral Landymore for publicly opposing Mr. Hellyer.

Princess Will Wed Commoner

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Princess Margriet, Canadian-born, 23-year-old daughter of Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, will marry commoner Pieter van Vollenhoven, 26, on Jan. 10.

The announcement came Tuesday after the First Chamber (upper house) of Parliament approved a bill consenting to the wedding.

Under the Dutch constitution, Parliament has to consent to the wedding of possible successors to the throne. Princess Margriet is the second in line after Princess Beatrix, the Dutch royal couple's eldest daughter.

Another daughter, Princess Irene, decided not to ask Parliament to consent to her wedding to Prince Carlos Hugo of Bourbonparka and lost her rights to the Dutch Throne.

Princess Margriet was born in Ottawa in 1943 when the then Princess Juliana, now Queen Juliana, resided there during the Second World War.

Girl Didn't Recognize The Law

TRENTON — An error in judgment on the part of his daughter cost William McMillan of Trent Street in Frankford $200 in Trenton magistrate's court yesterday.

Mr. McMillan, charged with selling liquor from his premises, was reported to have asked his daughter to scrutinize a man who asked to buy a bottle of rye whiskey on the evening of July 15. The answer was that the man "didn't look like the law."

OPP Constable Glenn Moodie paid $8 for a $4.50 bottle of whiskey and then arrested Mr. McMillan.

Prince Edward, Essex Will Ask Designation as Disaster Areas

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Farmers in Essex County have asked the federal and provincial governments to designate the county a disaster area.

The decision of a seven-man committee to seek financial aid for farmers who suffered severe crop losses following violent storms last week was announced at nearby Essex, Ont., Tuesday night.

A resolution saying the county can justifiably be called a disaster area because of rain and hail damage to tobacco, fruit and vegetable crops was forwarded to the federal and provincial departments of agriculture, Ontario marketing boards and the Horticultural Council of Canada.

The resolution said crop loss ranges from 10 per cent to total destruction in many parts of the county and "damage, together with the already high cost of production, either resulted or will result in heavy financial loss and . . disaster for growers and producers . . ."

The resolution, signed by Terry Wright, vice-president of the Essex County Associated Growers and Alvin Griffin, president of the Essex County Federation of Agriculture, also sought aid for the immediate survey and assessment of loss.

Meeting at Essex at the weekend, a number of farmers voted approval to a resolution being drawn up.

At that time they were advised to leave their damaged crops standing to enable assessors to make accurate reports of destruction. Last week, the area was struck by two storms which dumped up to three inches of rain in a five-hour period.

PICTON, Ont. (CP) — More than 200 Prince Edward County farmers voted at a meeting Tuesday night to ask the Ontario and federal governments to declare the county a disaster area because of drought.

J. F. Hepburn, manager of a canning company, said in an interview there is not likely to be a decent crop of anything in the county this year. He said rainfall for the last three months was only 3.1 inches.

The normal rainfall for the same period is about nine inches, he said. Area farmers reported heavy losses in pea crops and predict similar losses in tomatoes, corn and grain.

operational readiness, a chief of technical services, a chief of personnel and a comptroller-general.

Thus the top service structure was integrated and the next step was taken.

Stage two involved compressing the 11 commands across the country into six: Mobile, maritime, air defence, air transport, materiel and training. Here too the officers of all three services were integrated so that there was, for example, a naval officer commanding maritime command and an air force officer as his chief of operations.

And it was at this level that the trouble broke out publicly over the next step.

Rear-Admiral William Landymore, who headed maritime command and also was commander of the Atlantic fleet, considered the final stage of unifying the three service at lower levels was neither more efficient nor more economical than three services.

He objected publicly and Mr. Hellyer fired him. His deputy as commander of maritime command, Rear-Admiral M. C. Stirling, who also commands the Pacific fleet, felt he could not carry out Mr. Hellyer's policy if that meant uniting the three services, he asked to be relieved and, says Mr. Hellyer's office, will be replaced "in due course."

From here on, it's up to Mr. Hellyer — and to Parliament—when to go ahead with unification and how. A prime requirement to convert the three armed forces into a single service will be an amendment by Parliament to the National Defence Act.

The act spells out that there will be three services—navy, army and air force. So Parliament must sanction any change in that structure.

The Strike Weapon

Free enterprise and capitalism are synomous with western democracy and our way of life in this part of the world. The system has its faults, but the majority would not exchange it for any other, communism included.

One weakness of the democratic system which has been most evident in recent months has been the tendency toward misuse of strike action. The right to strike is fully recognized today, but when it leads to contempt for court injunctions and violence it reflects a lack of discipline and responsibility.

The use of court injunctions against strikers is of course a touchy subject and one which is expected to become a subject of serious debate during the next session of Parliament. Meanwhile it is part of the law and as such should be obeyed.

In any event, when western democracy is compared unfavorably with the communist system it is often because of the industrial unrest which stems from the former and which we recognize as normal, while at the same time allowing that it should not be permitted to get out of hand. When it does get out of hand it may be held up by the communists as an example of the "decadence" of the western world.

Nevertheless, we can sympathize with Captain Anatoly Kuznetsov of the MV Bratsk which has been tied up in Hamilton. The Soviet vessel left Leningrad April 26 and was supposed to have been back home by mid-June. "Maybe it will make it by the end of August," the captain said wearily in a recent interview. Meanwhile the ship has been strikebound successively in Quebec City, Toronto and now Hamilton.

"The line is losing money, the crew is homesick and I am getting tired," said Captain Kuznetsov. He claims there are no strikes in Russia and "you don't pass idle hours away waiting for men to go back to work."

There must be some happy medium in this situation. If the strike weapon has been employed to excess on this continent in recent years we hear little of its use in other lands. Britain — yes — but not in West Germany or France or Italy.

And in Sweden, which reputedly still enjoys the second highest standard of living in the world, after the United States, strikes are virtually unknown. This is because Government and Employee organizations have worked out an excellent system of collective bargaining which is related to production, the cost of living and other economic factors.

The Swedish system also involves a strong degree of Government control. Nevertheless it seems to work, and there is a good case for believing that there should be some stricter controls of the strike weapon here, if only because it hampers production, reduces efficiency, hurts the economy generally — and creates a bad impression with visitors like Captain Kuznetsov of the MV Bratsk, who wants to get on with his job and home to Leningrad.

Hitch-Hiking Dangers

The warning has been voiced often enough, but it cannot be repeated too often. That is, hitchhiking can be dangerous.

Police files all over the continent are full of cases of drivers picking up hitch-hikers who turn out to be anything but law-abiding citizens. Drivers have been attacked, robbed and sometimes killed by such vagrants.

By the same token, perfectly respectable young people who set out to get from one point to another by hitching a ride may be placing themselves in jeopardy. And particularly during this summer period when many are vacationing.

The Ottawa Journal says that in the area of the capital, roads leading to Mooney's Bay and other popular resorts are the major hitch-hike arteries. Many of the hitch-hikers moreover are girls aged 10 years and up.

It points out that the Highway Traffic Act prohibits soliciting rides from the public while on the roadway. Fines range up to $50 for a third offence, and five to $10 for a first offence.

Apart from the danger young women may be placing themselves in by soliciting rides there is also the traffic hazard posed by drivers making a sudden stop in a line of traffic.

Teenagers, students and adults continue to hitch-hike in spite of the dangers, but they should know the law in this regard, as well as the hazards involved.

Viet Nam Trial

North Viet Nam is putting itself out on a limb by its insistence on placing captured United States airmen on trial as war criminals.

As yet there is no official word that the trial will take place. The country's ambassador to China says it will go ahead as planned, but there is still some doubt whether Hanoi has given it official sanction.

Even if the airmen are tried, there is a suggestion they may be put to work in oil refineries and at other military targets. If this is done it will also contravene the Geneva Convention, but such a step would at least stop short of a mass execution which could have grave consequences with regard to the future conduct of the war.

May Be Clue To Sclerosis

The War Cry

Medical scientists at the University of Toronto have found a factor in the blood of multiple sclerosis victims which may help explain the cause of illness, Dr. Donald W. Clark said recently. Speaking in Vancouver to the Canadian Federation of Biological Societies, Dr. Clark said the mysterious factor appeared to be antagonistic to fatty tissue and caused an increased rate of fat break - down.

In Toronto, Dr. Linda Geiger who worked with Dr Clark on the research project, explained that the nerves of the brain are like long wires insulated by fatty tissue. When the factor in the blood of multiple sclerosis suffers attacks, this fatty insulation appears to cause a "short - circuit" in the nerve much as in an unsheathed electrical wire.

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic and progressive condition of the nervous system which eventually leads to a breakdown of communications between parts of the brain governing muscular control.

Art of Public Relations

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As you may imagine, someone who writes a daily column is bombarded with hundreds of pieces of mail a month from "public relations" people. They all want something favorable printed about their clients.

What fascinates me about this flourishing business of public relations is that not one firm out of 20 seems to understand the main purpose of a program of public relations.

Most of them look upon it as a one-way street: a means by which the company communicates with, and persuades, the public to some attitude or action. They think it is their job to talk; when the most important part of their job is to listen.

What is wrong with most large companies? The chief defect is the isolation of the executives at the top, who rarely know what is happening at the bottom until it is nearly too late to do much about it. Just like the husband, the top executive is generally the last man to learn about infidelity.

Good public relations does not consist so much in telling the public as in listening to it. It provides a feedback that is otherwise lacking in the organizational structure. And it keeps reducing corporate fantasy to the proportions of reality — not at all an easy task.

For one of the great myths of American social life is that the business leader is a hard-headed realist with his ear to the ground. In some respects he may be, but in relation to his company he is a starry - eyed idealist who is unwilling to see the worst until it is full upon him.

The corporate executive cannot believe that his subordinates are unhappy, or that the company isn't living up to its claims or that its product isn't the greatest ever turned out, or that the customers aren't thrilled to pieces to see a picture of the plant and the founder. No love is as blind as that of a man infatuated with his own firm.

The value of public relations ought to be, and most often isn't, bringing the company down to earth, forcing it to listen to ugly sounds from its employees and customers, and turning communication into a genuine two-way street. Only in this way would the public relations counsellor earn his magnificent fee.

Ninety - five percent of the mail they send me goes directly into the wastebasket, where it belonged in the first place. They are just self-congratulatory messages, designed to massage the ego of the company's directors, rather than to provide information for the public. And the best information that could be provided would be the good word that the company is dying to hear what the outside world thinks of it.

The 'Nothing-to-do' Syndrome

Ottawa Journal

"Mommy, I have nothing to do."

That complaint, spoken with a whine, probably sets more mommies nerves on edge than any other single childhood lament, including "Nobody loves me."

Usually it takes about three weeks after school is out before the "what is there to do?" chorus begins, but we read of some bored children in the district already petitioning their local council for special showings of movies. A 12-year-old complained he was too old for one ball league, too young for another and "What 12 - or - 13-year - old wants to play on swings?"

What 12-year-old indeed? The problem is aggravated by parents who refuse to let children stay up for the late late show and then sleep in until noon when TV gets going again. Some older people are just plain unreasonable. They don't seem to realize a boy can get tired of sitting around strumming his guitar all the time.

What's to do?

Well, how about trying that game of ball even though the official grown-up umpire (with a badge saying so) is'nt there and even though the bal lis beaten up and nobody keeps very good track of the score?

Or that broken-down bicycle in the garage. — maybe, just maybe, there's a part in mommy's discarded sewing machine that would make it go again. Wouldn't hurt to try, would it?

Or those ant-hills out back — ever stop to wonder how an ant builds one? With a magnifying glass or even the naked eye and a bit of patience a child could see a pretty interesting ant-show.

Some children, it seems, need help to discover that life is not just a series of organized entertainments. Mommy and Daddy may blame 'society' 'if junior has this impression, but they can blame only themselves for not trying to change it. And heaven help junior if mommy and daddy are bored with it all too.

Corner Boys Back in 1867

The Intelligencer, June 14, 1867

There are men or creatures who consider themselves men, who stand for hours together in groups on the corners of the streets taking great delight in watching ladies who are forced through the mud of the crossings, and criticizing their personal appearance — often making some indecent remarks in a tone sufficiently loud for the ladies to hear, and perfectly reckless to whom they thus insult.

This class of beings can be seen every evening by those who care to notice them, hanging about the entrance to the post office leaning and staring at every lady whose unfortunate necessity it is to go there for her letters, etc. Evening after evening, the same class are standing and peering at, and indecently commenting upon the dress or appearance of every lady passing along the street.

The British colony of British Columbia joined Confederation 95 years ago today—in 1871—and became a province of Canada. There had been exploration and settlement of the area for less than 100 years and only in 1849 did the British government take an interest there, to resist U.S. claims to the Hudson's Bay Company's territories. The gold rushes of 1858 and 1860 brought in thousands of settlers, but the colony was on the verge of bankruptcy all the time. One of the conditions for joining Canada was the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Diet Is Basic Factor In Treating Diabetic

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My brother, 80, has diabetes and has lost considerable weight. He takes three pills a day but his sugar count is over 250 and the doctor says if it gets over 300 he could go into a coma. That worries him, but he still eats too much in the line of sweets. Should all sweets be eliminated, when taking his pills, to get the sugar count down? — M. B.

Yes I think he should eliminate sweets entirely. That, in fact, is best for anyone with diabetes. Some who have mild cases can handle a little sweet stuff if they compensate otherwise in diet, but no diabetic profits by eating sugar. Your brother, with a sugar level above 250, is not a mild diabetic.

There are four ways of treating diabetes. All aim at the same result. Diabetes means that the body cannot use up the normal amount of sugar. Therefore treatment consists of allowing the body to get sufficient nutrition while still seeing that no excess sugar is allowed to accumulate in the body and, in time, cause complications.

These are the treatments:

1 — Diet, such that the body absorbs sufficient nutrition without accumulating excess sugar. Diet alone works best for people who are too fat. They have been eating too much. They can cut down their food intake without being harmed. They are, in fact, better.

2 — Pills (DBI and similar drugs) which help reduce excessive sugar levels.

3 — Insulin, which reduces the sugar level not just by eliminating it but by putting it to useful purpose. After all, the reason why sugar accumulates is an inability to use it up, and this inability results from lack of enough insulin to do the job.

4 — Some combination of the above three ways.

The diabetic, who can use up only a limited amount of sugar, still must eat enough foods which will provide other nutrients. He still must have protein, and fat in small quantity, and vitamins, and minerals. Meat bread, fruits and vegetables provide these. Yet all, whether in small degree or large, also include ingredients which will be converted into sugar once they are digested.

The diabetic must eat foods which in the end will give him what he needs for health yet at the same time not include more sugar than he can use up. Thus sweet stuff — cake, cookies, confections — is what he has to avoid.

Diet, therefore, is the basic part of treatment for every diabetic. Pills, which get rid of some sugar, or insulin, which uses up (constructively) some sugar, can be effective only when used along with suitable diet. The biggest problem in treating diabetes is convincing patients of this fundamental fact.

When too much sugar accumulates in the system, the risk is coma. It does not necessarily occur at a level of 300, because other factors are involved besides. Your brother's doctor evidently has noted these other signs. He has warned your brother. Pills (or even insulin) do not mean that the patient can eat all he wants, or eat all the sweets he wants. He also has to follow his diet rules, so he won't get more sugar than the medicine and his body can handle.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can you refreeze bread, cakes, cookies, etc.? I know you shouldn't refreeze meat and such.—Mrs. P.

It is a safe general policy not to refreeze anything, but I see no reason why pastries cannot be refrozen, especially if they are properly wrapped, since baking sterilizes them, and destroys harmful germs if any were present.

Note to J. R. L. And Friends: There is no general rule as to where weight first shows up as fat, or where you first lose it except this: When you reduce, the last place you gained fat is usually the first place you lose it.

Letter to the Editor

The Forces and Integration

Editor,
The Intelligencer

The political question of the complete integration of the three Defence Services in Canada seems to have come to a head, with the Minister of Defence, Mr. Hellyer, claiming that civilian control of the Forces means that the whole fighting strength of these Forces may be destroyed according to the whim of a Cabinet Minister in a Liberal Government which is now only accepted in two of the ten Provinces of Canada. Shades of Louis XIV, "L'Etat c'est Moi'.

In living memory, our own fair Canada has been engaged in two great wars, in addition to two lesser ones. In the war of 1914-18 Sir Sam Hughes as a military dictator inflicted the useless Ross rifle on the 1st and 3rd Canadian divisions in 1915 and 1916, and a few years later died almost a millionaire, and wrecking the Conservative Party. On April 9, 1917, Corps Commander Byng, with the able technical assistance of artillery Major McNaughton, was able by a sort of telephone radar to knock out 35 of the 36 German batteries and win the great battle of Vimy Ridge.

In the Second Great War, that of 1939-45, the time-serving Liberal Prime Minister, Mackenzie King, allowed the Defence Department to make in Montreal something like 1600 tanks with such small calibre guns that they were never able to fight the German tanks with the 25-lb. shells and long range guns.

In 1943, when the little Canadian Corps was running short of men in the Italian Campaign, Canada had no real system of overseas Conscription. Mackenzie King refused to accept real conscription and in the Parliamentary battle that followed he destroyed the realist Col. Ralston and seduced and politically destroyed our worn down Gen. McNaughton. At the end of the war in 1945 the Canadian Government had in Alberta and other centres a total of 140.000 able bodied young "Zombies" who watched with glee their exhausted "comrades" dying unsupported in Italy and later in Normandy, Belgium and Holland.

Now the Canadian war veterans, especially as organized in the Royal Canadian Legion, have always tried to avoid taking any partisan side in politics, but it should be remembered that there are still in Canada nearly a million surviving veterans, and by including their wives and relatives, these men influence nearly two million voters, with the largest group in Ontario.

In short, if the main group of war veterans now living in Ontario chose to vote against the Liberals and his dull Minister of Defence Mr. Hellyer, they can at any time they choose turn the Liberal government out of office. In our own Constituency of Hastings and Prince Edward County the able sitting Liberal Member, Mr. Temple, lost out to Mr. Grills for the simple reason that he only picked up a small percentage of the Service vote.

During the hundred years of Canadian history which we are now preparing to celebrate the great prosperity of Canada has been built on a number of factors. We are blessed with vast natural resources, our people are sufficiently honest and hard working enough to be respected by our neighbors, and in this period have been able to borrow for our development many billions of dollars in the last century from the United Kingdom and in this century from the United States.

Also, with some help from the United States, we have been able to place in these industries a very large group of all types of technicians, which now includes highly trained men, particularly in the Air Force and in the Navy.

It is nonsense to pretend that a private in the infantry could fly a jet plane or navigate one of the extremely intricate modern destroyers. Actually if our technically-trained service men are treated too badly many of them will join the already swollen group of our engineers and other professional men emigrating to the United States.

Arthur C. Oxley,
Major, R.C.E. Retd.,
late 2nd Fd., Coy, C.E.F.

Rufus Zartman Smith Heads Special U.S. Bureau on Canada

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OLD HAND IN NEW JOB — Rufus Zartman Smith, 44, director of the U.S. state department's new office of Canadian affairs, is an old Canada hand. Six of his 20 years in the foreign service have been in Canada. The new office rose out of the 1964 Pearson - Johnson meetings. (CP Photo from AP)

WASHINGTON (CP)—Rufus Zartman Smith is a tall, rusty-haired old Canada hand directing a state department experiment in relations with its northern neighbor.

His objective is to apply more perspective to the bureaucratic sprawl of official Canada - United States contacts, "trying to make sure the right hand is kept informed of what the left hand is doing."

Amid the steady growth in bilateral problems such as water, lead and zinc, cheese, defence and foreign affairs, Smith hopes to head off as much potential political friction as possible before fires start publicly.

That was the aim when Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson early in 1964 ordered Canadian Arnold Heeney and American Livingston Merchant to prepare their report. Subsequently, some thought was given here to creating a special bureau of Canadian affairs, requiring congressional approval.

Smith, 44, has impressive credentials as director of the office of Canadian affairs—his appointment was announced April 6. Not least is the widespread respect and liking he earned among Canadians. Six of his 20 years in the foreign service have been in Canada, and he is well tempered by past trans-boundary discords.

STUDY CANADA

"I don't want to get in the way of existing contacts," he said in an interview in new state department quarters where five full-time officers now concentrate solely on Canadian affairs.

This compares with three in the past, when Canada was in a section lumping together the Commonwealth and Scandinavia.

"But let's say that a man in the anti-trust division of our justice department picks up the telephone—as happens almost every day—to call one of your people in the anti-combines section of the justice department in Ottawa.

"They talk man to man. My job, as I see it, is to make sure it's within the over-all perspective of relations between our two countries—that more thought is given to the direction we are headed.

"Of course, there are established channels which now operate efficiently from cabinet level on down to individuals in Canadian and U.S. departments and we won't interfere. But we want to be informed."

So far, as seen by Canadians here, the experiment is paying off in quicker, easier contacts. One Canadian diplomat suggests that in a way, the new Canadian section and its considerable Canadian background is almost like having an ally in the state department because a broader outlook is injected on specific economic or other issues of the day.

CLOSE TO POWER

An American counterpart says the key difference now is that people involved with Canada are that much closer to the wheels of power in the state department.

The new machinery may feel the pressure shortly, however, if some straws in the wind materialize. Canada-U.S. relations during the last 18 months have on the whole been quiet and fruitful.

Now, differences on foreign policy are emerging which, in the context of the political atmosphere here, may produce strains, some Canadians are predicting quietly.

Canadian dislike of the heavier bombing against North Viet Nam, its go-slow attitude toward NATO and France, plus signals of Canadian preparations for moving to recognize China may well rub up hard against a more militant U.S. stance globally, it is feared.

But Smith is well-equipped for such heavy going, personally and professionally.

He was born in the little Illinois town of Toledo, raised in Springfield and educated at Illinois College before joining the U.S. Army in 1943 for three years.

He joined the foreign service in 1946, serving in Amsterdam, Panama, Thailand, Washington and then Canada.

The first taste was a year in 1958 at Canada's National Defence College at Kingston, Ont., and then five years as political counsellor at the embassy in Ottawa. That coincided with nuclear arms and other abrasive issues on the Ottawa-Washington axis.

Smith today, say his admirers, combines durable humor, tact and dedication to hard work. He has a ruddy complexion, enjoys a drink, smokes cigarettes hard and peers with considerable objectivity at the Canada-U.S. scene through thick - lensed glasses over a prominent nose.

None of his capability in Spanish or French—and he is brushing up his French again now with half-hour daily lessons — has eroded a strong mid-west drawl.

In June, 1964, Smith, his cheery wife Peggy, their two teen-aged sons and a dog with a rich fund of tricks left hurriedly for another tour of Panama, then a tension spot.

But not before they had accumulated a wealth of friends, often assembled at informal and well - mixed parties running the gamut of the Ottawa population.

Smith still travels frequently to Ottawa to keep posted. He was back home at Springfield for Prime Minister Pearson's recent talk which took a harder line on the U.S. leadership in NATO.

As Peggy Smith said on returning to Washington after eight years:

"I'm glad to get the children into the country again to remind them they are Americans. But then our youngest insists he's a Canadian."

Red Skelton's Wife Shot Accidentally

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—His rubbery face masking his grief, Red Skelton clowned before a delighted audience Tuesday night as his wife lay seriously wounded in hospital from an apparently accidental gunshot.

Mrs. Georgia Skelton, 44, was declared in satisfactory condition at Sunrise Hospital following treatment for a chest wound which was inflicted with a pistol early Tuesday morning.

The accident took place in the Skeltons' suite in the Sands Hotel as he was performing in the supper club below.

The shot was heard by the Skeltons daughter, Valentina, 19, and a college student friend, Art Coleman, 19, in another part of the suite. Coleman entered the bedroom to find Mrs. Skelton stretched on the bed, bleeding at the chest.

Mrs. Skelton was rushed to the hospital where doctors determined the shot had penetrated no vital organs.

5,000 Homeless After Landslide

AGRIGENTO, Sicily (AP) — With 5,000 persons already homeless, a new landslide scare sent 10,000 more residents fleeing in panic today from Agrigento.

A slow earthslide continued after partly wrecking the southwest third of the city, on a hill three miles inland from Sicily's south coast.

Canadian Auto Exports High

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian automobile exports reached a record 121,272 units for the first six months of 1966, easily passing 1965's 12-month figure of 96,155, the Canadian Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association says.

The figure comes as production on 1966 models terminates, marking the end of the first full model year in which the industry has operated under the auto trade pact with the United States.

Most of the vehicles were exported to the U.S., including 86,290 cars and 34,982 trucks.

James M. Roche, president of General Motors, said Monday in Detroit he expects 1967 car prices to increase because of the added costs to safety features.

Critics Divided On Fifth Play At Stratford

STRATFORD (CP) — Critics were sharply divided in their appraisal of the opening performance of August Strindberg's The Dance of Death Tuesday night, the fifth and last play to be staged at the Shakespearean Festival this season.

The play, a psychological drama on the eternal triangle and the battle of the sexes, also received a mixed reaction from the audience.

Police Made Chew Bookies Feel Wriggly

HAMILTON (CP) — William Darlington, 28, of Stoney Creek and David Cruikshank, 34, of Hamilton thought they had one sweet idea when they decided to write their betting slips on sticks of chewing gum.

But things got a bit sticky when police burst their bubble by moving faster than they could chew during a June 21 raid on a downtown hotel.

In a raid May 19, police said, the suspected bookmakers popped the evidence into their mouths and began chewing. Before police could force out the gum, the bets written on it had been obliterated.

In the June 21 raid, police went straight for the gum. They also got $562 in cash.

The evidence was still both edible and legible when they appeared in court Tuesday. Darlington was fined $1,000 or two months in jail, Cruikshank $300 or 30 days.

Canadian Steel Dismisses Four After Walkout

MONTREAL (CP)—Four local officers of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) have been fired by Canadian Steel Foundries following a one-day walkout last week by the 1,200 employees of the Montreal plant, a union official said Tuesday.

Steelworkers' representative Jean Beaudry said the company fired the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the union local at the plant, a division of Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd.

He said the one-day walkout, which he described as a "study session," was staged spontaneously by the workers to indicate their dissatisfaction with the slow pace of current contract talks.

Mr. Beaudry said the union is entitled to call a strike Aug. 8. The workers were still ready to try to reach an agreement with the company, "but not with a decapitated union."

Hi Su: With me, a shoe storage shelf is a must. Here is what to do:

Remove one end of the shoe box in which the shoes belong. Also remove the corresponding end of the lid.

Pile the shoe boxes on the shelf of the closet, three high and four or five across, with open ends facing you.

Into each open-ended box goes one pair of shoes. — Doris J. Howard.

WASH BEFORE SERVING

No. Don't wet berries before storing — wait until you are ready to serve them.

Now that you've got me started I can't stop. How about some uses for leftover fruit juices besides frozen ice sticks?

You might glaze a ham with it, or even use it instead of water in gelatin jellies. — Susanna

Waist Comes Out of Hiding For Fall

ROME (AP) — Straight-line shifts were shed and the waist came out of hiding Tuesday in the Italian fall-winter high fashion show.

It's all part of what some Italian couturiers proclaim as a return to femininity.

Maria Antonelli made the waist the focal point of her fitted princess coat and frequently put a belt on it for extra emphasis.

Waists are feminine but miniskirts are not, Antonelli decided, so she dropped her hem lines all of four inches, compared with her styles last season, from mid-thigh. They now rest on the knee.

Stripes, a major theme of these Italian collections, were used often by Antonelli. She put them in blazer suits in dark, muted colors, pants suits, shawl-collared coats and jacket suits with belts.

Jackets were brief as a bellbop's and they covered peppermint-striped wool dresses.

Little dresses in crepe slithered over the body, just hinting at the form underneath. Chiffon for the cocktail hour was craftily curled for dress skirts and sleeves.

Balestra's colors were in keeping with those of all Italian showings so far: Purple, bright jade green and orange.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held their first meeting of the new year with Sr. Rgt. Nora Kaiser presiding. Roll call for the new officers escorts and chairman was taken.

The auditing report for the last three months was read. Clara Seames and Nellie Scrymgeour will look after the travelling fund for the year.

A draw donated by the Sr. Regent N. Kaiser was won by Alice Ayres of Trenton.

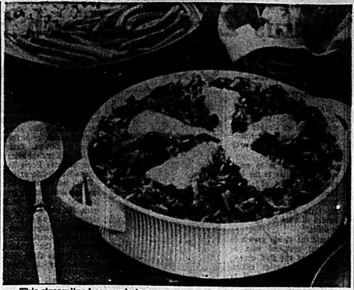
It was decided to send a cheque to Mooseheart for the balance due on plaque.

Gladys Keegan will be the new publicity chairman for the coming year; Elsie Archer for hospital; Linda Bunnett for Mooseheart; Pheobe Kellar for Moosehaven; Edith Maks for social service; library, Carmel Ruttan; child care, Vivian Kellar; homemaking, Pauline McCall; membership, Blanche Reynolds, and Isobel Phillips for Academy of Friendship.

After the meeting closed penny bingo was played and lunch was served by the officers.

DO SMOKERS FAIL?

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Schoolchildren, parents and friends, 300 in all, are filling out a questionnaire which may tell whether smoking affects school results. The 35-question form was drawn up by two non-smoking Grade 8 teachers.



This streamlined casserole is your main hot dish. Its virtues are many but its two greatest are that it may be prepared and refrigerated in advance and calls for ground beef. Mary Moore gives you the details.

ONE-DISH MAIN COURSE

If there is one thing I can be sure of there will be a rush on it is a one-main-dish casserole calling for ground beef.

The one I have for you today is wonderful for Shirley made it and I had it last night for my dinner when I was starved.

Shirley made it at noon when she was home for lunch, put it in the oven, set the timer to come on at 3:45 p.m. at 350 deg. Fahr. then came over here to do her afternoon's work. When it was done at 5:45 p.m. she called me from home and I went over to their house.

This casserole may be combined in advance and refrigerated. If it is refrigerator cold when it is put in the oven it should be baked 10 minutes longer.

RICE AND BEEF CASSEROLE

(revised by Emem from a recipe from a good-cook reader—Margaret W.)

¼ cup salad oil
1 cup raw long grain rice
½ pound good quality ground beef (or more if desired)
1 cup whole or sliced pitted ripe or green olives (include liquid to fill cup.)
1 small onion chopped (or 1 tablespoon bottled onion flakes)
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
2 cups (16-oz.) canned tomato juice
one 10-oz. can undiluted consomme
sliced or grated Cheddar or Parmesan cheese (for topping)

Select a rather large casserole and in it mix together the oil, raw rice and beef until ground beef is broken up. Add the olives and enough liquid on them to fill the measuring cup. Add the onion, salt and pepper, and paprika. Mix well. Pour the tomato juice and consomme over and stir in. Wipe down sides. Cover. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 2 hours. Remove lid and cover top with sliced or grated Cheddar or Parmesan cheese and return to oven to heat and bubble cheese.

Serves four generously but could be stretched for six dieters. NOTES: Because the oil is added early to the casserole it is not hard to clean when you are washing up. This Rice and Beef Casserole freezes well.

Successful Living

Boredom Signals Marriage Problems

DEAR DORIS: My marriage and a career of housewife is terrific — except of course for one small problem.

I deplore sitting night after night in front of a TV set. I enjoy company, mixed or otherwise, tremendously, but my husband doesn't. I sit in the same room with him and sew until I am blue in the face.

DORIS CLARK

If and when someone drops in for an evening, I politely turn the dial off and we end up having a terrific evening; but he doesn't want to plan on doing it again!

I'm sure my husband would agree that all this was true; the one complaint he would add being that he doesn't get enough affection. Perhaps true, but most nights I am so tired I am lucky if I am awake long enough to kiss him goodnight. — BORED.

DEAR BORED: Time to take stock. With many of the earmarks of success, this marriage of yours is showing symptoms of deterioration.

If you write off the importance of the physical side of marriage, you show just as much cluelessness as he does in ignoring your need for variety and friends.

My guess is that it is boredom which makes you too tired; and it is as an escape from frustration that he loses himself in the world of television. Start trying to understand each other; then the necessary compromises will suggest themselves.

DEAR DORIS: I am a 16-year-old girl, and have been dating now for over two years, occasionally. But kissing is a major problem. I lack the power to kiss any fellow as I should be able to. I cannot respond to any kind of kisses; only a meek and mild one like you give your kid sister or brother or grandmother. I mean I cannot seem to create any emotions throughout kissing.

So I try to avoid boys to a great extent, because I know a fellow soon gets sick of such a silly kiss. The girls in school often describe their dates and say how wonderful a fellow kisses, and I feel so embarrassed and small. I feel none of the excitement they do.

I know this sounds silly and I cannot explain it as I would like to but in my social life as well as the rest, boys to a certain extent are a must. Without a boy to go to a school party with, where you need partners to dance, how can an ignorant and unhappy girl get along? — NO KISSER.

DEAR NO KISSER: Mark my words: the girls who rave are showing off. Those who feel like you do never admit it, not unless they know the score and are perfectly happy with themselves.

It's far better to underplay this kissing routine — which should never become routine! Anything too disturbing can harm, rather than help, your friendships. Boys will like you for your cheeriness, your interest in them, your ability to talk their language.

So don't study the techniques of kissing; find out wha makes people, including boys, tick, and you'll be popular. The rest will come in all good time.

Confidential to STEPMOTHER: Your stepson is the way he is because of what has happened to him. Can you imagine his despair when his mother and father lived so unhappily that his mother committed suicide? Regardless of who was at fault, this young fellow took the rap for it; received little love or training, little security; learned to be rude, careless and to indulge every whim.

And now his dad still errs in refusing to act as a unit with you in getting him to behave reasonably. This is where social workers can help — and I'd urge you to seek professional help quickly.

Confidential to HEAD OVER HEELS: Brains or good looks help, but, believe it or not, other things are more important — such as kindness, which is not always spotted right away.

It's luck we don't all like the same things, or this would leave many of us out in the cold. Just because your pal doesn't like your boy friend doesn't mean he is a washout in your book. Ask yourself what you think of him.

DEAR DORIS: Sometimes people who live alone might ju love someone to drop in and say "Hi! I was just going by. Would you like anything from the store? Maybe I could get you a book from the library."

It wouldn't put us out much and it might brighten someone's day. Who knows when it will be our turn? — MRS. J.P.

DEAR MRS. J.P.: Right. There should be time for such things. Sometimes we let ourselves be put off with the thought that it would be better to mind our own business. It's so easy to rationalize.

But let us just try, once, turning in and ringing that lonely-looking doorbell. The rewards could be terrific.

Drinking Among Teenagers Called Tremendous Problem

By CHARLENE ARMSTRONG
of the Hamilton Spectator

HAMILTON (CP) — Three months ago a 14-year-old district boy killed himself after an evening of drinking.

He was an honor high school student from a good family.

The local and district police, the Addiction Research Foundation in Hamilton and teen-agers themselves all told me that drinking is increasing among young people.

But no one knows by how much.

A booklet published in Canada three years ago by the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation and the Ontario department of education contains one article on teen-age drinking.

Based on studies done in the United States, the article concludes that frequent and intensive drinking is not typical of the majority of Ontario teen-agers.

But the foundation says that no properly documented surveys on teen-age drinking have been done in Canada. In the U.S., fewer than a dozen studies have been made on the subject.

Kenneth Bennett, education director of the Hamilton branch of the foundation, says it would be the rare teen-ager who has not done some experimenting with alcohol, whether it be just one glass of wine with Christmas dinner or an illicit bottle bought from a bootlegger.

FASHIONABLE HABIT

In Burlington, adjacent to Hamilton, more than half the liquor charges last year were against people under 21. This is a town where Police Chief Kenneth Skerrett says "We haven't got the wrong side of the tracks."

E. S. Lavender, principal of Burlington Central high school, calls drinking among teen-agers "a tremendous problem."

He says: "Many parents are busy becoming prosperous or enjoying themselves. Drinking is the In thing to do. It's part of our permissive society."

Through friends, I got in touch with about a dozen Burlington teen-agers. Asked separately, they all said about 30 per cent of the boys in Grades 12 and 13 drink fairly regularly—every weekend or every second or third weekend.

One Grade 12 student said: "I don't think the number who drink is too high. Maybe about two out of every five guys in 12 and 13 really go at it."

Mr. Bennett warns parents "they're just kidding themselves" if they think allowing their children to sample the odd drink at home is guaranteed to stop their drinking elsewhere.

LEARN FROM PARENTS

He states emphatically his belief that it is from the parents that children learn about life, including drinking. Children ape adults in almost everything, so why not drinking?

As John Mildon, supervising probation officer in Hamilton, says, it's the business of a teen-ager to act like an adult and he's praised when he does so—except when it comes to drinking or sex.

Why do teen-agers drink?

Mr. Bennett suggests reasons based on our social structures. Chief Skerrett, a young-looking, forceful man with teen-agers of his own, says lack of communication between parent and child and lack of supervision are major factors.

The teen-agers themselves offer several reasons, all superficial. They don't, outwardly, blame society or their parents. Their reasons:

—To relax and feel better.

—Just for kicks, for something to do.

—It's a challenge to see if I can get away with it.

—For prestige.

—So you won't be looked down on or snubbed.

—Just because the other guys are doing it and you feel like it.

SOME AVOID DRIVING

Some groups seem to realize the danger of driving and drinking; others ignore it. A student at suburban Ancaster, who says there is "quite a bit" of drinking among the high school students he knows, also thinks that his friends are sensible enough not to drive if they've been drinking. A "mother," one person who doesn't drink, is often selected at the start of an evening so everyone is sure of a safe ride home.

Two Burlington boys, both 17 and in Grade 12, have a different story. They say that as long as a guy is able to walk, he drives.

It's no longer a question drink, but just when to of whether or not to start, Mr. Bennett says. With parents setting the example and providing their youngsters with chances to copy, teen-agers can hardly be expected to wait until they're 21 to drink.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Babies, like most of us, thrive on a certain amount of routine. But every baby breaks the rules of routine once in a while. (Don't we all?) So, if your normally well-regulated baby occasionally balks at eating, sleeping, etc., when you want him to . . . fretting or forcing won't woo him back to schedule. By letting him alone for a bit, chances are he'll soon return to normal on his own. And be happy to get back to the security of routine.

Nothing routine about your baby's menus when they feature those good-tasting Gerber Strained Foods. With over 70 choices, he or she can enjoy menu changes galore. Full-flavour fruits and vegetables. Succulent meats and meat dinners. Delicate cereal-fruit combinations and egg yolks. True-fruit juices and juice drinks. Tempting custards. All specially prepared to help preserve their nutritive values and tune up your little one's appetite.

For a listless eater. Two good antidotes for indifferent appetites: (1) Offer smaller portions of favourite foods. (2) Serve more variety than you might normally do.

For a sleep evader. This from a nice baby nurse I know: "It helps a wound-up, sleepless baby to relax if you gently hold his hands for a little while." Good relaxation for you, too.

New, delightful, delectable. That's the smooth-going story of Gerber Strained or Junior Cherry-Vanilla Custard. It's a perfectly heavenly blend of smooth vanilla custard and flavour-bright cherries . . . teamed to tickle a taste bud or two. Wholesome, not overly sweet, it's just the thing to top off a baby meal. Just one of the 9 strained, 4 junior Gerber Custards your baby will enjoy. They're made with egg yolks and other wholesome ingredients, and are smooth and custardy as can be. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

If You Want to Look Your Best Find Out Shape of Your Face

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — If you don't like the shape your face is in, find out what shape it is, says a Paris makeup ex-

Look at your jawline, says Paul Flaubert, consultant for an international makeup firm. The shape of the jaw determines whether your face is round, square, oval or pointed

Once you figure that out, you'll know what to do with your eyebrows —your most important feature.

A trim, dark-haired, 31-year-old bachelor, Mr. Flaubert began his career eight years ago putting heavy stage makeup on opera stars. Now he owns beauty schools in Europe and makes up designers' models for fashion showings.

In the last six years he has toured Scandinavia, Asia, Australia and North America telling women what to do with their faces in English, French, German, Swedish and Danish.

He finds the same problems whether he's meeting delicate Thai teen-agers or fiery Spanish beauties.

"Some are too lazy to use the right makeup and some use too much. Makeup should be a veil, not a mask."

But back to the eyebrows. "I call them the key of the face."

VARY THE SLANT

For a round or square face the highest part of the brow arch should be dead centre. If your face is pointed or oval, brows should slant up to the highest point at the ends.

Rouge on a round face should shade near the nose and down along the line from nose to the corner of the mouth. On a pointed or oval face rouge should be kept away from the nose, high on the cheekbone back to the temple.

To get a steady curve when applying eyeliner, lay a hand mirror flat on your dressing table and look down into it "You can see what you're doing and your eyelid doesn't flicker."

Brown eyes should forget about bright blue shadow. Blue, grey or green eyes can wear almost any color. "But if they are very light, I find black liner too strong. It makes them look like cat's eyes."

For daytime, Mr. Flaubert suggests white shadow on the bone under the brow. For evening, he advises combinations such as almond green under the brow near the nose, and pink beginning under the middle of the brow and shaded out to the end.

"That's a contrasting effect, rather than a shadow, which is especially good on brown eyes. I like smoke grey with pink as well, but not blue. That's too much of a contrast."

FALSE LASHES OK

False eyelashes are definitely part of the effect, even in daytime if they are properly trimmed.

"Some women feel naked when they take off their false eyelashes, so they wear one pair all the time and add another layer for evening."

Teen-agers should learn a beauty routine along with their geometry and ancient history, he says. A girl of 14 should use cleansing milk and toning lotion, medicated if necessary, and special creams for acne problems.

Mr. Flaubert says makeup should be taught in school.

"After all, women wear it all the time. Why don't they talk about it? What's the difference between painting on a piece of paper and painting on a face?"

The cosultant says there should be no op-art effects in a daytime face.

"A young working girl needs some good eye makeup, protective lotion, rouge in the right places, light lipstick and some powder on her nose."

If she's too heavy-handed with the jars and tubes, she'll suffer. "Men don't talk about a good makeup. They talk about sports or cars. But a bad makeup—they talk about it."

Mr. Flaubert stresses the importance of thinking beautiful.

"When a woman starts to have her own personality, then she is beautiful. She may be at her peak in her 30s or 40s.

"Women shouldn't be scared to get older. They should think 'I have achieved something in my life; I have learned to grow old.' I think that's a quality of mature beautiful women."

Ann Landers

Sympathetic Readers Defend Ill Boy

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was rocked by the letter from 12-year-old Danny. His mother would not give him money to go to the movies with his schoolmates because he had been sick a great deal and his illness had cost the family so much. His mother told him that because of the doctor and hospital bills he had run up, she wasn't going to be able to buy any new clothes for a long time, and they'd have to forget about a new car. Danny asked you how he could let his mother know that he loved her and that he was sorry he had caused them so much trouble.

I would like to address my remarks to Danny's mother:

Madame: If you feel that your son is too expensive, will you please send him to me? Being ill and confined to a hospital is difficult enough for a child who wants to be well and strong. To make him feel that he is a financial burden is just about the cruelest thing I've ever heard of.

Head stones in the cemetery don't hug well. I know. I have three of them. Believe me, I'd gladly wear rags for the rest of my life, and I'd give up riding in cars forever if I could have just one of my three sons in my arms this very moment. You obviously don't appreciate it, but you have been blessed with God's greatest gift — the love of a child. It is a mystery to me, as I am sure it is to others, how you have managed to raise such a wonderful little boy. I'll bet he has a fine father. — TULSA.

DEAR TULSA: I received hundreds of letters expressing warm and wonderful feelings about Danny.

Since the vast majority of my mail deals with trouble and grief, it was refreshing to receive so many sensitive expressions of love and compassion. It's a joy to know that my column is being read by so many beautiful people. My thanks to all of you who wrote.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old girl who is 5' 4" and weighs 122 pounds. The problem is that these girls at church keep telling me I ought to lose about 15 pounds. I have asked several of the boys what they think and they all say I am just right.

The girls who keep telling me to lose weight look like flag poles. Do you think they are jealous of my shape? Should I lose weight? — MARYLAND MISS.

DEAR MISS: How do I know? You may be built better than this building, but through the mail it's very hard to tell.

A girl who is 5' 4" should be able to carry 122 pounds nicely — but again, it depends on where you are carrying them. See your family doctor and let him decide. He's a better authority than your girl friends.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are a pretty sharp dame, but every now and then your reasoning breaks down — as it did in your advice to "Chambermatron."

You advised a wife to pick up after her sloppy husband, but suggested that she train her sons to pick up after themselves so their wives wouldn't have to write to Ann Landers. How can a mother teach sons to be neat if their father is a slob? — ANOTHER CHAMBERMATRON.

DEAR ANOTHER: Easy? No. But not impossible. Tell your sons that a wife can't restrain her husband because marriage is not a reform school. But she can — and should — train her children. And let them know they'd better not try to use their Dad's sloppiness as an exc[illegible] to be lazy because you will not tolerate it. And don't.

Shrewd Indira Gandhi Now Refuses to Dance

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is proving to be a shrewd politician with a sure feel of the pulse of the Indian masses.

She has made it clear that nobody is going to persuade her to dance.

At some recent diplomatic functions Western envoys indicated their desire to dance with the prime minister. They were politely reminded by her aides that Mrs. Gandhi has given up Western-style dancing for good.

During her last visit to Washington Mrs. Gandhi explained why she was unwilling to dance. Recalling that she used to like dancing in her younger days, the 48-year-old daughter of the late Jawaharlal Nehru pointed out that "the people of India may not like to see me dancing in the Western style."

She was making rather an understatement.

Nothing would have delighted her political enemies more than to be able to lay hands on a photograph showing Mrs. Gandhi doing a twist in the company of a Western statesman.

COULD COST SEATS

"It could cost the ruling Congress party at least a dozen parliamentary seats in the coming elections," commented a party worker.

Most Indians consider dancing against their country's ancient traditions, which prescribe that a woman should have no physical contact with a stranger.

Until recently, Indian women would not even shake hands with a foreign visitor, preferring to give the traditional salutation of folded hands.

Even today, hand-shaking by women is confined to the top crust of Indian society.

More and more educated women are learning what is generally known here as "ballroom dancing" but their number even in a Westernized metropolis like Bombay cannot be more than a few hundred.

LED TO CRISES

Passion for dancing has led to domestic crises.

Recently, a wealthy Indian merchant of New Delhi divorced his wife on the ground that she persisted in dancing with American and British tourists.

A social worker specializing in marital relations says that generally Indian women are more conservative than men on the subject of "ballroom dancing."

Mrs. Madhuri Sen, 36, said few Indian women are happy to see their husbands dancing. "They seem to feel that dancing with a woman will gradually lead to infidelity."

Mrs. Sen describes Mrs. Gandhi's decision as the best thing an Indian prime minister could do.

CIRCUS OPENER yesterday afternoon was Intelligencer social reporter Mrs. Lenny Williamson touring the big top on Anna Mae, a seven-ton veteran. Here Mrs. Williamson mounts the 46-year-old elephant under the guidance of the trainer.

TRAINED BUT NOT TAMED — Johnny Golden puts one of his five lions through its paces at yesterday's Sells and Gray Circus here. The big cats were one of the highlights of the show.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON— Despite a fall of 50 feet from the trapeze to a wooden floor in Brockville Monday night, Sells and Gray Circus star Carmen Del Molino thrilled Belleville audiences yesterday. The 19-year-old star performs on the high trapeze without a net.

Ageless Thrills of Circus Attract Capacity Crowds

A little boy staring oogle-eyed, munching on popcorn, is a circus.

A funny - faced big - footed clown dancing in the middle ring is a circus.

Elephants, trained dogs, pretty girls trapeze artists, are all a circus.

There are 1001 things that make up a circus, and well over that number of people viewed the gala Sells and Gray circus yesterday in Belleville. The circus was sponsored by the Belleville Fire Department. There were two shows, afternoon and evening.

They saw the clowns, Bobbo and Babino, go through a number of hilarious routines. The children were even part of the act. Bobbo would holler "Hello," the children would return the greeting. It was almost deafening, but it was fun.

The two clowns also did an impromptu ballet, Samson and Delilah. Bobbo, by the use of property displaced balloons, was a ballerina for the act.

At the end of the show, Babino turned out to be a woman, more accurately, a grandmother seven times over.

There were thrills aplenty. "Miss Gerua" the only woman ever to slide across the Rhine on a rope by using her teeth, a distance of 2000 feet, performed her "Slide For Life." She slid the entire length of the tent, diagonally, while holding on with nothing but her teeth.

LIONS OPEN SHOW

Johnny Golden and his five "trained-but-not-tamed" lions opened the show with a bang. Johny almost had to resort to his hip holster when a circus workman accidently scared one male lion by making a noise directly behind him.

Then there was Carmen De Molino, the mistress of balance, performing hair-raising stunts while balanced on a bar suspended from the tent roof high above the crowd.

She balanced precariously on a chair which in turn was balanced on one leg on the narrow bar.

She left the crowd gasping

The Hillano Family, escapees from behind the Iron Curtain amused everyone with their dog act, highlighted by a black poodle steering a motor scouter around the ring while carrying two other canine passengers with him.

And Anna Mae, the 46-year-old seven-ton elephant, took her familiar turn around the tent, ridden by Intelligencer social reporter Mrs. Lenny Williamson. Anna Mae, a movie star, (she was Jumbo in the motion picture by that name) eats two bales of timothy per day plus 35 pounds of sweet feed or cereal. She is shaved once or twice a season, and would you believe it, because elephant hair is so tough, a blow torch is used to singe the hair offf.

Altogether, there were almost 20 acts to delight the large audience.

A circus spokesman said the circus will appear in Trenton today. The circus begins its tour in Sarasota, Florida, and travels over 30,000 miles and six or seven months through the U.S. and Canada, before going back to Sarasota. They perform seven days a week in the U.S. and six in Canada, doing two or three performances a day.

FAMILY AFFAIR

"We have a complete cooking unit and meal tent," the spokesman said, "and we serve about 300 meals a day. Over 100 people travel with the circus all the time and it takes about $2,500 per day to carry the expenses.

"We always buy a good many supplies locally. I'd say we sent somewhere between $500 and $1000 in Belleville today on food and supplies."

He said the school - age children travelling with the group study through a correspondence course. "It requires concentrated study of four hours per day, five days a week, and gives them a real good education."

He said that families never try to push their children into the business. "If they like it they stay, if not they don't.

"These children grow up with it and to many of them it's a natural thing and they want to stay in it, but to just as many, growing up with it is the reason for getting away from it."

The spokesman said the circus has enjoyed a tremendous comeback in the last few years. "There have been bigger crowds and more enthusiasm."

One more thing about a circus. It's for the kids. But did you ever notice most of the adults seem to enjoy it more than the kids?

Funny thing, a circus.

One by One Soviet Satellites Make Their Bids for Freedom

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, finds during a tour of Eastern Europe that Soviet domination of the Communist bloc is crumbling. Progress of the revolt is traced in this story.

By JOHN BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

First it was the Yugoslavs. Then the Poles. Then, tragically, the Hungarians. Now it's the Romanians.

Who will be next to bell the Kremlin cat?

One by one, the countries of Eastern Europe have taken their stand against Soviet domination during the last 18 years.

One by one, they have made their contribution to the decline—if not yet the fall—of an empire: the once-monolithic satellite empire forged by Stalin after the Second World War.

The eclipse of Moscow's big-brother type of hegemony is not a new thing. But being a dynamic and continuing process, it contains much that is new, with all kinds of ramifications both for world communism and world stability.

Which country will be next to stand up to Russia on some headline-grabbing question?

Czechoslovakia, perhaps. There's a lot of ferment there, and already a certain amount of resistance to the Moscow-directed foreign policy line. There is also a lot of new eager young blood in the Communist party's central committee, plus an ancient, rather decrepit leadership.

The two in combination could make for change—internally and externally.

It seems inconceivable that tiny Bulgaria, most loyal of all the onetime satellites, would ever defy Kremlin authority; yet there was an attempted coup in Sofia last year, and it must be assumed to have been either nationalistic or pro-Chinese, or both. Either way, it caused nervous twitters in the Kremlin.

The current Romanian rebellion is potentially the most dangerous that the Kremlin has had to face since the first crack appeared in the empire with Yugoslavia's break in 1948.

If Romania decides to leave the Warsaw Pact—a possibility that can't be overlooked—the Soviet Union's power to influence Bulgaria might be fatally weakened, since Romania lies between them.

Then Moscow would be face to face with the prospect of having lost the whole southern tier of its once-tight East European realm: Yugoslavia and Romania; Bulgaria should it become infected with the contagion, and Albania which, being a protege of China, is in a category by itself.

Already in Balkan capitals, diplomats are talking about "special relationships" between Yugoslavia and Romania, which could extend to Bulgaria.

YUGOSLAVIA PLEASED

The Yugoslavs, though good friends of the Soviet Union, secretly applaud Romania's strong stand for independence. Presumably, they would applaud just as heartily for Bulgaria.

Besides, old ideas of a Balkan federation, cherished in Yugoslavia, die slowly.

Romania's intransigence offers the Kremlin little room for effective response. It can either move troops into Romania and try to crush the movement, or it can go along and meekly accept Bucharest's demands, hoping that eventually Romania, having made its point, will fall tamely back into line as Poland did after 1956.

To move troops in wouldn't be easy, even if the Kremlin wanted to, since the Romanian rebellion is not an anti-Communist one a la Hungary, but a nationalist one, and the other East European states—not to speak of the rest of the world — would no doubt be shocked to see it forcibly suppressed.

Moscow can ill-afford such a crippling blow to its prestige.

For the moment, at least, Moscow appears to be following the second alternative, gambling that economic imperatives, if nothing else, will eventually force the Romanians to submit.

BREZHNEV IN DANGER

What it will do if the Romanians do not fall into line—if, on the contrary, they become even more intractable gadflies as may well prove to be the case—must be currently the Kremlin's No. 1 East European problem.

The Russians are badly off-balance. Not to be overlooked is the importance of the problem in the context of the Soviet leadership. The position of Communist party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev is not enhanced in the Kremlin when member countries start taking pot-shots at the Warsaw Pact.

The spectre that helped to bring Poland back into line after its successful defiance of Russia — that of being left alone to face a revived Germany—does not operate in the case of Romania. The Romanians, who fought on the side of Germany during the war, do not fear the Germans to any noticeable degree.

In fact their only concern with regard to West Germany is to develop more ties with it, to use it to help develop the Romanian economy.

On the other hand, there is lingering resentment against Russia for absorbing Bessarabia after the war.

Clearly, the Eastern bloc's disarray matches or surpasses that of the Western bloc. And it can probably accommodate disarray less well than the West and if it is to remain a strong, effective, working alliance.

WON'T TAKE SIDES

In this light the full measure of the calamity posed for the Kremlin by its squabble with China can best be seen. For it was under cover of the Soviet - Chinese dispute that the Romanians were able to assert their independence.

In its own way, it's rather an amusing game to watch. Romanian officials will solemnly assure you that they disapprove of China's militancy, its renunciation of peaceful coexistence and its unrestrained belligerence toward the Soviet Union. Just as solemnly, the wily Romanians make bland appeals for Communist solidarity.

But nobody takes them seriously. Without the dispute to preoccupy it, Russia might be much less tolerant of heresy in its backyard. So Romania does what it can to prolong the dispute by refusing to take sides, thus helping deny the Kremlin any prospect of clear victory.

In varying degrees, other East European countries employ the same strategy. They follow the Moscow line, but generally they won't have anything to do with measures that would formally ostracize Peking.

Tomorrow: Consultation takes place of orders from Moscow.

Sinatra Married to Mia Farrow

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra, 50, and actress Mia Farrow, 21, were married Tuesday in a ceremony attended by a few friends. Sands Hotel President Jack Entratter, a friend of Sinatra, gave the bride away.

After the ceremony, Sinatra, his bride and Entratter walked out on to the porch of their wedding suite.

"I think I handled it pretty good," Sinatra said, putting his arm around the bride, who is a star of the television series Peyton Place.

Sinatra, dressed in a dark suit with checkered tie, waved at reporters and pointed at Mia: "How are you, baby . my bride." Miss Farrow, dressed in a white silk faille dress with diamond-like buttons, smiled.

"We decided to be married about 20 minutes ago," Sinatra said, then added: "The plans were made last week."

The ceremony lasted for only five minutes. Their licence was issued Tuesday afternoon to Francis Sinatra of Cathedral City, Calif., and Maria Mia Farrow of Los Angeles. It was a one-ring ceremony.

LONDON HONEYMOON

The couple left immediately by jet for New York and planned to spend two days there, then go on to London.

Guard

had reached the area by midnight patrolled in jeeps carrying machine-guns.

The tally after the second night of destruction included at least 24 injured, including 12 policemen, a fireman and five persons with gunshot wounds. There were more than 100 arrests.

RUINS REMAIN

Ruined, blackened hulks of buildings, smashed store windows, heaps of tangled rubble were the ugly remains.

Firemen, often the target of rocks, got 52 calls.

Three Negroes, including two wounded by gunfire, were taken to a hospital. A white man was admitted with an eye injury and a Negro youth was treated for a forehead cut by a flying brick.

At an intersection in the worst trouble spot, Percy Giles, 36, fell with a bullet in the back of the head.

There was no official report of who shot him, but a Negro man said the shooting came after bottles were hurled at police cars and police fired their weapons.

Policemen and firemen raced from one spot to another, chasing looters, exchanging fire with snipers and trying to douse the fires, igniting in building after building.

FIRE TEAR-GAS

Tear-gas was fired into a building near the spot where the fatal shooting took place as police tried to flush out a sniper. Officers armed with rifles were posted on buildings.

A bottle of gasoline with a rag for a wick flew from a car occupied by Negroes. Flames gushed from a bar and spread to another building. Amid the crackle of flames, young looters carted goods from a jewelry store.

Trouble started at a bar Monday night in the two - square-mile Hough section, where about 75,000 of Cleveland's 250,000 Negroes live in rickety frame or dilapidated brick buildings.

One version was that white owners of the bar refused to give ice water to Negroes. Another report was that a woman ejected from the bar returned with friends to loot the place.

It Is a Long, Long Way From Rafah to Rockies

Canadians serving with the UN Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip sometimes feel Canada has forgotten them. But a Canadian Press reporter finds they are sustained by the realization that their job is still an important one.

By CARL MOLLINS

CAMP RAFAH, Gaza (CP) Rafah is a long, long way from the Rockies, Regina or Riviere du Loup For the Canadians here who feel like a forgotten army. Gaza can seem even more remote from home than the miles, the climate and alien custom make it.

"Listen," says a sweltering Vancouverite serving with the United Nations Emergency Force. "I've got friends at home — intelligent friends—who don't even know where the Gaza Strip is, much less what we're doing here."

"I suppose you can't really blame them," a young Halifax officer suggests. "Ten years is a long time for an 'emergency' to last. But I'll admit you begin to feel forgotten, even at the official level."

"Can anybody remember when a government minister has come out here from Ottawa?" asks a sergeant from Calgary. "If somebody just came to see how the taxes are being spent, it would let the outfit feel someone was paying attention."

The sentiment is echoed by others among the 800 Canadians in the Gaza Strip with UNEF, a force established in the wake of the 1956 Suez battle to separate Israeli and Arab armies in this Mediterranean enclave and along the Sinai frontier.

Occasionally a soldier feeling especially neglected refers to UNEF as "United Nations Emergency Farce."

JOB IS ESSENTIAL

But all see almost daily evidence that UNEF's assignment remains essential as long as the world is decided that something more than UN resolutions must keep Arabs and Israelis apart.

UNEF regularly deals with violations of the armistice from both sides. Without the intervention of soldiers in blue berets, hostile patrols would be more likely to meet and resumption of warfare along the Gaza Strip would become inevitable.

In more realistic moments, this knowledge helps sustain morale for some, even though Canadian troops are no longer directly involved in policing the armistice. A Canadian reconnaissance squadron that patrolled part of the Sinai frontier between Israel and Egypt was withdrawn last spring under a UNEF cost-cutting operation.

The nature of the Canadian contingent's assignment probably does as much to maintain morale as the abundant organized recreation and do-it-yourself hobbies that help Canadian troops pass a year of virtual isolation in a desert atmosphere.

As administrative and logistics support group for UNEF, the Canadians are engaged in productive activity where results can be seen—in a cranky vehicle made to run again, in a signal transmitted from El Arish to Gaza Town, in a new barracks built or a water desalination machine set up in running order.

ENVY OTHER TROOPS

The Danes, Norwegians, Brazilians and Yugoslavs with UNEF are envied because their tours in Gaza last only six months. The Canadians and Indians are the only professional soldiers—the other contingents are temporary soldiers on national service—and the only ones who serve a year with UNEF. The Scandinavians and Brazilians—"Danors" and "Brazos"—are reputed to get higher rates of pay than the rest.

But few Canadians can envy other UNEF soldiers for the hot, tedious hours with binoculars and field telephone in an "OP"—observation post along the ditch three feet wide and a yard deep that marks the Armistice Demarcation Line between the Gaza Strip and Israel. Still less inviting are the isolated patrol duties of the Yugoslavs in the furnace heat and lunar landscape of the Sinai desert.

"At least we can see we're accomplishing something," says a service corps driver. "If you truck food from point A to point B, it's a job with a result. I don't think I'd like standing on the ADL day after day."

The chief frustration encountered by Canadian drivers and signallers, engineers, mechanics or electricians is the lack or slowness of supplies. Most materials and spare parts are obtained through UN procurement offices in New York, a time-consuming process of world-wide purchasing by tender.

Sometimes an officer who orders a part has completed his UNEF tour and returned to Canada before it turns up.

MAKE OWN BRICKS

The long, slow supply lines mean Canadian craftsmen learn to improvise—fabricate a steel gear in the RCEME workshop to get a truck in running order, manufacturing everything from bricks to kitchen sinks in the engineering depot.

Working with Arab civilians —700 are employed at Camp Rafah in jobs ranging from houseboy to carpenter—adds another dimension to supply and maintenance jobs with UNEF.

Canadian craftsmen waver between despair and admiration when discussing Arab workmates.

"They learn the theory okay in their schools," a Canadian engineer says, "but sometimes by rote so that they find it hard to adapt to new methods or get confused by unfamiliar equipment.

"Then, most of them have lived such insecure lives that they're afraid of losing their jobs. They take a long time on some work, not because they can't work faster but because they're afraid of killing the job and putting themselves out of work."

On the other hand, Canadians marvel at some of the traditional skills displayed by Arab craftsmen — making cheap mud bricks in the way they have been made for centuries or carving neat, sturdy wood joints that one Canadian engineer said must date from "when Christ was a carpenter."

In working hours—7 a.m. to 1 p.m. for most in the desert climate—Canadians talk enthusiastically about their work with UNEF. It is in the long, hot leisure of the afternoons that they begin to feel forgotten.

That's how White Satin is. Still made to Sir Robert Burnett's original 1770 London Dry formula; still exactly as dry and satin-smooth today as it ever was. After all, when great taste can keep a gin famous for generations on both sides of the ocean—we wouldn't dream of changing it. What we have done, though, is change the White Satin bottle. It's the best way we know to salute a celebrated gin. Have a look. Have a buy. White Satin! That's how a gin should be.

3,000 Tough Australian Guerrillas Have Own Jungle Warfare Ideas

PHUOC TUY PROVINCE, South Viet Nam (AP)—In a rubber plantation southeast of Saigon—the exact spot still is secret—a 3,000-man Australian task force has set up camp.

The Australians have their own ideas how to fight the Viet Cong guerrillas and they have the whole province of Phuoc Tuy to try them out.

Many have fought and won a similar guerrilla war in the jungles and plantations of Malaya. About one-third are draftees, new to war. Their missior —as described by their commander, Brig. Oliver Davic Jackson—is to break up th hard-core Viet Cong fightin units in Phuoc Tuy, destroy th Viet Cong political apparatu and then hunt down Viet Con on by one.

Once an area has been free of Viet Cong domination, th Australians will help the Sou Vietnamese protect it and r settle refugees into it.

It will be a big job.

NO TIME LIMIT

"In the Malaya war we didr worry about time," says Lt Col John Arnold Warr. "Th same attitude will be necessa in Viet Nam.

"We have to realize that will take years to complete o mission and simply accept tl fact and stay until it is done.

In making this comparisor Warr also recognizes differ ences in the Malaya and Viet namese wars.

"The Chinese Communists i Malaya were much less active than the Viet Cong. The Viet Cong is better armed, has greater dedication and discipline and is operating in much larger units.

"Only after we have broken up the enemy regiments and battalions can we fight a Malayan-type campaign."

STRETCHES ALONG COAST

Phuoc Tuy is a coastal province, a rough rectangle about 30 by 40 miles. It stretches north from the South China Sea northeast of the Saigon River delta.

It is believed that two hardcore Viet Cong regiments—about 4,000 men—are based in the province in addition to hundreds of local guerrillas. The majority of the 105,000 inhabitants have lived for years under Viet Cong domination.

The cycle of Viet Cong takeovers and government counteractions, of troop assaults and bombardments has been too much for the farm people. They have abandoned farms, orchards and plantations. Thousands of refugees now crowd the provincial capital, Baria.

This is the situation confronting the Australians.

A prime feature of their attack is strict security.

They go much farther than their South Vietnamese, American and South Korean allies to ensure secrecy.

ROAD CLOSED

South Vietnamese interpreters with the Australians never are allowed to leave the area alone. No civilian traffic is allowed around the base camp. The main north-south road through the province is closed. Travel is forbidden from the Viet Cong areas into the Australian-controlled area and nobody can leave the Australian area.

A few days ago, the Australians put their ideas of warfare to work in the field.

Men of the 5th Battalion walked in groups of 10 to 30 from the base camp and filtered into the jungle. Each soldier carried five days' rations on his back.

No words were spoken.

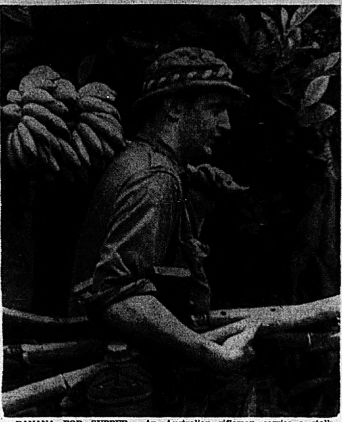
No helicopters or observation planes buzzed overhead. Radios were used as little as possible. Platoon leaders communicated with hand signals.

The battalion moved 7,000 yards the first day and established a forward camp. Then platoons fanned out to cover their individual areas.

Armored personnel carriers rolled out to maintain continuous patrols between the forward troops and the base camp so the Viet Cong couldn't slip between them.

Every dawn and dusk, favorite times for Viet Cong attacks, troops in bivouac areas froze in their positions for one hour. There was no sound and no movement, except for small patrols searching the outer perimeters of the bivouac zones.

So far the Australian task force has pushed through less than a third of Phuoc Tuy province and has met slight resistance.



BANANA FOR SUPPER — An Australian rifleman carries a stalk of bananas and some bamboo logs before setting up camp at a secret location in a rubber plantation in Phuoc Tuy province southeast of Saigon, South Viet Nam. He is one of 3,000 Australians whose job is to rid the province of Viet Cong and Communists. Many of them fought and won a similar guerrilla war in the jungles and plantations of Malaya. TORONTO (CP)—A Metropolitan Toronto police recruiting team is being sent to Montreal, Halifax and Fredericton, N.B., to interview applicants. In Montreal, the team will interview candidates who have been rejected because they are not bilingual.

Three Police Forces Working To Solve Bombings in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal police anti-terrorist squad, the RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police have joined forces to investigate recent bombings in Montreal and Magog, Que., which killed two persons and injured several others, a Montreal police spokesman said Tuesday night.

Police said one man held for questioning in last Thursday's bomb death of a Jean Corbo, 16, at a Dominion Textile Co. plant in Montreal probably will be released today.

Corbo was killed when a bomb he was carrying exploded in his hands beside the west-end plant.

Police say they still are searching for a link between his death and a bombing death in the city last May.

Police said they may be able to connect the Montreal explosions with two bombings last weekend at the homes of Dominion Textile officials at Magog, 85 miles southeast of Montreal. No one was injured in these explosions.

Dominion Textile plants in Magog and three other Quebec centres have been on strike since early spring but the Montreal plant owned by the same company has not been involved in the walkout.

Police have posted a guard at the Magog factory following a threat to blow up the company's 600,000-gallon oil storage tank.

The threat came in a telephone call from a woman to municipal police headquarters late Monday, and brought the first direct intervention by police in the Magog strike.

Workers on picket lines did not interfere as officers assigned to guard duty became the first to enter the factory since it was shut down when the dispute started last April.

Police said the potential danger to lives and property forced them to take action, although they have attempted to remain neutral in the strike.

BELIEVE THERE IS A LINK

In Montreal, police said they are almost certain the persons who ordered the recent bombing of the local Dominion Textile plant also were responsible for the May 6 blast at the strike-bound La Grenade Ltee. shoe factory offices in which one woman was killed and four other employees injured.

No progress has been reported in the La Grenade strike.

Talks aimed at settling the Dominion Textile strike in Magog, Sherbrooke, Drummondville and Montmorency continued here.

The 5,000 textile workers involved, members of unions affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, were earning an average $1.79 an hour when the strike started. They seek an increase of 39 cents an hour in a 28-month pact. The company has offered 27 cents in a three-year contract.

The 120 La Grenade employees, who have been on strike for more than a year, are also members of a CNTU-affiliated union.

U.S. Brewers Help Finance Study of Damage to Hearts

NEW YORK (CP) — A research specialist here said clinical studies being conducted by physicians in Omaha, Neb., are part of an international attempt to learn as much as possible about heart-tissue damage, such as has been suffered by a number of heavy beer drinkers in the United States and Canada this year.

Dr. Steven Carson said Tuesday the United States Brewers' Association has provided a grant to the Omaha group to help finance the clinical evaluation of patients in that area. Dr. Carson is vice-president of Food and Drug Research Laboratories Inc., a consultant to the brewers' association.

He said the research in Omaha parallels that being done at Laval University following a series of 18 Quebec City deaths in the spring, blamed on a rare heart disease called cardiomyopathy.

A special committee appointed by the Quebec government to investigate the 18 deaths in Canada reported it could not find any single cause of death.

In Omaha, Dr. James F. Sullivan, chief of medicine at Veterans' hospital and a professor of medicine at Creighton University, said that since 1964 he and his colleagues have examined about 40 persons who appear to have suffered from the rare heart disease. Sixteen deaths were reported.

The victims shared two characteristics: They were habitually heavy beer drinkers and all had symptoms of myocardial, or heart muscle, insufficiency.

QUEBEC (CP)—Dr. Jacques Gelinas, Quebec's deputy health minister, said Tuesday there is no definite proof that cobaltous salts in beer were responsible for the deaths of 18 beer drinkers in the Quebec City area.

Dr. Gelinas referred to investigations carried out by experts from his department and elsewhere after disclosure of the Quebec deaths.

"Nothing clear and precise resulted from our research," he said in an interview.

The deputy minister said it was established that all the beer-drinkers had been regular consumers of large quantities of beer and that the beer contained cobaltous salts. The salts were used to keep the foam of a freshly-poured glass of beer intact over a long period.

"It was thought that perhaps the cobaltous salts were the cause of the deaths but we didn't have the right to give publicity to mere suspicions," Dr. Gelinas said.

AMATEURS SHINE

More than 100 amateur music groups have arranged to appear at Expo 67 and the total may reach 300.

Will Exonerate Government In Victor Spencer Case

TORONTO (CP) —The Globe and Mail says the government will be exonerated for its handling of the George Victor Spencer case in the report of Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The newspaper says "the report is understood to find that the former Vancouver postal worker did, as alleged by the government, engage in Soviet espionage activity."

It adds that the report by Mr. Justice Wells, who conducted a one-man inquiry into the handling of the case last spring, is expected to be handed to the government within a week.

Both the RCMP, which investigated the case and the Civil Service Commission which recommended he be discharged from the post office, will be cleared for their treatment of Spencer, the story says.

The paper says the report will contain few surprises, generally following Spencer's own statement about his involvement with the Russians.

Spencer, who had earlier survived removal of a cancerous lung, died of a heart attack in April a few days before the judge began his inquiry. He was 62.

The Spencer case was made public in May, 1965 when Anatoly E. Bytchkov and V. N. Poluchkin, two officials at the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, were expelled from Canada.

Spokesman for Common Market Predicts Large Uranium Sales

BRUSSELS (CP) — A European Common Market spokesman has forecast substantial purchases of Canadian uranium metal by market countries, particularly in the 30 years beginning with 1970.

Existing uranium stockpiles, mainly in France, will be sufficient until 1970 but after that the Common Market will lean heavily on imports, he told a group of visiting Commonwealth correspondents Tuesday at the market's headquarters in this Belgian capital.

The spokesman declined to spell out in detail the general size of the uranium market for Canada but said it would be substantial, based on present estimates on the use of nuclear energy for the production of electricity.

During the 1970-79 period, the Common Market will require an estimated 71,000 tons of uranium metal. The official forecast increases to 176,000 tons in the 1980-89 period and to 332,000 tons during 1990-99.

HOLD TALKS

The spokesman noted that both France and West Germany have held exploratory talks with Canada on the possible development of long-term uranium supply contracts. Talks with France collapsed mainly because France would not agree to Canadian atomic plant inspection safeguards to make sure Canadian shipments are not used for the manufacture of atom bombs.

West Germany, however, is prepared to accept inspection by Euratom, the Common Market atomic agency, and Canada will accept Euratom as its agent to carry out such inspections, the spokesman said.

The big potential market for Canadian uranium is based on forecasts of the Common Market's huge electricity needs and conclusions that these needs cannot be met except through sharply-expanded use of nuclear energy plants.

Electricity requirements are estimated to increase to tenfold in the next 35 years.

Sent Invoices For Listings In Directory

KITCHENER (CP) — Police here are investigating for possible fraud in connection with 12,000 invoices, that could have netted a total of $150,000, mailed from here July 15.

The invoices, sent to companies across Canada and parts of the United States, offer a registration of a firm's products in an international trade directory for $14.75.

They were printed in red, in both French and English, and appeared to have the seal of Canada on them. Neither the Ontario or the federal trade departments had heard of them previously.

Complaints have been streaming into the Kitchener Chamber of Commerce office for 2 days. Canadian consulates in Detroit and Cleveland are also investigating.

"The guy had a nice little gimmick," said Archie Gillies, Chamber of Commerce director. "If he had clicked, he could have retired."

He urged all businesses to disregard the invoices.

A Kitchener man has been questioned but no charges have been lodged.

Invoices have been received by firms in the Quinte district.

Ambulance In Collision

TORONTO (CP) — Lynda Lake, 17, of Lindsay, Ont., died in Toronto General Hospital Tuesday of injuries received June 27 when an ambulance taking her from a motorcycle accident scene was in collision with a car.

Police said Miss Lake was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by Roy Henry, 20, of Oshawa, that crashed through a fence on a side road near Bowmanville.

Will Continue To Graze Herds Across Border

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small group of Canadian and American dairy men whose farms straddle the U.S.-Canadian border in Vermont and Quebec may continue grazing their herds where there is pasturage—regardless of invisible boundaries.

But it took the combined efforts of a Vermont state senator, a U.S. senator, the secretary and undersecretary of agriculture, and high-ranking Canadian officials to clear the way.

Disruption of a century-old custom was threatened last Feb. 7 when the U.S. customs bureau at St. Albans, Vt., notified farmers they no longer could drive their cows over the border to pasture, even though their farms included land in both countries.

Under the terms of the solution, each farm straddling the border is deemed a "quarantine station" and all animals crossing the border need be checked only once a month.

Motorcycle Riders May Undergo Tests

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario motorcyclists may soon have to write special tests to get a learner's permit, W. J. McIntyre, director of the transport department's driver examination branch, said Tuesday.

A department spokesman said earlier that motorbikes are becoming a major problem because of the high rate of accidents in which they are involved.

There were 2,390 motorcycle accidents in 1965 in the province, killing 21 drivers and 11 passengers and injuring 1,889 drivers and 476 passengers.

The transport department is considering a manual for special tests beyond the normal "rules of the road" examinations which must be written now.

Canada Is Enjoying Booming Share of U. S. Spending

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's defence industry has enjoyed a booming share of increased United States spending on military equipment.

The substantial growth is continuing in 1966 and will apparently suffer little from last week's order for a $1,000,000,000 cut in U.S air munitions production.

Canadian firms filled $260,000,000 worth of U.S defence contracts in 1965, an increase of $93,000,000 from 1964 and almost double the 1963 level.

Government sources say the current continuing expansion may not match last year's scale. But it will not be stemmed by the cancellation of a single Canadian contract which caused a brief stir in the Commons.

Much of the production may well see use in Viet Nam, but the federal government attaches no strings to ordinary contracts. It has refused applications to ship equipment directly to Viet Nam.

Production of explosives increased rapidly last year, but still represents only a small fraction of the industry's total work.

Specialization has gone so far since U.S-Canada defence production sharing began in 1959 that no American shells, rockets and bombs are wholly manufactured in Canada. A number of their metal components may have been milled, cast and forged in this country.

Authorities have said that Canadian Industries Ltd. of Montreal, biggest producer of explosives in Canada, has more than 1,000 men turning out rocket and cannon propellants and plastic and other explosives at its Valleyfield plant.

Yet as a class, munitions manufacture is at the bottom of the list in dollar value to the industry, far behind such leaders as aircraft and aircraft engine components and parts, electronic navigation equipment and transportable shelters.

The broadly based industry ranges from all major aircraft and electronics companies in Canada to some of the smallest machinist firms. About 380 companies share in production, 175 of them devoting a major portion of plant and staff.

The total overseas defence export business to 44 countries last year was $328,000,000. A new government calculation takes the figure to $415,000,000 by including exports which contribute to the industry's skill whether or not the products have an obvious military use.

The U.S-Canada agreement is intended to keep defence sales each way in a rough balance. Viet Nam has recently put that out of kilter, with U.S buying in Canada almost double its sales.

Defence production minister Drury cited this in the Commons last week when he defended the right of the U.S government to cancel a Canadian contract for motors for air-to-ground rockets.

Non-op Group Strike Vote Ballots Mailed

MONTREAL (CP) — The results of a strike vote by 22,000 railway shop craft workers will be known Aug. 22, a union spokesman said Tuesday night.

Tom Read, president of the Federated Shop Craft Group, said in an interview that strike ballots have been mailed to union locals across Canada.

Deadline for the return of the secret ballots is Aug. 22.

The shop craft workers are members of the general conference of associated non-operating railway unions, representing 52,000 railway workers belonging to 15 different unions.

The conference voted unanimously in June to reject a conciliation board report handed down by Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of Vancouver and authorized the taking of a strike vote.

Under federal labor law, a strike may be called seven days after the minister of labor receives a conciliation report.

Wants Provincial Control Over Que. Broadcasting

MONTREAL (CP)—Rene Levesque, here after a post-election vacation, lit into the Board of Broadcast Governors Tuesday and also called for provincial control over broadcasting in Quebec.

He termed the BBG's control over the issuing of private broadcasting licences "a farce and a hypocrisy."

It is essential that radio and television in Quebec be controlled by the provincial government.

Apparently referring to television, Mr. Levesque said private stations "freely claim they serve the public interest."

"These people (the stations) make money hand-over-fist with public property — their broadcasting licence."

Mr. Levesque, once a television commentator, held a number of portfolios in the government of former Jean Lesage, which was defeated by the Union Nationale in the June 5 Quebec election. The ex-minister was re-elected in the Montreal riding of Laurier.

Mr. Levesque said Union Nationale election promises included establishment of a Quebec radio and television network.

"The . . . network is good and it is going to come. The Union Nationale's program in this respect looks lovely and is full of good intentions, but it is not thought out.

"Already we are paying for the CBC with our taxes. If you want to double this expense, that would be a waste and perhaps a collective humiliation.

"One can suppose that of the $80,000,000 in the CBC, Quebec provides $25,000,000 from its taxes.

"This $25,000,000 might be gotten back for us and the building of the Quebec network might be undertaken on the basis of this investment which is already there, not on some other money."

Grand Master States Masonry Should Not Be Secret Society

TORONTO (CP) — Freemasonry should not be a secret and mysterious society, James Allan, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, said Tuesday.

Speaking at a press conference on the eve of his lodge's annual convention, he said: "I truly believe this and the fact that a high Mason officer is speaking to the press is proof of that. Ten years ago this would have been impossible."

Mr. Allan said membership in the lodge had fallen off in the last four years.

"But we aren't really worried about it," he said. "It's because of television and because of the competition from service clubs such as Kiwanis and Rotary."

He said the lodge will never solicit membership, even if membership continues to fall.

He described masonry as being based on "a firm belief in the Fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man and the immortality of man."

"Its tenets are ethical principles such as are acceptable to all good men. It teaches toleration towards the beliefs of others and charity towards all mankind."

He said the Grand Lodge in Ontario consists of 623 lodges with a membership of 131,965. In 1867, he said, there were 185 lodges in the province with 7,000 members.

He said 46 "last-resort" bursaries, totalling about $11,000, were granted by the Masonic Foundation of Ontario during the last year to students unable to finish their courses because of financial reasons.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

I'm not condoning the actions of egghead players and officials who openly flout authority with kindergarten displays of fisticuffs and verbal attacks, merely pointing out the truth of the old cliche "There's nothing new under the sun."

The only difference from the days when Nero's Lions wiped out Christians United in the Rome free-for-all tournaments is that today the umpires, referees, judges, etc., get in on the act.

The Roman Caesar's slogan "If you Can't Join 'em — eat 'em" was changed a decade ago to "If you Can't Beat 'em — Join 'em." Now the sports pages reveal, that's been switched to "If You Can't Beat 'em — Bang Hell Out of 'em."

The spirit of combat, in some cases aided and abetted by nitwit coaches and managers, is still abroad in the land of sport. You'll find it mainly in hockey, baseball and soccer. And some of these days you'll read about two top chess players talking each other to death, and a pair of cricketers duelling with teacups at London's staid Oval.

Sports Joe Fan is an odd mixture. Collectively, his appetite calls for a varied menu. The hockey buff whets his with a hard clean-fought game with a dessert of a pushing match or the odd fisticuffs. World soccer addicts object en masse to "bad whistles" or player roughness.

Baseball and softball fans like their fare clean, close and hard-played, with few deriving any enjoyment from the antics of smart-Alec, sore-losing characters provoked at times by official inefficiency.

The speedboat, motorcycle, racing car buff differs somewhat from his counterparts. He is the thrill-a-minute type who gets his kicks from the roaring machines or boats rocketing over courses at death-defying speeds.

And, believe it or not, the icing on the thrill cake for the majority of these chappies is a boat flip, a two-or-more-car pileup or a motorbike hurdling a trackside fence into the infield.

But as was noted, roughness and near-violence in sport is "old hat." The two wee Scots who invented "gowf" by pushing small stones into holes with their walking sticks, tangled at the last "hole" over who would get the last "drapple" in the flagon of Hieland Dew they carried with them.

Mary Queen of Scots the first woman golfer flung her putter of those days at her "cadet" (caddy) when she missed the hole by inches. Two turn-of-the-century tennis queens had a dressing-room hair-pulling set which turned out to be a love-all match. A French king broke his billiard cue over the head of a courtesan when he missed a four-inch "putt."

And believe it or not, Harry Greb, middleweight champion of the world fought Mickey Walker the Toy Bulldog and beat him. Later Greb and Walker, close friends, took a taxi to a night club, got in an argument and decided to settle it in an alleyway. Walker won in what was reported to be the best fight ever fought by either of the pair.

A South American soccer fan, enraged at an official decision on the field, rushed out, drew a pistol and shot the referee dead.

The late John McGraw when he was managing the New York Giants drilled them into a war-making platoon. They counted lost the day either McGraw or a Giant didn't pop somebody. They formed a ring on the diamond once while two of the players took on a fan individually — and both got popped.

Charlie Herzog of those Giants and Ty Cobb of the Tigers retired to a Dallas hotel room and fought out a dispute of the afternoon on the diamond.

McGraw's Giants trod the baseball earth in those days as if they owned it. They went roaring into town looking for trouble and usually found it. They had to leave ball diamonds many times under police protection. And in those days the Phillies and Cubs were clubs loaded with dynamite, too.

These Giants used to outdraw any club in the country on the road. The fans of those days knew what to expect and went to see them start a fight. The Giants seldom failed them, but between fights they won pennants, too.

Sandra Post Beaten 1-up

BARRINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Jean Ashley, former U.S. national amateur champion, was upset and no fewer than eight matches went the full distance in first-round play of the Western women's amateur golf tournament Tuesday.

Miss Ashley, who won the U.S. amateur crown in 1965 and the Western amateur title in 1963, lost 2 and 1 to collegian Bobby Jo Gabrielson.

Sandra Post of Milton, Ont., was defeated 1-up by Mrs. Donna Gilliam of Whittier, Calif.

Medallist Barbara Fay Boddie, seeking a third straight Western amateur title, produced one of the few one-sided victories of the 16-match round over Mrs. Larry Dehority, 6 and 4

Frank Robinson Gets Pair * * * * * * * * * * Whip Tigers 13-3

Orioles On Wing; Clout Four Homers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

There isn't much the American League can do about Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson, Curt Biefary, Russ Snyder and the rest of Baltimore Orioles' sluggers.

But at least Eddie Watt is out of the way.

Watt said he wasn't ready to join the Orioles' slugging society just yet Tuesday even though he walloped his first major league home run while pitching Baltimore to a 13-3 rout over Detroit.

Watt's homer was the fourth of the night for the Orioles, who pounded four Detroit pitchers for 19 hits. These conventional sluggers Frank Robinson and Biefary whacked the first three. Robinson's 24th and 25th driving in five runs.

The result stretched Baltimore's first - place bulge over the Tigers to 9½ games.

Watt, a rookie reliever, went the distance in his second start, scattering eight hits and raising his record to 7-1.

Both Brooks and Frank Robinson ripped three hits apiece and Snyder, the leagues' top hitter, stroked two hits and raised his average to .336.

In the only other American League games Tuesday, Minnesota Twins swept a doubleheader 5-4 and 4-0 from Washington Senators and Chicago White Sox edged Cleveland Indians 5-4. Kansas City at New York and California at Boston were postponed by rain.

Robinson's first home run was a three - run shot in the first inning as the Orioles hopped on Detroit starter Earl Wilson. He hammered No. 25 in the fourth inning after Watt had singled.

Biefary and Watt homered in the sixth against Johnny Podres.

Both Robinsons left the game in the seventh after collecting their third hits of the game. Until he was replaced by a pinch runner, Brooks had played every inning this season.

Jim Perry allowed just two infield singles and drove in two runs as the Twins completed their sweep against Washington.

Perry retired 17 of the last 18 batters he faced.

Cesar Tovar, who scored the winning run on Harmon Killebrew's eighth-inning single in the first game, also drove in two runs in the nightcap.

Jim Kaat weathered a 13-hit Senator attack to win his 13th game in the opener.

Pete Richert had a 4-2 lead on a two-hitter through six innings, but had to leave when his arm stiffened. It was Richert's first appearance since the All-Star game. After that game, Washington manager Gil Hodges criticized Sam Mele of Minnesota for overworking Richert in the bullpen.

Pinch hitter Smoky Burgess delivered a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning, lifting the White Sox past the Indians.

Cleveland continued its slugging surge with homers by Fred Whitfield and Chuck Hinton. Jerry Adair had a two - run homer for the White Sox.

Cheesemen Win 2-1 Thriller

An infield smash in the fourth inning ruined Ken Leveck's bid for a no-hitter but failed to stop Black Diamond Cheese from nipping Stewart Warner in a 2-1 thriller last night.

The win boosted the Cheesemen into third a place Commercial Softball League tie with the Lightfoots. The two meet in a key tilt at the Alemite tonight.

Lyle Wannamaker got the only Stewart Warner hit and run, coming in the fourth to give the club a lead.

His drive toward second knocked over the baseman and the hurried recovery was too late to get the runner. He took second on a passed ball, third on a fly ball and scored on an infield out.

Black Diamond won it in the bottom of the frame. Archer tripled and scored on a two-base error. Douglas singled the winning run across.

Leveck struck out seven and walked three.

Doug Ellis lost a tough one. He gave up three hits, fanned six and did not walk a man. Both pitchers flashed good control.

Doug Archer's triple and singles by Jack Francis and Jack Douglas accounted for the winners' base hits.

Astro Pitcher Is One-Man Gang

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia Phillies knew before the game that the outfield grass in the Astrodome had been changed, but it's doubtful if they were ready for the change in Houston pitcher Dick Farrell.

Farrell scattered eight hits Tuesday night as the Astros climbed one game above the .500 mark by beating the fourth-place Phillies 8-2.

But the change in Farrell (4-6) didn't occur on the mound—where he has always been respected—but at bat—where he never has been feared.

The veteran righthander clubbed two singles and his first homer since 1962 in four trips. The homer came with two men on in the sixth and gave the Astros a 7-2 lead.

The game was the first played on a surface of artificial grass both in the outfield and the infield. The nylon surface has been in use in the Astrodome's infield all season.

Most of the outfielders didn't think the fake grass would make much difference. But left fielder Tony Gonzales of Philadelphia didn't like it.

"The ball bounces like a rubber ball," he said. "You can't hold your footing. It's hard to stop when you charge the ball. They should have left it like it was."

In the only other National League Games, Cincinnati Reds edged Chicago Cubs 3-2 in 16 innings, the longest game in the majors this year, and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Atlanta Braves 10-9 in 12 innings.

Don Pavletich's homer with two out in the 18th won it for Cincinnati. Until then, the two teams had played eight straight scoreless innings.

The shot came off Fergus Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., the Cubs' third pitcher. The Chicago rookie now has lost five of six decisions.

The Cubs, who left 16 men on base, took a 1-0 lead in the seventh. The Reds tied it in the eighth. Then after the Cubs went ahead 2-1 in the eighth, the Reds again tied it when Gordy Coleman doubled home Pete Rose with two out in the ninth.

Atlanta built up a 7-0 lead at St. Louis, but the Cardinals tied it with seven runs in the sixth. Each got a pair in the seventh and that ended the scoring until Charlie Smith singled home pinch runner Bob Tolan in the 12th.

Joe Torre hit a grand slam homer for the Braves in the first and belted a solo shot, his 24th, in the seventh. Smith also hit a two-run homer for the winners.

Cokes Will Meet Gonzales

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The chairman of the World Boxing Association's championship committee announced Tuesday night that Curtis Cokes will fight Manny Gonzales for the welterweight crown.

Emile Bruneau said the arrangement agreed upon was that both Cokes, a Dallas fighter, and Gonzales, of Houston, will post $5,000 bond guaranteeing that the winner will defend the title against the highest ranked available fighter, as designated by the WBA, within six months.

Portugal Panther New Soccer King

Defeats Brazil 3-1

LONDON (CP) — Portugal, the conqueror of mighty Brazil was established today as firm favorite to win the eighth World Cup, the trophy of soccer supremacy.

Brazil, the defending champion now clinging to a slim hope of survival in the world championship, was a long shot in the betting.

Such are the fortunes of international soccer.

Before the final series of the World Cup started July 11, Brazil was a 7-to-4 favorite to take the title for the third straight time.

England was 4-to-1 and Italy [illegible]-to-1.

Now what's happened?

Italy is out of the championship after a 1-0 loss to North Korea Tuesday. Brazil is almost certainly a goner.

In other games Tuesday, Argentina knocked off Switzerland 2-0 and Mexico fought Uruguay to a scoreless draw.

Portugal's odds before the cup matches started were 22 to 1. Today, two leading British bookies made Portugal the favorite. One offered the tight odds of 6 to 4, the other 3 to 1.

Portugal overpowered Brazil 3-1 Tuesday on the strength of two goals by Eusebio, the new king of world soccer, a 24-year old African from Mozambique whom the fans call the Black Panther.

His full name is Eusebio da Silva Ferrera. He grew up amid the hovels of Lourenco Marques, capital of the Portuguese East African colony. Now he is rich beyond his childhood dreams.

Eusebio, an inside left, has demonstrated in the last 10 days that no one in the world, Brazil's Pele included, is his superior.

When he first came to Europe six years ago, he played barefoot. He graduated first to one boot, then to two.

Now he has helped make his Lisbon club, Benfica, and Portugal's national team powers in the soccer world.

England still maintained its second favorite spot at 4 to 1. The host country's odds were based on the fact that it still has to qualify for the quarter-finals in a match against France today.

Portugal humbled Brazil at Liverpool in a match that saw Brazil's Pele, the dethroned king of soccer, injured in the 30th minute and limping through the rest of the game.

Eusebio's genius has given Portugal an unbeaten run in three matches in Group Three and made it winner of that section of the tournament.

The victory sent Portugal into the quarter - finals, together with Argentina, Russia and Uruguay. Out of the championship went Switzerland, Mexico, Italy and Bulgaria.

Italy's 1-0 defeat by the 500-to-1 outsiders North Korea was the most devastating shock of the tournament and plunged Italian fans into "tears of shame and disbelief," as one British soccer writer said.

Someone Europe had never heard of, a wiry little forward called Pak Doo Ik, scored the goal that put the Italians out of the cup.

Today's matches will decide the other four quarter-finalists. They also will decide first and second places in all four groups

Today's matches: (All times EDT)

At London's Wembley Stadium, Group One: France vs England 2:30 p.m.

At Birmingham, Group Two: Spain vs. West Germany 2:30 p.m.

Defeat Explodes Brawls

SAO PAULO (Reuters)— Fierce fights broke out in the centre of Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest city, when Portugal beat Brazil 3-1 in their World Cup soccer match in England Tuesday night. The crushing defeat virtually eliminated Brazil, the defending world titlist, from the tournament.

Brazilians of Portuguese origin and others of non-Portuguese descent leapt at each other in the Central Cathedral Square, but police were there in unprecedented numbers to prevent large-scale clashes.

Thousands again crowded into Cathedral Square to listen to the radio commentary on the match on loudspeaker relays and to watch flashing lights indicating the progress of the ball across a large model of a soccer field.

Newspaper headlines before the game prayed to the Brazilian star Pele to prove himself once more the "king" of soccer and the crowds in the streets hailed the opening of the match with a cry of "go Pele."

But hopes soon fell as Portugal went into the attack and the triple championship slipped from Brazil's grasp.

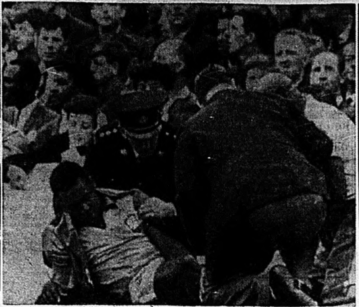
Brazil won the World Cup in 1958 and 1962. No country has won the cup three times.

Before the game, it was announced in Brasilia, the country's capital, that Pele was among three world-famous Brazilian athletes honored by President Humberto Castello Branco.

Pele is already an official national treasure, as a result of an act of Congress, which means he cannot be sold to any team outside Brazil.

SELECT McCREARY

MONTREAL (CP)—Bill McCreary has been named assistant general manager and publicity director of Houston Apollos of the Central Professional Hockey League, Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, announced Pollock also announced the appoitment of Ray Kinasewich of Edmonton as coach of the Apollos. Last season he coached the Edmonton Oil Kings.



BRAZIL'S HOPES FALL WITH HIM — Pele, mainstay of Brazil's championship soccer team and possibly the greatest player of his time, is aided on the field by Dr. Hilton Gosling and policemen after his right foot was injured by a hacking tackle in the World Cup game with Portugal in Liverpool, England, Tuesday. He was on the ground for two minutes and had to be carried off the field. Portugal won the game, 3-1, to seemingly end Brazil's eight year reign as champions. Only an upset in today's Bulgarian-Hungarian game can put Brazil back in contention. (AP Wirephoto by cable from Liverpool)

Belch To Resign

Tail Wags the League Dog

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Apparently everything that happened in Saturday night's Belleville and District Softball League "brawl" game was all right.

Or perhaps it just didn't happen.

The league "executive" decided this at a two - hour meeting last night.

No suspensions or other disciplinary action will be taken, against either players, coaches, managers or umpires.

"Umpires was the key word at the meeting.

One hour and 15 minutes was spent discussing how bad the officiating of Jim Tebworth and Mike Whalen had been at the game, won 13-2 by the Bobcats over Ellis Juniors.

Several motions, concerning Tebworth and Whalen were started out all fizzled out before being brought to a vote.

B. and D. past-president Harold Bawden, now president of the B and D. Umpires' Association, made a motion that the officials be indefinitely suspended. The league voted prior to the season to use the Quinte District Umpires' Association rather than the B. and D.

The Juniors' Dick Ellis seconded the motion but after consultation with team manager Paul Russell, withdrew. He told Cliff Belch Jr., league vice-president who chaired the meeting that "if we suspend the umpires you will also try to suspend the players."

Belch assured the meeting that he felt all concerned, including players, team officials and umpires had been in the wrong, "and the players should be penalized regardless of how you vote on the umpires," he told Ellis.

Honorary president Harry Rollins asked for a one - game suspension for the umpires, "because they let the game get out of control," but this too was talked down.

The umpires, not the players or team officials, were under fire continually, with the pushing of Dick Ellis, Doug Reid, Harold Bawden and Paul Russell

Talk of replacing the officials immediately was turned down by representatives from Madoc, Picton and Trudeaus, although the latter spoke of trying B. and D. officials for playoffs.

Bobcats' Bob Temple, who refused comment on several earlier questions did not think the move would be wise at this time. He also went against suspending the two officials "since they only have five and we need three for each game". Dick Ellis had stated moments before that only five of nine umpires named earlier were now with the Quinte Association. One of the umpires Ellis claimed no longer "belonged" worked the game last night.

League treasurer Allan Sills spoke of the "undermining of the umpires all year" and said he felt that the league should fulfil its contract with the officials.

Plate umpire Tebworth had forwarded a requested report, asking for action against players and officials from both teams. Both managers had also been asked for reports. Ellis' Russell sent one, placing all the blame on the umpires. Bobcats' Temple did not fill a report.

When players and team officials were finally brought in the discussion, the Ellis contingent led the "executive" in deciding that "since the umpires were not suspended, neither should the players or managers be judged".

Umpiring continued to dominate the meeting and Bawden told the meeting that "We have 16 umpires and can supply at least eight good ones for this league." Those in favor of switching officials let it be known that it would be different next year.

This reporter left for the ball game at this point.

Prior to the meeting, secretary Doug Reid and others from the Ellis group attempted to have this reporter barred from the meeting, but were voted down providing only a released statement from the league be printed.

None was given and Belch said he could no longer speak for the league, also indicating that he would resign shortly.

Juniors Defeat Madoc 1-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Jack Jury's two - out pinch - hit single in the bottom of the ninth gave Ellis Juniors a 1-0 cliff - hanger over Madoc at Alemite Park last night.

The win assured the Juniors of a berth in the Belleville and District League playoffs and left Madoc on the outside for the second consecutive season.

Superb pitching by Ellis' Bob Ethier and Madoc ace Larry Griffin featured the battle.

Ethier hurled perhaps his best game of the year. He allowed only two singles, both in the first inning, and the only other Madoc runner came on his own error in the third.

The big southpaw retired the last 21 batters in order, struck out 10 and did not walk a man, facing 29 over the route.

Griffin was touched for six hits in another walk - less performance. He struck out five and hit one, pitching out of a couple of tough spots. Errors hurt his cause and led to the only run.

In the bottom of the ninth, Art Barker got on with one out via the shortstop's error. Terry Wellsley lined a single to right, advancing Barker to third.

Griffin fanned Chick but Junior coach Harold Reid sent Jury in to bat for Larry Stewart. Jury cracked a single to left centre - and the Juniors had the game, plus a playoff berth.

Madoc sent one man across the plate in the first frame but he was called out for missing third base. Brian Gray led off with a base hit, Len Masters sacrificed and Bill Hughes rapped a single to centre, chasing Gray home. The appeal play washed it out and ended the inning. Ethier took it from there.

Terry Wellsley stroked two Junior singles and Carl Boomhower hit a triple. Jack Jury, Don Gardiner and Bob Chick shared the other base hits.

Top Stars Eye Championship

AKRON, Ohio (AP) —The Professional Golfers' Association golden anniversary tournament begins Thursday with the game's top stars harboring various reasons for wanting to win the final major championship of 1966.

Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Billy Casper, Doug Sanders and Dave Marr are among those who have an axe to grind in the 72-hole battle at the Firestone Country Club's 7,180-yard par 35-35—70 layout.

If Nicklaus tacks the PGA to his Master's and British Open victories, he'll become the first player to win three major titles since Ben Hogan won the Masters, the British and the United States Open and then didn't compete in the 1953 PGA.

Palmer still is somewhat shocked from his big blowup loss to Casper in this year's Open and a triumph would gilt Arnie's somewhat tarnished image.

PLAYER IN SLUMP

Player, the 1965 Golfers of the Year, has done virtually nothing this year in the way of winning. The diminutive South African was one of the first professionals to appear at Firestone and has been practising diligently since last Friday in an effort to shape up his game.

Casper has bet the steadiest golfer on tour this year and could all but wrap up 1966 honors by stringing the PGA title to his recent U.S. Open and Western Open triumphs.

Sanders usually is in the running, but never has won a major championship, although he came close in the British Open when be finished two strokes behind Nicklaus.

Marr's story has become a sad one, in that he has been completely overlooked despite the fact he is defending the title he won at Ligonier last year.

In the field of 165 is George Knudson of Toronto, who will tour the course the first round in a threesome that includes Palmer.

The tournament ends Sunday In case of a tie, there will be an 18-hole playoff Monday.

A PROPER GRIP FOR PUTTING

The whole object of the putting grip is to make the putterface look down the target line when it meets the ball.

I feel this is best accomplished if each hand faces the other in your grip, so that both hands work together as a unit.

You will note in the illustrations that the back of the left hand and the palm of the right face down the target line at address. The palms face each other. Both thumbs point down the top of the clubshaft.

In short, I have prescribed an almost perfectly balanced grip, one that minimizes any tendency to open or close the putterface during your stroke.

HYDRO ENGINEER DIES

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert M. Legate, 65, a well-known Montreal consulting engineer, died Monday in Hythe, England. Formerly with the consulting engineering firm of George Demers Ltd., until his retirement in April last year, Mr. Legate worked for Brazilian Traction in Rio de Janeiro and was for a time adviser to the Indian government on hydro - electric development. England Team Lacks Spirit

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—England expects to be Australia's closest competitor at the Empire and Commonwealth Games, but there isn't exactly unbounded enthusiasm about the over-all prospects of the team when the Games open Aug. 4 in Kingston, Jamaica.

"We'll have what I guess you could call a very good average team," was the somewhat baffling assessment Tuesday from Richard Hinks, a long - time Games official and England's general team manager in Kingston.

As expected, much of the interest in England's chances is on track and field.

Melvin Watman, a member of the National Union of Track Statisticians, thinks England has a "good solid team" for track and field, "strong in the middle and long - distance events, but with poorer chances in the sprints and field events."

LACKS SPIRIT

But another observer, who asked for anonymity, commented: "There's a general feeling that the team has been somewhat disappointing in its performances as a whole this year. Somehow, there's not enough of the devil in it—not enough of the devil in it — not fight. It's certainly not as powerful as the team we sent to the (1964) Tokyo Olympics."

England is sending about 160 athletes to Kingston, including 60 track and field competitors and nearly 40 swimmers.

About 20 of the track competitors leave Thursday for Los Angeles for an international meet there this weekend, but the bulk bulk will be going directly to Jamaica in chartered aircraft, beginning with a flight Saturday.

Travelling with England's team, but competing separarely, will be 60 athletes from Scotland, nearly 50 from Wales, more than 20 from Northern Ireland, 12 from the Isle of Man and six from the Channel Island of Jersey.

Hinks. said, "It's usually a fight between England and Australia in these Games, although this year I have a feeling a lot of the other countries are going to be picking off individual prizes."

England was runner - up to the host Australian team in the 1962 Commonwealth Games at Perth, ending up with 29 gold medals and a total of 78 medals in all, compared with Australia's 38 golds and 105 total medals.

Brazil Defeat Ends Reign

"Mother Swallowed Baby"

LONDON (CP) — The mother swallowed her big bouncing baby—some baby.

That seems to sum up today's British newspaper reaction to the sensational 3-1 World Cup defeat of world soccer champion Brazil Tuesday night by tiny Portugal, which is the mother country of the big South American nation.

"The kings are dead," mourns the Sun headline.

Sun soccer writer Peter Lorenzo says: "It was not so much a conquest as a formal execution—the end of an illustrious eight - year reign that has given the world of soccer some of its wondrous moments."

"Pele's K. O. beats Brazil," says The Daily Express. says The Daily Express.

"Pele is butchered—the Brazil's reign ends," says The Daily Mirror.

Brazil now can only hope that Bulgaria can somehow find the strength to achieve the impossible and defeat Hungary tonight . That is the only way Brazil can reach the quarter-finals.

Clive Toye says in The Express that the world champions withered "and died as Portugal scored two goals and kicked Pele out of the game." He and other writers say that Jose Vincente Lucas of Portugal did his usual skilful job of marking Pele and that Brazil brought in nine men who did not play in its 3-1 beating by Hungary.

Toye says: "Brazil was beaten not only by Portugal but by themselves. They were obviously nervous, as tense as a football team can be and Portugal did not give them a moment to settle down."

"Eusebio ends Brazil's reign", is the way The Daily Mail saw the struggle. Speaking of the numerous lineup changes. Brian James says: "It would be a delight to record that they went out like champions, beaten in a great game. . . . Alas, it was not so."

Eusebio gets full credit for his two big goals and James remarks of Pele: "In the 30th minute, the second of two very bad fouls on Pele left him limping and left Brazil without the one talent that could have saved them."

BLOOD BANK DRAINED

TORONTO (CP) — A blood drought has hit Toronto, a Red Cross official said Tuesday, and surgery will have to be postponed at city hospitals if blood donors don't come forward immediately. She said blood reserves in the city are down to 60 units of 2-3 pint each. The official blamed the shortage on hot weather.

CALL OFF SEARCH

CALUMET, Mich. (AP) — Fearing for the safety of workers, Calumet and Hecla Co. called off the search Tuesday for the body of seven-year-old Ruth Ann Miller in an abandoned copper mine. Burton C. Peterson, head of the company's Calumet division, said seepage of water from surface swamps was undermining walls and timber in the 3,000-foot shaft. Ruth Ann plunged into the shaft Saturday, after crawling through a hole in its concrete cap.

APPROVE TOURIST TOUCH

QUEBEC (CP) — Municipal authorities in Quebec City have come up with a new idea for giving the provincial capital an extra French touch. Miniature towers, of the sort seen in Paris, soon will dot the provincial capital's sidewalks, serving as the bearers of advertisements for theatrical, concert and other cultural events. The city council, out to push the community's French character as a tourist attraction, approved the idea of the advertising towers Tuesday.

Canadian Cadets Tops

(Reuters) — The Royal Canadian Army Cadets rifle team outshot 101 British schools who competed Tuesday at the Bisley shooting championships in the worst weather Bisley had seen for many years.

The Ashburton Shield public schools rifle championship was at stake but the Canadians were not competitors. They were just shooting under the same conditions, as they do each year, as a rehearsal for their match today against a representative British cadet team.

The best of the British schools, Oakham school, Rutland, scored 502 out of a possible 560, with Harrow school second at 500.

The Canadians, however, totalled 507.

The star of the Canadian team was Cadet Peter Paranuzzi, 18, of Tecumseh, Ont. He scored 34 out of 35 with his seven shots at 200 yards, then at 500 yards, with a thunderstorm at its height, put all seven shots into the bull for a maximum 35, making his total 69 out of 70.

His total was one point better than the top four British boys.

Cadet WO Philip Watt of Victoria, B.C., also won a Schools Hundred badge, in seventh place, with 67, and Cadet Maj. Peter Typer of St. Catharines won one in 24th place with 65.

ULAN BATOR FLOODS

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Floods on the Outer Mongolian capital of Ulan Bator have caused 57 deaths, Moscow radio reported Tuesday night. The floods began last week when the River Tola and its tributaries burst their banks after 48 hours of torrential rain.

Alouettes Release 8 Players

MONTREAL, (CP) — Three halfbacks, a trio of tackles and two linebackers were cut Tuesday, while a newcomer from the National Football League prepared to work out with Montreal Alouettes.

Darrell Mudra, the Eastern Football Conference club's coach, dropped halfback Bill Gray, Ernie White and Harry Bonner. Tackles released were Tony Manzonelli, Bill Ferguson and Ed Nowalkowski.

Linebackers Rene Ripelle and Jim Foster rounded out the slash. Riopelle and Nowalkowski are the only Canadians involved.

Mud Hens Whip Jets, Suns Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Starts are always the worst part of the game for Dick Hughes.

The right-hander lost his first International League game of the season with Toledo Mud Hens, but won his next four.

And Hughes had to overcome a shaky first - inning against league-leading Columbus Jets Tuesday night to post his fourth consecutive victory.

After giving up a run in the opening inning, Hughes struck out eight and hit a three-run bomer to lead the Mud Hens to a 5-1 victory.

Elsewhere, Richmond Braves defeated Jacksonville Suns 4-1 and a game between Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons was postponed because of wet grounds.

Mrs Albert Says Her Eddy Is Last of Walter Mittys

By MARGO ALBERT
(For Cynthia Lowry)

After years of motion pictures and television, Eddie Albert is the star of a hit CBS show, Green Acres, and now the public thinks of him as a simple city fellow down on the farm with a high-style wife whose name is Garbor. Here Eddie's other wife, the real one, tells what her man is like away from the cameras.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Some women marry Ivanhoes. Others marry Don Quixotes. I married Eddie Albert.

Television has him married to Eva Gabor on a broken-down farm. What few people know, including Miss Gabor, is that Eddie, my Eddie, is the last of the Walter Mittys.

He's the Grecian isle traveller, the gentleman farmer, the admirer of Dr. Schweitzer, the artisan skilled in working with stained glass, the great dancer, the yachtsman, the great bee man and the virtuoso winemaker.

Since you've taken this case history off the shelf, you might as well know Eddie's one Mitty who's been there and back ... with results.

The Grecian isles? As you read this, the chances are we'll be there.

The gentleman farmer? Our green acre in the back which Eddie tilled and planted himself bears witness to that.

ADMIRED SCHWEITZER

Eddie admired Dr. Schweitzer's work and dreamed of meeting him some day. While working in Roots of Heaven in Marquq, Africa, Eddie had a sunstroke. But at the picture's end he travelled by tiny plane and canoe to see Dr. Schweitzer's work at Lamberene first hand.

The stained glass artisan? It took The Longest Day to bring that ambition to fruition. In Paris, during the filming of the picture, he studied the stained glass windows in several of the cathedrals. Upon his return, he bought varieties of glass, and now creates melanges and constructions which we have around our home.

He learned to dance, and I think quite well, while appearing in Music Man in New York.

When he first came to Hollywood, he went down to the ocean and one day later bought a 58-foot ketch. One more dream had bitten the horizon.

The bee man and virtuoso winemaker? His ambition to "grow" honey didn't turn out that well. There's a photographer in town who still clutches his head in memory of a layout where an important part of the scenery went beserk. The bees went all over the neighborhood on a merry stampede. Only because Eddie had previously invited many nearby homeowners over to share the finished product, we weren't force to move away.

Eddie had always harbored the thought of making wine. As luck would have it, he ran into a friend who taught him how to cask the stuff. Many times I had to serve dinner to the little old winetaster. It was unsteady pastime to say the least.

Twins' Coach, Secretary Toss Punches

WASHINGTON (AP) — Minnesota coach Billy Martin and the team's travelling secretary, Howard T. Fox Jr., fought in a hotel lobby Monday night shortly after the team checked in from Minneapolis, a club spokesman said Tuesday.

"Martin and Fox had words during the course of the flight here and again in the lobby as the team was checking in," said Thomas A. Mee, director of public relations.

"After the rest of the team had checked in, they were the only two left. They had some more words and then just squared off."

Asked the cause of the fight, Mee said: "Nothing ... it was just one of those things.

"The flight was delayed in leaving Minneapolis and everyone was restless. They had words over some minor things." He didn't elaborate.

The fight was broken up by members of the team.

Goodbye Dolly, Hello Millie For Miss Carol Channing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it's goodbye, Dolly, and hello, Millie, for Carol Channing, bursting on the movie scene in Thoroughly Modern Millie, the flapper-age musical which also stars Julie Andrews.

"I play the richest woman in America," Miss Channing said.

To join the Millie troupe, the Broadway star had to seek a release from Hello, Dolly, with which she has drawn several millions of dollars through the box offices. The producer of the show is David Merrick, who is not about to let his prize attraction escape without a price.

The price: Extension of her Dolly contract to June, 1967.

"Oh, I just love Mr. Merrick; he's so—well, so honest," she said. "When I asked where he would send me after the picpicture, he said: 'Whenever the box office is sagging.' "

Miss Channing termed her character in Millie as a "victim of her five physical senses." The role affords her some smashing Jean Louis outfits and wild scenes as the fun-loving heiress. There is method in her madness: She hopes the movie will act as a screen test for the film Hello, Dolly, which will not be made for two years.

"I couldn't possibly expect them to cast me until I've proved what I can do on the screen," she said. "Producers need a screen personality for such an important property. That's why Elizabeth Taylor did Virginia Woolf, not Uta Hagen who originated the role.

"That's why Audrey Hepburn did My Fair Lady and not Julie, who had not yet proven herself in Mary Poppins.

"I didn't realize all this earlier in my career. I was terribly upset when they cast Marilyn Monroe in Gentlemen Prefer Blondes instead of me. When they invited me to the premiere, I sent off a 200-word telegram telling why I wouldn't attend—and I sent it collect."

Minor Baseball Results

Mel Barriage blasted Farrel Motors 9-2 behind the two-hit pitching of Wayne Farrel in a BMBA bantam battle at Park Dale last night. In peewee at the CNR, I.B.E.W. whipped the Bad Boys 15-8.

Farrel fanned 12 and walked three in his winning effort in the bantam tilt.

On the opposing mound, Steve Moore gave up eight hits while fanning eight and walking three.

Paul Hall slammed a homer and double to pace Barriages. Brian Coughlin stroked two singles and Bernard Howe and Wayne Farrel doubled. Randy Burke and Richard had base hits.

In the peewee game, Dick Griffin and Art Wellesley combined for a two-hitter victory. They managed four strikeouts and walked a grand total of 13.

The Bad Boy pitching combination of D. Smith and Danny Coulson were pounded for 12 hits while whiffing three and walking five.

Agriculture Group Holds Twilight Meet

NAPANEE — The Lennox and Addington Soil and Crop Improvement Association twilight meeting held last week on the farm of John Wright near Conway was attended by farmers from all parts of the county, with some of the neighboring counties. It is the second such annual event held by this association.

After a tour of the plots where the experiments are being conducted, those attending heard Bill Sutherland talk on the forage feeding of livestock from the standpoint of the practical farmer, Mr. Sutherland is the farm manager of the Massey Ferguson Farms at Milliken.

Both the farmers and their wives were interested in the illustrated talk given by J. H. Hulse of Ottawa. Mr. Hulse is chairman of the Canada Mysore project, which in its turn is a project of the Canadian Freedom from Hunger Committee. India is plagued with starvation and malnutrition, and yet two - thirds of its food is lost through spoilage. In an effort to remedy this condition, a food technology centre is being set up in the city of Mysore and Canada is assisting in training technicians who will work at this centre.

Mr. Hulse described conditions in India and expressed his belief that many lives would be saved once the people were taught how to save the food which now goes to waste.

Refreshments were served by the Adolphustown branch of the Women's Institute.

Denies Special Status

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer maintained today that the Maritime command is being given no special status in the armed forces as a result of a message Wednesday to commanders by the chief of defence staff.

Orders by Gen. J V Allard, chief of the defence staff, that the commander of Maritime command report directly to him merely spelled out a policy which has applied since Aug. 1, 1964, to all six operational commands, a spokesman in Mr. Hellyer's office said.

The message also promised that officers and men will be given a chance to be heard through their commanders on unification of the forces before Parliament sanctions a single armed service.

The spokesman said Mr. Hellyer and Gen. Allard were astonished that the direct line of communication to the chief of the defence staff was apparently unknown to Rear-Admiral William Landymore, fired Tuesday as Maritime commander, and to his successor, Rear-Admiral John C. O'Brien.

HAD BREAKDOWN

Mr. Hellyer's office said a breakdown in communications applied only to Maritime command and Gen. Allard's message was intended to make it perfectly clear that the Maritime commander had direct access to the chief of defence staff.

Gen. Allard's message said:

"The Maritime commander is responsible directly to the chief of the defence staff for the employment and operational effectiveness of the forces assigned to him.

"He is to exercise command over all Canadian maritime forces and has full responsibility concerning the functioning of Maritime command. Within this area of responsibility, the Maritime commander will act as adviser of the chief of the defence staff. Within the new machinery being set up by the chief of the defence staff, the Maritime commander will participate in decision-making and will be consulted personally on all matters affecting Maritime forces."

The message on command responsibilities referred only to the Maritime commander and gave no details of the "new machinery" for communication between the Maritime commander and the chief of defence staff.

Mr. Hellyer's office said commanders of each of the five other commands have similar responsibilities as those set out by Gen. Allard for the Maritime commander.

There had been no problems of communication with respect to the other commands.

NO STATUS CHANGE

The spokesman said Gen. Allard's message makes no change in the status of the six commands nor of the integration policies.

At the time Gen. Allard's

WILSON MOVES TO SUPPORT THE POUND — Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain steps past photographers and waves to crowd in Downing Street as he leaves No. 10 en route to tell the House of Commons what his Labor government is doing to support the pound. He told a packed, hushed House all wages and prices will be frozen for six months, and a flat 10 per cent surtax on all existing taxes will be imposed. (AP Wirephoto by cable from London)

Negro Mother, 16, 2 Children Wounded by Police Bullets

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A 16-year-old Negro mother and her two children, including a seven-month-old boy, were among five persons wounded early today when police and troops opened fire on an auto about five blocks from the riot-wracked Hough Avenue area on the east side.

A national guardsman also was hit.

Four-year-old Christopher Green was shot in the head and reported in serious condition at Lakeside Hospital. He was in surgery

Mrs. Diane Towns was hit in the face and shoulder Her son Emanuel Towns was shot in the leg. Ernest Williams, 12, the young woman's brother, also was hit in the leg. All were reported in satisfactory condition.

HIT IN LEG

Capt. James Pletcher, commanding officer of Company H, 2d Squadron of the 107th Armored Cavalry Regiment, was hit in the leg by a glancing shot. He was also reported in satisfactory condition.

Hospital officials said Mrs. Towns was listed as the mother of both children.

The mother, her children and the brother were in the auto, police said. The driver, not immediately identified, was not hit, police said.

Police and guardsmen tried to stop the car at the scene of a fire that hit a dance hall and skating rink at East 107th Street and Cedar Avenue.

The building was destroyed with damage estimated at $100,000. Police said the fire apparently was the work of an arsonist.

Patrolman Sam Heney was seriously injured and three other policemen were hurt when two cruisers collided while rushing to the scene of the fire.

National guardsmen and police had set up roadblocks at various intersections in the area to keep a lid on the battered Negro riot section after a night of widely-scattered fire bombings and vandalism.

"The emergency room has not been this quiet in a long time," was the report from Mount Sinai Hospital where many of the injured from rioting Monday and Tuesday night were treated.

Firemen raced to answer 119 calls—including 13 false alarms—in a hectic night punctuated by sporadic disorders in widely-separated spots.

But with 800 national guard troops backing up policemen, the trouble was minor for the most part.

Firebombs were hurled at numerous buildings, setting off small fires. Police reported window smashing and looting on some streets.

But the combined force of guardsmen and policemen held down any major outbreak in the Hough slums where rioting Monday and Tuesday nights left two Negroes killed by gunfire and 24 persons injured.

Two shots were fired about 3 a.m on Hough Avenue, a guard at a grocery store reported. Minutes later a parked car on the street exploded into flames. The bullets smashed into a metal sign within six feet of several private guards at the store.

Most of the firebombing and store looting was outside the Hough area, sealed off Wednesday by the guardsmen armed with rifles and jeep-mounted machine-guns.

Governor James A. Rhodes called up nearly 2,000 guardsmen Tuesday night on request of Mayor Ralph S. Locher. The mayor talked by telephone Wednesday with Vice-President Hubert Humphrey about the situation.

Locher said the vice-president offered "any assistance that you and the people of Cleveland may need."

President Johnson in a Washington news conference called for citizens to refrain from violence.

Wednesday night's vandalism brought an attempt to burn a hotel. A crude firebomb thrown from a car outside the hotel failed to ignite the building.

Policemen raced from one spot to another answering reports of window breaking, looting and firebombing. Policemen reported seeing several groups working on Molotov cocktails, the firebombs made with gasoline-filled bottles.

Guardsmen and police patrols ranged over an area 70 blocks long.

Arrests have mounted to nearly 150 on charges of looting, disorderly conduct, intoxication and carrying concealed weapons.

Railway Travel Is Upped

MONTREAL (CP)—Rail passengers who generally fall far behind cattle and grain as a source of railway income have come into their own this summer, the CNR and CPR report.

The railways say passenger traffic has increased by as much as 200 or 300 per cent this summer and advance bookings are being made quickly.

Neither railway was able to predict if this season's business will exceed that of previous summers.

"We never have any problems at this time of year," said a CPR spokesman. "The problem is attracting passengers in winter, not in summer."

The CPR reports that holiday traffic has tripled since the start of the holiday season and the company has added one extra transcontinental train a day to its service.

"And we're having to press some of the older railway cars into service," the spokesman said.

The CNR has added one train a day to its Montreal-Toronto run and one to its transcontinental service. It reports that advance bookings for transcontiental trains have reached 85 per cent of capacity. Montreal-Toronto trains are operating near capacity.

HIRE EXTRA HELP

Both the CNR and the CPR have hired hundreds of extra employees for the summer months. Most of these are college students taken on as dining-car staff on the transcontinental and Montreal-Toronto runs.

The companies say they have increased fares this summer because of the greater demand for their facilities.

Public Pressure Mounts To End Hospital Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Public pressure for settlement of the strike against 139 Quebec hospitals is mounting.

The Federation of General Practitioners of Quebec said Wednesday night that continuation of the work stoppage by 32,500 non-medical workers could delay treatment of diseases such as cancer. The strike began July 15.

"For some patients such delays can represent a considerable reduction in their chances of survival," a federation statement said.

It said the wage increases sought were reasonable and that the decision rested on the provincial government. "This would not seem to indicate a speedy settlement," the statement added.

But Paul-Emile Oliver, chairman of the labor relations committee of the Quebec Hospitals Association, said bargaining is moving smoothly at a stepped up pace.

A more cautious statement that progress was being made came from Paul Dalpe, chief negotiator for the National Federation of Services, the union representing the strikers.

The provincial government has the ultimate veto on any wage increases since such increases would raise the budget of the Hospital Insurance Service.

The government has appointed a mediator in the dispute, which affects 70 per cent of the province's hospitals.

The workers, with an average wage of $68.50, include dietary, laundry and housekeeping staff as well as orderlies. They want an increase of $8 weekly as part of a one-year contract.

The hospitals were reported early in the talks to have offered between $4.60 and $6.60 in a two-year contract.

Meanwhile, 53 Quebec hospitals were still affected by a strike of 2,924 nurses, members of another CNTU-affiliated union.

There are 8,000 other nurses on the job and 6,000 student nurses. The strikers are seeking a $20 increase that would bring their weekly salaries to $100.

Premier Johnson said in Quebec City Wednesday his government is studying the possibility of amending a number of laws to improve hospital co-ordination and prevent the recurrence of a big-scale strike.

Probe Report Portuguese Bombed Area

LUSAKA, Zambia (Reuters) President Kenneth Kaunda sent military and civilian government officers to a frontier village today to investigate reports that Portugutse airplanes had dropped bombs in the area.

A government spokesman said the officials were sent to Chavuma village on Zambia's border with Portuguese Angola to make an on-the-spot inspection of the district.

"This follows alarming reports of bombings in the area from the Portuguese which have reached the president in the past 24 hours," the spokesman said.

He said the president would announce what steps he would take as soon as the officials reported to him.

ISSUES DENIAL

(In Lisbon, a Portuguese defence ministry spokesman denied the reports. "There has been no bombing, nor incidents, in that area whatsoever," he said.)

The Zambian spokesman said security forces in the Balovale district on the border were being strengthened.

A United Nations official from the High Commission for Refugee has also gone there to inspect the situation, spokesmen said.

Powerful Union Boss Will Fight Freeze on Wages

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — George Brown, deputy prime minister, has returned to the cabinet fold after a night of high drama but Prime Minister Wilson still faces a period of political crisis as Frank Cousins, the country's most powerful union leader, flatly refuses to comply with Wilson's six-month wage freeze.

Left-winger Cousins, who previously quit his technology cabinet post over Wilson's wage-restraint policies, announced that his 1,500,000-member Transport Workers Union will not co-operate with the prime minister's wage-and-price freeze because the Labor party chief is not tackling the country's economic ills the right way.

Cousins — like Brown, who also is economics minister—believes the government's main aim should be to boost productivity, or industrial efficiency through wage incentives. Wilson Wednesday not only called for a six-month wage freeze but another six months of severe curtailment of wage boosts.

All told, the drastic deflationary measures announced by Wilson—ranging from higher consumer taxes to tougher instalment-buying terms—are estimated by James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, to produce perhaps about 400,000 jobless in a labor force that totals about 23,000,000.

POUND STRENGTHENED

Informants said that George Brown's proffered resignation, which he later withdrew, resulted from a Callaghan victory in obtaining the deflation measures. This immediately impressed world bankers and strengthened the pound on world markets.

Brown failed to turn up in his Commons seat when Wilson delivered his dramatic baby budget Wednesday and later disclosed he had tendered his resignation. Brown's aides said the deflation virtually wrecked the 51-year-old minister's five-year national plan for controlled economic expansion.

Wilson asked Brown to reconsider his position overnight. Labor members of Parliament also pleaded with Brown.

As midnight approached, Brown held another 80-minute talk with Wilson and emerged to say his duty is to stay in the cabinet.

Cousins, who retains his seat in the House of Commons, cound become the figurehead for a wider left-wing revolt against Wilson's economic strategy.

ISSUES WARNING

Left-winger Michael Foot already has given the government a blunt warning that he and some 40 other Labor members are dissatisfied with the relatively low level of overseas defence cuts, particularly east of Suez.

Edward Heath's opposition Conservative party has demanded a two-day debate on the crisis measures and has tabled a motion strongly critical of

Quebec Has Most Strikes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec kept the lion's share of Canada's labor troubles Wednesday with disputes in the province involving more than 48,000 workers.

Meanwhile, 5,320 workers braced for a long strike against Canada Packers Ltd. at plants in Charlottetown, Montreal, Hull, Que., Toronto, St. Boniface, Man., Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver. And a dispute within the union developed in a strike of 16,000 workers at the International Nickel Co. of Canada in the Sudbury, Ont., area.

The situation in Quebec Wednesday:

—32,500 non-medical workers at 139 hospitals continued a strike for an $8 weekly increase, though progress was reported in negotiations;

—2,924 nurses at 53 hospitals seeking higher wages also continued their strike;

—5,000 workers stayed out at four plants of Dominion Textiles Ltd.;

—1,600 professional employees of the provincial government maintained their walkout;

—914 Montreal harbor grain-handlers threatening a strike instead accepted a federal government plan for a joint committee to investigate new unloading techniques;

—800 drivers of the Quebec Provincial Transport Co. planned a "study session" July 29 to force company action on their complaints about Ontario-based buses operating in the province;

—4,500 Hydro-Quebec construction workers termed management wage offers "ridiculous" and threatened a strike July 23 which could disrupt work on the giant Manicouagan dam project.

In Toronto, a spokesman for the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CLC) said the union had funds for six months

Astros Splash Today

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) One of man's most exciting and significant space adventures reaches a climax late today when the Gemini 10 astronauts make a meteoric dive back through the atmosphere, bringing home a bundle of records.

Command pilot John W. Young, a navy commander, and space-walker Michael Collins, an air force major, planned to fire the retro-rockets on their fuel-short spacecraft at 4:31 p.m. EDT to start a fiery descent. The splash to a parachute landing in the western Atlantic about 550 miles east southeast of Cape Kennedy was times for 5:07 p.m.

A recovery force of ships and planes headed by the helicopter aircraft carrier Guadalcanal was stationed in the planned landing zone, where weather conditions were reported good.

Until the re-entry, the astronauts were to drift through space, conserving fuel and conducting whatever photographic and scientific experiments they could.

They were ready to come home after three days aloft. In that period they had had the hatch open three times—twice for Collins's activities outside and once to jettison items no longer needed.

RATED AMONG BEST

Despite problems that forced Collins to cut short two space excursions, the flight of Gemini 10 was rated one of the best U.S. man-in-space trips yet.

Flight Director Glynn Lunney said Gemini 10 proved the feasibility of rendezvous with both an active and a passive satellite — the Agena 10 and the Agena 8; that man can survive outside a spacecraft, and that a manned satellite can dock with a fuel tanker in spact for long periods and use its engine for manoeuvring.

Young expressed his exuberance when he closed to within a few feet of Agena 8.

"Fantastic, John," a ground station communicator exclaimed.

"I don't believe it myself," Young replied.

Young steered to within a few inches of the target, then backed away a few feet as Collins emerged from the spacecraft on the end of a 50-foot lifeline.

Using a gus-powered jet gun, he flitted over to the Agena and removed a micrometeorite

Idea U.S. Fliers Are War Criminals 'Deplorable and Repulsive' Says LBJ

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson said Wednesday the thourh that captured U.S. flyers in North Viet Nam have committed war crimes is "deplorable and repulsive" and the American people would act "accordingly" should Hanoi put them on trial.

Skirting questions about possible American retaliation if the pilots are placed on trial, Johnson told a news conference:

"These men, who are military men, who are carrying out military assignments in the line of duty against military targets, are not war criminals and should not be treated as such."

"We are ready . . . to sit down at a conference table under the sponsorship of the International Committee of the Red Cross to discuss ways in which the Geneva conventions of 1949 can be given fuller and complete application in Viet Nam," Johnson said.

Speaking to his first scheduled White House press conference in a year, Johnson placed the most emphasis on the situation created by North Viet Nam's threats to try captured American flyers — perhaps as many as 240—for war crimes.

The Geneva conventions say soldiers in wars declared or undeclared must be shielded from violence, intimidation, insults and public curiosity.

One development from the heavier American air attacks against the North, unleashed June 29 primarily against major petroleum dumps, has been public displays in the North of captured pilots.

North Viet Nam, daily pounded harder by American aircraft flown from South Viet Nam, Laos, Thailand or off-shore carriers and Guam, contends that the U.S. in not declaring war leaves its pilots legally open to war-criminal charges.

These threats, in which death sentences are possible, have shocked the U.S.

North Viet Nam says the U.S. airmen are subject to trial under the 1946 Nuernberg charter against war criminals. It was used as the law to try major German war criminals.

As the president said Wednesday, the U.S. has tried all "appropriate" channels to get the message to the North of the implications of trials and especially executions.

External Affairs Minister Martin, here for a foreign-aid conference, issued a statement Wednesday saying Canada at U.S. request was one of several nations approaching North Viet Nam on the matter.

He said verbal communication was made Monday but there was no way to judge what impact, if any, the Canadian step had made.

Martin said Canada acted on grounds of humanitarianism as well fears of the war escalation that might result.

The United Arab Republic, the Vatican and other interests also made approaches to the North.

Johnson warned that the absence of any evidence that Hanoi wants to negotiate means "we shall persist — we shall send such men as he (American field commander William C. Westmoreland) will require and request."

Current land-force strength in the South is about 300,000 with another 100,000 expected at or near the end of 1966.

Johnson said the rising mili-

34 Students on Pilgrimage To UN IOOF Guests Here

Thirty - four high school students from all over Ontario passed through Belleville last night on their way to New York as part of the 17th Annual I.O.O.F. United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth. The student delegates, aged 16 to 18, were greeted at Odd Fellow's Hall by Noble Grand George Cole of Belleville and Mayor Jack Ellis.

Joining the tour here were David Bonsor of Belleville and Ruthanne Tanner of R. R. 1, Madoc. David, a student at BCIVS and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Bonsor, was chosen as a delegate in a competition held by the Rebekah and Odd Fellow Lodges of Picton, Trenton, Brighton, and Belleville. The daughter of Mrs. Gladys Tanner and the late Calvin Tanner and a student at Centre Hastings Secondary School, Ruthanne was the winner from Tweed, Madoc, Thomasburg, Stirling, and Campbellford Lodges.

Belleville Odd Fellow and Rebekah Lodges sponsored a dinner for the delegates and their leaders - Ron Chiswell, Past Grand Master, Grand Lodge of Ontario, Mrs. Marguerite Rose, and Mrs. Betty Anderson, both Past Presidents of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario. Also in attendance were Ronald Bonsor, D.D.G.P. of District 20, and Alvin Miller, D.D.G.M. of District 47, I.O.O.F.

SIX - DAY VISIT

The delegates will spend six days on their UN Pilgrimage in New York where they will observe at UN Headquarters and interview representatives of member nations. More than one thousand young people will be participating in seven groups. Since the program began in 1950 over ten thousand students have made the pilgrimage.

A student making the trip last year had this comment to make on his experience: "This trip to the UN was by far the most thrilling and fulfilling event of my young life. It's unbelievable how two short weeks out of an entire lifetime can influence a person I hope I'll be able to tell others in the most expressive manner possible what a terrific and fantastic job the UN is performing ever day."

Selection of candidates is made during March each year by competition open to any student in Grade 10 or 11 who is 16 or 17 at the time of participation

Garbage Men Get Uniforms

There's been a new look in garbage collection in the city lately.

Belleville Sanitation Company, which collects garbage under contract from the city, has painted all its trucks and issued new uniforms to its employees. The company hopes to improve its image with this move.

GETS AWARD

BRANTFORD (CP) — Ernest Barber, 38, an operator-trimmer at the Steel Co. of Canada, received $1,710 Wednesday under the employees' sugegstion plan. The award, highest ever paid by the company, was for Barber's suggestion of an automatic bolt-trimmer which would be more than twice as fast as the present method.

tary advantage in the South has produced a battlefield-kill ratio of 10-to-1 in favor of the U.S. but "we have not the slightest indication that the other side is ready to take any action that would lead to peace."

REITERATES DESIRE

Johnson reiterated "our desire to engage in unconditional discussions" at the earliest possible date in an effort to end the war.

Meanwhile, Senators J. W. Fulbright and Leverett Saltonstall called for restraint in any American retaliation if North Viet Nam puts the pilots on trial.

Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat who heads the Senate foreign relations committee, said in an interview "if we start retaliatory action I'm afraid there would be no end to it."

Fulbright is a leading critic of Johnson's Viet Nam war policies.

Saltonstall, senior Republican on the Senate armed services committee, said in a separate interview that everything possible must be done to make it clear to the North Vietnamese that they cannot condemn American war prisoners as criminals at trumped-up trials.

"But we must act legally," the Massachusetts senator said. "We cannot engage in indiscriminate slaughter as a retaliatory measure. We don't want to make criminals of ourselves just because they do."

message was issued Wednesday, the department had described the line of communication between the six commands and the chief of staff as passing through the branch heads immediately below Gen. Allard.

Rear - Admiral Landymore had hailed Gen. Allard's message as insurance against future breakdowns in communication between operational commanders and the chief of defence staff.

Admiral Landymore, who met with Gen. Allard Wednesday, hailed the improved communications plan which he said would have headed off the crisis.

He wished "good fortune" to Gen. Allard and to his successor, John C. O'Brien, 47, whose promotion to rear-admiral from commodore and head of Maritime Command was announced Tuesday.

Admiral Landymore retires on about 70 per cent of his $20,000 salary.

Gen. Allard's statement said that before legislation to unite the army, navy and air force is presented to Parliament all personnel will be informed of the conditions of service and "will be afforded ample opportunity to offer comments upon them through their commanders.

Unless they volunteered, present personnel would not be required to serve in other capacities. For instance, no airmen would have to serve at sea, or sailors in army formations.

"There will be no change of uniform until the legislation establishing the new force has been passed through Parliament except for user trials of experimental design uniforms. The new uniform will be of a standard color and design but will carry distinctive badges or insignia to indicate the component of the force to which the wearer belongs."

Gen. Allard said within the new force there will be an adequate number of personnel for effective operation of the "currently-approved Maritime force program."

Admiral Landymore's deputy in Maritime Command, Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, is to be relieved of that post and as Pacific Fleet commander. He requested retirement, stating he could not support a policy leading to unification. His successor may be named next month.

Mr. Hellyer is to tour Maritime Command, probably next month, to discuss unification plans with officers and men.

Admiral Landymore said a parliamentary study of the program should answer his statements that it is neither more economical nor more efficient to weld the three services into one.

He said he had contravened service regulations by speaking out but "the circumstances had been made so difficult for me to communicate . . . that there was full justification for taking action."

Two - thirds of the exterior brickwork on the north side of this wing of the addition has been finished between the second and third floors.

To the south, in the planned 2 - storey block "B" of the addition, some 360 yards of skim concrete slab have been placed in the basement area.

Wilson was besieged by a flood of criticism and congratulations.

The mass tabloid Daily Mirror, which supports the Labor party, says: "This, at last, is government with guts."

The Tory - supporting Daily Mail says the baby budget means an end to prosperity. The country was in a mess and Wilson had been "forced to raid the pockets of every man, woman and child in the country to get us out of it."

"We now are certain to have a serious recession and unemployment is bound to increase substantially," says The Guardian's financial editor, William Davis.

experiment and a packet containing a microfilm letter.

Gemini 10's fuel had been scarce since an excessive amount was used to catch and link up with the "live" Agena 10 Monday, the first day of the mission.

TOLD TO RETURN

Ground monitors watched closely as Young conducted his manoeuvres around Agena 8 with Collins outside. When the fuel supply dropped to a near-danger point, Lunney told Young to stop formation flying and ordered Collins: "Get back in."

The hatch was open about 40 minutes, 15 minutes less than intended. While outside, Collins reported:

"Everything outside is about like we predicted. Only it takes more time for body positioning. This is indeed a problem. . . . I found that the lack of a handhold is a big impediment. I could hang on (to the Agena) but I couldn't get around to the other side where I wanted to."

The detection package he retrieved has been collecting micrometeorites since the Agena was left in space last March by the Gemini 8 astronauts.

The microfilm letter is a note from manned spacecraft centre officials and, in effect, says it was retrieved in space by air force Maj. David R. Scott. Scott had the assignment on his Gemini 8 flight but was unable to carry it out because the journey ended with an emergency landing.

WAS IMPORTANT TEST

The ability to dock with a passive satellite like Agena 8 is especially important to planners of space rescue systems which may involve retrieval of a disabled manned or unmanned satellite. It would be imporatnt on man-to-the-moon flights—where two dockings are planned—if one vehicle lost its radar.

In chasing the first Agena, Young and Collins expended two-thirds of their fuel, instead of about one-third as planned. This forced them to remain hooked to the Agena for more than 38 hours, using its propulsion system to dart through the skies, taking Gemini 10 at one time to a record altitude of 476 miles in setting up the rendezvous with Agena 8.

Agena 10 will be manoeuvred by ground command Friday into a 220-mile-high orbit to await another team of astronauts, probably Gemini 12 in October.

Lands and Forests Projects Exhibited to Conservationists

TRAYS OF TUBED SEEDLINGS being raised by the Department of Lands and Forests at the Bancroft Chief Ranger Office get close inspection from Clayton Hall, Warden of Hastings County (left), Chuck Heaney of the Timber Branch, and Frank Walker. Representatives of conservation authorities and reporters toured the Lands and Forests, Tweed District, yesterday.

By DOUG WALSH

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests is active in a variety of interesting and very important duties all across the province. That was brought home yesterday to a group of conservation authority officials and newspaper representatives who toured part of the area that is the responsibility of the Department's Tweed District Office. Tweed District Forester N. D. Patrick conducted the tour.

Highlights were visits to a tubed seedling project at Bancroft, and the construction site of a forest access road being carved through the bush from a point just south of Bancroft, east of Highway 62. Before the trip to Bancroft, the group heard brief, informative lectures provided by branch heads at the Tweed office.

First to address the group was Mr. Patrick. He explained that the Tweed District was one of 22 located across the province. Each District had its head office and chief ranger offices. Chief Ranger Offices in the Tweed District are located at Bancroft, Dacre, Napanee and Tweed. Tweed office is also responsible for the fishery research operation at Glenora and the fish hatchery at White Lake.

Branches in each district include timber, fish and wildlife, parks, lands, accounts, fire protection and research. There are about 115 permanent staff members in the Tweed District. Seasonal help (lifeguards, tree planters and so on) swells the number of employees to 200 at times. The counties of Frontenac, Hastings, Lennox and Addington and the southern part of Renfrew are included in the district. A Beaver aircraft based at Stoco Lake is a valuable aid in the Department's activities at Tweed and the Kemptville and Lindsay Districts.

FIRE PREVENTION

Bert Dunn, fire protection officer, classed fire prevention as the main item of concern in his branch. His department is responsible for protection of a 4,700 square - mile area. Mr. Dunn noted that in the past 30 years, there has been only a small increase in the occurrence of fires in this district, in spite of the increased usage parts of the area have been receiving from the public.

"People cause about 80 per cent of our fires, with lightning responsible for the remaining 20 per cent," advised Mr. Dunn.

He informed the group that there are 21 lookout towers in the Tweed District. Up to yesterday, there had been 92 fires in the district this year with a total of 332 acres burned. Average number of fires per year is 120. Cost of fire control is 9 cents per acre.

Fish and wildlife officer Russ Whitfield, gave the visitors a rundown on the activities of his branch, displayiyng maps on which year by year records are kept showing where in fractions of the law occur. Using colored pins, the officers are able to record the location of seizures, seizures and convictions, and convictions. Thirteen conservatio officers are active in this district.

SALMON AVAILABLE

Commenting on the introduction of the Kokanee – a fish he describes as a diminutive salmon – to an inland lake, Mr. Whitfield observed that further distribution of the fish will await the time when anglers show the interest and ability necessary to catch the comparative newcomer to the province.

"There were 250 Kokanee put in Boulter Lake in 1960 but so far, those anglers who have been interested enough to try their luck have met with little success in their efforts to catch this fish," he said.

Boulter Lake is located north of Maynooth and west of Lake St. Peter. It is 100 acres in size and about 80 feet deep.

Turning to wildlife, Mr. Whitfield said the deer situation in the Tweed District is "good." There is no indication that the deer are finding it difficult to eat well and often.

Chuck Heaney, Timber Branch, described the functons of his department as threefold. It is responsible for timber on Crown land, privately-owned land and land that is included under an agreement with various conservation authorities in the district. In the north, especially, Crown timber is available for the wood using industry. Tree planting is a major activity and the development of inaccessible areas is also of prime importance.

Under the Woodlands Improvement Act, owners of private land may now receive assistance from the Department of Lands and Forests, in managing their woodlots. Mr. Heaney commented that there has been a large number of inquiries received by his branch from owners interested in assistance.

A visit to Chief Ranger John Shalla's office provided the group with an inside look at activities connected with fire prevention and control. A fire fighting crew demonstrated its ability to get into action, quickly.

NEW PLANTING TECHNIQUE

When the tour shifted to the Chief Ranger Office at Bancroft, the visitors inspected the tubed seedling project underway there on a somewhat smaller scale than in other parts of the province. Malcolm (Mac) McLean who introduced the revolutionary planting method in 1957, was on hand to give information on the subject.

He and George Sinclair — both men are in the research branch — added the details as Frank Walker told the story of the process.

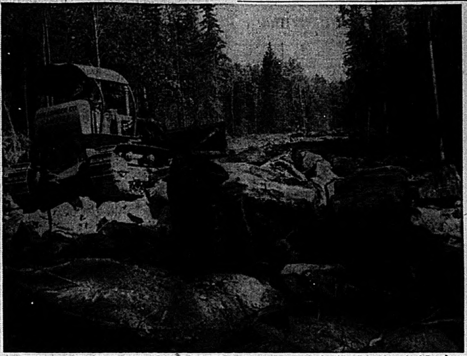
Sixteen districts in the province are involved in the tubed seedling project and it is expected a total of 16,700,000 plantings will be made this year.

Open-end tubes, three inches in length, are filled with organic earth that is commonly called black muck. Fertilizer is added to the earth and trays of 200 tubes are filled at one time. The seedlings are added, one per tube, by means of a device that holds the seeds in place over the tubes, with suction supplied by a machine similar to a vacuum cleaner. The seedlings drop into the tubes when the suction is released.

After a quarter-inch of sand is added, the trays of tubes are placed in a soaking vat and from there they are transferred to a portable green house. During the early growing period, the temperature in the greenhouse is 80-85 degrees. Later, the temperature is lowered to 70-75 degrees. At Bancroft, a period of about four weeks in the greenhouse prepares the seedlings for their trip to planting areas. When the roots reach the bottom of the tube, the planting operation can begin. A planting stick makes the hole and then propels the seedling into the ground The tubes decay, later.

This method is extremely useful in burned-over areas but Mr. McLean does not suggest that his method is the final answer to reforestation problems. He terms the project one more tool in the reforestation program. White and black spruce, and red, white and jack pine seedlings are being germinated by this method.

The access road project now under way at Turrif Road just south of Bancroft, will open up new areas for recreation and timber harvesting. Lands and Forests employees, under construction foreman Harry Quirk, are busy cutting the road through rough country, east of the highway. The access road will run through to the community of Gunter. Three bulldoers and a compressor are at work on the project.



GRINDING ITS WAY OVER LARGE ROCKS, bulldozer gets a workout as Department of Lands and Forests access road is chewed through rough going east of Highway 62, south of Bancroft. The access road will open up areas for timber harvesting and recreation facilities. A visit to the construction area was included on tour conducted yesterday by District Forrester N. D. Patrick, of Tweed.

ANOTHER OBSTACLE IS ALMOST OUT OF THE WAY as bulldozer operator has pile of rock levelled on Lands and Forests access road south of Bancroft. With completion of the project, new areas will be opened up. The road will go through to the community of Gunter, from the Turrif Road. Work was progressing on schedule, yesterday. Lands and Forests employee Harry Quirk is construction foreman.

Conciliation Board Asked By Locals

TRENTON — Kenneth LaBelle, president of Local 974 of the Textile Workers' Union of America, and representing 130 workers at Trent Cottons, said yesterday the local, along with locals in Hamilton and Dundas had asked the Dept. of Labor to set up a conciliation committee in view of the company's failure to meet union contract demands for a higher wage scale for female and lower category male workers. Mr. LaBelle said that less than five cents separated the company's offer and the union demand.

The union contract expired on July 13.

Fight Sidney Grass Fire

TRENTON — The Trenton Fire Dept. was called out yesterday to assist Sidney Township firemen in fighting a large grass fire at Glen Miller.

Following this, Fire Chief Cecil Ellis warned Trenton area residents against lighting rubbish fires owing to the dryness of the grass and underbrush.

Trenton residents are required by by-law to check with the fire hall before lighting such fires.

Men Readying Approach to New Bridge

TRENTON — Men from the H. J. McFarland Company are engaged in grading a strip of land between Sidney Street and Marmora Street, running west from Dixon Drive, preparing the road base for the eastern approach to the new bridge.

Other workmen are grading the land between Marmora Street and the river.

Meanwhile, John Gaffney workers have floated a wooden form into the river at the western approach to the bridge, and this will be used to form the most westerly of four supporting piers for the bridge.

PUC Awaits Clearance In Dispute

TRENTON — Officials of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission are waiting for legal advice before moving onto property owned by John Alyea, 69, of Murray Township. PUC manager J. H. Page said this morning that members of the commission are "awaiting clearance" before entering the property.

When application for expropriation of 12 acres of the Alyea property was turned down by the Ontario Supreme Court which ruled May 4 that the application was invalid because only the commission required the land, Trenton Council passed a new expropriation by-law on June 15.

Earlier, an application for a court order restraining Mr. Alyea and allowing the commission to enter the property, was dismissed by Judge J. C. N. Currelly of Northumberland County Court.

The property is required for development of a 90,000,000 gallon reservoir to serve the Town of Trenton. The project was halted in May, at Mr. Alyea's farm boundary after the farmer threatened to use his shotgun if construction crews crossed into his land.

Help Prevent Destruction of Spawning Beds

TRENTON — Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South, said from Ottawa yesterday that Donald Farmer, chief of canals with the Dept. of Transport had assured him that his department would work with the Dept. of Lands and Forests to prevent the destruction of pickerel spawning beds in the Trent River, below Dam No. 1.

Concrete on this dam is being replaced and the workmen have been letting the slabs of old concrete fall into the river directly below the dam.

Mr. Farmer said an alternate method of disposing of the concrete would be used.

He is reported by Mr. Grills to have said: "It's easy enough to replace concrete, but you can't replace spawning beds."

Mr. Grills, who visited the dam on Tuesday said that George Crowe, the superintendent on the job also assured him he was anxious to rectify the situation.

Mr. Grills also said he would check with the Dept. of Transport regarding the short stay of the Aquatic Weedcutter in the Bay of Quinte. The cutter arrived last week, presumably for a three to four weeks' stay, but left for eastern Ontario two days ago. The Trenton Chamber of Commerce has received upwards of 50 "complaints" from Trenton and area residents about the short stay of the cutter in this area.

Britain's Problems

In the early period of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government, Britain enjoyed its greatest prosperity in years. The Suez crisis was in the past and Antony Eden had resigned. After its fortunes had hit such a low ebb Britain had only one course open to it — to recover or suffer economic collapse.

Under Macmillan the country began to prosper. Savings were already at a high level as the result of incentives like the premium bonds which Macmillan introduced when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer. Production began to rise and as production increased so did incomes. With this activity came the inevitable wage demands, inflation, strikes — and eventually a gradual downward slide in the fortunes of the country, until today when Prime Minister Harold Wilson finds himself faced with the necessity of taking drastic steps to save the faltering pound sterling and re-establish confidence in Britain's economy.

Accustomed as he is to crises, and ready and willing to meet them head-on, Mr. Wilson has not been notably successful in solving them. Sanctions against Rhodesia and the recent talks in Moscow on the Viet Nam situation have achieved little. But these have involved issues of human relations, and opinion in Salisbury has long since hardened against Wilson, while in Moscow Premier Kosygin indicated the Soviets would make no peace moves unless requested to do so by the communist government in Hanoi. Indeed, Moscow reports indicated Mr. Wilson wore the look of a man fighting the wrong crisis in the wrong place at the wrong time.

But economics at home involve not so much the diplomacy involved in relations between peoples and nations as specific measures to ease the presures on the pound and to boost production.

While devaluation of the pound might have been a wise move when Labor was returned to power it is not regarded as such at this juncture. Such a step could lead to a world money crisis which would weaken the dollar as well and have an adverse effect on the economy of the entire western world.

Instead the government is reported ready to cut defence and overseas spending by more than $450 million to stave off devaluation. Plans to cut spending at home and what is described as a "wage-price-dividend freeze" are anticipated.

The realities of this situation involve a further reduction in British military commitments overseas. For example, a more rapid withdrawal of between 25,000 and 30,000 troops from Britain's east of Suez forces, and evacuation of Middle Eastern bases such as Aden.

Britain is also expected to make a final demand to West Germany to take over the $270 million foreign exchange costs of Britain's Rhine Army. If Bonn says no, Britain may ask its allies to release it from treaty obligations to keep 50,000 men in West Germany.

What is behind Britain's troubles? The country simply has been unable to ship or sell enough goods and services abroad to pay for its imports. As an island country its problems have always been compounded by distance from overseas markets, particularly from this continent. The recent Seamen's strike aggravated the situation. Now Britons face yet another bout of austerity.

Improved Relations

From the ashes of the recent dispute between CBC management and the organization's producers some positive results are being obtained.

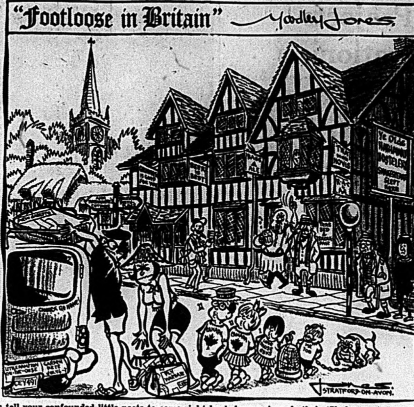
For example, the CBC has agreed to recognize an association of Toronto producers and directors as a bargaining agent and said it will begin discussions at once on a collective agreement which would include a grievance procedure.

The decision is seen as a major victory for the producers. One of their number was quoted as saying: "Three months ago, it was unbelieveable that we would ask, let alone be accepted."

He added that if the agreement had existed three months ago, the argument over the program This Hour Has Seven Days would never have arisen.

Perhaps the most encouraging sign of an improving climate between management and producers is the fact that Jim Carney, one of the Seven Days producers, and some of his colleagues are said to be reconsidering their decisions to resign.

"We're all very anxious to repair the damage "Carney said. "The climate has definitely changed. . ." This is all to the good. Enough damage has been done already in the affairs of the CBC. Yet it often takes a controversy of the magnitude of Seven Days to bring about closer understanding between groups holding conflicting views.



"You tell your confounded little poets to come right back here an' wash their 'Shakespearian' writings off the bathroom wall!"

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

July 21, 1966 . . .

Pope Clement XIII decreed the abolition of the Jesuit order 193 years ago today—in 1773—after years of pressure from political leaders of France, Spain and Portugal. Historians now think the campaign united radical revolutionaries and conservatives who hoped that suppressing the Jesuits would appease the mood for reform. Russia refused to put down the order and the next pope, Pius VI, secretly reacknowledged it in 1783. It was formally re-established in 1814 as a scholarly and missionary body, often thought of as the "shock troops" of the Roman Catholic Church.

1667—The Treaty of Breda returned Acadia to France.

1798 — Napoleon beat the Mamelukes at the battle of the Pyramids.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — Germans at the Somme counter-attacked in Leipzig Redoubt and French units consolidated gains south of Soyecourt; Russia's Brusilov offensive continued to roll forward across the Liga and Styr Rivers.

Canada and the Caribbean

Christian Science Monitor

We welcome Canada's entry into the Caribbean — for that is what last week's Canadian-Caribbean conference in Ottawa amounts to. It was a strictly Commonwealth affair The 13 Caribbean territories represented at the meeting are lands — some of them now independent — that have had long associations with Britain. Now that the tangible ties between Britain and its Caribbean territories are loosening, a closer association with Canada will help them preserve their identity. It will cushion to some extent their relations with the great and powerful American neighbor to the north, in whose sphere of strategic interest they lie.

The United States has long urged Canada to consider joining the Organization of American States, partly to offset the impression that the latter is simply a covey of lesser lands led by the nose from Washington, and partly to have a second wealthy North American power to share some of the regional burdens south of the Rio Grande. Canada has hesitated just as long about taking the step. The Canadian-Caribbean conference — and its successful outcome — does now give Canada a more active hemispheric role.

Closer cooperation between Canada and the English-speaking Caribbean territories is in fact overdue. (In time, perhaps, Canada — with its French-speaking component — may be able to help, where others have failed, in easing the lot of tragic and lonely French-speaking Haiti). Canada and these Caribbean territories share the same political institutions and the same ideals. As Prime Minister Burnham of Guyana said to Lester Pearson, Prime Minister of Canada, last week: "You have brought into being a new community among an old community. This is the birth of a Western Hemisphere Commonwealth bloc."

Already the 14 members of the bloc have worked out new agreements on economic aid, improved communications, freer trade and freer immigration — in which Canada plays generously the role of benefactor. The Ottawa conference decided further to set up permanent machinery and to reconvene in a West Indian country within a year. Altogether, this is cause for congratulation.

Respect Is a Rare Quality

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

Very rarely does one find a Chinese in prison. From earliest childhood, the Chinese are taught to respect their elders.. During their formative years, this develops into an ingrained, deeply-rooted quality that leads to respect of all authority.

It operates in reverse in our culture. "Every time a father shields a son who has committed some wrong," the Pathfinder writer says, "regardless of how trivial, he is putting in the fix. To the son, this means wrong-doing with immunity and he grows up believing that there will always be somebody around to take the rap for him or pull him out of trouble.

This is the beginning of the breakdown of moral values which are the best guarantee against wrong doing, when the conscience is the ultimate guide."

Every time a father breaks a traffic law with his children in the car, he is teaching them to adopt an attitude of disdain for law and order.

Bursitis Inflammation Of Sac Around Joint

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is bursitis? How long does it stay? Is there any way to ease the pain? — E. S.

• • •

There are small fluid - filled sacs which Nature put around joints as a sort of cushion, to let tendons ride easily. Such a sac is a bursa.

Because of injury or too much continued pressure, a bursa can become inflamed and sore. Sometimes too much fluid then gathers in the bursa. More pain and swelling.

Bursitis (inflamed bursa) goes under many names: "Housemaid's knee," when it develops from prolonged pressure from kneeling; "tennis elbow" from strain on that joint; "chauffeur's elbow" from the pressure of resting the arm in a certain position on the ledge of a car window. A few years ago a famous politician developed bursitis in his shoulder and during part of his campaign was unable to shake hands. He lost the election, although I hazard no guess as to whether that was the reason.

How long an attack lasts is rather unpredictable. Some untreated cases become chronic. Some are cleared up in a matter of a few days, but one should be careful not to abuse the joint afterward.

There isn't much you can do by yourself except to rest the irritated joint. If an arm or shoulder is involved, a sling may be the best thing for it. Hot wet compresses can be very helpful.

Your doctor,, however, has a number of things he can do for it. A simple pain reliever and rest may be enough in some cases. Injections of various medications, the steroid hormones (cortisone) being very helpful, often bring prompt relief, after which rest lets Nature do its repair work.

If the bursa is greatly swollen, withdrawing excess fluid by means of a surgical needle is an accepted procedure. Occasionally surgery is required, but this is rarely necessary if the joint has prompt and proper medical attention, and care is taken not to subject it to needless strain or pressure afterward.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send booklet "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." I enclose the required 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope. Can I improve circulation in the legs through exercise? — E. P.

Yes, but remember that something other than exercise may be a more basic answer. It depends on the cause of the impaired circulation. If, for one instance, varicose veins are the cause, exercise will not take the place of surgical or other treatment.

The so-called Buerger's exercise is simple and excellent when some moderate help to the circulation is necessary. It is described in the booklet which I have sent, but here it is, briefly:

Lie on your back. Raise first one leg, then lower it and raise the other. Keep each leg raised for a short time — half a minute, raising the leg helps blood flow back toward the heart. Lowering it permits an easy flow of fresh blood.

There's not much to the exercise, but it has proved surprisingly helpful to many people.

Excessive smoking can impair leg circulation.

Dear Dr. Molner: I just started taking birth control pills. Do I have to wait any length of time before I am safe from pregnancy? — A. J.

As I presume you know, the pills must be taken according to an exact schedule, starting on the fifth day after onset of a menstrual period. The 1st day of the period is counted as day one

Thereafter the pills must be taken for a specified number of days. (There is some variation, depending on the type of medication.) It is necessary to follow this schedule exactly.

I think one should take the pills for one complete cycle before being sure of their effectiveness.

It Is All Over Between Mr. Speaker and the Commons

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — While it lasted, it was, without doubt, the most enduring romance the House of Commons has seen in 25 years through nine Parliaments.

The love affair between the Honorable Members — all of them, even the tempestuous and temperamental Creditistes — and Mr. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

And then, as it does with all but those fairy tale romances where Prince Charming and his Lovely Lady live happily ever after, the honeymoon came to an abrupt end.

It happened in what might be called Parliament's "kitchen" — the Daily Question Period, the time and place where all the heat is — and if there had been dishes handy or a rolling pin, the honeymooners would probably have thrown them.

As it was, they exchanged only harsh words and harder looks.

And the romance, suddenly, was over, just as the Commons was about to recess for the short Summer that's left.

Perhaps it was the heat and humidity of July in the Capital, maybe it was the pressure to get done.

Whatever it was, the House and Mr. Speaker will never be quite the same to each other.

UNDERSTANDING

When they return in early October to their national housekeeping, it will be without all those stars of romance in their eyes, like a mature married couple, settling down, ready and able to make accommodations and compromises.

But since January it had been a real romance.

Daily the Commons, Liberal, Conservative, New Democrat, Socred and Creditiste alike deluged Mr. Speaker with compliments.

He was just what this House of Minorities needed most. A superb politician, a skilful diplomat, a pleasant personality, a master of the rules and forms of Parliament with what must be an instinctive talent to enforce them — and what's more, make them work to everyone's satisfaction.

This House, more sworn at than sworn by, was proud of Mr. Speaker.

His was an image shining bright and it reflected on the tarnished mirror of Parliament's own.

Through scandal, the smear of spies and sex and all things that have done so much to discount and denigrate this particular Parliament, Mr. Speaker, a person apart, remained immaculate.

He handled the House with an artistic hand, playing it with the great inner understanding of a virtuoso at the organ.

Alone of all the eight Speakers of the last quarter century, he could call the Prime Minister and the Opposition Leader to order.

There have been others who wouldn't dare.

Would scarcely dare even to rule a Member of the Cabinet out of order.

But Lucien Lamoureux did. And all concerned took it. Gracefully.

ACCEPTED CURB

The Opposition went so far as to willingly accept, as an experiment in this Session, a strict limitation on the time allowed for the Daily Question Period.

And this is the time in the Parliamentady day dearest to Opposition hearts, for it's when they get their best licks in at the Cabinet.

But the Opposition thought so much of Mr. Speaker it strung along with the time limit on questions. No stringing along now likely next Fall.

And then, like a thunderclap on a sultry afternoon, there came this explosion of hostility.

It cracked out of a serene Parliamentary sky.

External Affairs Minister Martin, perhaps by accident, possibly by design, had made an extended statement, gobbling up an inordinate amount of the Question Period.

Patiently, Gordon Aiken, Conservative MP for Parry Sound Muskoka had been bobbing up and down for nearly an hour, trying to catch Mr. Speaker's eye.

He was still standing when the Question Period expired and Mr. Speaker, turning his back on the House, left the chair and the chamber.

Furious, Mr. Aiken moved unsuccessfully to recall Mr. Speaker and compel him to listen to his question.

It was the first challenge to Mr. Speaker's until-then presumed infallibility.

The first questioning of his code of equity for all Members and their Parties.

And all of a sudden you heard whispers that he hadn't been so wonderful, really, after all. That it often seemed to matter who you were and where you sat in getting his nod to ask your question.

And so it's over, that first fine rapture of this remarkable romance.

And probably with it, those limits on questions.

From Christ to Karl Marx

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The founder of every creed, from Jesus Christ to Karl Marx, would be appalled to return to earth and see what has been made of that creed, not by its enemies, but by its most devoted adherents.

The upper classes deplore the lower classes' "Lack of respect for law and order"; but why should they respect law and order when they constantly hear the upper classes referring to "government" in a deprecatory way, as if it were some alien force inimical to their interests, instead of the instrument through which they act?

Old people gain a reputation for wisdom when they succeed in out-living all those who could recall how foolish they were in younger years.

More than a generation ago, Henri Bergson anticipated one of our chief modern problems, when he observed: "The extreme scarcity of political leaders of any calibre is due to the fact that they are called upon to decide at any moment, and in detail, problems which the increased size of societies may well have rendered insoluble."

Low wages are not cheap wages; what the individual employer withholds, the whole society must pay for, many times over.

When we draft young men for a war, we reject the physically unfit, the mentally inferior, and the morally deficient — leaving them home to reproduce the race, while we send out the finest stock to be killed off; this is what each country calls "defending the future of the nation."

When any group is denied equality long enough, it no longer seeks equality — it seeks superiority: hence, the tragedy of Black Muslims.

The paradox of lawlessness in our society is that the public is most tolerant of gambling and most resentful toward syndicate "gangland" operations — yet it is organized gambling that provides the bulk of the bankrolll for syndicate operations and influence everywhere.

Whoever divided sheep and goats and put himself among the goats?

Even though education is our largest industry ($39 billion a year), whole business spends about 10 percent of revenues on research and development, we allocate less than one-tenth of 1 percent of our educational expendituress to research, and thus still don't know the best ways to teach children.

As Jean Piaget, the noted French child psychologist, tartly put it: "In my view, too much research in learning has been done with a degenerate animal, the rat!"

Handy With Pen

The War Cry

The last public letter-writer in Naples, Italy, Carmine Forte, forty-four died at his desk recently.

"Carminiello the Scrivener" was loved by those Neapolitans who could not read or write their own letters. Mothers came to him to send advice and gossip to sons in the army, or to have him read their replies. He was the confidante of illiterate country girls and helped compose their love letters to their boy friends.

The only concession Carmine made to the twentieth century was a ball-point pen which a few years ago replaced his goose quill.

Two CF-104 Squadrons Go to Germany

OTTAWA (CP) — The two squadrons of CF-104 reconnaissance aircraft now stationed at Marville, France, will be transferred to the two Canadian air bases in Germany, Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday.

The announcement, expected for some time, follows President de Gaulle's decision in March to oust all foreign armed forces which are not under France's control from French soil.

Mr. Pearson, in a prepared statement, said the two squadrons of the 1st Canadian Air Division at Marville will be placed into the six "augmented" squadrons at Zweibrucken and Baden-Soelingen in Germany.

The prime minister said two squadrons will be assigned to reconnaissance or to a strike role with some reduction in the number of CF-104 aircraft operated by the division. It has been recognized for some time that this reduction would be necessary by next year for "technical reasons."

RCAF Cadets To Exchange Tour Programs

Two groups leave July 29 on three-week tours. One group of 25 will tour England and Scotland, while a group of 15 will tour Florida, Texas, Colorado and Washington, D.C.

Fifteen U.S. cadets arrive at Trenton July 28 for tours of Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

L.A. BRANCH 428

TWEED — The regular monthly meeting of Tweed Branch of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion No. 428 was held at the cottage of Mrs. Jack Begley.

After a delicious potluck supper there was a short business meeting. Plans were completed for the tea and bake-sale which was held on Saturday in the Legion Hall. It was agreed to hold a dance in the Park Pavilion in the middle of August as well as the annual Labor Day dance. Ideas were discussed as how the Auxiliary would carry on their part in the Centennial celebrations and was left to discuss further at the September meeting.

Arrest Two After Holdup At Pakenham

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—Two men were charged with armed robbery Wednesday night several hours after bandits robbed the Royal Bank of Canada at Pakenham, Ont., 30 miles west of Ottawa, of $10,000 about noon.

Scheduled to appear in Perth County magistrate's court today were Colin Edward Bowes, 18, of Glasgow Station and Joseph Bruce Hunt, 26, of Renfrew.

Provincial police at Perth said they have recovered all of the money. It was found in a discarded briefcase that also contained two guns.

A helicopter, called in from Ottawa, 50 miles east of here, spotted a car police said they believed was involved in the robbery, on Highway 17, about five miles east of here, and tipped police who stopped the men for questioning.

Road blocks were set up throughout eastern Ontario after the men herded bank manager Ian McFarlane and teller Doreen Downey, 22, into the bank vault, and escaped with cash from the vault and the teller's cash drawer.

The railways said a strike by employees of major airlines in the United States has not played a significant part in increasing the volume of the railway passenger traffic this summer.

Remand Man Over Mailing Of Invoices

KITCHENER (CP) — Dieter Van Vlorop, 25, was remanded until Aug. 17 when he appeared in court Wednesday on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Some 12,000 invoices had been sent out to Canadian and United States companies offering registration of their products in an international trade directory for a $14.75 fee.

Van Vlorop, who arrived here from Germany in February, worked as a tool and die maker in nearby Preston. He appeared in court before noon but the case was adjourned because he requested an interpreter before the charge was read. The remand was given when the case resumed in the afternoon.

Van Vlorop was released on $500 cash or $1,000 property bail.

Police seized cheques totalling $1,253.75 and 1,200 replies from a post office box Tuesday.

and anticipated a long strike. The union is seeking a 33-per-cent wage increase together with social and job security benefits.

Developments in the Inco strike brought disagreement between leaders of 1,000 strikers who manned picket lines Wednesday and the union bargaining committee of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

In Toronto talks Tuesday the bargaining committee agreed to permit company personnel to enter 14 Inco properties in the Sudbury district. But 300 picket leaders rejected the arrangement at a meeting in Sudbury Wednesday night.

In Hamilton, 200 dockworkers remained out in a wildcat strike to gain pay increases granted to longshoremen in Montreal last month.

A new two-year contract calling for a 40-cent-hourly pay boost was signed between the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) and Forest Industrial Relations, representing 20 British Columbia lumber companies. The contract will affect about 26,000 IWA workers. A week-long strike by 26 IWA members at Richmond, B.C, ended as a result of the signing.

Susanna's Family Fare

AN OLD TRUTH

Hello, Susanna: Is there a doctor's wife in the house?

If so, she'll agree with me, I'm sure, that they are notoriously absent minded. In fact I strongly suspect that their patients' symptoms are much more prominent in their minds than we, their wives, are.

Maybe other husbands are like this too They never remember instructions and if we write it all out they either lose the note or never see it in the first place.

My present method is working about 100 percent.

If I'm going to be away for a few days, I write such urgent trivia as garbage collection days when and where to leave the shirts for the laundry, the milkman's schedule, etc., directly on the face of the refrigerator door with a dark pencil.

He and my son (who is just as bad) can't possibly miss this, and when I return I simply wipe it off neatly and completely. — A. P. K.

Of course. The way to a man's mind is through his stomach!—SUSANNA

CHEESE, PLEASE

Dear Susanna: Both our sons presented me with lovely, polished wood boards they had made at manual training, neither of which I have any need for, since I have a built-in one in my kitchen.

But what a use I found for them!

Turn them over to the smooth undecorated side, and presto! Instant cheese boards. — Mrs. M. Carlysle

. . . and everyone has use for a couple of cheese boards! SUSANNA

RHUBARB-ORANGE PUDDING

It comforts my thrifty nature to give you an economical dessert which is at the same time easy to make from ingredients most housewives have on hand.

Today's Rhubarb and Orange Pudding is in this category and was given to me by one of our readers — Margaret W.

When we tested it we made our inevitable little changes and served it for dessert for the current evening meal.

You need 3 cups diced rhubarb and 1 large orange. All of the remaining ingredients will be in your cupboards or refrigerator.

RHUBARB AND ORANGE PUDDING (serves 5):

Filling: 3 cups diced raw rhubarb, ¾ cup granulated sugar (first amount), juice and grated rind of 1 large orange.

Batter: ¼ cup butter or mar-garine, ½ cup granulated sugar (second amount), 1 large egg, 1½ teaspoons milk or evaporated milk or cream, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon single-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt.

NOTE:

If you have a baking dish that may be placed over direct heat, such as corningware, use it for this, for that saves one extra dish when it comes to washing up.

Into a saucepan (or top-of-stove-proof baking dish — see above note) measure the rhubarb and sugar (first amount), orange juice and rind, mix and let stand 10 minutes. Then simmer over low heat until rhubarb is just softened.

Meanwhile mix the batter: In mixing bowl cream together the butter or margarine and sugar (second amount) until light then beat in the egg and milk or cream and vanilla. Sift the sifted flour, baking powder and salt over them and beat in.

If rhubarb mixture is cooked in saucepan transfer it to baking dish. Spoon batter in mounds over hot cooked rhubarb. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes (or at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes.

NOTE:

The fruit base of this pudding is moist so you do not need to provide milk or cream to pour over it when it is served. Surprisingly this pudding is good cold too.

Vanity Can Be Hazard In Traffic

TORONTO (CP) —Womanly vanity can be a hazard in traffic, says a Toronto policeman.

Those long false eyelashes, for example. Whether you glue them on one by one or in a strip, they prevent you from seeing properly when driving a car, says Patrol Sgt. Al Keates.

One solution is to trim them in length. But if you're going to do that, there's no point in wearing them in the first place.

Long necklaces and loopy bracelets are also dangerous if the gear shift is under the steering wheel. And swivelling the rear-view mirror to fix your makeup is a mistake—you can't look at yourself and follow traffic at the same time.

Sandals may be cool, the sergeant admits, but they slip on the feet and may catch under the brake pedal. Narrow high heels aren't much better—they catch on the floor covering.

"Women are becoming a little more careless than they used to be," Sgt. Keates says. "Once they were over-cautious. Now their indecision is greater and involves them in more infractions of the law."

Vanity isn't the only hazard. Some women carry on long conversations with passengers and spend much of the time gesticulating with their hands, he says.

Ann Landers

Playmate Loves Poor Prospect for Husband

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please don't throw my letter in the wastebasket because my story is such an old one. It will probably bore you silly, but it's the most important thing in my life.

ANN LANDERS

It started with a cup of coffee and a shoulder to cry on. His wife was too busy, too tired, or too disinterested to give him any attention. He had been watching and admiring me for months. He was sure I was the woman he should have married.

To make a long story short, I divorced my husband and gave up my children and my home. My lover is still with his wife. I felt sure that she had too much pride to continue to live with him if she knew about us. So I saw to it that she did find out, but it didn't change a thing. She refuses to give him a divorce.

He spends more time with me than he does with his wife and family and I know he loves me. I have given up everything for this man and now I need to know how to get him to make up his mind about which one of us he wants. — NEED HIM.

DEAR NEED HIM: He has made up his mind. This man is going to stay with his family and keep you as a playmate for as long as you are willing. Lover Boy has nothing to lose. You've already lost everything, including your hold on reality.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 16-year-old daughter has a boy friend who is in the service. He is stationed several hundred miles from here.

We had an understanding with the boy's mother that he would call our daughter collect and the mother would reimburse us. Last month our bill showed long distance calls totalling $27.

The boy's mother has not even asked us what the phone bills have been and my husband is getting pretty mad. Our daughter has asked us not to start a fuss as the woman will one day be her mother-in-law and she doesn't want any trouble.

Please tell us how to handle this matter. — IN THE RED.

DEAR RED: Tell your daughter she may not accept any future collect calls. This was a very poor arrangement to begin with and was bound to lead to trouble.

If mom wants to finance the calls she should send her son the cash so he can put the coins in the phone and pay as he goes.

Mail your phone bills to the boy's mother with a little note saying, "We would appreciate your cheque for these calls — which was our agreement."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How can I get a 44-year-old man to grow up?

My husband is so babyish he makes me sick. When the mailman comes up the walk he rushes out, grabs all the mail and opens everything.

Our 17-year-old daughter receives letters from her boy friends and she gets furious when her dad reads them first. Our 15-year-old son can now beat his dad at tennis so he refuses to play with the boy. — I need help. — D-39.

DEAR D: And how old was the baby when you married him? I'll bet he hasn't changed much in the last 20 years — or maybe even 30.

Ignore his infantilism and keep the family on an even keel. Your children need to see a mature adult in operation and you're the only candidate at hand. It's a cinch they won't see much maturity if they look at their father.

* * *

Confidential to DON'T WANT TO PUT HIM IN THE POORHOUSE: Play it safe and ask him what he feels like eating. If he says, "I'm not hungry," and orders light, curb your appetite until you get home, where the food is free.

Italian Fashions Featuring His-and-Hers Trouser Suits

By LEONORA DODSWORTH

ROME (AP) — His-and-hers trouser suits scored a triumph at the Italian fall-winter high-fashion showings Wednesday night.

Designer Marucelli got plenty of laughs and applause from the audience of fashion writers and buyers with mad, Mod styles for both sexes. Glen plaid suits for both partners had brief jackets and flared, knife-edge creased pants.

Another designer, Mila Schon, showed straight-cup pants of Bermudas, mandarin jackets and long-bodied, collarless coats that formed a bell below a low-gathered waist. For these she used smooth, double-faced wools that frequently paired purple and petunia.

Marucelli's fuzzy furs had a polar look. They had huge hoods and were worn with matching fake fur leggings. Bright awning stripes were used for fitted fake fur coats for both girls and boys. These buttoned high like the Edwardian styles worn by the Beatles.

Pants suits in caramel-colored wool had bulging footballer shoulders on jackets that were lined in shaggy Mongolian lamb.

RESEMBLED BLANKETS

Pagoda-flared coats, always worn over pants, were warm and woolly in fabrics that resembled Indian blankets.

Long hair has really flowed at the Italian fashion showings. When Britain's swinging hairstylist, Vidal Sassoon, in town especially for the Schon show, cropped heads in cap-like cuts, it caused something of a sensation. But many liked the cropped cut with Schon's clean, uncluttered clothes.

Her styles featured a lean-bodied look and bounced into a low, panniered flounce. Simple, sleeved tunic dresses in gauzy chiffon—embroidered with gold beads and crystal—got a standing ovation, as did a quartet of models all wearing similar white evening gowns that had tightly fitted, mushroom-pleated bodies.

Jole Veneziani, who started her fashion career as a furrier and moved on later to designing clothes, still has a yen for furs. In her fall-winter collection were a sable tent coat and a mink, wide-striped in black, white and grey.

Veneziani was yet another designer to use the smooth, compactly woven wools so popular here. Her evening creations had a lunar look in gold and silver lame. Stockings were spangled too.

Prelude to a Funeral

'When I'm Drunk I Don't Give a Damn, I'm the Only Person in the World'

By CHARLENE ARMSTRONG
of the Hamilton Spectator

HAMILTON (CP) — "I wouldn't steal or beat anyone up when I'm sober. But when I'm drunk I don't give a damn who sees me or what I do. I'm the only person in the world."

Less than a week after our conversation, the Hamilton youth who said this was killed when the car he had stolen crashed.

Many — probably most — members of middle-class society would just dismiss him as a young punk, a kid who drank deliberately and was out looking for trouble. But he did have a reason for drinking—to forget, to escape from a life which had given him a large share of bad breaks.

In this way, he was typical of many so-called problem youngsters from poor family backgrounds. Their drinking, which may start in the early teen-years, is often an escape from a way of life which most Canadians would find intolerable.

A man who works closely with these troubled, rebellious young people in their own surroundings is Rev. Alan Matthews, executive director of Youth Anonymous. He says about half the young people he knows are from alcoholic families. The rest are from homes where there are other bad habits, such as poor spending or earning patterns, infidelity or jealousy.

BLAMES INSECURITY

Says Mr. Matthews: 'Many of these kids started day one with insecurity. . . . The mothers were unsure of the fathers, of their love or even of where they were. Maybe when the baby was born, the mother had a mental breakdown and spent some time in an Ontario Hospital.

"These kids suck people in, conning them, using them, taking in everything they can. They suck on a pop bottle or a beer bottle. They can't learn to give because they've never received anything, so have nothing to give anyone else."

Although most of these teen-agers drink at least occasionally, drinking is not usually their main problem. Drugs, sex, gambling, fighting and theft are other means of these young people of expressing themselves or getting attention because, for some, attention even from the police is better than none at all.

A young Irish minister who is a jail chaplain and works with teen-agers in Hamilton's downtown area believes the problem of these youngsters is one of alienation, of being cut off from normal social relationships.

NEED TO BE ACCEPTED

Rev. W. McMillin Carson, youth director of Wesley Community Centre, says they have several characteristics — a sense of apathy, total frustration, no self-discipline, a mistrust of people, poor intrapersonal relationships, a tendency to follow their instincts.

The minister and social worker believes that all teenagers need to feel recognized and wanted. If these needs cannot be met in socially acceptable ways, such as success at school or love at home, the teen-ager will look somewhere else — maybe to liquor. He can drink with the other guys and be accepted.

"Maybe then he'll steal a car, just for fun. In five years, when he's really in trouble, we'll be saying that if he could only stay off the booze he'd be all right. But his problem is something deeper than booze. . . . If none of these kids drank, they'd still get into trouble. Many of them have personality defects and drinking is just one way to escape from a tedious, monotonous life."

BOOSTS EGO

In talking about why they drink, some of the older teenagers admit that "to feel big" is a major reason. This coincides with Mr. Matthews's explanation: "It gives these kids a feeling of bravado, that they can beat the world, even though it's a false bravado."

Shocking tragedies as a direct result of teen-age drinking, resulting in public outcry, are relatively rare, says Police Chief Kenneth Skerrett of the neighboring community of Burlington.

Hidden but just as tragic are the innumerable, heartbreaking events known only to friends and family: the car accidents, the pregnant high school girls; the gradually worsening marks of a once-top student; the beginnings of an alcoholic.

What can be done? No one pretends to have the answer.

"The parents set the example but it's the teen-agers we have to reach first," says Kenneth Bennett, education director of the Hamilton branch of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation.

"And how do we do that effectively? All we can do is give them the facts."

Successful Living

Overnight Trip Meets Today's Standards

DEAR DORIS: My pal's girl friend moved to another city. A week ago his father decided to take a trip to that city and his son (my pal), who was going with him, asked me to go. My pal was going mainly to see his girl friend.

DORIS CLARK

His girl friend's sister, who is in the same class as I am at school, wanted to go also. We were going to stay for two days; my pal and I at his uncle's and his girl friend's sister with her sister.

Upon asking my parents if I could go they refused on the grounds that this kind of thing — girls and boys going that far away overnight (even under such conditions) — was not done and was against the standards of today.

We are all 18 and in grade 11 or 12. What is your opinion of this situation? — ABOVE BOARD.

DEAR ABOVE BOARD: Sounds O.K. to me. Do they have a prejudice against your pal's father? The presence of a responsible older man would keep the expedition up to today's standards, from where I sit.

* * *

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Success Disturbing for Some

OTTAWA (CP)—Success is bad for some people, says an article in Canadian Nurse.

A promotion may mean unhappiness for the loner if this forces him to work with others, the magazine says.

Someone who has "executive drive" may be able to direct his own creative impulses into brilliant accomplishment but become depressed when he has to let others carry out his ideas.

Then there's the happy-go-lucky type who likes to work in a crowd. His new executive duties may isolate him uncomfortably.

The article also mentions "dependency need" which can pamper people who have always tried to please superiors. "Resentful of the dependency of their own new subordinates, they avoid, reject, over-control or attack them."

The experts counsel close examination of your motives when a promotion is in the offing. Do you just want the status or do you really want the new duties Will you still be you in the new job or will it mean a complete personality change If it demands a radical change in behavior, the room at the top may not be worth the effort.

it uncomplicates sewing

WHEN you buy a new *Touch & Sew Deluxe Zig-Zag sewing machine from Singer, be ready for a pleasant surprise.

Suddenly you'll find yourself sewing a lot more than your neighbours who own other machines. And you enjoy every moment.

Not because you loved to sew any more than they did in the first place . . .

Not because you knew how to sew that much better than they did . . .

It's simply because your new Singer* sewing machine makes sewing so easy, you discover you do have both the time and the interest to sew all you want.

There are 180 parts in an ordinary sewing machine. There are 380 parts in the Deluxe Zig-Zag Touch & Sew sewing machine.

Those extra parts have just one purpose in life . . . that of giving your sewing machine skills it would take you months to master . . . and tedious hours to do by hand.

Sewing was never this easy, even for the beginner.

Now, you just set a dial, push a button, and your Touch & Sew machine does it all for you . . . bastes, blindstitches, overcasts, buttonholes, zigzags, chainstitches . . . and then rewinds its own bobbin!

Touch & Sew Deluxe, Zig-Zag machine from Singer. Does all 3 kinds of sewing—straight, zig-zag and chainstitch.

The nice thing about this sewing machine is not that it makes seldom used fancy stitches. Its value is its genius for eliminating drudgery and adding priceless new sewing skills to your own repertoire.

Any woman who sews will save at least $100 a year. But Singer knows that the woman who sews on a Touch & Sew Deluxe Zig-Zag machine saves at least twice that amount.

You see, this is the machine that makes you want to sew.

See that button? Touch it and the bobbin winds itself up right in the machine.
And notice the slanted needle—slanted so you see better, sew better.
Only Singer has the Slant Needle and push-button bobbin.

Remember how turning hems used to be so tedious? Now you just attach the seam guide, dial and your Touch & Sew sewing machine blindstitches the hems in minutes! This buttonhole was actually completed in seconds! Your Touch & Sew sewing machine also sews on buttons in a twinkling.

The chain stitch (left). You'll use it regularly to replace tedious hand basting. Pull the thread end; out comes the seam. You'll also need it to sew the increasingly popular stretch fabrics. This is the stitch that stretches as the fabric stretches . . . Only Singer builds the indispensable chainstitch talent right into a sewing machine.

For that special effect: Decorative twin-needle sewing.

Yes, it can do a few fancy fashion stitches.

2500 or so. Here's two you get just by setting a dial.

Overcasting. A "must" to prevent many of our newer fabrics from fraying Child's play on the Touch & Sew sewing machine. Just set the dial!

FREE TRIAL IN YOUR OWN HOME

Accept this offer. Either mail this coupon or simply phone or drop by your Singer Center right now. We'll have a demonstrator bring a Touch & Sew sewing machine to your home for a free trial. Sew all you want without the slightest obligation on your part.

Firemen Answer 17 City, District Calls

Belleville firemen had their busiest day of the year yesterday, answering a total of 17 calls in the city and district.

The most serious fire broke out just before noon at 6 Brassey St., the home of Mrs. T. Pye.

Cause of the fire is still undetermined but there is some speculation there may have been an explosion.

At the time of the fire, Mrs. Pye was visiting Mrs. R. Ryckman, of 8 Brassey St., occupants of the other side of the double frame house.

She told firemen she had only been gone for 10 minutes when Mrs. Ryckman's son, Randy, who had been playing in the yard, ran in and told her the house was on fire.

When firemen arrived the whole building was a mass of flames. Deputy Chief Leo Culhane said the window on the north side of the house had been blown out and the door was blown completely off.

"Neighbors said they heard an explosion," he said, "but it could have been the build up of heat and gas that blew the window and door out."

The kitchen was completely wrecked. There was smoke and flames coming from everywhere when firemen arrived. One fireman commented afterwards, "I didn't think we were going to catch it." But they did catch it and their quick action is credited with saving the building.

The living room, dining room and upstairs bedrooms of the house had heavy smoke and water damage. There was some smoke and water damage to the Ryckman residence as well.

Mr. Culhane said, "It was a flash fire of some kind that started in the kitchen. It's still undetermined how it actually started. The house is closed right up and we're not going to let anybody go in there until we're sure what caused it ourselves." He praised the work of the officers and men who acted so fast in getting the fire under control.

Mrs. Pye had insurance on her home, but none on the contents of the home. The Ryckman's were fully insured.

Four fire trucks were on the scene and the last one stayed until 1:07.

In another city fire yesterday a garage at 92 Gordon St. owned by C. Ritson, 89 Donald St., was burned by children playing with matches. A neighbor said she saw a group of children running from the garage shortly before the fire was spotted.

An old model car inside the garage was also heavily damaged by the fire.

THE CHARRED REMAINS — A lone fireman makes sure flames are all out at the home of Mrs. T. Pye, 6 Brassey St. The fireman on the roof stands directly above the kitchen where the unexplained flash fire started. There was heavy damage to the house in the fire.

A neighbor said she had been complaining about the garage for some time. She said it was a fire hazard and "I knew there'd be trouble."

A series of grass fires in Napanee, Shannonville, Marysville, Chatterton and on the Tyendinaga Reserve also kept firemen hopping yesterday.

Seven off-duty firemen were recalled. Belleville firemen had to employ the mutual aid system to combat all the grass fires in the district. They were called to a fire at Marysville but had no trucks to go because of the other fires, so Point Anne firefighters were called. On the way to that fire, Point Anne firemen came upon another fire at Shannonville. They put that out and continued on to Marysville.

Belleville and Deseronto firemen also arrived at the Marysville grassfire to help Pt. Anne firefighters.

A grass fire at Chatterton could have been serious. At one time it was reported heading towards gasoline tanks, but it was brought under control by Belleville firemen.

As if they didn't have enough problems, Belleville fire fighters were then contacted for mutual aid to put out a series of fires along the CNR tracks near Napanee. Besides the Belleville fire department, Napanee and Deseronto also answered the call.

The series of fires were believed to have been caused by sparks flying out of a hot box on a westbound freight train.

Napanee firemen were called at 1.15 and had little difficulty putting out a fire near the gates of highway 502 crossing. Firemen followed the tracks, putting out a number of small fires on the way. The fire truck took to the fields to keep up with the fires.

Firemen soon came across a large grass fire, burning out of control on the farms of Garfield Dillenbeck, Walter Hudson and Ross Oliver. Hudson said he only has one acre of pasture left that was not burned by the fire.

Volunteers had difficulty finding the cattle on the Hudson and Oliver farms because of the density of the smoke. There was danger of the fire being carried by the north wind into woods and marshes, but this was prevented by the firefighters.

Still another large grass fire, six miles from Napanee, kept Napanee and Deseronto firemen busy on the farms of Reg Badgely and Felix O'Coin, in Richmond Township.

The fire also spread into Tyendinaga Township unto the farms of Claude Nugent, Don Fingland, William Stewart and Fred Mowbury.

The final fire was a car on fire on South Church St. about 9 p.m. last night. There was only minor damage in that one.

Knew Core Was Valueless 23 Days Before Report

TORONTO (CP)—Viola MacMillan, promoter of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., knew that an assay of a small drill core showed no commercial value 23 days before a complete core assay confirmed this, a preliminary hearing was told Wednesday.

Mrs. MacMillan and her husband George, Windfall president, are each charged with fraudulently affecting the public market price of Windfall and defrauding the public from April to July in 1964.

The court heard a statement from Mrs. Nadia Rudnik that she informed Mrs. MacMillan July 6, 1964, that no commercial value was shown in an assay of a few inches of core from Windfall's first drill hole. A final assay of a complete core July 29 confirmed this.

Windfall shares, which had soared from 56 cents to a high of $5.60 on July 21 on rumors of a successful ore discovery, dropped to 80 cents July 31.

MADE A MILLION

The hearing was told Wednesday the MacMillans and companies they control made $1,112,000 in trading profits on Windfall stock in July, 1964.

John Kimber, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, said that at a meeting July 14 with the MacMillans, officials of the Toronto Stock Exchange and OSC members, Mrs. MacMillan said she should not have to deny rumors that made Windfall shares rise in price because she did not start the rumors.

Mr. MacMillan argued that assaying part of a core from an incomplete drill hole was not proper mining practice, Mr. Kimber said.

Robert Ford, chartered accountant for a group of MacMillan companies, said Mrs. MacMillan made $18,000 and her husband $723 on their personal accounts in Windfall trading from July 6 to July 28, 1964.

In the same period, he said, four MacMillan-controlled companies made a $1,094,000 trading profit, while a fifth company, Consolidated Golden Arrow Mines Ltd., in which the MacMillans had a 46-per-cent interest, made $338,000 in trading profits.

Mr. Ford agreed with defence counsel Joseph Sedgwick that about half the trading profit would go to taxes and a small amount for other expenses.

He said the MacMillans received "less than $2" average selling price for Windfall shares they sold.

The MacMillans had 1,103,000 shares of Windfall at the beginning of May, 1964, the month in which the shares rose spectacularly in price, he said. But at the end of the month their holdings had increased to 1,125,000 shares.

Mr. Ford was the last witness for the prosecution. Joseph Sedgwick, Mrs. MacMillan's lawyer, and John J. Robinette, Mr. MacMillan's lawyer, called no witnesses. They said they would make statements today.

A fifth man, Ferdnand Lebeau, reached shore.

The accident occurred on Lake Onatchiway, some five miles from a forest depot operated by Price Brothers.

Cliff Belch Jr., associated with the Belleville and District Softball League in an official capacity for the past seven years, tendered his resignation as vice-president yesterday.

Resignations of other members of the league executive are expected.

Belch said in a written statement, "As of this date I hereby tender my resignation with the Belleville and District Softball Association. I would like to wish the Association the very best. May the teams play hard to win "on the field" — decisions won by hotly contested arguments off the field are "MEANINGLESS."

Belch's resignation followed a special league meeting held to probe the circumstances of a brawl-spattered league game between the Temple Bobcats and Ellis Juniors last Saturday night in which players, umpires and club officials were involved.

Fights between players, lack of co-operation of club officials to restore order, and spasmodic inefficiency of umpires are alleged to be the main ingredients of a disgraceful display of sportsmanship.

Belch with some members of his executive felt, and rightly so, that punitive action was necessary against certain players, officials and the umpires who handled the game.

League president Frank Insley is on vacation and out of the city.

Belch as vice-president called the meeting because as he told me, "I did so for the good of the league and the good of the sport. I felt that those guilty of the misdemeanors should be given some sort of punishment."

But instead of meting out punishment, the majority of those present made a travesty of what was supposed to be constituted authority justice.

The report of the proceedings indicate that an organized effort saw to it that no disciplinary action was taken against any of the players, managers, coaches and umpires said to be involved in the affair.

Those said to be guilty of taking part in the brawls got away scot free in one of the biggest sports farces ever perpetrated in this city.

Perhaps Belch did not know it, but he was beaten from the start. This was evident in the fact that as the meeting progressed he did not receive the support of sufficient members of his executive.

It was also evident in the fact that a motion to suspend the umpires was defeated because as one club manager put it; "If you suspend the umpires you will also try to suspend the players."

What sort of one-sided justice did he expect? Players, coaches and managers involved were as guilty as the umpires and as such were deserving of punishment.

The decision in capsule form was that the majority voted against the suspension of the umpires, then voted that because of this no players or club officers should be punished.

"It was evident," Belch said, "that I was beating my head against a stone wall. I have no personal grudge against any of the players or others involved. I felt it was my duty as vice-president to see that those guilty were punished."

In his seven years with the league, Belch has done a lot for softball. He believes that right is right and wrong is wrong and there are no half-way measures. He is highly regarded by the OASA of which he is an executive member. The B. and D. has lost a valuable official.

And its about time the civil war among umpires factions in the city was resolved between themselves instead of having one side air its opinions on the floor of an executive meeting.

Pittsburgh Pirates are like a salesman. Let them get a foot in the door and you'll wind up buying their product.

The Pirates got good use out of a foot Wednesday night and promptly put their product on display for all to see. Los Angeles Dodgers didn't care for any, but the Pirates were persuasive and wound up with an 8-5 victory.

The triumph, coupled with San Francisco Giants' 3-2, 10-inning loss to New York Mets, boosted the first-place Pirates one game ahead of the Giants in the National League pennant race.

The Pirates weren't having too much success until they put the foot in the right place.

The foot belonged to Matty Alou and it, along with the rest of the league's leading hitter, stepped into the batter's box with two out in the seventh inning and the Pirates trailing 5-2.

Don Drysdale fired a low pitch that hit the foot, Alou went to first and the Dodgers went to pieces.

Five batters and two pitchers later, the Pirates had six more runs.

Gene Michael and Roberto Clemente singled for one run, and Jim Brewer replaced Drysdale. After a wild pitch and a walk to Manny Mota that loaded the bases, Brewer left and Phil Regan came on.

Jose Pagan tied the game with a two-run single and Donn Clendenon closed the sale with a three - run homer into the left-centre field bleachers.

In other games, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Atlanta Braves 6-3, Cincinnati Reds swept Chicago Cubs 5-4 and 5-1 and Philadelphia Phillies outslugged Houston Astros 13-9.

In all, Clendenon drove in five runs. He brought in the Pirates' first two runs with a ground - out and a single. Los Angeles' Willie Davis rapped three hits, driving in two runs, and Maury Wills collected three singles and drove in a run.

The Mets gained their fifth straight victory when Ron Swoboda led of fthe 10th inning with a homer against Bill Henry. The Mets had taken a 21 lead in the eighth on Roy McMillan's homer, but the Giants tied it in the ninth on a walk to Willie Mays, Jack Fisher's wild pitch and a single by Jim Hart.

Ray Washburn scattered eight hits and drove in two runs with a fourth - inning single for St. Louis. The Cardinals broke a 3-3 tie in the fifth on Mike Shannon's run - scoring single, his third hit off Atlanta's Ken Johnson.

Ernie Banks, 2,000th hit, a two-run double in the eighth inning, helped Chicago to a 4-1 lead in the opener, but the Reds rallied for four runs in the ninth, the last two on Tommy Harper's triple.

Cincinnati also won the seven-inning nightcap that was halted by darkess. Jim O'Toole pitched a five - hitter and received support from Don Pavletich's homer and Jim Coker's two - run double.

Cookie Rojas drove in four runs for Philadelphia with two singles and a double and Tony Gonzalez knocked in three with a single and a homer. Dick Groat added three hits to the Phillies' 20-hit attack, including a seventh - inning run - scoring single that snapped an 8-8 deadlock.

P.G.A. Golden Tournament

Jack Nicklaus Heavy Favorite

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Success hasn't spoiled Jack Nicklaus, who will tee off today in the Professional Golfers Association golden anniversary tournament seeking his third major title of the year and the ninth of his short, illustrious career.

Success has given the 26-year - old Columbus, Ohio, clouter an opportunity to pace himself so that he might remain one of the world's top golfers for years to come.

A couple of years ago Sam Snead remarked that Nicklaus would burn himself out at the pace he was going. Nicklaus laughed at the remark at the time.

Now Jack, who this year completed his grand slam when he won the recent British Open, is using a timetable which he claims will not only enable him to play better golf, but also to enjoy the game more.

"Nobody likes to do anything he doesn't enjoy," said Nicklaus, "and I can't enjoy playing golf week after week. The cutdown will not be drastic. Instead of 25 tournaments a year, I'll probably play 18, maybe 20.

"When it comes to the major tournaments, I want a week off before and a week off after."

On the subject of major tournaments, Nicklaus is closing in on the record 13 won by Bobby Jones.

Nicklaus, along with Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, is a heavy favorite in the 50th PGA. The 7,180-yard Firestone course with a par of 35-35—70 is tailored for the big hitters and the rough is so short that most of the golfers are not even considering it a factor.

Cementmen Blow Lead, Lose 7-3

Point Anne blew a 3-0 lead and dropped their second game in a row, bowing to City Hotel 7-3, in Commercial Softball League action last night.

City used the victory to tie Lightfoots for fourth place while the Cementmen maintained a safe grip on the league lead.

Point Anne moved in front with two in the first and one in the top of the fourth. City scored a pair in their half of the inning and won it with five in the fifth, on walks, hit by Moreau, Coolen, Ethier and Feeney, plus an error.

Larry Hull pitched the first four frames and Dave Feeney the last three on the City hilltop. They gave up six hits, struck out one and walked two.

Ron Maracle was combed for ten hits on the Point Anne rubber. He struck out ten and issued four free passes.

Tom Coolen punched out a double and single for City Hotel with Bob Brooks and Bucky Ethier each collecting two singles. Billy McGuire, Doug Moreau, Dave Feeney and Frank Donovan each had a base knock.

Gerry Maher contributed two of Point Anne's singles while Mike Cook, Ron Maracle, Glen Maracle and Rick Rosebush got the others.

The Cementmen have an exhibition game against the B. and D. League's leading Bobcats, at Point Anne, at 6.30 Saturday.

Hungary Victory Sidelines Brazil

Portugal Favorites

LONDON (AP) — Portugal came into the crunch stage of the World Cup soccer championship today with seven other national teams trailing way behind in the betting odds.

The eight teams, survivors of 16 who came here hoping for soccer glory, took a couple of days off for restful training today but tensions were high in camps in four areas of England, the home of the game.

Portugal soared into the top favorite spot at odds of 13 to 8. A few days before the World Cup final series began here July 11, Portugal was rated 22 to 1.

Preliminary competition was completed Wednesday when England took the Group I title by defeating France 2-0; Hungary beat Bulgaria 3-1, thus knocking defending champion Brazil out of the running; Russia beat Chile 2-1 and West Germany eliminated Spain 2-1.

HUNGARY SECOND CHOICE

Hungary, as listed by a leading British bookmaker, was second favorite at 3 to 1, with England next at 4 to 1.

Then came West Germany at 7 to 1, Russia at 10 to 1, Argentina at 12 to 1, Uruguay at 16 to 1 and North Korea at 100 to 1.

The schedule for the quarter-finals Saturday (all starting times 10 a.m. EDT):

At Wembley, England vs. Argentina.

At Liverpool, Portugal vs. North Korea.

At Sunderland, West Germany vs. Uruguay.

At Sheffield, Russia vs. Hungary.

A sellout crowd of about 100,000 is expected at Wembley for the England-Argentina match. Jimmy Greaves, England's ace goal-scorer, still has to get the ball in the net in this series.

Argentina, the only team warned about behavior on the field, now probably will bring back Jorge Albrecht—the only player so far sent off the field in the championship. That was in Argentina's game against West Germany last Saturday. Albrecht was suspended for one match only and so missed Tuesday's game against Switzerland.

REMARK ON TACKLING

World Cup headquarters expressed concern today over the ruthless tackling that put Brazil's Pele, the crown king of soccer, out of the international championship Tuesday.

"Clearly we have to ensure that there is greater protection for those skilful players who are the outstanding attractions of the game," said Harry Cavan, a vice-president of the International Federation of Football Associations.

Eusebio, the Black Panther of Portugal and scorer of two vital goals against Brazil, will be the key man against North Korea—the little-known Orientals who knocked favored Italy out of the championship.

Uwe Seeler, a giant of European soccer, could be the man to break down the rock-like defence of Uruguay for West Germany. Uruguay got into the quarter-finals by scoring only two goals and conceding one in matches that bored the fans.

The highlight match of the quarter-finals will be between Russia and Hungary, two Iron Curtain comrades who like to win.

Hungary defeated Brazil 3-1 and its forward stars, such as Ferenc Bene and Florian Albert, can shake the best teams. The man the Hungarians will have to watch is Porkujan, the Russian winger who scored two goals against Chile Wednesday night.

Pele told German television viewers Wednesday night that Brazil still is "a star on the soccer sky and will continue to shine despite our elimination in the World Cup."

In an interview he said: "Don't write us off, we will come back fighting."

He explained that the pressure Tuesday night "in our game against Portugal proved too much for us. We had to win by a three-goal margin and we just could not cope with this pressure."

He also said despite many offers from European clubs he will stay in Brazil and go on playing soccer "for at least four more years. But I will never again play in the World Cup."

MARS IS A DESERT

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Mars is dryer than Death Valley, say Dr. Joseph Chamberlain and Dr. Michael McElroy of Kitt Peak National Observatory. The Mariner space probe circling Mars has shown the red planet loses hydrogen atoms into space.

England Praised, Blasted

LONDON (AP)—Two leading British sportswriters differed today on England's performance when it defeated France 2-0 Wednesday in the World Cup.

Unstinted praise comes from The Daily Mail's Brian James, who said: "Moving with a purpose and a power this tournament had not seen before, England last night moved irresistibly into the quarter-finals (where they will meet Argentina).

"The Argentines are tough, talented and owing their progress to a steely professionalism. But . . . they now have more to fear from this England than one match ago. . ."

But outspoken criticism of England comes from Desmond Hackett of The Daily Express, who calls their progress "heartening—but the manner of its achievement is depressing."

Hackett says: "It was a timid, untidy match. It was not that England were bad, nor that they lacked effort or fitness. They were tactically stupid. . . ."

MISSED CHANCES

"Chile's last chance of squeezing into the World Cup quarter-finals disappeared in a frantic fumbling series of missed chances at Sunderland last night," The Daily Mirror declares.

Chile lost to Russia 2-1 in their group four encounter.

Mirror writer Bob Russell comments: "It took Chile seven minutes to wake up to the idea that without two points from this game their trip was over."

West Germany won its way through to the quarter-finals "with power and elegance," says Peter Moss, reporting in The Daily Mail. He said that at one time "an inspired Spain had threatened even to knock the Germans out of the World Cup.

"But this German side, with its power and elegance had more—much more. . . ."

West Germany defeated Spain 2-0 in the match at Sheffield.

Gray Tosses Two-Hitter

Picton Zeros Trudeaus

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA
Staff Sportswriter

PICTON — Eldon Gray is known in the B. and D. loop as a power hitter and sparkling fielder. Last night, however, he traded in his bat and glove for a resin bag and pitched Picton Kinsmen to a 6-0 triumph over Trudeau Motors.

The former Madoc star hurled a two hitter and struck out nine in this, his initial start of the year for Picton. He admittted to not having pitched for three weeks prior to this contest.

The win moved Picton into a second place tie with Ellis Juniors, in the jammed-up battle for second, third and fourth places. Both teams have 16 points, just two ahead of Trudeaus.

Picton went ahead in the first inning and never looked back. Keith MacDonald reached second on Trudeau errors, and came home on Leo St. Denis' single, to score the winner.

They added another in the second, when Dave Lockwood rounded the bases, after being hit by a pitch.

In the third, Ron Weese of Picton led off with a solid home run. A single and walk put two men on base, and big Warren Ostrander unloaded with another round tripper to score three runs. That was all the scoring in the game, as Bob Green relieved Trudeau starter Bill Baldwin in the third. Green hurled six innings of scoreless ball and gave up only three hits, all singles, while striking out five.

Baldwin allowed six hits and walked three.

Warren Ostrander cracked a home run and single, Marve Stacey stroked two base hits, and Ron Weese slammed a homer, to lead the winner's attack. With singles were Keith MacDonald, Leo St. Denis, Jim Guernsey and Dave Lockwood.

Eldon Gray baffled Trudeaus with a change-up drop. Larry Mavety got a solid single, and Larry Soule picked up a base hit on a bunt, to account for the losers' hits.

The fielding highlight of the contest was an over-the-head, running catch by Ralph Plane on a ball powered into deep right field by Picton's Marve Stacey.

In the fourth frame, Trudeau fielder Stu Muirhead was ejected from the game by plate umpire Charley Horn for tossing his bat into the bat rack while protesting a called strike.

Cheesemen Process Top Teams

Black Diamond Cheese completed a sweep of the top three clubs in the Commercial Softball League this week by knocking off the Lightfoots 9-7 at Alemite Park last night.

The Cheesemen have beaten Point Anne, Stewart Warner and Lightfoots in that order to climb from a last-place tie into third spot this week.

They trailed 2-0 and 5-1 before erupting for eight runs in a three-frame spree to get last night's key nod.

Sonny Holoway let the Lightfoots down on six hits to drop the losers into a fourth-place tie with City Hotel. Holoway struck out seven and walked three.

Don Smith started and allowed seven runs off ten of 12 Diamond hits before loser John French took over. They fanned three and walked a pair.

Sonny Holoway sparked his own attack by slamming three doubles while Gene Francis hit a pair of them. Bob Cruickshank and Doug Archer each singled twice, Dale Archer doubled, Jack Francis and Jack Douglas added base hits.

Tim Cook had a double and single and Les Hall belted a home run to spark the Lightfoot cause. Frank "Shiner" Murray doubled, Rusty Garvin and Don Dolan hit singles.

There were seven bobbles in the game, five by the winners.

Departmental Softball

City Hall rode the pitching of Gary Reid and an error-riddled fourth inning into first place in the Departmental Softball League last night with a 4-2 win over the Intelligencer.

Grant Stickle's City crew is assured of at least a tie for first and need only one point, or the loss of a point by the Intelligencer, to clinch the pennant.

Gary Reid hurled a strong three-hitter and struck out 13 batters in a top performance. Ron Culloden gave up nine hits before giving way to John Edwards in the last frame for the Intelligencer.

The winners plated four unearned runs in the fourth and the losers made it tight with two in the fifth.

Mike McMahon, Bill Ferguson, K. Hanson and J. Reid each had two City hits. Claire Hoy picked up two of the Intelligencer's trio.

The Works and Firemen play a postponed game tonight and the schedule draws to a close next week.

Orioles' Tail-Lights Getting Dimmer

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit Tigers have a sick manager, a sick acting manager, and a sick shortstop. Right now their pitching staff isn't exactly the picture of health either.

Baltimore Orioles continued to punish the Tiger staff Wednesday, pounding Denny McLain and two successors for 16 hits in a 10-7 triumph that extended the Orioles' American League to 10½ games.

Detroit manager Chuck Dressen is recuperating from his second heart attack in two years and now acting manager Bob Swift and all-star shortstop Dick McAuliffe are in hospital with bacterial food poisoning.

McLain was ripped for home runs by Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell as the Orioles wiped out an early deficit.

In 5 1-3 innings pitched since the All-Star Game, McLain has been tagged with two losses in which he gave up 16 hits and 14 runs, all earned.

LOSE FIVE STRAIGHT

The second-place Tigers, meanwhile, have lost 14 of their last 20 games including five in a row. During the five-game slide, Detroit has given up 53 runs, an average of more than 10 a game.

Frank Skaff, handling the Tigers in the absence of Dressen and Swift, saw Detroit jump into a 3-0 lead and then rally for a 7-5 lead.

Powell and Robinson each drove in two runs and scored three. Jim Northrup had a homer and double for Detroit, driving in two runs and scoring three.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, Minnesota Twins downed Washington Senators 3-1, Chicago White Sox beat Cleveland Indians 6-3, New York Yankees blanked Kansas City Athletics 4-0 and California Angels and Boston Red Sox split a doubleheader, the Red Sox winning the first game 6-1 and the Angels taking the nightcap 1-0 in 10 innings.

Moe Drabowsky pitched four hitless inings of relief for the Orioles, strikout at eight of the 12 batters he faced.

The Athletics slipped into eighth place behind New York when Mel Stottlemyre blanked them on six hits. Horace Clarke and Tom Tresh homered for the Yankees who won their fifth straight.

In the sudden death play-off game for first place in the B.M.S.A. peewee division, Barrett's Yankees defeated Western Tire 2-0.

John Spracket pitched a one-hitter and won the game with a homer to give the Yankees the pennant.

In squirt East Hill play, the Shopping Plaza Rams outlasted Vaughan Packers 12-8, with Bruce Sullivan of the winners getting 16 strike outs. Kiddies Korner Astros whipped the Redskins 11-5, and Browns strangled Stephen Licence Dodgers 17-6. Cardinals and Mustangs won over the Cubs and Steelers respectively by default, 9-0, in West Hill squirt.

The top team in the Squirt West Hill loop was Peacock Cardinals, with 12 points. Stevenson Mustangs followed with 10 points, the Steelers had eight, and the Cubs sat in the Cellar with six points.

Read scored five runs in the first frame and coasted to a 10-2 South Hastings Baseball League decision over Latta, at Latta, last night.

Howard Meeks started and was chased in favor of Lorne Cronkwright in the second frame for Latta. They allowed four hits each and the club erred five times. Cronkwright had six of the seven strikeouts and each walked one.

Carm Milligan and Gerry Brennan were tops in the Read hit parade. Milligan had a double and single and Brennan two singles. Ted Abrams and Percy Milligan belted doubles, Charlie Steele and Pat Steele a base hit each.

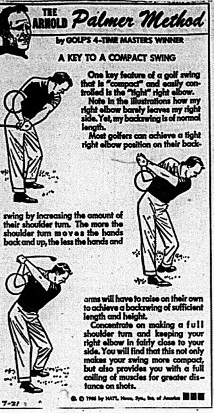
THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

A KEY TO A COMPACT SWING



One key feature of a golf swing that is "compact" and easily controlled is the "tight" right elbow.

Note in the illustrations how my right elbow barely leaves my right side. Yet, my backswing is of normal length.

Most golfers can achieve a tight right elbow position on their backswing by increasing the amount of their shoulder turn. The more the shoulder turn moves the hands back and up, the less the hands and arms will have to raise on their own to achieve a backswing of sufficient length and height.

Concentrate on making a full shoulder turn and keeping your right elbow in fairly close to your side. You will find that this not only makes your swing more compact, but also provides you with a full coiling of muscles for greater distance on shots.

Strategy Overrated-Bud Grant

Best Players Win Games

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bud Grant thinks strategy in football is overrated.

"It makes good copy . . . but it's usually the best players who win games," said the general manager-coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

On the eve of the 1966 season Grant's major problem is to replace two players who ranked among the best in the Western Football Conference — guard Herb Gray and defensive halfback Henry Janzen.

"We have to be weaker," he said in discussing the retirement of the two 1965 WFC All-Stars who were big guns in Bombers' march to the Grey Cup final, which Hamilton Tiger-Cats won 22-16.

In Grant's estimation Gray, a WFC All-Star seven times in his 10 seasons with Bombers, was a "super star" and Janzen just a step away from that category.

"We haven't replaced these people," he said.

Pre - season shuffles pushed sophomores Ted Rodosovich and Morley Rolihiser and rookie import Bill Restelli from the University of Iowa into the Gray gap. A late entry was veteran John Pentecost of Ottawa Rough Riders, obtained in a trade Wednesday for defensive end Mario Mariana.

TRIED FOR JOB

Canadian veteran Norm Rauhaus and Maury Bibent of Florida State University made a bid for Janzen's chores but Grant feels it's "a Canadian position."

The departure of linebacker Ken Maglicic, the Notre Dame recruit who was a shade shy on required ability, opened the door for veteran Paul Robson. "We feel he can do the job," Grant said.

Question marks—the answers are clouded by injury — are tackle Frank Rigney and halfback Leo Lewis. Rigney has back problems and Lewis is on the mend from a knee cyst operation but Grant said both "feel like they can play now" and should be in action when Bombers open the season here Tuesday, Aug. 2 against Edmonton Eskimos.

The return of defensive end Bill Whisler, 1964 All-Star, limited by injury to five outings last season, is a big plus.

So is the apparent good health of four 1965 WFC All - Stars, halfback Dave Raimey, quarterback Kenny Ploen, defensive halfback Dick Thornton and linebacker Al Miller.

GETS FULLBACK

Grant's recruiting—"we try for everything and hope to get some good football players"—produced quarterback Rich Badar and fullback Tom Urbanik.

Urbanik, 224 pounder from Pennsylvania State, is challenging veteran Art Perkins. His chances of sticking are better than those of Badar, who must match talents developed at the University of Indiana and the Continental Football League against Ploen's impressive experience.

Whoever the signal - caller, there's a wealth of pass-catchers available — Ken Nielsen, Billy Cooper, Farrell Funston.

How about the opposition?

"We have to assume the trade-conscious Calgary Stampeders are better. British Columbia Lions did the best recruiting job. Saskatchewan Roughriders have the best individual personnel. It looks like Edmonton is going to pick up at the point they were at the end of last season . . . which wasn't far off the pace."

Gals Win On Grandslam, 23 Walks

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Port Dalhousie Falcons, a team in the Niagara District Girls Midget Softball League, had only two hits in a game against St. Catharines Valley Tuesday night—but they won 17-14.

Four runs came on a grand - slam homer by Lorie Dick and they added three more on their other hit, a bases - loaded double by Laurel Carr.

Their remaining runs were courtesy of four St. Catharines errors and the generosity of the home pitchers who walked 23 Port Dalhousie batters.

Hanover Faces Test

TORONTO (CP)—When Bret Hanover goes to the post, normal betting is usually suspended and only exacta wagering is allowed.

In this system, bettors are required to name the first- and second-place horses in exact order of finish to collect their winnings.

But Friday evening when the greatest active pacer goes against six probable challengers in the second leg of the Harness Tracks of America Pace at Greenwood Raceway, track officials will be going with win, place and exacta wagering.

The reason may be that while Bret Hanover already has paced the mile in under two minutes 22 times, two other horses in the field also have beaten the mark.

WINS FIRST LEG

Bret, owned by Richard Downing of Shaker Heights, Ohio, and driven by trainer Frank Ervin, won the first leg of the three-leg pace last Friday in 2:01.2 at Hamburg, N.Y.

Third in that race was U.S.-owned Adios Marches, whose best time is 1:59.4. Another of the four U.S. entries is Gee Lee Hanover which has a personal best time of 1:59.8.

Carl Brewer May Make "Kickback"

TORONTO (CP) — Here's something that could shake Maple Leaf hockey fans to their boot-tops. The possible return of Carl Brewer to uniform—but in a Toronto Rifles football uniform.

An all-star defenceman with the National Hockey League Leafs until he retired during training camp last fall, there is a chance he will play at least a couple of games with the Continental Football League team.

At York University here Tuesday he went through an impromptu kicking practice as the Rifles worked out. While he wouldn't agree that he intends to play for the Rifles, he didn't deny it either.

"I'm in shape and the thought of getting back into football is attractive," the 27-year-old athlete said.

"But remember, I'm not a kid. I do have responsibilities. I know I could do a job kicking for them though."

Brewer was a star halfback with a Toronto high school but dropped football for hockey when he went to McMaster University in Hamilton.

Empire Games

English Track Team Strong

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—The Bannisters and Brashers may be long retired and little Lynn Davies will be competing for Wales, but England still hopes to harvest a crop of medals with its track and field team at next month's Commonwealth Games in Jamaica.

Several names on the English team stand out in all assessments of the track and field contingent, which makes up nearly 40 per cent of the 160-member English side.

Among the men, John Boulter is a hot favorite to capture the 880-yard event. He did 800 metres in one minute, 46.5 seconds recently—equal to a time of 1:47.2 at 880 yards, the best time in the Commonwealth this year.

Boulter also was the anchor man on the English 4 x 880 relay team that broke the world record recently.

Another good prospect for a gold medal, say observers, is veteran Maurice Herriott in the steeplechase. British champion for the last six years and silver medallist with 8:32.4 at the Tokyo Olympics, he has run his event in 8:32.8 this year and is said to be as good as ever.

NO SPRINT COMPETITION

Although there are almost no prospects of victory in the sprints against such stalwarts as Canada's Harry Jerome and some of the West Indians, David Hemery's best time of 13.9 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles looks good enough to make him a strong gold-medal contender.

England's earlier hopes for the marathon have been jarred since defending Games champion Brian Kilby, who has recorded a time of 2:24:48 this year, dropped out of an event in Wales last weekend with leg trouble.

No one really expects England to win the mile, but there are hopes for medal-winning performances from Neill Duggan, who has recorded 3:56.1 this year while studying in California, and possibly Alan Simpson, whose best time is 3:58.8 although he has been off form lately.

England also feels either Bill Wilkinson (13:11.6 this year) or Dick Taylor (13:17.6) could get a silver or bronze medal in the three miles. And similar hopes are held for Bruce Tulloh, a 31-year-old barefoot runner, or Roy Fowler and Ron Hill in the six-mile event.

How They're Biting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The angler who ventured into Northern Ontario during the last week could have had some excellent fishing for pickerel and northern pike.

An excellent place for pickerel was Lake Missinaibi in the Chapleau region and a select spot for northern pike was Little Lake Abitibi in the Cochrane area.

This was reported by Ontario's lands and forests department, whose weekly survey of fishing revealed several good catches of pickerel, northern pike, bass and panfish.

Fishing for speckled, rainbow and lake trout was poor in many districts and the muskellunge didn't seem to be biting that well either.

EAST

Kemptville—Fishing poor in most of area, but excellent perch catches in Lake St. Francis poor to fair for all species in St. Lawrence River, Gananoque and Thousand Islands areas. Fair bass and trout catches in Lanark County lakes.

Lindsay—Pickerel, bass, panfish and muskellunge good in Kawartha Lakes Rice Lake, and Peterborough. Panfish good, pickerel, bass and muskellunge fair in Trent River; lake trout good on Eels Lake, fair in remainder of district. Speckled trout poor. Bass and pickerel good, muskellunge, speckled and rainbow trout poor in Minden-Haliburton area.

Tweed—Lake trout excellent in Limerick Lake, fair in Diamond Lake, poor to fair in Palmerston and Wensley lakes. Speckled trout poor to fair throughout district. Pickerel good at Beaver, Cross, Crowe, Moira, Stoco and Buckshot lakes with live bait; Bass good in Stoco and Crowe lakes, Madawaska and Trent rivers on plugs and live bait. Muskellunge fair to poor with some catches in Bay of Quinte.

BETTER FOR DIETERS

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia agriculture department is investigating Norwegian methods of processing dairy products. One produces a whipping cream with a far lower fat content than before and the process may be used with other dairy products.

FILES SUIT

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—The widow of a man killed when his car crashed into a parked boxcar on Portland's Commercial Street has filed a $450,000 negligence suit against Canadian National Railways, court officials said Wednesday. Barbara L. Dibiase of South Portland brought the action on behalf of herself and her eight children. She charges that the railway was careless and negligent in parking the boxcar.

Finds That Texas Rangers Al Capones of Their Day

By NEVILLE BRAND
(For Cynthia Lowry)

Don't let that rugged face, or even memories of his Al Capone role in The Untouchables fool you. Neville Brand, one of the three Texas musketeers in NBC's Laredo, is a serious performer who studied at the American Theatre Wing. That face, however, is currently a part of his fortune.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How do I like being a comedian after playing hoods all the time?

So what's the big switch?

When they signed me up for the part of Reese Bennett in Laredo, I did some research on the Texas Rangers. And you know what I found out? After reading a few books on these buys, I discovered that the Texas Rangers were the Al Capones and the Frank Nitties of the Old West.

Some Texas Rangers signed up because they were wanted—not by their women folk—but by the sheriff in some town. I gather a good many of them were wanted for bank robbery or cattle rustling, but others were wanted for plain old murder. They didn't have any FBI in those days, so if a guy killed a man in Kansas, all he had to do was cross the border into Texas and no one could touch him.

But if he killed a guy in Texas and wanted to stay in that state, the law would let him off if he signed up for a hitch with the Rangers. When his hitch was over, he'd be a free man again, and no one would lay a hand on him—until he killed his next man.

STILL A HOOD

Al Capone couldn't get off that easy in the 30s, because they had the FBI. But anyway, the way I look at it—I'm still playing a hood, only western-style.

I can't say I've always wanted to play comedy, because with my face I never thought anybody would want to laugh if I told a joke. But now that I've tried it, I really like it.

I've been an actor for a long time, but it wasn't until last year when I started playing Reese Bennett, that I really had to work. Comedy is a lot harder than any other kind of acting. Your timing has to be a whole lot better. If you miss an expression, or if you don't hold a take long enough, or if you hold it too long, you fall flat on your face. I don't think there's anything worse than someone trying to be funny who isn't.

Moscow Used to Order Where It Now Consults

Moscow used to issue directives to other East European Communist governments. Now it consults with them. The changing relationship is explored by John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, who has just completed a tour of the Communist bloc.

By JOHN BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"The Romanians have become very difficult to talk to; far more difficult than the Russians. And as for the Chinese, there's no talking to them at all."

These off-hand remarks by a Prague editor speak volumes about the strains and conflicts now tugging at the wobbly edifice of the world Communist movement.

Attempts to paper over the fissures seem to grow more feeble and less convincing every time a new crisis comes along.

To try to maintain a semblance of unity, the Soviet Union has substituted "consultation" with its East European allies for the hard-line directives that it used to throw at them.

The Soviet Communist Party boss, Leonid Brezhnev, takes off for Prague or Warsaw or Bucharest at the drop of a hat to talk things over.

East European Communist leaders appreciate this. The Czechs, for instance, are said to be delighted that Brezhnev comes to talk to them.

Such visits, begun in Nikita Khrushchev's time, are eloquent symptoms of Eastern Europe's increasingly successful demand to be heard on matters affecting its interests.

THREATS ABANDONED

Gone are the days when East European leaders were arbitrarily summoned to Moscow to have the Kremlin line laid down to them, to be followed on pain of dire personal consequences.

Sometimes the "new look" in Kremlin inter-party diplomacy has the appearance of an abdication of Russia's claim to leadership in the world Communist movement. Not so often now do you see references in official statements to "the world movement of Communist and workers' parties, led by the glorious Communist party of the Soviet Union."

Instead, the emphasis is on the sovereign equality of all Communist parties. There can be no "father" party and "son" party, say the Romanians. And other East European Communist parties, less assertive than the Romanians, have come to take the same attitude.

Russia's trouble is that it has gone respectable. Whereas in Stalinist or early Khrushchev times it might not have hesitated to put Romania in its place by force of arms if necessary, today its hands are tied through having to defend a reputation.

JEALOUS OF NEW IMAGE

The reputation, slowly and painfully built up over the years, is of being a responsible and moderate power, restrained possessor of great military might, unfailing champion of the national independence movement, but also a sincere advocate of peaceful coexistence with different states.

It could ill-afford to sacrifice its strong and coveted position of influence in the uncommitted "third world" of Africa and Asia by a rash action against a supposed ally.

Another fundamental difficulty for Russia is the very nationalism which she champions in areas of the world where it suits her purposes to champion it in order to embarrass "colonialist" powers such as Britain.

Marxist theoreticians long cherished the notion that nationalism would dissolve when it came up against the irresistible vitality of a world revolutionary movement supported by the masses of the people.

Instead, nationalism has lived on to wreck the unity of the historical process that was supposed to destroy it.

"Communist parties," someone has said, "can never be completely de-nationalized."

STILL COMMUNISTS

It may be argued that, even so, they remain Communist and fundamentally opposed to Western capitalism and that when the time is ripe—when the West is off its guard—they might quickly rediscover their old cohesion and close ranks to attain the age-old vision of communism's world triumph.

This argument may be built on a false premise. For communism changes even in the Soviet Union. In Yugoslavia it has evolved into something that no longer even looks like communism. Talking to officials in Yugoslavia is more like talking to officials in the West than those in Moscow.

The discussion is devoid of ideological content. The talk is strictly on a pragmatic, business-like basis. And more important, the people who run the country say that's the way it should be.

It's getting to be like that in Czechoslovakia, too. Pretty soon you won't be able to tell the players in the East-West struggle without a program.

In other words, when the time comes to close ranks, the Communist team may not even be playing together anymore.

The question arises whether a man is a Czech, a Pole or a Romanian first or a Communist first.

From all that's been happening in Eastern Europe in the last 10 years you'd have to say patriotism or national interest, wins out over doctrine.

Good Communists, of course, see the issue quite differently. In Warsaw, I asked a high government official:

"Do you believe that national feelings and interest will always triumph over ideology?"

He lost no time in replying: "I believe that in Communist ideology there is room for the play of national interests."

A senior official in Belgrade said almost exactly the same thing. In both cases the discussion concerned Viet Nam and the officials were contending that if the Communists win there, they will eventually assert their independence from Peking as well as Moscow.

But the remark is not without relevance for Eastern Europe.

Blind Girl in Love With Negro Theme of Movie "Patch of Blue"

A Belleville audience, last night at the Belle Theatre saw a preview of "A Patch of Blue," a new film highly praised since its release.

A young Negro meets and befriends a blind girl in a park. The man, Sidney Poitier, is liberal and free with his friendship and affection; the girl, comes from a home-life of appalling brutality.

Blind from childhood, she lives a life of privation with her prostitute mother and her drunken father. Both treat her like an animal. She has received no education, no trade. She sits in the park all day under a tree and strings beads, from the sale of which she receives a pittance to contribute to the welfare of her home.

An intelligent girl, the whole nature of her life changes when she meets the young man in the park. Where before there was only a silent despair and hatred of her surroundings, there is now a very rapid awakening, both of her hope and her womanhood.

She now finds that even though deprived of sight, the world is beautiful. The wind blowing in her hair is a wonderful experience.

Nature wakens her senses as they have never been awakened before. A leaf falling from a tree onto her face is a detail in the mosaic of a person coming from life under a shell to life in the sunshine. Where the start of the movie was two-dimensional almost "stagey," the texture of the film now becomes almost lyrical.

The eyes of the audience are always on the girl, because she, and not the young man, changes as time passes. We may look to the man for a new recreation to a new crisis, but it is the girl who constantly unfolds adding new dimensions and considerations to the film.

The outcome is that the girl leaves her home and at the instigation of the young man, begins attendance at an unspecified school for the blind. But the most important spiritual growth that she has experienced, namely that she has fallen in love with her protector, is left undecided. And yet it is not an agonizing end.

The director, Guy Green, has cleverly continued the end of the film so that the audience is more sympathetic to the fact that a sort of timeless affection has grown between the two rather than that the couple do not go immediately and live happily ever after.

This very different kind of film will be showing in Belleville in the near future.

Mayor McFarland Is Host To Royal Order of Jesters

PICTON (Staff) 6— A large number of Jesters are in Picton today as guests of Mayor Harvey J. McFarland — not court jester but member of the Royal Order of Jesters, a club comprised mainly of highly succesful businessmen who form an order one notch above the Shriners.

The mayor will be playing host to his friends at his beautiful bayshore residence. He provided a railway coach to bring the jesters to Picton. It was the first time a passenger train has been in Picton in many a moon.

For his American friends the Mayor has chartered a large commercial plane to fly them from major U.S. cities to Picton Army Camp air strip.

The mayor noted that many of the members are leading businessmen and industrialists who will be getting their first look at Prince Edward County and its many attractions. Those attending will get a bird's eye view of the island county's scenic attractions in a special helicopter, which will take members from the grounds of the McFarland residence for the flights. Boat trips are also being conducted for those that may wish to see the many fine views from the water. The event will end about 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday).

Picton Pilot, 17, and Girl Escape When Plane Sinks

SHARBOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) Two teen - agers escaped Wednesday when their small plane crashed and sank in Bobs Lake, about 10 miles southeast of here.

Dale Crowe, 17, of Picton, pilot of the plane, is in hospital at Kingston, 35 miles south of here, with facial cuts and shock.

His companion, Marie Vaderl 18, of Bloomfield, wasn't admitted to hospital.

Police said the plane struck power lines 45 feet above the lake.

Mutt Show Held

PICTON (STAFF) — Long dogs, short dogs, big dogs and small dogs in fact everything but hot dogs were in evidence Wednesday afternoon when children involved in the recreational program for the summer months gathered with their pets for a "Mutt Show".

The dogs were attired in some of the most ridiculous (but highly original) costumes imaginable. Everything from bikini bathing suits to old ladies' dresses were worn by the canine crowd in competing for one of the main events of the program, the best dressed dog. Other competitions for the event included prizes for the largest dog as well as the smallest. The longest tail, the shortest tail, the best trick dog, "crookedest" tail, most original name and the dog who could eat the most dog food. A dog of the show prize was also awarded.

WILL SEEK LOAN

TORONTO (CP) — City officials here Wednesday agreed to ask the Ontario Municipal Board for a loan to cover the cost of the Canadian National Exhibition's hoped-for monorail transit system for which costs have soared to $2,600,000 from an early estimate of $1,400,000.

Education of Lower Ranks on Unification of Forces Is Commenced by Allard

OTTAWA (CP)—The education of the lower levels of the armed forces on unification has started, it was learned Thursday.

Commanders of operational commands across Canada issued messages to their units in line with orders from Gen. Jean V. Allard, chief of the defence staff, that the men be given assurances their voices will be heard in preparations to unite the navy, army and air force into a single service.

Gen. Allard's orders followed a crisis which brought the firing of Rear-Admiral William Landymore, 50, as commander of Maritime Command and of the Atlantic Fleet for publicly criticizing Defence Minister Hellyer's unification plans.

Mr. Hellyer moved to fill a vacancy caused by the request for retirement of Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, deputy Maritime commander and Pacific Fleet chief, who said he could not support a policy leading to creation of a single service.

Among three commodores promoted to Rear-Admiral and three brigadiers to major-general was Commodore J. A. Charles, 48, who succeeds Rear-Admiral Stirling. He now is director - general of maritimes forces at headquarters here.

The department also announced these senior appointments and promotions:

Air Vice-Marshal Frederick S. Carpenter, 51, Toronto, will succeed Maj.-Gen. Cameron B. Ware, 52, as commandant of the national defence college at Kingston in August.

Commodore Donald McClure, 50, Victoria, will be promoted to rear-admiral and appointed deputy commander operational support at Mobile Command, Montreal, succeeding Air Vice-Marshal Carpenter.

Commodore Stuart E. Paddon, 48, St. Thomas, will be promoted rear - admiral and appointed commander of the Canadian defence liaison staff, Washington, succeeding Rear-Admiral D. W. Piers, Halifax, whose retirement was announced recently.

Brig. Bruce F. Macdonald, 49, Edmonton, will be promoted to major-general and appointed deputy chief of personnel at defence headquarters here, succeeding Air Marshal Edwin M. Reyno who was recently promoted and appointed chief of personnel.

The process of educating the forces took different forms at tht outset.

Maj.-Gen. R. P. Rothschild, commander of Materiel Command, issued a message to all units Thursday quoting Gen. Allard's message at length.

Lt.-Gen. W. A. B. Anderson, who commands about 80,000 infantry troops and five bases as commander of Mobile Command, issued a statement to his men saying arrangements would be made to let them know

YOUNG MOTHER SHOT — Deanne Towns, 16, blood streaming from wounds to her head and chest, sits in front seat of car as guardsmen looks at her. She was wounded as Cleveland police opened fire when the driver tried to escape at the scene of a fire near a East Side area that has been torn by rioting. Her two children and brother also were wounded. (AP Wirephoto)

Brooklyn Slum Erupts Violence

NEW YORK (AP)—Hundreds of residents of a tense, racially-mixed Brooklyn slum area battled each other and police Thursday night with guns, bottles and rocks. An 11-year-old Negro was killed, apparently by sniper fire.

The violence broke out in east New York, a tenement neighborhood that for months has been the scene of sporadic fighting among Negroes, Puerto Ricans and Italian-Americans.

Ten policemen were hurt in the outbreak, none seriously.

Earlier in the evening, a three - year - old Negro was wounded in the stomach by a rifle bullet 20 blocks from the scene of the disorders, but police said the incident was unrelated.

Eight Negroes were arrested. One was charged with throwing a gasoline-filled bottle, the others with disorderly conduct.

HIT BY SNIPER

The dead boy, Eric Dean, was hit in the chest, apparently by a sniper's bullet, police said, as Negroes carrying bottles, rocks and sticks roamed neighborhood streets. They said they were armed to ward off possible attacks by whites.

When tne boy was shot police at first calmed the crowd by telling them he had fainted. But when word spread that he was dead, cries of "Let's get 'em" rang out among the Negroes and the violence spread through the debris-littered streets.

Mayor John V. Lindsay and Police Commissioner Howard R. Leary went to the area, along with 350 police reinforcements.

Police were met with sniper fire and a barrage of rocks and bottles, some gasoline - filled, flung from rooftops and street corners.

Some of the extra police were withdrawn today but the area remained under tight guard.

Draft Reduces Emigration Of Young Canadians to U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Two factors have cut deeply this year into the number of Canadians emigrating to the United States—the Viet Nam draft and protective labor legislation.

A U.S. embassy source says the number of visa applications by Canadian males in the 18-25 age group has "dwindled to nothing" in the face of the military draft.

Figures are few but one source says that in the period ending June 1, visas issued at major Canadian centres numbered 2,652, compared with 9,691 in the same period of 1965.

Both Canadian and U.S. officials admit there has been a sharp drop.

New U.S. immigration laws that went into effect last Dec. 1 may account for the decrease as much as the draft does.

The crucial new section puts the onus on the immigrant and his prospective employer to prove there is no one else in the U.S. to do the available job.

Besides giving the usual evidence of good character and financial stability, a Canadian now must also fill out a form for the U.S. labor department.

The department then goes to the prospective employer, who must prove he advertised adequately in the U.S. the job the Canadian will get.

The embassy said this is not as forbidding as it sounds. At a time of high employment, it isn't a factor in many applications.

Also, the policy is being applied on a regional rather than national basis.

The labor department doesn't tell a Boston employer there is a pipefitter in Los Angeles who could do the job as well as the Canadian.

Significantly, doctors, engineers, nurses and other highly-skilled workers in demand in Canada are exempt from the new legislation.

They can get in by simply meeting visa requirements.

"But," insists an embassy source, "the new law isn't designed as a brain drain.

"Many skilled workers can't get in while many unskilled ones, like domestics, can."

He says the object of the changes was to end a quota system under which, for instance, the British quota of 25,000 was never met while there were lineups waiting in low-quota countries.

Today's Chuckle

Good judgment comes from experience. Experience comes from bad judgment.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Arsonists wrought mounting destruction for the fourth straight night in disorders in Negro slums and other areas on Cleveland's east side Thursday night, putting a heavy strain on this city's firefighting forces.

The fire department reported before midnight all east side fire equipment was in use and additional equipment would be called from west side stations.

However, incidents appeared to be tapering off early today.

Firebombs ignited numerous fires Thursday night. There were reports of gunfire in several spots, but the only known victim was wounded accidentally by his own gun.

Police were reinforced by nearly 2,000 national guardsmen

Yogi Nails Tongue to Board To Help Argentina Team

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) An Argentina Yogi practitioner, Prof. Yogaskan, spent 14 days without taking food and with his tongue nailed to a board "so as to exercise spiritual influence for the victory of Argentina in a World Cup soccer match against Switzerland," says the newspaper La Manana, published in the city of Corrientes.

The paper, available here Thursday, says thousands of people paradid to see an encourage Yogaskan, who performed his test in a public gallery.

Yogaskan's sole means of communication with his fans is by writing.

He wrote that he experiences "a sweet feeling in his tongue" precisely at the time Argentina scored its second goal against Switzerland, last Tuesday.

According to La Manana, Yogaskan will try to maintain his test until Saturday. Otherwise he is quoted saying, Argentina's chances in a match with England, Saturday would be "seriously reduced."

Marines Battle Red Elite

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. marines battled through the night against a large force from an elite North Vietnamese division in the jungles and hills near the 17th parallel frontier. At dawn today, they called in marine planes to prevent the enemy from fleeing toward Laos.

Hard fighting pushed the probable Communist toll in the eight-day marine drive to more than 1,000 killed, the marine command said. In Saigon, U.S. military headquarters said the foe was the North Vietnamese 324-B Division of 8,000 to 10,000 men under the command of a tough mountaineer general known to favor human wave assaults.

It was the first time in the war a full North Vietnamese division has been reported in action in the south as a single organized force.

All-Night Hospital Talks Fail

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiators trying to settle a week-old strike at 139 Quebec hospitals talked through the night and announced today they intended to keep going until noon.

But their work apparently still is inconclusive.

The union negotiating for 32,500 non-medical workers committee earlier was reported considering a new offer involving wage increases. But a spokesman for the Quebec Hospitals Association, representing hospitals in the dispute, denied any knowledge of the offer.

The talks—described by Premier Daniel Johnson Thursday as an all-out effort — started after Yves Pratte, provincially appointed mediator, called negotiators together Thursday night.

Premier Johnson had said in Quebec City the talks would continue until dawn if neces-

Wilson Seeks Backing Of Trade Union Congress

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson tried today to stop a revolt against his call for a voluntary six - month wages and prices freeze by Britain's powerful 8,500,000 - member Trade Union Congress.

Wilson's top two lieutenants—George Brown, deputy premier and economics minister, and James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer — met for three hours today with TUC leaders to convince them of the need for the austerity measures announced Wednesday to prop up the pound and bolster the shaky economy.

The TUC is expected to announce its decision Wednesday, after its general council meets.

Five unions have already rejected the prime minister's call for a voluntary pay standstill.

George Woodcock, general secretary of the union congress, opposes the pay freeze but he has not yet advised the congress to head for a clash with the government.

Government sources say the administration hopes to get a voluntary union agreement to

Space Rendezvous Champs Are Back

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The Gemini 10 astronauts fly back to Cape Kennedy today to give details of one of man's most remarkable space flights—an adventure that set guidelines for flights to the moon and for military man-in-space programs.

Cmdr. John W. Young of the navy and space-walker Michael Collins, an air force major, were to leave the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal for the Cape—where their journey began Monday.

During 70 hours 47 minutes in space they caught and docked with one Agena satellite, used the Agena engine to dart to a record altitude of 476 miles and rendezvoused with an old lifeless Agena.

Collins set records of his own when he made two space excursions—one a stand-up manoeuvre, the other a space walk. Although both were shortened by problems, he walked over to the dead Agena and retrieved a package that had been recording micrometeorite impacts for four months.

Young and Collins climaxed their flight late Thursday, steering Gemini 10 to a near-perfect landing in the western Atlantic about 550 miles east southeast of Cape Kennedy.

COMES CLOSE

The spacecraft splashed down 7.5 miles from the Guadalcanal. Less than half an hour later a helicopter deposited them on the deck of the carrier.

They underwent a physical examination and the first of numerous sessions with technical experts.

"They have no medical problems," reported Dr. Kenneth Beers. "They're in good shape."

They were so thirsty that within a short period Collins drank four colas and Young had five glasses of water.

The astronauts, both 35 will remain at Cape Kennedy until Protect Visitors To Expo

QUEBEC (CP) — The death knell for hotelkeepers who want to fleece the public and for a large number private hunting and fishing clubs was sounded Thursday by Gabriel Loubier, Quebec's tourism, fish and game minister.

Mr. Loubier announced at a press conference that at the next session of the legislature a law will be passed to prevent unscrupulous hotel and motel owners from fleecing visitors who come to the 1967 world's fair at Montreal.

A law "with teeth in it" is necessary, he said, because a recent inquiry made by his department showed that 80 hotels and motels in the Montreal area are planning to profit by milking Expo 67 visitors.

He said the inquiry had given the large Montreal hotels a clean bill of health and those intending to profiteer were "the small hotels and motels, and even some big motels."

ANNUL LEASES

He also announced that effective immediately 198 leases for private fishing and hunting clubs are being annulled.

The clubs, located on Crown land, are losing their rights because of a failure to live up to terms of their leases, he said. The most common infraction was failure to provide a watchman as stipulated in the contract.

At present, he said, 90 per cent of the private clubs have been set up for persons living outside the province, "from Ontario, New York and I think we even have one from California."

Clubs that have lost their leases will be paid for building and other improvements on the land.

Tractor Parades Planned

TORONTO (CP)—The president of the Ontario Farmers Union said Thursday about 1,000 tractors will resume slow-moving parades on provincial highways Monday to protest low milk prices.

John Dolmer of Corbetton, Ont., said in an interview the farmers will take to the roads in groups of 25 to 50. The demonstrations were halted last month to allow completion of haying.

Directives are being sent to the presidents and secretaries of every OFU local in the province and to each district director outlining plans for the resumed demonstrations, he added.

"I don't think there will be any problem in getting 1,000 tractors on the roads."

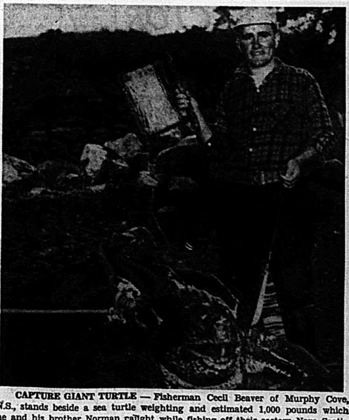
The farmers are seeking a 25-cent increase in the present $3.25 price paid by processors for a hundredweight of milk to cover transportation costs.

Bill Langdon, an OFU regional director, said more than 300 tractors are expected to converge at Woodstock Monday and may continue their drive to Toronto.

He said officials hope at least half the tractors that turn up Monday will continue the parade Tuesday about 60 miles along Highway 2 towards Toronto. They hope to enter Toronto Wednesday if city police give clearance.

At Chatsworth, nine miles south of Owen Sound, OFU members from Grey and Bruce counties voted at a meeting to resume demonstrations Monday on major roads in the area.

A spokesman said they will not join the larger provincial march, at least not at this time.



CAPTURE GIANT TURTLE — Fisherman Cecil Beaver of Murphy Cove, N.S., stands beside a sea turtle weighting and estimated 1,000 pounds which he and his brother Norman caught while fishing off their eastern Nova Scotia home. The brothers first thought they had hooked bottom, but then the turtle carried the 26-foot boat two miles. A cod jig had hooked into the flipper of the turtle. (CP Wirephoto)

Jas. Allen Masonic Master; R. Gunsolus Board Member

TORONTO (CP)—The annual convocation of the Masons' Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario ended Thursday with re-election of James Allen, Ontario provincial secretary, to a two-year term as provincial grand master.

Ray Gunsolus of Belleville was among those appointed to two-year terms on the board of general purposes.

Boy, 7, Has Ribs Broken

Seven-year-old William Hossack remains in the intensive care unit of the Belleville General Hospital today suffering from fractured ribs, lacerations to his head and multiple cuts and bruises.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hossack, 465 Dundas St. W., was struck by a car on the Trent Rd. just west of Pape's Steak House at 4.30 p.m. yesterday.

The car was being driven by Elsie Crymble, 711 Bloor St., Toronto. She told police the boy ran out from behind some parked cars into the path of her vehicle.

Belleville O.P.P. are investigating. City police were also on hand. The accident occurred just a few feet outside the city limits.

Lightning Sets Alarm

Two Belleville Fire Department trucks and the emergency unit sped to Belleville General Hospital shortly before 3 p.m. yesterday but on arrival, firemen learned they had responded to a false alarm.

A fire department spokesman blamed lightning for tripping the alarm at the hospital's education hall.

CONSTRUCTION BEGAN yesterday afternoon on the Turnbull Street site of the Belleville Senior Citizens Housing Project. Contractor Maurice Rollins (right) discusses the plans with Mayor Jack Ellis.

Senior Citizens' Housing Work Started Yesterday

Construction began yesterday afternoon on Belleville's senior citizens housing project just minutes after the contractor, Maurice Rollins, received final plans of the complex from the Ontario Housing Corporation. Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. was awarded the contract at $229,000.

Recent delays in the beginning of the project were caused by a number of changes initiated by the Ontario Housing Corporation with a view to reducing the price. Originally it was set at $320,000.

When completed in early February, the development on Turnbull St. will accommodate 16 persons in single units and 42 persons in double units. Financed by the Ontario Housing Corporation, the senior citizens' housing is guaranteed a fixed tax rate by the city.

Mayor Jack Ellis and Maurice Rollins were on hand yesterday afternoon for initial groundbreaking. Alderman Doug Boyle, Chairman of the Special Committee on Senior Citizens Housing, was absent from the city and unable to attend.

sary "in hope of having good news to tell tomorrow morning."

Dawn arrived with negotiations still in progress. It was not immediately known what action was planned by the premier.

He said earlier that the cabinet would intervene unless agreement was reached by midnight. But as the deadline passed, he said the government will "take steps" only if negotiations break off.

In Montreal, a spokesman for the hospital association said no further progress towards settlement was made in all-day bargaining sessions Thursday.

The National Federation of Services (CNTU), which bargains for the hospital employees, said chances of immediate settlement seem slight.

If negotiations break off the premier could: ask for an injunction ordering the end of the strike as a threat to public health; have the government put the hospital association under trusteeship; or call a special session of the legislature to impose compulsory arbitration.

Union spokesman said Thursday that the government is hesitant to raise the salaries of the hospital workers because such increases would raise the budget of the Hospital Insurance Services.

Increases would have to be authorized by both the hospitals and the government.

Trenton PUC Interested In Plan to Pipe in Water

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Utility Commission, meeting last night, agreed they were very interested in a proposal by the Ontario Water Resources Commission to bring water into the Trenton-Belleville area by pipe-line from Lake Ontario. The OWRC is now engaged in a survey to determine the feasibility of such a plan, which would also supply water to built-up communities in Prince Edward County. If carried out, the plan would not get underway for another five to ten years.

Trenton PUC manager, James Page, told the commission Trenton would need additional supplies of water within a five-year period.

The new 90 million gallon water storage pond in Murray Township will only enable the utility to come up to capacity pumping strength, Mr. Page said. He said there would soon be a need for additional pumping equipment, as the equipment and supply of water were now being used to capacity.

Commissioner C. A. Baker said that several years ago he had advocated bringing water into town from Sugar Point on Lake Ontario. The commission has power lines there for pumping stations and an arrangement could have been worked out to run the pipe-line into town along the CNR right-of-way, he said.

However, at that time, the PUC had not made an arrangement with the government to supply the air station with water and funds were not available.

Commission chairman Charles Hilton said water from the Trent River had been used to supply the RCAF, as the river water at this time was relatively odorless and tasteless.

PUC Workers Get Pay Hike

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission yesterday signed a two-year contract with its employees which will give them an eight per cent increase in wages, retroactive to April 1st of this year, and an additional increase of seven per cent on April 1, 1967.

The commission will continue to pay 6.8 per cent of the employees' wages on a pension plan, while the employees will pay 5.5 per cent, instead of 2.5 per cent, under a "stacking" arrangement with the Canada Pension Plan.

Garage Burns

TRENTON — Damage estimated between $1,300 and $1,500 resulted when a garage on the farm of Orlaf Kemp on the north Consecon Lake shore burned to the ground this morning. A tractor and other smaller equipment were also destroyed.

Trenton Fire Department was called about 9 a.m. Firemen concentrated on saving the frame farm house located near the burning garage. Fire Chief C. E. Ellis supplied the damage estimate and said there was no insurance on building or contents.

Thirteen - year - old Orlaf Kemp, Jr. received slight burns to the hands and arms while attempting to fight the fire. He was treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital and was released later.

Jack Alyea Makes Mayor Two Proposals Over Land

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton last night met with Murray Township farmer Jack Alyea in an effort to settle a six-month-old battle between the Trenton Public Utilities Commission and Mr. Alyea. The PUC wants 12.9 acres of Mr. Alyea's land in order to complete a reservoir project. The farmer has remained steadfast in his efforts to keep work crews off his land.

Details of a new proposal handed to Mayor MacDonald by Mr. Alyea are as yet not available. Mr Alyea said today that he has proposed two new offers, one concerning sale of the land and the other a suggested plan for leasing of the property in question.

The $440,000 reservoir project is now in its eighth week of construction. Workmen have made no attempt to move onto Mr. Alyea's property and PUC manager J H. Page states that no entry will be made until commission and town officials have had a chance to review Mr. Alyea's latest proposals.

Says Mr Alyea's wife, Florence: "I hope things are settled, soon. Since expropriation proceedings started, the only time we have left the property is when we go to church on Sundays. We haven't been getting much sleep lately."

Conn Bridge Co. Road Contract Given Approval

TRENTON — Meeting yesterday, the Trenton Public Utilities Commission voted approval of the overall contract let to the Conn Bridge Company for work on the new development road in Murray Township, which will include the building of a retaining dam and spillway for the commission's new water storage pond. The commission will pay an extra $5,000 on this contract, as the dam tender was for $20,787 more than originally estimated. Government grants will take up the remainder.

Commission chairman, Charles Hilton, and Commissioner C. A Baker were agreed that the PUC could bury hydro lines along the eastern approach to the new bridge at the request of the town, providing the town came up with the difference between $2,500 for overhead installation and the $11,500 necessary for underground installation.

The commission would also cede to the parks' board land it owns in the vicinity of Victoria Ave. and William Street for a playround, if the board wishes it Mr. Baker said he though there would be very little danger from overhead high tension wires, provided the children do not do such things as fly kites. The parks board is attempting to find a playground site to take the place of the Victoria Park site on Division Street. The closeness of a new liquor store to this playground renders it unsafe from a traffic standpoint.

The commission approved the lowest tender for painting inside of the water storage tank on Mount Pelion by the "epoxy system," submitted by A. Beauclair, Ltd. of London, Ont. for $9,574.70. This work will be done in the fall.

The commission will not take part in "Operation Alladin," sponsored by Ontario Hydro and the Belleville PUC, as Trenton ran a similar demonstration meeting recently and the commissioner felt the cost was not justified.

However, the commission voted to spend $98 this year to run an advertisement in the local newspaper, outlining the 1965 financial report.

IN MEMORIAM

BRADY — In loving memory of a dear mother, Bessie Brady, who passed away suddenly July 22, 1956.

She left the ones she loved the best,
Without a last goodbye.
And in our sad and lonely hearts,
We keep on asking why.
The reason is hidden somewhere,
In the pattern God has planned,
We must believe and trust in Him,
And someday we'll understand.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Ruth, son-in-law Norris, and grandson Billy Easton.

BOOTH — In loving memory of my dear mother, Maud Booth, who passed away July 22, 1964.

What I would give if I could say,
Hello Mom in the same old way,
To hear your voice, see you smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile,
So you who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you'll never know the heartache,
Till you see her vacant chair.
—Always remembered by daughter, Vyola.

SCHAMERHORN, Joseph — In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away July 22, 1955.

What would I give if I could say,
"Hello, Joe" in the same old way,
To hear your voice, see you smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile,
So you who have a husband,
Cherish him,
For you will never know the heartache,
Till you see the vacant chair.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife Winnie.

TOO HEAVY TO HANDLE — Water went right up over the curbs yesterday at the Pinnacle St. - Bridge St. intersection during the short, heavy rainstorm. Water was going down the drains and shooting right back up again, flooding the intersection.

Sentenced To 14 Days For Prowling

Wayne Paul Joseph Langabeer, 18, of 105 Cedar Street, was sentenced to 14 days in the county jail in magistrate's court this morning on a charge of prowling.

Langabeer was remanded for a week in custody last Friday after pleading guilty to the charge.

The charge arose out of an incident last week when a female resident of a George Street apartment building phoned police after she had seen a man looking through her window.

New Pinnacle Street Sewer Fails to Avert Flash Flood

Change doesn't necessarily change anything.

Despite the city's ambitious storm sewer project, along Pinnacle St., the Pinnacle-Bridge intersection was flooded yesterday afternoon during the short but heavy storm which dropped .41 inches of rain on the city in 25 minutes.

The two storm drains in the intersection were shooting water about one foot in the air during the height of the deluge.

The Pinnacle-Bridge intersection was not alone either. The Golfdale Rd. - Southview Ave. intersection was also flooded again, during the storm.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell explained that the new sewers at the Pinnacle - Bridge intersection are adjoined to an old stone ditch which runs down to the river.

The ditch is situated under the travelled portion of the road on Bridge St. about 30 feet west of the intersection. The ditch actually goes right around the corner onto the north side of Pinnacle, but the sewers weren't connected to it there because engineers wanted to keep water out of the intersection.

Mr. Purcell said the old stone ditch is clogged with dirt and stones but it cannot be cleaned because the bucket machine is liable to pull stones out of the wall and cause the whole thing to cave in.

The only solution is to build a new sewer right to the river.

The Golfdale - Southview intersection is always flooded during storms of this nature. A sewer was put in there a couple of years ago, but the problem has not been overcome. Mr. Purcell said men were dispatched to that corner yesterday, but when they arrived, the flood had abated.

College Street Bridge

Re-route Traffic During Construction

Re-routing of city traffic during construction of the new four-lane College St. bridge was approved at a special meeting of city council yesterday.

The re-routing is necessary because College St. will be closed to through traffic during construction.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said traffic consultants prefer to re-route traffic rather than build the bridge in two stages which, they say, would mean extra costs through duplication.

Estimated cost of the plan is $12,000, but this compares to a cost of some $50,000 for a two-stage construction and almost that much for renting a temporary Bailey bridge.

Construction is expected to start September 1, and be completed May 30, 1967. However, re-routing of traffic will begin in August to give the public time to become oriented to the new system.

The plan consists of changing a number of city streets into one-way arteries.

Moira St. from Coleman to St. Charles will be one-way easterly; St. Charles St. from Moira St. to Strachan St. one-way northerly; Strachan St. from Moira St. to Grove St. one-way westerly; Grove St. from Strachan St. to North Front St one-way westerly; Harriet St. from North Front St. to Coleman St. one-way westerly; and, if it is found necessary, Coleman St. from Harriet St. to Moira St. will become one-way southerly.

The plan also provides for the prohibition of a left turn to go east on Moira St. from the intersection of North Front and Moira. Also named in case it's needed, was a four-way stop system, by use of flashing red traffic lights, at the Coleman-Moira intersection.

Mr. Purcell explained the four-way stop would require no physical changes at that corner. He said flashing lights on all corners would take care of it. He said it is also possible Coleman St. may become a through street at that intersection.

Pedestrians will also be effected in the re-routing. Pedestrian crossing will be prohibited at the intersection of Front St., Station St. and the upper bridge from the east, west or north sides.

The city engineer explained that once College St. is cut off the key to traffic flow hinges on two intersections, Station and Pinnacle, and Station, Front and the upper bridge intersection.

Mayor Ellis said some of the changes may be of sufficient value to remain as permanent. "It's going to be difficult at the upper bridge for a while, but after everyone gets used to it, it shouldn't be too bad."

Another provision of the by-law is that no truck will be allowed to operate on the north lane of Station St. from Pinnacle St. to Front St.

The mayor said that he did not want to frighten anyone, but that construction may take a full nine months. He said it depends upon the condition of the river. Waiting for the river to be at its lowest level before putting in the foundations means that the bridge will have to be finished during the inclement weather of the winter when construction can not be completed as fast.

the pay pause because blanket statutory control would be too complex to enforce.

The government has swiftly vetoed pay increases for 60,000 gas industry workers who won a pay raise only one day before the new measures were announced.

WILL PRESS AHEAD

Apparently taking their cues from Frank Cousins, leader of the 1,500,000-member Transport Workers, some other chiefs of draughtsmen, technicians and other groups have indicated they will press ahead with demands for higher wages despite Wilson's demand for a six-month freeze.

Meanwhile the pound seesawed on foreign exchange Thursday bfore finally closing higher at $2.79 1-16 (U.S.) after the Bank of England and the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank were reported to have moved in and bought sterling. The pound still has a long way to go to reach the official parity of $2.80 with the U.S. dollar.

An official of the Trades Union Congress, central body covering 170 unions and 8,750,000 workers, said Thursday that unions will be watching how far the rebels go in challenging the prime minister.

COULD WRECK PROGRAM

If they should succeed without bringing government wrath on their heads, other unions also may push with their demands, thereby wrecking part of the program to halt inflation and help Britain pay its way in the world markets.

"You can talk about balance of payments and loyalty to the Labor Party, but a good many workers didn't join the unions for those purposes," the official said. "He joined to get more money in his pay packet."

The TUC's general council will meet next Wednesday to discuss the wage and price freeze and to announce some form of policy if dissension among union leaders can be overcome.

City Accepts Tatham Tender On Sewers

City council yesterday passed a by-law to accept the tender of The Tatham Company Limited for construction of the east end storm sewer project.

Amount of the tender is $234,970.30, lowest of three submitted.

The cost of construction will be paid for in part by the issue of debentures in an amount not to exceed $220,000.

The storm sewers will run along Victoria Ave. from Rollins Dr. to Parrott Dr.; Parrott Dr. from Victoria to Bridge St.; Bridge from Parrott to 320 feet east of Stanley Park Dr.; Melrose Cresc. from Bridge to Stanley Park Dr., on Sunset Dr. from Melrose to Stanley Park Dr.; Lee Ave. from Melrose to a point 330 feet east of Stanley Park Dr.; Meadowvale Ave. from 320 feet west of Park Lane to a point 220 feet east of Stanley Park Dr., on Park Lane, from Victoria to Meadowvale, along Smith Cresc. from Victoria to a line between lots eight and nine, from an easement between those lots from Smith Cresc. approximately 200 feet southerly; Farley Ave. from Victoria Ave. to Northwood Cresc.; an easement from Bridge St. to 450 feet east of Bradgate Rd.; Bradgate Rd. from Elizabeth Cresc. to Dundas St.; an easement from Dundas St. to 420 feet south of Dundas St.; and an easement along the east side of the CPR tracks from 420 feet south of Dundas St. E. to a point 105 feet south-westerly.

Relating to the sewer contract, though not directly, is a by-law for the construction of concrete curbs and gutters and pavements at a cost of $97,500.

The city engineer explained this project will require a separate tender calling. He said that although many of the same streets are affected, it is not really part of the storm sewer project.

Approval was given to call tenders.

Curbs, gutters and pavements will be constructed on Stanley Park Dr. from Bridge St. E. to Victoria Ave.; Melrose Cresc. from Bridge Street to Stanley Park Dr.; Sunset Dr. from Stanley Park to Melrose; Lee Ave. from Stanley Park to Melrose Cresc.; and Smith Cresc. from Victoria to Victoria.

Cost of the project will be paid for in part by the issue of debentures for an amount not to exceed $84,500

Estimated costs will be $80,000 for construction, plus $12,000 for engineering, supervision and contingencies, plus $5,500 administration charges, less an estimated Department of Highways subsidy of $13,000, making a total of $84,500 cost to the city.

Smoke Overcomes 24 Miners As Transformer Catches Fire

NANTICOKE, Pa. (AP)—Thick, acrid smoke poured down an air shaft into a mine where 150 miners were working 200 feet underground Thursday, overcoming at least 24 and forcing others to crawl to safety.

The smoke came from a burning transformer located some 50 yards from the main entrance of Aglen Nan Coal Co. mine in an isolated area two miles south of this hard-coal community and about 110 miles north of Philadelphia. The transformer provides power for the fan in the air shaft.

Leonard Statkewicz, assistant to the president of United Mine Workers district 1, said the 24 men overcome by the smoke were unconscious when taken to hospital.

Stanley Florkowski, Nanticoke fire chief, said the fire in the transformer apparently was caused by a short circuit that ignited some timbers.

Resists Arrest, Fined $25

A Belleville man was fined $25 and costs today on each of two separate charges arising out of the same incident.

William Calbury, 158½ Church Street, pleaded guilty to resisting arrest and having liquor in a place other than his residence on July 20.

Belleville police told Magistrate T. Y. Wills in court this morning that Calbury was pursued on foot by a police officer when he was seen in the Firemen's Park (near the CPR bridge) with a bottle wrapped in brown paper in his possession.

When apprehended by the policeman, Calbury put up a struggle, continuing to do so after other police officers arrived on the scene and tried to put him in a cruiser.

The police officer who arrested Calbury escaped without injury.

Where to Start?

The problem of combating water pollution in the Great Lakes, according to Mines Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, is so complicated that researchers "don't even know yet where to start."

The minister says research alone is a multi-million dollar project, and implementation of remedial measures could cost further billions. Such is the extent of a problem which has been growing in magnitude with each passing year, with the development of each new industry in Seaway and Great Lakes communities, and with the passage of each ship through the inland waterway.

Mr. Pepin undoubtedly is aware of the water pollution testing facilities being established in Kingston and Brockville. While these, along with other investigations, may be regarded as a start it is obvious that a great deal more requires to be done.

However, this is not a problem for Canada alone. The Seaway and the lakes that are part of the system linking the interior of this continent with the ocean are an international waterway. Thus, pollution is very much a concern of the Americans as well.

How much cooperation there is between Canada and the United States in this matter is not clear. Pollution is a problem that has been with us for a long time and as we have suggested it is growing in magnitude, yet authorities have barely tapped the surface in attempting to remedy it.

There has been much talk on the subject, but not enough action. Not enough concerted action, that is. Since the Seaway is an international route there should be close cooperation between the two countries. Meanwhile, such investigations as are being made cannot be discounted, for samples taken at say Kingston will give a clue to conditions over a wide area of water.

The crux of the matter would seem to be control of the users of inland waters — the industrial plants we have mentioned, shipping, and private boat owners and campers. As long as these groups continue to allow excessive waste to discharge into the system the problem will be no nearer solution.

Both Canada and the United States should ensure that industry, shipping and the public follow the regulations in this regard. The difficulties of enforcing them are obvious, but much could be accomplished by an education campaign and the use of communications media in order to acquaint the public with their responsibilities in helping to bring this vast problem under control.

Feeling the Pinch

The financial straits in which the Cunard Line finds itself are symbolic of the British economic scene today.

We recall a company statement in the early days of the Seamen's strike, to the effect that the walkout could be "disastrous" as far as its seven passenger vessels were concerned. These include the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth.

Now comes an announcement by Sir Basil Smallpiece, Cunard's chairman, that the financial position of the company is so serious the entire passenger fleet, including the Queens, may have to be sold in two years.

"This is the bottom of the barrel," Sir Basil said in a message to crews of the line. "There is enough left in the kitty to cover losses at the present rate for 18 months, perhaps a couple of years."

With the rapid growth of transatlantic airline traffic, Cunard passenger vessels have loct $42,300,000 in the last five years. Last years's loss was more than $8,000,000, swamping the profit of $2,700,000 on freight.

If Sir Basil's dire prediction comes about some of the line's vessels could be sold to other companies, but shipping experts say the two Queens probably would have to be scrapped.

And that would be a sad day for Britain.

Divorce Figures

The Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church notes that the latest divorce figures, 8,941, or 45.7 per 100,000 population, represent a sharp increase over the 1961 figure of 6,563, or 36 per 100,000.

When wider grounds than adultery are admitted, as the church body feels should be the case, the figures will jump still further.

The causes of marital breakdown have been examined and re-examined, the board notes, involving everything from incompatibility to extreme youthfulness and working wives.

One factor, however, which it feels has been overlooked is "plain old-fashioned selfishness."

"As long as men and women look exclusively at their rights and desires and not at their responsibilities, partnerships will continue to dissolve."

This is a valid point, although it cannot be overlooked either that dissolution of marriage may be the only release two unhappy people can obtain from an intolerable situation. And if and when the grounds for divorce are widened, many more couples will take advantage of them.

Hair-filled Cyst Not a Birth Defect

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you explain a pilonidal cyst, which a doctor tells me I have at the base of my spine? — C. S.

Pilonidal means nest of hair, and that is just what a pilonidal cyst is — one containing hair, along with fluid which gradually accumulates in the cyst. The base of the spine is the usual place for this to occur.

Such a cyst was formerly thought to be a birth defect, a fault in development at the base of the spine. Some surgeons now challenge this idea, and think it more likely that, since the skin in that area is easily stretched, the cause may be an ingrown hair which in time produces the nest of hair and cyst.

As the cyst becomes infected and pus and fluid gather, there is discomfort and pain.

The cyst may drain, only to close up and then break open again when more fluid creates enough pressure.

Treatment depends on the extent of the infected tract. Sometimes the hair can be removed, this to be followed by keeping the area scrupulously clean (as well as free of hair by shaving) until healing starts at the inside and finally closes the tissues permanently.

In many cases the infected tract must be cleaned out by surgery. With the infection removed, healing occurs readily — although it is surprising the amount of debris that can work its way into the area once the cyst becomes established.

The surgery is not serious, the alternative, of leaving the cyst untreated, can be a miserable nuisance both from pain and periodic discharge, so if your doctor advises surgery, you would be wise to follow his advice.

Meantime two things help keep you more comfortable. If you are fat, lose some weight. And when you sit, sit up straight. Do not slouch. Erect posture will keep pressure off the painful area.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am worried about my 15-year-old granddaughter. Is it dangerous for her to be anemic at this age? She becomes tired very quickly and just doesn't have the usual vim and vigour of a young person. — L. B.

Calling every low - energy youngster anemic is stretching the language too far. Anemia is a specific condition (or rather one of several conditions) affecting the blood. If the girl is anemic, the sooner she gets medical treatment, the better. A more likely cause of such fatigue is some combination of the following: poor diet, not enough sleep, or boredom. At 15 youngsters should be full of zip — unless something is wrong. The girl should be checked medically.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe for a girl of 14 to wear tampons and go swimming? — P. L.

Yes.

Dear Doctor: I have been using tampons ever since I began my menstrual periods about a year ago, but my girl friends tell me they can give you some kind of cancer. Is this true?— K. M.

No. Your girl friend has been misinformed.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way my 22-year-old son can shave without getting his face sore? His skin is not broken out but is so sensitive it bleeds every time he shaves. I am afraid this will lead to skin cancer. — Mrs. P. T.

The danger of cancer is scant My first suggestion is for him to try an electric razor before hunting for some other remedy He may also be sensitive to the shaving soap or cream, and should try another brand.

War Still Defies Solution

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If we are alive then, we won't recognize the world 20 years from now. A dozen different revolutions are taking place — in industry, universities, medical clinics, laboratories, government projects.

These revolutions are changing every field of human activity: transportation, communication, merchandising and marketing, health, weather-control, education, the whole structure of work and home life and leisure.

Ony one thing is not changing. The most important thing of all — the way in which we conduct our relations with other countries. And this one thing may easily negate all the other things we are doing.

What the professionals call "conflict resolution" is limited largely to a few textbooks and lecture halls. No money is being spent on it, little research is being done, and hardly any progress is being made.

Our machinery for aiding people to live together amicably on this alarmingly shrinking planet is still as creaking and rudimentary as it was 2500 years ago, when the Athenians and the Spartans ruined themselves in a war that meant nothing and settled nothing.

All the lessons learned by philosophers, social scientists, economists, psychologists and historians in these 2500 years have not moved us one inch closer to a rational resolution of national conflicts.

This is the most fantastic, and frightening, paradox of the late 20th century — we seem able to control and improve everything except the one factor that may spell the doom of the human race. In this area, we are still living in the Stone Age — but with the capability of blowing up the whole earth in one day.

We are amploying our best brains and talent — and immense sums of money — to enable people to live better and longer, to enjoy leisure, to take full advantage of our brilliant technological breakthroughs. But whether many of us will survive the next decade still depends upon the ancient (and proven ineffective) devices of power-politics.

The world's leaders are the same kind of men they have always been: but we can no longer afford that kind of men, any more than a modern corporation can afford to have a cave-man as its top executive. The world desperately needs professional managers to integrate and implement the new knowledge of the 20th century, not the same old power-driven, honor-ridden, cliche-mouthing politicians.

The disparity between our New World technology and our Stone Age statesmanship would not be tolerated for a moment in any companyl or college, or hospital, or any other institution of our time. Only in the field of government — most crucial of all — are we still trying to operate with the crude instruments of a vanished age.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

July 22, 1966 . . .

An English fleet bearing 121 colonists arrived at Roanoke Island, North Carolina, 379 years ago today—in 1587—to find that the 15 survivors of an earlier settlement had disappeared. The ships' crews refused to sail any farther, so the colonists were unloaded, among them the captain's daughter, Mrs. Dare, who a month later gave birth to the first white child born in North America. The captain, John White, returned to England for supplies and sailed to Roanoke Island again in 1591. He found no trace of the colony, except for the word "croatan" carved on a tree. The disappearance has never been explained.

1691 — Protestants defeated Catholics at the battle of Aughrim, Ireland.

1908—The Prince of Wales arrived at Quebec to celebrate the province's 300th anniversary

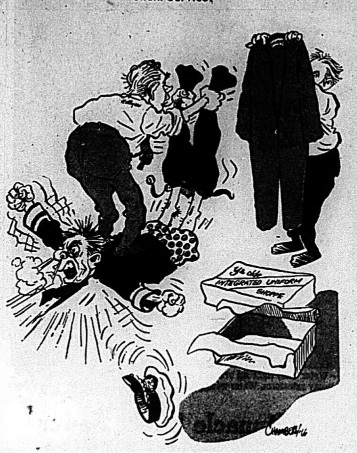
First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—A British attack at the Somme recaptured Longueval but was dislodged later in the day; Sergius Sazonoff, Russia's pro - British foreign minister, resigned.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — the loss of HMS Fearless was announced; Moscow was bombed for the second time; the RAF sank three Italian ships off Italy; it was announced that the Italian army beaten in East Africa by 20,000 British troops with 68 guns numbered 170,000 and 400 guns.

Silent Service?



Aid to Winter Driving

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Two ingenious Scotsmen have developed a device which should have wide appeal in Canada during the spring, fall and winter months.

The inventors, John Findlay and John Irvine, have developed what they call an "icelert" and variations of it. The "icelert" has been incorporated into the British Rover Car and initial tests have proved most successful. The "icelert" looks like an extra headlamp mounted at the front of the car. Instead, it is a transistorized device which senses the temperature of the road ahead.

When the road surface temperature falls below the freezing point, a light glows on the car's dashboard. Drivers who must travel over icy roads know that a road starting to thaw can be quite dangerous. When this occurs, the device gives a separate flashing signal, permitting the motorist to exercise extreme care and caution.

The men, who gave up jobs with a large electronics manufacturing firm, have also developed different versions equally helpful to town and cities. One being tried by British towns has devices which are buried in the roads. When the surface temperature falls below freezing they send a warning to a central point. Road crews can be called out for sanding and salting, making roads relatively safe for traffic.

But this isn't the last device devised by these young electronics experts. Another kind of "icelert" is to be fitted to the top of the Empire State building in New York city, the world's tallest building. This would be to send out warnings against ice which could damage television and radio masts.

The "icelert" appears to have many possibilities and would appear to be ideal for use in a country like Canada. During a year there are frequent sleet and ice storms, not to mention snowstorms. Often when a driver is on the road at night he doesn't know if the road ahead is sheathed in ice. The "icelert" could be the means of making safer driving for several months of the year. And early alerting of sanding crews through use of "icelert" devices would make things much better for the motorist and also the pedestrian.

Liquor Law Anomalies

The Globe and Mall

When long-haul passengers begin in August to drown their doubts in daiquiris, Air Canada stewardesses will serve them under a new, thoroughly Canadian rule: one drink an hour.

Such ingenious regimentation demands thoughtful application. Can you, for instance, have an extra drink if the plane gains an hour flying West?

Movies in Abbey

The War Cry

Movies are being shown in Westminster Abbey, London, for the first time. The weekly presentations will continue until September 26. The color film "A Queen is Crowned," showing the coronation of the Queen, will alternate with films of recent royal weddings.

The films are being shown on the west aisle of the north transep where there is seating (which is free) for about 120 persons

Recruitment For Guards

Ottawa Journal

"Say, do you have black faces underneath those bearskins?" a tourist asked the Manchester Guardian outside Buckingham Palace. The Guardian thought it was a good question, and did a little research. It found a "confidential memo" sent out by the War Office in 1964:

"It lays down that there can be carefully controlled recruiting of colored soldiers throughout the Army. With exceptions There should be no colored recruits in the Foot Guards and Household Cavalry, the Highland and Lowland Brigades, the Royal Military Police, the Military Prison Service, the Education Corps, the Intelligence Corps, and the Army Physical Training Corps."

The newspaper says that perhaps there is "a slight case" for a color bar in keeping Jamaicans out of kilts:

"But most of the barriers seem thoroughly indefensible — and, indeed, have not been strictly observed. The Household Brigade, it transpires, has had at least nine colored other ranks over the past 20 years. The Coldstreams has two under training now. The Welsh, Scots, and Irish Guards have all had colored recruits — though the Grenadier' sole claim to liberal sentiments seems to consist of having once commissioned the Kabaka of Buganda.

A special assistant in the office of the minister of national defence in Ottawa, who made inquiries, said there were no such memos regarding Canadian forces.

Low - Rental Housing in Toronto

The Globe and Mail

"They'll just fill the bathtubs with coal." That has been the standby Canadian cliche whenever anybody has suggested subsidizing housing for low-income families, and especially when anybody has actually provided subsidized housing any place except right down in the slums. Nor is the cliche—and its variants—at all out of use in what we pride ourselves on being this humanitarian day.

Such protestors always point out, of course, that they are in favor of subsidized housing. Next door to somebody else, that is. The conviction that low incomes equal low morals equal bad house-keeping equal a new slum is hard to dislodge.

It is therefore satisfying to discover that the gloom-and-doomers of Bermuda Court—for that is where the welfare cases were going to be lying about drunk all day—have been proved beautifully wrong. Bermuda Court one year after the low - income families began to move in is not completely run down. In fact, by admission of one of the earlier complainers, it is in rather better condition than it used to be. In fact, as G. E. Mortimore of The Globe and Mail discovered when he visited it the other day, it is pretty much like any middle-class housing development.

Oh, the bathing suits by the swimming pool might be a shade less expensive than they used to be, the cars in the parking lot a year or two older. But the time-honored equation has turned out to be wrong. The new tenants have no looser morals, are no sloppier housekeepers than their better - heeled predecessors. They just have lower income. Not a crime.

It is important to have this established in Bermuda Court, where the loudest complaints were raised by the OHC's habit of taking over existing housing developments and integrating low-income families.

Of course, it will have to be re-established every time the OHC is caught doing this (in most cases it is not caught, the neighbors do not know that their new neighbors will be poor and therefore do not feel compelled to suspect them, and no problem arises).

But it is important that the fallacy be exposed because the OHC is going into this business — to the benefit of the community — in a large way. By the end of this year it will have 5,000 low - rental units ready for occupancy in Metro, and by the end of 1967, it will have 9,507. There is no quicker way of meeting the urgent need for low-income housing than by buying existing housing (free enterprise will always build for the displaced). On that score the OHC is to be congratulated for its vigor. But perhaps in the long run even more important, it is providing subsidized housing in the right way.

For most of the OHC housing will not, like Regent and Moss Park, stick up like sore thumbs-announcing to all and sundry that the people who live there are poor. It will be integrated into the rest of the community; it will mix up subsidized families ad non-subsidized families; it will crop up all over Metro and not just in the eastern part of downtown Toronto; and it will give neighbors the opportunity of judging each other as people, not as pay-cheques. And that should make Toronto a healthier place for all of us.

Highway Hazards

Windsor Star

The Macdonald - Cartier Freeway is regarded by the Department of Highways as a first-class modern superhighway. It is not this, and it will never be this, until the grade crossings are eliminated. Not until drivers using the highway are freed from the danger of cross-traffic every few miles can it be classed with modern limited-access highways.

While the grade crossings remain, motorists using the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway must do so in the knowledge that they are exposed to a hazard that should not exist.

The Department of Highways now talks of studies to determine the advisability of increasing the speed limit on the freeway from 60 to 70 miles an hour. This is foolishness. Before even thinking of raising the speed limit, the department should eliminate the obvious hazards or grade crossings.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Florian Carrier, 29, a Delhi tobacco worker, was killed Wednesday night when struck by a car on the Macdonald Cartier Freeway near here. Police said he was working on his stalled auto when he apparently stepped in front of a car driven by Victor Anderson, 59, of London.

Deep River Boy's Illness Meningitis

TORONTO (CP) — Sean McCormick, a seven-year-old boy suffering from bacterial meningitis, was in "very serious" condition today at the Hospital for Sick Children.

The boy, one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. James T. McCormick of Sima, Calif., was flown here Thursday from Deep River, about 25 miles northwest of Pembroke, in an RCAF rescue helicopter.

When the boy first arrived at the hospital, the exact nature of the illness was not known. Tests later confirmed suspicions that it was bacterial meningitis.

When bacterial meningitis invades the spinal fluid it causes brain swelling which can depress the respiratory centres in the lower brain so that the lungs cease to function.

Sean became ill Monday night. Tuesday night his respiration failed and he had to be connected to a respirator. He was still connected to the machine when he arrived here.

Sean's father is a chemist with Atomic International Ltd., and has worked with Atomic Energy of Canada for a year.

8 Students Back From Quebec With French-Canadian Friends

With the first half of the student exchange visits sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews now completed, the 2,500 young people taking part in the program wind up the project with a two-week period in English-speaking Canada. Students from Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have returned from Quebec with their French-speaking counterparts, after a two-week stay in that province.

Sixteen of the students, eight teenagers from this area and their Quebec friends, arrived yesterday in Belleville. While visiting here, the French Canadians will take part in planned activities organized by the local unit of the Jaycees, as will their hosts.

Tuesday, July 26, a city hall reception is planned at which time Mayor Jack Ellis will welcome the visitors. Later the same day, the students will tour the Department of Agriculture Research Institute. Thursday, July 28, the group will tour Canadian Forces Base, Trenton. Tuesday, August 2, there will be a swim and barbecue party at the Outlet Provincial Park.

Chairman of the Jaycee committee in charge of organizing the activities here is Frederick Bailey. Belleville students participating in the program are Linda Bolyea, 498 Sidney St., Anne Cronk, 221 MacDonald Ave., Marcia McPherson, 20 Lesly Drive, Paula Murphy, 36 Moira St., W. and Susan Riley, 316 MacDonald Ave. The others are, Mary McDonald of Frankford, Gail Parks of Canniflon and Christopher Magnus of Trenton.

The visitors from Quebec are Carole Martin of Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere, Lisette Perreault of St. Fabien, Gisele Deschene of Les Hauteurs, Lise Pelletier of Notre Dame du Portage, Pauline Bosse of St. Gabriel, Francine Gallant of Sayabec, Jocelyne Martel of St. Remi Goupil and Louis Champoux of Quebec City.

The project, designed to strengthen the unity of Canada by increasing interest in bilingualism and by giving each participant an intimate knowledge of Canada's major cultural groups, began 10 years ago. Students pay part of their transportation costs; the Centennial Commission assists with a grant of $15,000 and the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews adds $35,000.

Reject Request To Suspend Construction

Gus Christopher, propietor of the Golden Mile Drive - in Restaurant on North Front St., appeared before city council yesterday to ask that they suspend plans to construct a seven-foot boulevard in front of his business.

He said the boulevard plus the sidewalk would cut his customer parking area and thus cause him to lose business.

Council turned down his request and will go on with the construction as planned.

Mr. Christopher presented a petition signed by 32 of the 33 residents along the west side of North Front St. from Donald Ave. to Tracy St. asking that the city not construct the boulevards.

Ald. Jack Allin said he had received a number of complaints from commercial people in that area. "Due to the nature of their business," he said, "they depend on a lot of drive - in trade.

"I think we're being a bit harsh on our commercial people. It has been rumored that we want to drive our industries out of town. Are we going to do the same to our commercial people?

"I think it would be disastrous if we put no parking on this highway. It would drive them out of business."

Ald. Allin proposed parking bays along the street as a solution to the problem. City engineer Wilbur Purcell said the question of parking bays was discussed and turned down in council last June.

Mr. Purcell explained that on a main four - lane artery such as North Front will be, it is necessary to have boulevards to move pedestrian traffic away from the curb as a safety measure. He said the space is also need for snow storage.

Ald. Deacon sugested that once the project is completed council can look at it and if the boulevard creates certain individual hardships they can be taken care of then.

MacMillans To Stand Trial Over Windfall

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate Joseph Addison read a five-minute judgment Thursday committing George and Viola MacMillan to trial on two charges of fraud involving their roles in the rise and fall of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. shares in July, 1964.

They were released on $5,000 cash bail each. No date has been set for either trial.

Magistrate Addison said at the end of the four-day preliminary hearing that it was abundantly clear millions of dollars were made and lost in a short time when Windfall shares climbed to $5.60 from 56 cents on rumors that copper and zinc deposits were found in a July 6 drill core taken from Windfall property. The price dropped to 60 cents July 31, 1964, on the Toronto Stock Exchange when the rumors were quashed.

The judge said it was up to a jury to answer questions arising from the MacMillan's activities during the stock's fluctuation.

MacMillan, former Windfall president, and his wife, company promoter, are charged with affecting the public market price of Windfall shares "by deficit or falsehood or other fraudulent means" and defrauding the public in April, May, June and July, 1964.

"During about a one - week period the MacMillans made a $1,500,000 profit in Windfall trading," Magistrate Addison said.

"I would think that a clearer explanation should be required to explain the earnings in the few days of a sum not earned in a lifetime by an average man.

"The money did not drop from the sky or come from the ground. The public lost it."

Nobody Knows Where Quebec Money Goes

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Thursday that under the province's hospital insurance plan, a hospital bed costs more per day in Quebec than anywhere else in Canada and that no one, not even hospital administrators, knows where the moey is going.

Mr. Johnson said the problem has existed since the Quebec hospital insurance plan was instituted by the former Liberal government which was "not ready to do it."

"It has been more than five years since the government entered into the hospital insurance plan and it is still a mess," the premier said in an interview.

"I don't know where the money goes and what is more depressing is that the hospital insurance people don't know either."

Will Put Farm Safety Week On National Basis This Year

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Farm safety week goes national this year in a co-ordinated effort to reduce the accident toll in Canada's most dangerous industry.

The National Safety League has set aside July 24-30 to make farm families aware of the sometimes fatal pitfalls in their rural environment.

Not including the home itself, there were 222 fatal accidents on farm premises in 1965. Most of these arose from mishandling of farm machinery.

"Farming is the most dangerous industry," P. G. McLaren, the league general manager, says. "And there's good reason for it."

"For one thing the farmer is working with many different types of machinery, without supervision, often against time. But many facets of his work tend to produce accidents."

Up to now, farm safety weeks have been promotions by some provinces and farm organizations. The league now is uniting these regional efforts into a national week.

The league asks people in the industry to think about and practise specific safety precautions during the week. The hope is that the lessons learned will stick.

SUNDAY FOR THINKING

On the opening Sunday, the league suggests the farmer take time to recognize his moral responsibility in saving lives and preventing suffering by planning and forethought.

Monday, he can make his home safer by checking appliances, cleaning out rubbish and rehearsing a fire escape route.

Tuesday, he can take steps for safer handling of chemicals. Antidotes for inadvertent human use can be learned. Empty containers and stale unused portions can be thrown out.

Measures to prevent falls can be taken Wednesday. This involves ladder repair, lighting checks on stairs and addition of handrails where necessary.

The farmer can practise safety measures on rural roads Thursday. This includes good driving habits and removal of visibility - reducing corner obstructions on roads.

Friday is machinery day in which equipment can be checked to see that guards and safety devices are operative.

The league recommends allowing engines to cool before refueling, turning off the engine before servicing, adding fire extinguishers and first-aid kits to self-propelled equipment.

Saturday, the week's finale, the farm family can practise recreation safety, including rendering farm ponds safe.

The safety league, reactivated in 1962, has become the second major national safety agency. The Canadian Highway Safety Council is the other.

First formed in 1918, the league petered out as an active organization in the 1930s. The highway safety council put it back in action again four years ago and farm safety has emerged as a major role.

The league is working towards calling a national conference of farm - related safety organizations to establish a national farm safety committee. A steering committee is already in existence.

Over-all aim is to develop a strong farm safety program to make the rural areas a safer place, not just the farm proper.

Almost three-quarters of the accidents suffered by farm families occur on the farm somewhere, mostly in the home, the most dangerous accident location off the highways.

But the remaining one-quarter of farm family accidents occur off the farm and that must be attacked too.

Statistical experience shows that 120,000 rural people—not necessarily farmers—will have an accident of some kind this year. Nearly 33,000 of these will involve injury. About 2,500 will die.

about all phases of unification and to give them a chance to express their views on the subject.

Meanwhile, a committee of three naval associations in Toronto welcomed Gen. Allard's announcement of closer links between headquarters and the operational commands.

The committee on the maritime component of the Canadian defence force said it is encouraged that servicemen and women "are to have the opportunity to make their views known before any legislation is enacted."

The committee, made up of representatives of the Navy League of SCanada, the Naval Officers Association and the RCN Association, backed Rear-Admiral Landymore earlier.

George B. Wither, Winnipeg businessman and former naval lieutenant-commander, issued a statement here protesting to the president of the Naval Officers Association the committee's earlier actions.

"Supporting the actions of Admiral Landymore reflects great discredit on our association and its membership," he said in asking that the association be dissociated from views expressed for the committee.

Commodore Charles commanded destroyers n Korea, has been commandant of the Canadian Service College at Royal Roads and assistant chief of naval staff.

A native of Rouleau, Sask., he entered the navy on graduation from the Royal Military College in 1937. He is a communications specialist and served in Norway, Sicily and Italy during the Second World War.

Says Profit Only Yardstick To Judge Radio

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Pouliot, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, said Thursday night that public esteem for private radio stations is evident from the number of listeners these stations have.

"Profit is the only valid yardstick for measuring the quality of broadcasts," he said.

Mr. Pouliot made the statement as a member of a panel on the CBC French-language radio network program Present. He was replying to statements made Tuesday by Rene Levesque, former Quebec welfare minister, critical of private stations and the Board of Broadcast Governors.

Remove Second Arm Sewn Back on Ottawa Tot

OTTAWA (CP)—A week-long battle to save the right arm of four-year-old Myrna Blair failed Thursday when blood clots forced doctors to remove the limb which they had re-attached eight days ago.

Dr. F. G. Walker, one of a team of three surgeons who re-attached both the little girl's arms shortly after they were severed from her body by a hay mower on her father's farm at Pakenham, 30 miles west of here, said the blood clots developed Wednesday night and by Thursday afternoon the situation was so serious the arm could not be saved.

The girl's left arm was amputated above the elbow Tuesday.

The Ottawa General Hospital refused comment on the girl's condition Thursday night.

It is believed that Dr. Fergus Ducharme, 43, a second member of the re-implantation team at the hospital, performed the amputation Thursday. Third member of the team is Dr. Walter Waddell, 38.

The amputation came less than a day after the three surgeons told a press conference it would be two or three weeks before they would know whether the arm could be saved.

FLIGHT REWARDING

Space agency officials hailed Gemini 10 as one of the most rewarding man-in-space flights yet. Said Dr. George E. Mueller, National Aeronautics and Space Associate administrator for manned space flight:

"The results of this flight are of considerable importance to the Apollo man-to-the-moon mission."

Mueller listed the rendezvous with the powerless Agena 8, left in space last March, as one major achievement. The pilots had to use mainly optical means to pull within a few inches of it.

"I believe," Mueller said, "that techniques that have been demonstrated here for rendezvousing with passive objects in space . . . are just the first and minor beginnings to what will become activities in future space programs."

Dr. Robert Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Centre, cited the astronauts' use of the Agena 10 fuel supply and engine to manoeuvre themselves through space—using the hooked-on Agena as a "freight train."

This, Gilruth said, "is a preliminary part of Apollo. This is the mode that's used after leaving the moon to come back to earth."

HAVE TWO PROBLEMS

Two unexplained problems will get special attention. The first is the excess fuel usage during the rendezvous and docking with the Agena 10 Monday.

The shortage led to an early end to the space walk Wednesday.

Collins cut short his "stand-up" excursion — in which he poked his upper body into space to take pictures Tuesday—when pungent, eye - irritating chemical fumes seeped into the space suits of both astronauts.

Inco Strike Talks Continue, Men Still Out

By DAVE DAVIDSON

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The wildcat strike of Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America (CLC), against Sudbury - area installations of the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. entered its eighth day today with no indication of settlement or renewal of negotiations.

Pickets still manned lines at Inco properties and refused to allow anyone to cross them.

But it was reported that strikers removed some barricades Wednesday that barred access to office workers and supervisory personnel as a condition set by the company for continuing negotiations.

Neither police nor the union reported any violence.

Oldest Woman to Fly Atlantic Solo Irked by Britain's July Weather

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Marion Hart, the flying grandmother who became the oldest woman to fly the Atlantic solo at the age of 74, was annoyed about Britain's weather today.

After flying into London Airport in her single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza, she was anxious to fly on to the continent.

"Your July weather," she said, "it's too rough for me to fly over to the continent, although it's just a little hop.

"I hope to go to Scandinavia this weekend, then I'll fly east right across Europe. I suppose Russia is out, but I may get as far as Turkey before I turn back."

Mrs. Hart, who was born in England but who lives in Washington, caused consternation at London Airport when she flew in aboard her tiny aircraft earlier this week.

But she expressed only mild surprise at the sensation she created landing among the big four-engine jet giants.

"I was not thinking of setting any records. I was all set to come on holiday accompanied by a woman friend who is a ferry pilot," she said.

TOOK EASY ROUTE

"When she couldn't make it, I saw no good reason to sit at home. I took the easy route by Iceland and Scotland."

Mrs. Hart first flew the Atlantic in 1953 with a woman co-pilot and made the return flight in 1954. In 1939 she skippered a 90-foot yacht on a 30,000-mile world cruise.

"My friends in New York tell me I'm crazy," she said. "Fiddlesticks. I hope I'm still flying when I'm 100. You don't have to be a youngster to have an adventurous spirit."

Her friends may have been horrified, but her family did nothing to disuade her from her solo flight across the Atlantic.

"Nobody could object," she said. "I'm an experienced pilot with over 20 years of flying. I have a well-equipped plane and it's much easier than driving a car.

JUST SAT BACK

"I just sat back and watched the instruments for most of the 11 hours it took to cross the Atlantic."

Her only moment of worry came when she switched to auxiliary tanks which gave her tiny plane a 2,500-mile range.

"The engine hestiated for a second, but it was all right when I tried a second time."

She is checking her single-engine plane ready for the rest of her holiday journey. Better weather was predicted for today and Mrs. Hart was hopeful she might make it to the continent after all.

Sunday School Picnic

FRONT ROAD UNITED CHURCH

The Front Road United Church held a most enjoyable picnic at Colonel Vanderwater Park.

The picnic lunch at noon was the highlight of the day, followed by a baseball game and races, with first place winners as follows: Joan Clazie's pre-school class - Running - Georgie McKillop; Audrey Taylor's primary class, boys and girls running - Melanie Black; bean bag throw, Melanie Black; Allan Clazie's junior class, boys' running - David Black; girls' running - Kathy Black; boys' bean bag throw - David Black; girls' bean bag throw, Kathy Black; wheelbarrow race, Roger Taylor and David Black; sack race, boys - David Black; girls - Suzanne Ray.

A bean and straw relay and life saver and toothpick relay were enjoyed by all the young folk.

Festivities ended with a watermelon weight-guessing contest which proved to be a lot of fun. Swimming and visiting with friends ended an enjoyable afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Swan and Mrs. Swan were present at the picnic and they added greatly to the enjoyment of the day.

Family Reunion

FLEMING CLAN

The annual Fleming picnic-reunion, like the family itself, is getting bigger and better each year. Favored with an ideal day, over 140 members of the Fleming clan gathered at the Tweed Park at noon on Sunday for lunch.

In the absence of the president and vice-presidents, Mr. Harry Rollins acted as chairman of the group and conducted the necessary business.

Mrs. Delbert Francis was in charge of the games and races for the children and those lucky enough to win were rewarded with prizes with all the children receiving a special gift. The children entered the games with great spirit and later most enjoyed a swim or played ball.

The adults gathered again for distribution of special prizes by Mrs. Delbert Francis. The prize for the oldest member present at the picnic went to Mr. Thomas Tanner, 82, while the youngest was Brennan Devolin, five months. The latest bride was Mrs. Jack Francis and the person present who had travelled the farthest to attend was Mrs. K. W. Wright, Ottawa. A special prize for the nearest birthday went to Michael Rollins, whose birthday was Sunday.

The minutes of the previous reunion and the treasurer's report were read by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Edward Fleming. A review of the family by the historian, Mrs. Harold Francis, showed three marriages, four births and three deaths over the past year as follows: marriages: William Love to Agnes Andrews; Jack Francis to Mona Reid; and Marvin Tanner to Norrie Jack; births: Brennan Ernest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Devolin; Tracy Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neal; Carol Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Fleming; Tammara Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hodge; deaths: Mrs. William John Moore; Mrs. Margaret Jane Tanner and Mr. Foster Twiddy.

Those who had passed away during the year were remembered in a few moments of silence by all those present.

The secretary-treasurer was re-appointed for another year. Also re-appointed was Mrs. Harold Francis as the historian of the clan. In this connection comment was made that next year being the Centennial year for Canada, would be an appropriate time to have the Fleming family tree brought up to date and this effort will be made during the year.

Mrs. K. Wright, Mr. Morley Tanner and Mr. Fred Bateman were asked for their comments and all expressed pleasure at being present at such a fine reunion and regret that there were so many branches of the family not represented.

Those who had the time to do so stayed on to enjoy the fine beach and swimming and concluded the day with a supper lunch. An invitation was extended to all the clan to return for the next reunion to be held on the third Sunday in July at the Tweed Park and to bring the whole family.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Eileen Margaret Boyd, whose Eskimo name is Dingmariuk (Little Bird), is a well-travelled 10-month-old. She spent this spring going from Yellowknife, N.WT, to Glasgow to Spain and back to Yellowknife, by way of Niagara Falls.

She and her adopted mother, Mrs. Jack Boyd, went to Scotland and Spain for a visit with Mrs. Boyd's parents The detour on the route home was made to visit friends Mr. and Mrs Boyd knew when they lived in Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Mr. Boyd is a mechanical superintendent for Giant Gold Mines Ltd. in Yellowknife The couple have a six - year - old named Jacqueline, who was born to them, and an adopted son, Jimmy, 9, who is a blend of Ojibway Indian, Spanish, Russian, Irish and American Negro.

The Boyds are of the Baha'i World Faith and moved to Yellowknife last September to assist in Baha'i work there.

Mrs. Boyd says their faith has much to do with the adoptions

"The world is in such a mess that we came to the conclusion that it is composed of individuals and that it is very important what every individual does. Every little action taken by every individual is enormously important to the whole state of the world. It is like throwing a stone in a pool and the ripples spreading.

"We felt this was something we could do. We don't know how much effect it has had and I don't think we ever will.

"We are trying to break down the barriers — for there are enormous barriers between the Indian and the white people. These barriers will have to be eliminated It is past the point of pin-pointing the blame. It is no good blaming anyone"

Successful Living

Going With Others May Boost Love

DEAR DORIS: I wrote to you once before and appreciated your advice very much. Now I've got problems again. I just turned 27 years old and I still can't seem to settle down.

I am going steady with a very nice boy now, but I am not in love with him. Sometimes I can make myself believe I am but if I really think about it I know I am not. I want to love him because he is my religion, our background is the same, he has got a good and kind personality and he is very much in love with me.

I hate to hurt him again, Doris, as he has been hurt before and it is so good to see him as happy as he is now. He knows I don't love him yet he believes I will in time. Doris, I know other boys who I would like to go out with and who are showing interest in me. Should I give this boy more time or should I break up? I am very fond of him. — UNCERTAIN.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR UNCERTAIN: When in doubt, don't! You aren't the first girl who tried very hard to be in love with the person who had everyone's approval — and didn't make it.

Yet love does grow, if two young people are congenial and like the same things. My suggestion is to tell him how things are and get his agreement to your going out with others. You may find him more precious than ever by comparison; or you may suddenly discover your true love some place else.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I enjoy your column and the poems. I want you to know the pleasure it gives to patients just to enclose these jokes or verses in a get-well card. Sort of brightens their day.

So keep on writing, my dear. — M.C.

DEAR LAUGHING and M.C.: Laughter is good medicine. Keep your sunny side up! Just like a fried egg, like it says in the song.

Putting an amusing clipping in with a message to the sick is the very thing to bring a smile. Also much welcomed by the well. We never know when a brief cheery message in the mail can change someone's whole day.

QUESTION:

Please give me the recipe for pickled wieners including all spices used. If a special type of wiener is needed please state.

—Sara McC.

ANSWER:

PICKLED WIENERS

1 lb. 5" wieners (12 to a lb.) or equivalent in smoked or Polish sausage or pepperoni or knockwurst,
1¼ cups spirit vinegar,
½ cup water,
2 tablespoons sugar,
2 teaspoons pickling spices,
1 small clove garlic chopped.

Cut the wieners in thirds or halves crosswise. If other smoked type sausages are used cut them into large bite-sized pieces. Measure all remaining ingredients into shallow saucepan, bring to boil, add cut wieners, reduce heat, cover, and simmer gently 30 minutes. Remove from heat and pour into preheated, broad-mouthed jar with lid. Cool, then refrigerate for 3 or 4 days before using. During the marinating period shake jar to make sure all wiener pieces are covered with marinade. Serve as appetizers on toothpicks or as a snack with sliced rye bread. These will keep in refrigerator for a week.

QUESTION:

We are weekend campers. My husband heard there was a good way to bake bananas on a fire by adding chocolate or preserves . . . have you heard of it?

Marge.

ANSWER:

Yes - it is called

HOT BANANA SPLIT

Leave skin on green-tipped bananas. With sharp pointed knife on inside curve slit the banana down to, but not through, bottom skin. Very gently force open and insert bits of jersey milk chocolate along bottom of trench. Spoon over it sparingly crushed canned pineapple (or apricot jam or orange marmalade. Preserves may be omitted). Wrap snugly in double sheet of foil. Lay on hot coals or on barbecue rack or bake in oven and cook for 8 to 15 minutes - time depends on intensity of heat. These of course cook faster on live coals than they would in the oven. Open and fold down foil, press skin back and eat with spoon. A delicious campers' dessert. I am told it originated with the Boy Scouts.

Italians Show Furs For Men

ROME (AP)—Doctor Zhivago jackets, cowpuncher shirts and fun furs made up a carnival look when the men got their turn Thursday in Italian fall-winter showings.

Brioni offered long jackets, high - buttoning and chest - nipping, in pink and other pale colors. With them went tight-fitting, Madras - checked shirts with built-in knotted Ascots.

His cream silk suit had black pin stripes and was edged all around in glitter threats. Black persian lamb lapels gave a wintery touch to a tuxedo. An evening coat was lined in the same fur.

Litrico's male models looked like huge abominable snowmen in golden teddy bear coats, worn with Russian worker caps. Ski sweaters looked like the tops of track suits with centre-zip closing.

SHOWS SHIRTS

Franzoni's cowpunching rig teamed a plaid cotton shirt, fringed in glaring yellow plastic, with tight black velvet jeans and cowboy boots. He also showed motorcyclist jackets in glistening black and a fun fur that was huge and husky in shaggy black and white stripes.

Men's suits were almost all single-breasted with long, fitted jackets. Only Datti put cuffs on trousers.

Children's styles by Zingore featured lots of plaids and checks for overalls that had plenty of practical pockets and elbow patches.

In high fashion for women, Eleanora Garnett's theme was derived from ecclesiastical Rome. Scarlet coats, as voluminous as a priest's robes, were worn with matching birettas. Bosoms were high and belts threaded through at the front to leave narrow coats straight and loose in back.

Hunt Down Origin Of Fear Beat It

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a married woman 40 years of age who has a terrible fear that I cannot discuss with anyone. I am so terrified of seeing a dead person that it has cast a cloud over my whole life.

ANN LANDERS

I have a recurring "nightmare" (often during the day) that my husband will die in the middle of the night and that I will be alone in the house with him.

Last week a friend of mine lost her husband. I went to call on her and although I knew the man had died in the hospital I was petrified when I had to go upstairs to the bathroom. I can't describe the sense of panic.

I am not afraid of death. I rarely think about death in terms of myself, but this fear of being with a dead person is agony. Please tell me how to conquer it. A psychiatrist is out of the question. We cannot afford it. — CANADIAN READER.

DEAR READER: You have two problems — and the first is preventing you from solving the second. Your feeling of shame over the thing you fear is as irrational as the fear itself.

You don't need a psychiatrist's ear, but you do need someone's. I suggest you talk this out with your husband in spite of your self-consciousness. Delve back into your childhood and try to recall every dead person you've ever seen.

When you were very young, you were frightened by something or someone connected with a dead person. That early experience is buried deep in your subconscious. You must dig it out, ventilate it and dispose of it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It's very hard to get a divorce up here in Canada. One of us is going to have to commit adultery and I guess it will have to be me.

My wife and I got married very young. I was 17. As you can guess, there was a baby on the way. I had lots of false pride and thought I was doing the right thing, but I was wrong.

My wife and I like each other but we don't love each other. After 13 years we are bored. We now have three children and there is no happiness in our home. We just tolerate each other. Any advice? — FATHER WHILE STILL A CHILD.

DEAR FATHER: Yes. Stay at home where you belong. Of course you married too young, but you now have responsibilities that heavily outweigh your right to jolly it up. There are worse things than boredom, Buddy. And if you leave your family, you'll find out what they are.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter will be an unusual one. Most women want to know how to get a man. I want to know how to get rid of one.

I met Mr. Nondescript on a sightseeing bus tour during my vacation. He asked if he could drop me a line from time to time. I said "Yes" because I didn't want to hurt his feelings. He has telephoned me several times and sent flowers on three occasions. I feel very guilty because he's a nice person but I have no interest in him. Advise please. — GUTLESS.

DEAR GUTLESS: Fix Mr. Nondescript with someone who might like him. You could be doing three people a big favor.

Use Cool Cosmetics For Temperature Control

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Play it cool this summer by learning to temperature-control cosmetics. To avoid that wilted look, blot oil-secreting areas around nose, brows and chin before making-up, then pat face with chilled skin freshener. Complexions naturally flush when the mercury soars, so select your foundation and powder free of pink tints. Also, switch from rose to beige rouge, from red to coral lipsticks, and notice how such color strategy tones down "hot spots."

If you wear eye make-up on torrid days, watch that it doesn't fade when you perspire. One way to win this "running" battle is to powder-set between each application of shadow, liner, mascara and brow pencil. As beauty queen Linda Harrison, seen in the 20th film, "Way, Way Out," discovered, there is a special way to powder those recessed areas around the eyes. Fold puff in half, so one side forms a point. Gently flatten skin with index and middle fingers; then powder has a smooth surface and glides on easily.

Bright sunlight exposes your skill or lack of it, so use a delicate touch. Mirror-check make-up in a clear light and guard against the following mistakes. Avoid crayon-like penciling of eyebrows, for color may pool on skin in warm weather. Instead brush excess wax from brows; then a shadow, not a streak, results. Next, keep lipstick from featuring by re-outlining with a cosmetic pencil. Finally, hide any telltale lines where make-up ends and natural tan begins by brush-powdering chin and throat.

COOL COVER

Dear Girls: Here we go again. It's old, so it's new.

Those lacey hip-length jackets for wearing over lingerie that you never quite decided to part with are back. Not in the bedroom but on the beach!

Slip one over your bathing suit, not for warmth as many of them are sleeveless, but to give a little subtle covering on the trip from your abode to the water.

See you 'round the pool! — SUSANNA

TRAVELLING TIP

Dear Susanna: After travelling from coast to coast across our great nation there are two matters about which I think prospective travellers should be warned.

The air conditioning was often over-zealous, to the point where we had a choice of freezing to death or suffocating if we turned it off; and the bedrooms had a stale or musty odor when we first arrived.

Part way across the country we licked both problems. We equipped ourselves with fleecy flannelette pyjamas and a tin of air freshener spray.

My, how much more pleasant these two items made our overnight stays! Do consider taking along both, if you are starting out on a trip. — Mrs. Violet H.

TIDY TRICK

Dear Susanna: I keep my rubber kneeling pad ever so clean by using sleeves of old shirts, or legs of old pyjamas, to slip over it like little envelope covers.

"Onward, Upward" Song Of The Mets

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Jack Nicklaus, King of the Hill in the principality of golfdom, and heavily favored to win the U.S. PGA tournament currently going at the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio, teed off with two incentives backing him.

Arnold Palmer the darling of golfs "army" also went into PGA action with an incentive adding power to his drives, chips and putts.

Nicklaus, naturally wants to add the PGA bauble of 1966 to a glittering array of successes. Also he wants the championship to round out a trio of sensational victories of the current season. Big Jack won the Masters and the British Open.

Palmer wants to win his first PGA title to round out his magnificent achievements. He has set his mind on this goal with great intensity.

But the opinions of recognized golf experts differ Lawrence Robinson, former president of the Golf Writers of America, picks Palmer because "he is the kind of athlete who can will himself to victory. If he doesn't the man who beats him will require superhuman effort."

Will Grimlsey, Associated Press sports editor picks Nicklaus. "Jack," he said, "is the longest hitter the game has ever known and should be favored over the 7,180 Firestone layout, one of the longest the pros play. With an incentive he should be doubly tough."

Chicago Tribune golf writer also picks Nicklaus because "he is a strict keeper of accounts and wants to get even for his poor play last year."

The editor-in-chief of Golf Magazine who picked Nicklaus to win the Masters in April switched to Tony Lema for the PGA. "Tony's hungry for another title, and he should find this setting to his liking. He scored a $50,000 World Series victory there in 1964."

The San Francisco Examiner's Nelson Cullenward also picks Lema. "He's been suffering with a calcium deposit in his elbow since last fall but refuses to let it bother him. Now he's taking what he calls horse pills prescribed by Sandy Koufax's doctor. If he's in shape he hits long enough to win on that course."

Bill Casper has been almost ignored by the selection experts when he passed up the American Classic at Akron the past three years because he is allergic to the "industrial" air. He's entered but says he doesn't know if he will finish. "It all depends on which way the wind blows."

A Boston writer picks a fellow Bostonian, 23-year-old Ray Floyd as the winner. "He is long and strong and is suited to the course. If he can glue his game together he should win it."

And if the Firestone Country Club course adheres to its practice of the past 15 years of not allowing any golfer to win twice, Mr. Floyd has a chance.

And don't pass up the strength and power of the rest of the field. Any one of them can grab the gonfalon from the top-seeded stars.

There's Gary Player, Doug Sanders, Phil Rodgers, Julius Boros, Gene Little, Daye Marr, Al Geiberger, Mike Souchak, Mason Rudolph, Dan Sikes, Joe Campbell, Frank Beard, Gay Brewer, Dudley Wysong, Bob Nichols, the Heberts, Jay and Lionel, Bob Rosburg, Dow Finsterwald, Bruce Crampton, Doug Ford and an ancient guy named Sam Snead.

LATER

(So what happen? Out of the mist rode Shootin' Sam Snead, forgotten by the predictors. With him was "Depitty" Al Geiberger, a hopeful. They drew and fired 68's while favored Nicklaus and Palmer rode with the posse back there with 73's).

As oratory, it may not rank with the declamations of Winston Churchill or Casey Stengel, but future baseball historians may well regard Wes Westrum's statement as marking a critical point in the history of New York Mets.

The Mets' manager, smiling beneficently Thursday after his club celebrated a 14-3 victory over San Francisco Giants and a club-record six-game win streak, said:

"If we continue at this pace we'll be up there at the end of this month."

Westrum did not specify where "up there" was, but he made his point. Never in their five-year existence, have the Mets been able to consider any problem more prssing than escaping last place.

But now, more than 10 games removed from the cellar, the Mets can begin to think the unthinkable. Eighth place perhaps —only a half-game away. Or would you believe seventh? It's just two games ahead.

STARTED WITH ASTROS

The streak began with two doubleheader triumphs over Houston Astros and now has included two in a row over the Giants. who have lost seven of their last nine games and are within a game of first place only because of Los Angeles Dodgers' derring-do 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago Cubs beat Cincinnati Reds 6-1, St. Louis Cardinals outslugged Atlanta Braves 7-4 and Houston nudged Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 in 10 innings.

Ed Kranepool and Jerry Grote slammed three-run homers in the Mets' pasting of the Giants and Cleon Jones contributed a bases-empty shot.

The Dodgers and Pirates engaged in an old-time melodrama, with Los Angeles winning in the 10th when reliever Pete Mikkelson hit John Kennedy with the bases loaded.

BAILEY HOMERED

The Pirates had gone ahead in their half of the inning on a pinch hit homer by Bob Bailey.

Ernie Banks hit a two-run triple and Curt Simmons pitched a three-hitter as the Cubs ended a four-game losing streak. Don Kessinger had a three-run triple in the eighth to give Chicago more than enough insurance.

Curt Flood hit a three-run homer and Charley Smith and Orlando Cepeda added solo jobs, helping St. Louis to its victory. All the homers came in the fifth.

Mike Cuellar saved a victory for Dave Giusti and Houston, coming in to relieve with two on and one out in the eighth and getting the Phillies out without a run. The Astros got all their runs in the third on five hits.

Senior Hockey Club Readies For Season

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The groundwork of organization of the Belleville Senior Hockey Club, vintage 1966, was laid at the first meeting of directors last night.

It was a representative gathering of the directors many of whom could not appear but gave their blessing to any action taken.

To date twenty directors form the financial backbone of the club. Up to thirty are expected in the near future.

Robert Temple, prime mover of the club's formation and entry chaired the meeting. Later he was named general manager of the team. Floyd Crawford, well-known hockey star is the playing coach. Ron Fralick was named business manager.

Various working committees were formed with some chairmen named.

This reporter heads the publicity and advertising. Dick Ellis is the program chairman. Gordon Roblin is in charge of transportation. Others will be named later.

Finances were discussed and it was estimated that an average home-game attendance of 1,000 would be the break-even figure.

A "Name-The-Team" contest will be held open to all and sundry. The winner will receive a season ticket.

It must be definitely understood that the Belleville Senior Hockey Association is sponsored by a number of private individuals. Outside of arena costs there is no connection whatever with city officials.

It was estimated that the cost of operation of the club for the season will be $25,000.

Season tickets will be sold. Business, industry, service clubs, etc., will be approached to assist in this respect. Three front rows of seats will be reserved. Tickets for these will be made available at downtown centres.

While nothing was done about it last night, an executive slate of a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer will be named in the near future.

Fred Smith, veteran trainer of many athletic squads here, will act in that capacity for the senior club.

The new Belleville club will make its playing debut at Woodstock on October 14th. Hometown fans will see them in action the first time against Barrie on October 21.

It will play a schedule of forty games. Twelve of the home games will be played Friday nights, the remaining eight Tuesday nights.

The club will play three home-and-home series with Kingston and Oakville during schedule play, two series with other clubs of the ten-team circuit.

These include besides Belleville, Kingston, Toronto, Barrie, Orillia, Collingwood, Galt, Oakville, Woodstock and Guelph.

The club's training camp will open three weeks prior to the opening game and will be held either at Trenton or Tweed. The meeting favored Trenton.

The Jacksonville, Florida, club will also train at Trenton during the same period, and arrangements will be made for exhibition games.

To avoid a colors clash with other teams the Belleville club will wear white with red jerseys at home and red with white at away games.

Playing coach Crawford told the meeting he has been in touch and is in touch with some seven or eight top senior players.

"I cannot divulge their names at present, for obvious reasons, but I know a lot of them can recommend them. One of them is an outstanding goalie. We also have a working agreement with the Port Huron Flags."

Locally, Crawford says, he hopes to get out to training camp such players as Shaker Baker, Stu Muirhead, Ralph Plane, Davy Jones, Moe Hunter, Grant Hagerman, Doug Potts, Bobby Boyle, Wayne Brant, Wiener Brown, Lou Smrk, Lionel Botly among others. The camp will be open to all aspiring players.

"Im confident" the coach said, "that with some of the imports and the best players here we will ice a team that should rate with the best in the league."

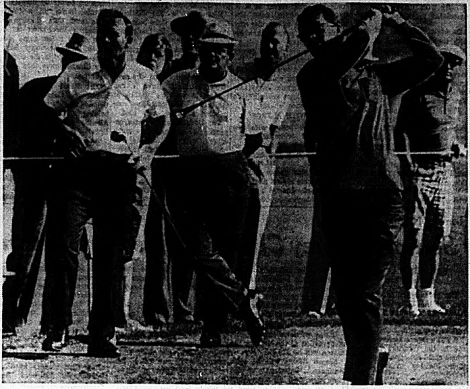
"Gramp" Snead, Geiberger Lead Pack

Shoot 68's

By JOE MOOSHIL



PALMER WATCHES KNUDSON DRIVE — Arnold Palmer, left, watches as George Knudson of Canada gets off a drive on the second hole of the Firestone Country Club at Akron, Ohio, Thursday, in the opening round of the 1966 PGA Championship. (AP Wirephoto)

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Sam Snead, 54-year-old West Virginian, and Al Geiberger, 28-year-old Californian, threatening today to upset form in the PGA's golden anniversary golf tournament.

The two played with deadly accuracy Thursday to share the first-round lead with two-under-par 68s.

One stroke behind were Doug Sanders, Julius Boros and Don January, while Jack Cupit was the only player in the field of 165 to match the Firestone Country Club course par 35-35—70 for the 7,180-yard layout.

Favorites Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer stumbled around with 75s. If they repeat their performances today they might find them failing to make the cut. Defending champion Dave Marr also had a 75.

Canadian George Knudson shot a first round 72.

Snead, who the day before the tournament complained of aches and pains and was afraid he wouldn't make the 36-hole cut, laughed and joked about his fantastic round. But there was nothing funny about his game.

BAGGED FIVE BIRDIES

He bagged five birdies and might have held the undisputed lead had he canned an eight-foot putt on the 18th hole after working his way around a tree and out of a trap.

"The putt was so bad," said Snead, "that I was ashamed to pick up the ball."

Snead said he used a different putter than he did during practice.

"I only brought two along—one for today and one for tomorrow because I didn't figure on being around after Friday."

"I'm not surprised there were so many 76s, 77s and 78s," said Snead. "The fairways look wide but the contour of the ground is such that the actual width you aim for is cut down."

Geiberger, unlike Snead who has three PGA titles in the long list of championships he had captured, has won two major crowns.

But he clicked at Firestone last year when he won the American Golf Classic.

PREVIOUS WIN HELPED

Geiberger, who missed only one fairway and three greens, said winning the Classic last year helped him get off to his excellent start.

"You have to live up to what you have done before," he said. "Knowing I won before, I figure I can win again if I play well."

Among the first - round leaders, only Sanders, the No. 2 leading moneywinner behind Billy Casper this year, was considered a threat.

Casper, who won the National Open in a playoff against Palmer in San Francisco last month, was in a large group tied for sixth place with 73s.

Five players managed one-over-par 72s. They were Tommy Aaron, Jack Fleck, Larry Beck, Jim Ferrier and Walter Inman Jr.

Argos Cut 12 Players

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts for the Eastern Football Conference Thursday announced they have cut 12 players from the squad, includng import flanker Pat Brosnan and Grant McKee, a Canadian defensive halfback.

McKee played with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the EFC and Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference before he was picked up on waivers by the Argos last season.

Others cut were Canadian rookies Andy Szandtner, Irv Riopelle and Don Slupski and imports Dwight Claxton, Mark Maddox, Wilton Manley, Ken Ivan, Loomis Warren, Angelo Craig and Jim Keahey.

Expect Brazilian Fan Tornado

Roughness Brews Soccer Storm

LONDON (CP) — The World Cup soccer championship being held in England, birthplace of the game, has thrilled millions in the last two weeks. Some newspapers say it has bored them too.

Between games it settles down to a wrangle over unnecessary roughness.

Most voluble in this category is Brazil, who came here as defending champions and with an unblemished record of cup play since 1954.

Their great star Pele, a man many consider the greatest soccer player in the world, sat out a game against Hungary and watched his team beaten. He came back to help salvage his team's effort against Portugal and was injured in the first 30 minutes.

Brazil lost that game 3-1 and was ousted from the tournament. They are on their way home to Rio now, with nine men injured, and anticipate a hostile welcome from their fans, perhaps the most frantic in the world.

And following the Portugal game, Brazil announced, as did Pele himself, that the great man would never again play in a World Cup match. He would display his artistry only in "friendly international" matches.

ENGLISH AROUSED

Now the English hackles have been raised by an International Football Federation (FIFA) ruling that sanctions "serious action" against Nobby Stiles if he is found guilty of rough play.

He was warned, then cautioned Wednesday when England beat France 2-0. The warning, says English manager Alf Ramsey, amounts to intimidation of Stiles.

The British newspapers agree and call the FIFA ruling an "invitation to witch-hunters." All this despite the fact that Nobby Stiles is a mere five feet, 5½ inches tall and weigh 150 pounds. he is also myopic.

Italy lost Giacomo Bulgarelli. their greatest star, when they lost 1-0 to upstart North Korea.

In the France-England game Robert Herbin was limping most of the time and Jacques Simon went off on a stretcher in the second half, although he returned to hobble about later on.

CAN'T SUBSTITUTE

No substitutes are allowed in cup games and it has only been recently that substitutes were allowed in national games. FIFA secretary - general Dr. Helmut Kaser said Thursday the federation would probably allow substitutes in future World Cup tournaments.

But for this one they will be playing 11 men a side without replacements, and running up and down the pitch injured or not.

This is the way it will be Saturday when the quarter-finals begin. England meets Argentina at Wembley, Portugal plays North Korea at Liverpool, West Germany goes against Uruguay at Sheffield and Russia meets Hungary at Sunderland. All games start at 10 a.m. EDT.

Portugal is favored to win the cup, but much of the interest will be centred on the North Koreans. If the little Orientals can beat the Portuguese it will be the soccer miracle of the century, if not the greatest sport upset.

Portugal has offered $1,200 to each player if North Korea is defeated.

Neither are the North Koreans gentle players. They put out Bulgarelli. Now Portugal is worrying about Eusebio Ferreira, considered by the experts as second only to Pele.

While the tournament moves relentlessly on toward declaring a champion it becomes increasingly clear that soccer is, to most countries, a sport slightly above a sport.

Spain's manager Jose Villalonga was in tears after West Germany eliminated his team and he declared his retirement.

The seven officials who led Brazil also said they would resign when they returned to Rio. Dr. Joao Havelange, president of the Brazilian Sports Confederation, also announced his retirement. The team doctor and coach are expected to do the same.

Not all take it quite that seriously. Chilean Football Association president Dr. Mauricio Wainer, said:

"Someone has to win, and therefore somebody has to lose."

Come From Behind

Trudeaus Down Madoc

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Down 4-0 going into the bottom of the third, Trudeau Motors bounced back to trip Madoc 10-7 in a hard-hitting Belleville and District softball game at the Alemite last night.

Trudeaus kept alive their chances of tying the Bobcats for first place. They must defeat Picton and Ellis Juniors next week to turn the trick.

The winners discovered some other good news in the contest. Pat Maracle hurled the victory, his first route-going effort since an arm injury several weeks ago.

Maracle scattered eight hits and struck out ten although he was hit hard in spots. He walked three.

Griffin's bunt single and Gray's solid home run clout shoved Madoc two up on the game's first two batters. They made it 4-0 in the top of the third on an error, walk and LeSage's two-out triple.

Baker's crew cut the margin in half that frame. Drake singled, Plane sacrificed and Muirhead was safe on an error, Weston singled sharply through short to plate the pair.

Trudeaus moved ahead to stay with four in the fourth. An error opened the door and the runs poured in on hits by Maracle, Drake, Plane and Muirhead, plus a wild pitch.

Stewart doubled and scored on Gray's single to produce a 6-5 score in the fifth. It stayed that way until Trudeaus ran hit wild in the eighth, scoring four on six hits. Maracle doubled and Drake slammed a round-tripper for an 8-5 score. Muirhead singled, Weston doubled and Mavety and Soule had safeties to chase home the last two.

Madoc's final pair came on a hit batter, error and Masters' lined triple before a double play ended the game.

Big Darryl Kramp was tagged for 13 hits in a losing effort. He struck out nine, walked three and hit two others. Two of his club's three errors also hurt.

Roger Drake's home run and two singles gave him top hitting honors for the night. Pete Weston and Pat Maracle each hit a double and single, Larry Mavety and Stu Muirhead two singles each. Ralph Plane and Larry Soule got the others.

Brian Gray had a homer and single and Len Masters a triple and single for Madoc. Ray LeSage tripled, Brian Stewart doubled, Harold Bailey and Larry Griffin adding singles.

City Hotel Shades Belvedere

City Hotel moved into a third place tie in the Commercial Softball standings last night by nipping the cellar-dwelling Belvedere Hotel 5-4.

Bucky Ethier's base hit, a sacrifice by Doug Murray and Frank Donovan's fly ball snapped a 4-4 tie in the top of the sixth.

City's other four runs came in the third on Feeney's double, an error, Potter's two-bagger, singles by Hawkins, Moreau and Coolen and a fielder's choice.

Belvedere netted pairs in the second and third. Hits by J. Nicholls, Vaughn, McMasters, Potter and Kellar netted the first two and stranded three. Hits by Hineman and Reid combined with two miscues for the second pair.

Dave Feeney hurled the victory, allowing nine hits, striking out two and walking one.

Larry McMasters toiled in defeat. He gave up seven hits, fanned two and walked two.

City's seven hits were divided among as many players, led by Larry Potter and Dave Feeney with a double each. Billy McGuire, Moe Hawkins, Doug Moreau, Tom Coolen and Bucky Ethier had singles.

Belvedere Hotel hits were all one-baggers with Parks getting a pair. Pug Kellar, George Perry, Cliff Hineman, J. Nicholls, Reid, Vaughn and Larry McMasters had one each.

Letter To The Sports Editor

During the recent showing of poor sportsmanship at the Alemite field I feel that the blame for this rests on the shoulders of many people.

I blame the coach and manager of the teams in organized sports whether it be minor or adult. In the minor brackets I feel the coaches should set a good example to the boys from tyke up to show respect for authority and demand the same.

Secondly I blame the parents. There is a definite lack of parent support in the field of minor sport. The parents should be out to watch their boys play hockey and ball and see for themselves what these young boys are doing with regard to sportsmanship. They should not leave everything to the men who run the organized sports program and throw all the blame on them if something happens.

There is a definite lack of parental interest in the young people of today especially during the trying years of 10 to 14 years. This is when most young people develop their sportsmanship qualities whether they are good or bad.

The parents and coaches of minor groups should make their sons or daughters players respect the umpires or referees.

I am not upholding the umpires or referees but I certainly think they are human and can make mistakes. It is easy for us to sit back and point our finger at any error but we must respect them and the authority they have.

I would like to point out to the parents that their is a wide variety of sports being held every weekend.

The baseball and softball minor groups have games every night and special games on the weekend so I urge the parents for once get out and let your boy, grandson or nephew know you care enough for him to watch him do his best whether he wins or not. Let him show you — his family and friends that he is a good sport.

Ties A.L. Record

Twins' Merritt Whiffs 7 In Row

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The way things had been going for him, Jim Merritt wasn't the most likely candidate for a line in the American League record book.

But Merritt's in the book today and he earned it with a brilliant three-hitter that gave Minnesota Twins a 1-0 victory over Washington Senators Thursday night.

Merritt, who had been strafed for seven home runs in his last three starts and showed a 1-8 record for the season, struck out 12 Senators including seven in a row in one stretch.

The string tied the American League record held by four other pitchers. And it marked the third time the record has been matched in Washington's D.C. Stadium this season.

FANNED SIDE TWICE

After Ken McMullen doubled to open the third, Merritt started his strikeout spree.

The southpaw fanned Ken Harrleson, Frank Howard and Don Lock, leaving McMullen stranded at second. In the fourth, he got Paul Casanova, Ken Hamlin and Ed Brinkman. His seventh victim was pitcher Jim Hannan, who led off in the fifth.

The record, originally set by Ryne Duren and matched last year by Denny McLain of Detroit, had been tied by Phil Ortega and Pete Richert of the Senators, this season.

Elsewhere in the American League, Frank Robinson hammered a pair of home runs as Baltimore Orioles downed Detroit Tigers 6-4, Boston Red Sox escaped the cellar with a 7-3 victory over California Angels, New York Yankees edged Kansas City Athletics 4-3 in 11 innings and Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland Indians 7-2.

After McMullen's hit, Merritt retired the last 21 batters for his first complete game in the majors. He was 5-4, mostly in relief, with the Twins last year.

Minnesota's run came in the ninth inning when Don Mincher doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on Hannan's wild pitch.

Robinson's two homers gave him four in the last three games, 27 for the season and 351 for his major league career.

HAD FOUR HITS

The slugging Baltimore outfielder also had two other hits and drove in three runs as the rampaging Orioles opened their lead to 11½ games.

More Gore Could Be In Store

"The second battle of Bloody Gap" might well describe tonight's heavyweight wrestling card at Belleville Memorial Arena.

Scheduled to tangle in what should be the season's most exciting main event are Terrible Terry Garvin and biddy-buddy Al Bell against the speedy combo of Bill Williams and Billy Cash.

Cash was the victim of a gory attack that saw the blood flow from head and face two weeks ago. Who did it? Why, Garvin and Bell of course. Williams had rushed into the fray, as did Bell, unscheduled.

Garvin and Cash were slated to meet in a main event up Trenton way last week but Cash was not permitted to fight, on orders from his doctor. However, he's healthy again. Both he and Williams will have to be at their best to cope with the bigger and much rougher Bell-Garvin team.
